Toronto, Nov. 8 —(CP)— Hugh A. Newall, of the Royal Canadian Air Force, held on a charge of murdering his wife, Aune Newall, made another appearance in men's police court today, and objected to suggestion of the Crown that another remand be granted.

"I was in conversation with G. C. Elgie, K.C., counsel for the accused, yesterday. We agreed to go on with the preliminary hearing a week Monday," said Crown Attorney McFadden.

Mr. Elgie was not present.

"They have been fooling around with my case long enough. It is not fair holding me like this," declared Newall.

"It is not British justice. All my witnesses are on draft. They will be all overseas soon and I will be left holding the bag.

"It is just a farce. I want to get this over with and get back to the air force where I belong. I have been in jail for nearly six weeks and nothing has been done. You would think I was in Germany or Italy."

"It is no farce. You are facing a serious charge," interjected Magistrate Gullen.

"It is serious to me but it does not seem to be to anyone else," replied the accused.

Newall told the Crown that he would like Mr. Elgie present and the question of the remand was put over until Mr. Elgie appears in court.

MAN IS KILLED AT PETERBOROUGH

Accident Discovered by Truck Driver Some Hours After Car Went Into Ditch

Peterborough, Ont., Nov. 8—(CP)—One man was killed and another seriously injured today when their car crashed into two trees and went down a short bank of No. 7 Highway six miles north of here.

Phillip O'Reilly, bread truck driver, discovered the accident and reported to police, who found George Pearson of Peterborough dead at the wheel, and Wilbert Regan, also of Peterborough, conscious in the car, but so seriously injured he was unable to get out.

O'Reilly said when he arrived the motor of the car was cold, which led police to believe the machine was in the ditch for some hours.

Duke and Duchess Of Windsor to Visit U. S. in Near Future

New York, Nov. 8—(AP) — The Daily News says the Duke and Duchess of Windsor are expected to visit New York sometime between Thanksgiving, probably Nov. 21, and Christmas.

The Duke and Duchess, says the paper, have consented to make personal appearances at a charity ball to be given for the British War Relief Society and the Allied Relief Fund, which merged forces yesterday.

Date for the ball will not be set until the Duke, now Governor of the Bahamas, cables the date of his arrival on a visit that is expected to last two weeks.

Gunmen Kidnap Salesman and Car, Then Stage Holdup

Toronto, Nov. 8—(CP)—Police today sought two gunmen who kidnapped a printing salesman in crowded downtown streets and later are believed to have staged a holdup in suburban New Toronto, escaping with $800.

Malcolm McCutcheon of Brampton told police that as he entered his automobile here yesterday a man, armed with a revolver, slid in beside him. Another gunman took over the wheel and after they were out of the ciy, they bound his hands with his tie, parked the car behind a race track and locked it.

The thugs then are believed to have gone to Reeve Edward Vogelman's drug store in New Toronto and at gunpoint, forced two customers and the staff to lie on the floor. They fled with the money to McCutcheon's car, drove off and several blocks away, left him.

It was the first armed robbery in New Toronto in the last 15 years.

TEACH ALL TO SWIM

Edmonton, Nov. 8 (CP)—Lloyd E. Wood, independent mayoralty candidate in Edmonton's Nov. 13 civic election, promised in a campaign speech last night, that if elected he will sponsor a campaign to teach all soldiers stationed here how to swim. He said this would give them a chance to save themselves if a ship they were on was torpedoed on their way overseas.

Italian Delay Boon to Greeks

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Nov. 8—(AP)—Now that Mussolini's forces in Greece are again on the march, Great Britain must soon disclose her strategy and the extent of her ability to aid her little Greek ally.

Rome and Athens agree that the Italian right flank is on the move after a floundering start and an unexplained eight-day halt on the Kalamas River line in Epirus. The exact nature of the Fascist thrust is not clear, however. Even if it represents, as Athens and London observers believe, the real "big push" of the Italian attack on Greece, there are circumstances which tend to make it a more costly operation for Italy than it would have been eight days ago.

That eight-day Italian halt on the Kalamas certainly means a far heavier toll of Italian lives in the new drive, even if it can fully regain lost momentum. Within that time Britain has moved up both her air and sea power.

From British bases on the Greek island of Crete, or possibly on the Greek mainland, a shuttling air attack on advancing Italian columns is not only possible, but already proceeding. And the resumed Fascist drive also is now exposed to attack from the sea. It is aimed down the Ionian coast to Greece from the Kalamas River jump-off.

Protection of that open sea flank from British assaults must necessarily be a task assigned to the Italian navy as well as to Fascist air units. That suggests the stage is being set in the Ionian Sea, between the boot of Italy and the Greek coast, for a British-Italian naval clash. British leaders, from Prime Minister Churchill down, have frequently challenged their Italian foe to just such a contest.

Mr. Churchill recently lamented to Parliament that Eire's neutrality prevented British naval vessels from using Eirean bases in the fight against Nazi submarines operating near the British Isles. The Italian attack on Greece has provided the British Navy in the Eastern Mediterranean with sites for just such bases—sites closer to Italy than any previously available, except Malta.

British sea power, as well as air power, has moved up to Crete or possibly even further northward along the Greek coast. That strengthens Britain for the war on Italy, particularly in the Ionian Sea. Crete puts another strategic key in Britain's grip. It cuts in half the distance British submarines previously had to go to Alexandria or Malta for refuelling. That means they can spend much more time at the possible scene of action.

SAYS BELFAST'S STAND VINDICATED

Lord Craigavon Refers to Eire's Denial of Use of Her Ports to British Submarine-Hunting Forces

Belfast, Nov. 8 (CP Cable)—Viscount Craigavon, Prime Minister of Northern Ireland, today declared the present situation in regard to the refusal by Eire to allow the British navy to use its port is a "complete vindication" of the stand taken by Belfast at the time of the Anglo-Irish pact of two years ago.

Commenting on Prime Minister Eamon De Valera's statement that Eire would continue to deny the use of her ports to the British submarine forces, Lord Craigavon said:-

"I gave a solemn warning to the British Ministers from time to time on the dangers bound to accrue from such unnecessary action as the surrendering of these valuable bases for British use as protection not only for Great Britain and Northern Ireland but for Eire also.

"All the sacrifices Ulster has made in the past have been fully justified by having secured for his Majesty's forces a pied a terre in Ireland from which they can successfully combat the dangers which confront us by land, sea and air. What has happened is a complete vindication of the government of Northern Ireland since it took office."

Eire Navy Units Patrol Waters

Lough Swilly, Eire, Nov. 8 (AP)—Units of Eire's tiny navy patrolled the waters of Lough Swilly today, in fulfillment of Prime Minister Eamon De Valera's promise to guard naval bases against any attack.

Lough Swilly, in the county of Donegal in the extreme north of Ireland, was one of the most important of the bases used by the British fleet in the last war. Guns installed there by Britain still throw practice shots out to sea in Eire defence manoeuvres.

(De Valera, commenting in the Dail yesterday on Prime Minister Churchill's assertion that inability to use Eire ports as bases placed a "grevious burden" on the British navy in patrolling the sea, said it was impossible for Ireland to hand over these.)

U. S. ENGINEER HELD

Shanghai, Nov. 8 —(AP)— Information received here from Tokyo today said the Tokyo police had arrested and were holding incommunicado a United States engineer, Harold Landon, said to be a distant relative of Alf. M. Landon, Republican presidential candidate in 1936.

Landon was said to have been a resident of Japan for two years, engaged in aeronautical research under direction of the Japanese army.

INDIAN ACQUITTED OF AXE KILLING

Goderich, Ont., Nov. 8 (CP)—Sam Dodge, 51-year-old Indian of the "Wandering Caldwells" group, is a free man today, enjoying his first liberty in more than four months with his wife and four young children.

He was acquitted here last night by a Supreme Court jury of murdering James Kilpatrick, 57-year-old carpenter in his (Dodge's) shack near Exeter, Ont., last June 20, with an axe.

Evidence had been given that police, called to the Dodge shack, had found Kilpatrick's body lying partly scalped in a pool of blood while Dodge was found kneeling beside a bed in an adjoining room with his head resting in his hands.

There also had been evidence that Kilpatrick, accompanied by Dodge, had bought cheap wine the day of his death.

LOGGER KILLED NORTH OF MADOC

Michael Franks Struck by "Dry Tree" and Sustains Fractured Skull

Michael Franks, 70-year-old Madoc Township resident, was killed when hit on the head by a falling tree while skidding logs for the Airhart Lumber Company 20 miles north of Madoc yesterday afternoon. Coroner Dr. F. J. Nickle of Madoc investigated the accident and announced no inquest would be necessary as the incident was of a purely accidental nature. Mr. Franks suffered a fractured skull as the result of being hit by the falling tree and died shortly after the accident.

Franks was employed at skidding logs for the lumber company, when a loose log struck a "dry tree," knocking the timber over. Mr. Franks was standing nearby and did not see the tree toppling down, as his back was turned. Provincial Constable Arthur Dymond, of Madoc, assisted Coroner Dr. Nickle during the investigation. Other nearby workmen miraculously escaped injury when the "dry tree" fell dangerously close to a group of skidders, but struck only Franks.

Premier Hepburn Invites Labor Council To Meet in Ontario

Toronto, Nov. 8 (CP)—Officials of the Toronto District Trades and Labor Council said last night that Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn issued an invitation two weeks ago to the American Federation of Labor, through its president, William Green, to hold its 1941 convention in Ontario.

They said Mr. Green replied thanking the Ontario Premier and saying decision on the 1941 convention city will be made at the 1940 convention in New Orleans later this month.

Mr. Hepburn's letter, promising his Government's assistance in planning the conventon, reads in part as follows:

"I need not refer to the splendid relations which for years have obtained between our two peoples, nor need I stress the fact that in the face of a common enemy we now have been drawn more closely together in thought and purpose and ideals than ever before.

"I am taking the liberty of suggesting to you that an Ontario convention of your great Federation would, as I regard it, offer further indisputable indication that when, in difficult times like the present, we talk of mutual understanding and co-operation, we mean exactly what we say."

CAROL AWAITS VERDICT

Seville, Spain, Nov. 8 (AP)—Former King Carol of Rumania, returning from Madrid to await the Spanish Government's reply to his plea for freedom, went to the catherral today to pray.

Under a form of arrest with Carol, Mme. Lupescu and Urdareanu accompanied the former King to Madrid, where he appealed to Foreign Minister Serrano Suner for permission to leave Spain.

GREEK MORALE REMAINS GOOD DESPITE BOMBING

Residents of Salonika Also Prefer Protection of Trenches to Cellar Shelters

SANDBAG BUILDINGS

By J. WES GALLAGHER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Salonika, Greece, Nov. 8 (AP) — Residents of this Macedonian city hastily piled sandbags about important buildings and dug trenches in open spaces today to prepare for an serial siege from the Italian air armada.

In these days this once-powerful city has been transformed into a trench-scarred citadel.

Most of the residents prefer open ditches to cellar shelters during air raids because they can see what is going on outside.

A hit on an Italian plane brings them charging out of the trenches like infantry going over the top so they can be on hand where the plane lands, whether it is loaded with bombs or not.

One Italian plane which fell in Salonika was torn to shreds in a few minutes by Greeks seeking souvenirs.

The government was forced to issue regulations prohibiting residents from taking parts from fallen planes before the authorities can take control.

Many of those who fled from the city when the Italians first attacked are filtering back.

Those who remained have adopted a nonchalant attitude toward air raid alarms. Children play a Greek version of hopskotch with bomb fragments.

Even in buildings converted into hospitals for the civilian wounded there is an air of confidence.

In one hospital, I saw a boy swathed in bandages as the result of an air raid. He did not speak of his pain, but asked me:-

"Mister, did you see our soldiers shoot down that Italian plane? I saw it fall. They can't beat us."

INJURIES OF MEN DESCRIBED BY DR. G. H. STOBIE

Counsel for Defendant and James Risk, Witness, Have Verbal Duel

CASE CONTINUES

James Risk, C.N.R. employee injured in a railway crossing accident in July, 1939, and the star witness in the Canadian National Railway's damage suit for $25,000 against G. F. Montgomery, Frankford, now being heard in Supreme Court here, re-entered the witness box this morning and concluded a six-hour testimony after a strong cross-examination by defendant's counsel, B. M. Balfour, K.C.

R. E. Laidlaw, K.C., is acting for the plaintiffs.

Risk told the defendant's counsel that he had been proceeding at a speed of from 15 to 20 miles per hour on his gasoline car along the right-of-way toward the Glen Ross crossing, where the accident occurred. He had slowed down when about 300 yards from the crossing and retarded his throttle until the car was moving at the rate of one mile per hour. When car was crossing the crossing he had advanced the throttle and was doing this when the Montgomery automobile struck the car.

Lengthy Questioning

A statement by witness that he did not see the automobile on the platform of his gasoline car resulted in lengthy questioning by Mr. Balfour and Mr. Justice MacKay, in view of the fact that the witness swore yesterday that he had seen the automobile approaching when it was fifteen feet away. The bench, at this point, issued some eloquent advice to the witness and urged that he make straightforward answers.

Cross-fire between council elicited remarks from the bench on numerous occasions. Mr. Laidlaw strenuously objected when the defendant's council cross-examined Risk as to amounts of damages he was suing for. Mr. Laidlaw's objection on the grounds that relationship between client and counsel was being aired was upheld by the bench.

Injuries Outlined

Dr. George H. Stobie stepped into a semi-professional role when he was called to the stand just before noon by the plaintiff's counsel. The Belleville surgeon, by means of an X-ray flash box pointed out and described the bone injuries to Risk and Frederick Todd, C.N.R. employee, who was riding with Risk when the accident occurred. Under examination Dr. Stobie outlined the injuries and their effects and in Risk's case told the court the period of recovery had reached its maximum. "His disability now is permanent," he said. Risk suffered fractures of both legs, chest injuries and internal injuries, as well as a back condition.

In Todd's case, the doctor pointed out, the condition of this man was in a progressive state and would gradually grow worse. He had a very serious disability and a man engaged in his work would be endangered considerably. He had traimatic arthritis in the knee and his left leg was shorter by one inch. The bone had been bowed by the fracture of the femur and the man had been forced to wear an orthopedic boot.

Dr. Stobie and Risk have been the only witness called thus far in the suit.

Undersea Warfare May be Intensified

London, Nov. 8 —(CP Cable)—With a German sea raider, perhaps one of the pocket battleships, loose in the Atlantic, naval experts here agreed tonight that the British Navy has one of the war's biggest problems on its hands.

Further it was stated that the submarine has definitely replaced the bombing plane as primary menace to embattled Britain.

It was said that although German bombers have done great damage throughout Britain they have not menaced the nation's war effort to anything like the extent which the U-boats have done in the last five months. And there is every indication that the undersea campaign will increase in intensity this winter.

Prisoners Offered Money and Wedding Rings for Food When Captured

Athens, Nov. 9 (AP).—An entire Italian division—perhaps 15,000 men—was reported in informed quarters today to have been trapped by Greece's defenders in the Pindus Mountains and its capitulation was said to be only a matter of hours.

The troops were identified as Mussolini's famed Centaur Division and it was said hundreds of the men including the commanding general, had been taken prisoner.

The Italians were reported thrown back the entire length of the 100-mile front.

Thrown Into Reserve

The action was one of a series in which Greek sources said counter-attacking troops had thrown the Italian invasion machine into reverse all along the 100-mile front.

The remainder of the division, said to be without food and other supplies, was scattered throughout the mountains inside a circle formed by Greek troops. Heavy Italian guns and a large quantity of war materials were dumped into a ravine to prevent capture by the Greeks, one source said.

Military experts said the predicament of the division was due both to an Italian blunder and brilliant Greek strategy. The Italians, trying to make a lightning thrust at a strategic road running into Ioannina, went deep into the mountains. The Greeks cut the column and closed the gap in the lines, isolating the invaders.

Salonika, Greece, Nov. 9 —(AP)—Italian forces in Albania were reported to be withdrawing from the Koritza sector today in the midst of the heaviest fighting of the two-weeks-old Italian-Greek war.

Greek troops were said to be gaining the upper hand slowly, although they had made no large advances.

Meanwhile, a new batch of 260 Italian prisoners arrived in Salonika. Thirty-one of these were Alpinists, with feathers in their caps. Troops of this type formerly were stationed on the French front.

Greek guards accompanying the prisoners said they offered all their money and even wedding rings for food when captured.

Neutral observers took this as an indication that British and Greek naval action in the Adriatic was making it difficult for Italy to supply her Albanian troops.

Why The Weather?

(By Major A. H. Thiessen)
Science Service Meteorologist

Climatic barriers! Explorers of old were not afraid of oceans and mountains because of their breadth and height. They were stopped by the terrors of climate. The ocean, which could have been crossed, has its contrary winds, terrific hurricanes, calms, opaque fogs, and treacherous icebergs. High mountain chains could hardly be scaled because of the nipping cold, blinding storms, glaciers, and deceptive snow fields which any moment might become destructive avalanches. Deserts have their sliding sands and choking smothering winds. The wet tropics were impassable, due to jungles and fever. And the polar regions presented impassable fields of snow and broken ice and extreme cold.

Britain Protests Passage of Nazis Through Hungary

Budapest, Hungary, Nov. 9 (AP).—British Minister Owen St. Clair O'Malley has informed Foreign Minister Istvan Csaky that "I cannot condone" continued passage of German troops through Hungary, legation officials disclosed today.

The O'Malley statement, made in an interview with the foreign minister, was not a formal protest requiring a formal answer, officials said, but demonstrated that the British government was cognizant of Nazi military activities" inside neutral Hungary".

Despite repeated denials by the Hungarian government, some observers in Rumania estimate an average of ten German troop trains daily arrives in Rumania after passing through Hungary.

The steady growth of German armed forces in the Black Sea area has caused Balkan speculation as to whether the Nazis intend to launch a winter drive into Turkey as a development of the reputed axis plan initiated with the Italian invasion of Greece.

Diplomatic circles in Budapest generally believe the Italian attack was premature. These circles compared the Norwegian and Greek campaigns as evidence that the Italians failed to follow the Nazi policy of careful preparation.

Two American Newspapermen Find Bombing in London Hard on Nerves

(By Alfred Wall and William W. White
(Associated Press Staff Writers)

London, Nov. 9. — (AP)—"Jerry" may not have undermined British morale, but he put an awful dent in ours in our first 24 hours in London.

Coming from the peaceful United States via sunny Lisbon, we watched all along the railroad route to London for bomb damage and saw little—then stepped into the air raid alarm the minute we swung off the train.

People were running; sirens were wailing.

"What'll we do now?" we frantically asked a porter.

"Well you can go into that shelter over there", he said, pointing.

"Let's go!" we said. And then, as he lingered, "hurry up: Aren't you coming?"

"No", he said nonchalantly, "I'll just hang around here with your luggage".

So we stayed. Then we saw, the people were running to catch a train, not to take shelter.

We just got into our hotel room when a distant clatter of anti-aircraft guns was followed by a roar of planes high overhead.

Bombs started to fall, each coming closer, until the room and our knees shook.

Wall: "By golly, Bill, I'm scared".

White: "So'm I".

We went downstairs, heading for the hotel shelter. Calm Britishers sipping drinks or reading books, made us feel sheepish.

Sometime, somehow, maybe we'll get used to it.

NAZIS CELEBRATE ANNIVERSARY OF RISE TO POWER

Adolf Hitler Tells Nazi Party Comrades in Beer Hall "Germany Prepared for Future"

CANCEL BROADCAST

Citizens of Munich Forced Into Air Raid Shelters Just as Address Was to be Broadcast

Munich, Nov. 9—(AP)—Informed German sources admitted today that British bombs fell on Munich last night "some time after" Hitler had addressed his Nazi party comrades in a speech commemorating the 17th anniversary of the abortive beer cellar putsch in 1923.

They claimed that Hitler had completed his address in which he declared that Germany is "prepared for the future as never before" and "strong enough to meet any combination in the world" before the Royal Air Force raiders arrived.

The Berlin sources said Munich citizens were forced to take shelter in their cellars during the raid.

Doris Duke Cromwell Says She and Husband Separated Permanently

Los Angeles, Nov. 9 (AP).—Doris Duke Cromwell sailed last night in the Matsonia for Honolulu with the announcement she and her husband, James H. R. Cromwell, former United States Minister to Canada, have "separated permanently".

"I have no immediate divorce plans," she told reporters. "We have separated, permanently. I have not seen him for a long time, in fact, not since his birthday, June 4."

The tobacco heiress said she would stay in her Honolulu home indefinitely.

Asked for comment about her husband's defeat for United States Senator in last Tuesday's election in New Jersey, she said: "It's a great pity, for he worked so hard."

Chamberlain's Condition Unchanged

London, Nov. 9—(CP)—The condition of former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, who is gravely ill at his Hampshire home, was reported "unchanged" today.

It was disclosed that King George and Queen Elizabeth had visited Mr. Chamberlain recently for about an hour.

British Raiders Bomb 'Military Objectives' in City of Munich Heavily

London, Nov. 9 (CP).—A stick of bombs overshot its mark and hit the famous beer cellar where Hitler spoke at Munich last night and started a large fire, the Press Association said today.

The Air Ministry said Munich, as well as military objectives in northern Italy, were raided.

An Air Ministry announcement reported "military objectives" in the birthplace city of National Socialism were heavily attacked at the time Hitler was addressing a rally of the Nazi old guard, and the Press Association said one salvo of explosives missed the target and hit the beer cellar.

The British bombers flew more than 600 miles and reached Munich before 9 p.m. (4 p.m. E.D.T.), the Air Ministry said, and dropped bombs for more than an hour.

Railways, which run through the centre of the city, were particular objectives.

(The National Broadcasting Company in New York had been advised that Hitler would speak at the rally from 2:20 p.m. to 4 p.m. E.D.T. yesterday. The broadcast later was postponed to 4 p.m., then was cancelled.)

Communications objectives elsewhere in Germany and Industrial sections of Italy were said to have been bombed in the overnight raids.

The Air Ministry said Milan and Turin, Italy, were "among towns visited by the R.A.F. last night".

The British Press also declared that the air force had kept Hitler's Munich speech off the air last night.

The Air Ministry announced the overnight attacks "on industrial targets in Italy and on communications and other objectives in Germany" after reports of alarms in Swiss cities gave the first hint that the R.A.F. might be striking across the Alps.

The London authority declared: "Strong forces" of British planes were over Munich in "attacks on communications in Germany".

British bombers also flew 1,300 miles to attack industrial areas in northern Italy and so far as is known at present returned to their base without loss.

An aircraft factory at Turin and the Pirelli magneto works at Milan were said to have been bombed.

Targets in Germany and Nazi-occupied territory which the communique listed included oil refineries at Gelsenkirchen and Frankfurt, aircraft factories at Nuremberg and Amsterdam, freight yards at Hamm, Soest, Osnabruck, Duisberg, Rohrort, and the hook of Holland, railway communications at Stuttgart, Mors, Saarbruecken, Mainz and Le Havre, and eighteen German airdromes.

A German submarine base at Lorient on the Nazi-held coast also was reported bombed "with good results".

GERMAN RAIDS LESS DAMAGING THAN PREVIOUSLY

LONDON OBJECTIVE

London, Nov. 9 —(CP)— German raids over the United Kingdom during the night today were reported to have caused less damage and casualties than on Thursday night and the raids, though strong at first, tapered off sharply after a short time and continued with reduced intensity some time after midnight.

The Nazi attacks, as usual, were concentrated mainly on London, where some casualties were reported. One bomb scored a direct hit on an air raid shelter.

The Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security reported: "Some persons were killed and injured and a number of buildings damaged, but both damage and casualties were less than on the previous night."

Wide areas of London shook with bomb explosions in the early hours of the raids and communities near the capital shared the attack. The raiders, operating singly for the most part, also were reported over other scattered sections.

U. S. FREIGHTER SUNK BY MINE OFF AUSTRALIA

5,883-Ton Vessel Sinks in a Few Minutes — Second Ship to be Lost in 24 Hours

ONE MAN LOST

Sydney, Australia, Nov. 9 (CP)—Naval Minister William Hughes announced today that the 5,883-ton United States freighter City of Rayville blew up and sank off Cape Otway, near Melbourne, last night, but said 37 members of the crew of 38 were saved.

Mr. Hughes said the sinking probably was caused by a mine.

(The City of Rayville was the first United States ship to be sunk by war activity since the outbreak of hostilities Sept. 3, 1939. The U.S. neutrality law bars American ships from belligerent ports but Australia has not ben declared within the zone of conflict.)

Naval and fishing boats assisted in the rescue of the survivors, who were landed at a coastal town. The missing man was identified as third engineer James Bryan, 22, of Norfolk, Va.

Mr. Hughes previously had announced the sinking of an unidentified British freighter in Australian waters and said this also was due to mines. The Rayville thus was the second ship sunk within 24 hours. The Rayville's crew took to boats, which soon were sighted by fishing craft.

Ottawa, Nov. 9 (CP).—Parliament today entered a long week-end adjournment and will get down to discussion of war issues next Tuesday afternoon with Conservative House leader Hanson leading off in the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

The address was moved yesterday afternoon at a sitting less than two hours long when two young Liberal members warned that great personal sacrifices would be necessary if Canada were to exert a maximum war effort.

Brooke Claxton, young Montreal lawyer who defeated the veteran Conservative, Hon. C. H. Cahan, in the St. Lawrence-St. George constituency last March, moved the address.

It was seconded by Rene Jutras, 27-year-old French-speaking member from Provencher (Man.) who urged members to think kindly of conquered France.

Recalled Epic of Dunkerque.

Both speakers recalled the epic of Dunkerque as an example and inspiration to Canadians. At Dunkerque Britain had attempted and performed the impossible, said Mr. Jutras.

Mr. Hanson complimented the mover and seconder and asked permission to move adjournment of the debate. He said he had hoped to make his contribution yesterday but other events intervened and left him unprepared.

Churchill Says Re-election Of President Roosevelt Gives Encouragement to Britain

London, Nov. 9 (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill today described the re-election of President Roosevelt as "a message from across the ocean of great encouragement and good cheer."

Speaking at the annual Lord Mayor's luncheon, Mr. Churchill said, "We offer our heartfelt congratulations to President Roosevelt who has received an unprecedented mark of American confidence in being chosen for the third time to lead his mighty people forward."

"We shall now receive the support of the products of the gigantic munitions productions and the matchless workshops, furnaces and foundries of the American union," he said.

"Our successful resistance and final victory have been proclaimed by all parties in America.

"But no one over here has been left in any doubt that beyond this strong material help and foundation of common interest there flows a tide of comprehension, sentiment and fierce passionate sympathy for our cause.

"We are straining every nerve to accelerate our production and I do not doubt that we shall succeed."

"The enemy is doing his utmost to cut us off from the vital supplies overseas.

"Therefore the maintenance of our seapower is an absolute necessity to our victory......

'Diplomatic Moves' by Axis Powers Possible this Weekend Says Report

Rome, Nov. 9 (AP)—Political observers declared today that they expected "diplomatic moves" by Germany and Italy perhaps this week-end.

Russia's attitude was considered the key to the factors in the Balkan situation. Importance was attached in Italian quarters to the presence of Foreign Minister Ciano at the Soviet Embassy's celebration on the anniversary of the Bolshevik revolution.

The Fascist press published a statement attributed to Soviet Ambassador Ivan Gorelkin by a Bulgarian correspondent that relations between Germany and Russia were "developing happily" from the economic and political point of view while those between Russia and Italy have "entered into a new phase of economic and political rapprochment."

Frank Collins, 38, well-known hockey player, and employee of the Imperial Oil Company here, was instantly killed shortly after 10:30 today when an empty gasoline tank car suddenly exploded on the railway siding adjacent to the huge storage tanks of the company on South Front street.

Collins, who lives on Frank street, was hurled one hundred feet into the air by the force of the explosion. According to Harry Smith, British American Oil Company employee, an eye-witness to the fatality, Collins "whirled high in the air like a top. His body crashed down on the top of an adjacent tank-car and rolled to the ground terribly mangled."

"I was working on a tank-car directly opposite to the one Frank was working on," Smith said. "I looked across the road and was about to say something when I saw him take the dome from the top of the tank-car. He laid it down and apparently had removed, or was removing the cover, when I saw a sudden gush of flame. Then occurred a heavy explosion and Frank was hurled high in the air."

Inquest Ordered.

Chief Coroner Dr. J. J. Robertson, after investigating the circumstances ordered an inquest. The preliminary will be held in Martin's Funeral Home, Church street, at 4 p.m. today.

Practically every vestige of clothing was stripped from Collins' body. Pieces of sweater, gloves and other apparel worn by the dead man were spread over a radius of two hundred feet. A severed thumb was found some distance from the scene of the explosion by Fire Chief William Lynch.

British Troops Land On Island of Crete Amid Bursting Bombs

London, Nov. 9 —(CP)— A Reuters News Agency dispatch from its special correspondent with the British Expeditionary Force in Crete described Friday the landing of the first troops on that strategic Greek island several days ago.

"Amid bursting bombs and exploding shells as Italian bombers, escorted by fighter planes, swept low over the harbor in the teeth of a fierce barrage put up by British warships," he said, the troops stepped ashore.

"No sooner had the British troops begun to disembark," the correspondent wrote, "than flights of enemy aircraft appeared over the hills surrounding the harbor and attacked British cruisers which came alongside to land the British troops."

He said the bombs dropped harmlessly near the quayside and that only two soldiers were slightly wounded.

When the bombers had left, the correspondent added, the Cretan population "emerged from their shelters and houses and cheered the British troops, shook hands with them and threw flowers as the steel-hatted men, loaded down with equipment, marched from the jetty in the highest spirits."

The correspondent said the raiders returned the following day but were driven off by gunfire from the warships.

CITY AND DISTRICT NEWS

TERMS GENERALLY USED IN ARMY

As a matter for the record, some of the terms, especially the initials used in connection with the army are a little confusing to the civilian. Some of the most commonly misinterpreted are the following: R.S.M. which means Regimental Sergeant. Major; R.Q.M.S.—Regimental Quartermaster Sergeant; C.S.M.—Company Sergeant Major and C.Q.M.S.—Company Quartermaster Sergeant.

COUNTY VOTERS TO VOTE EARLIER

Voters in practically every township in Prince Edward County will trek to the polls on December 2 this year as councils of the various municipalities have decided to hold municipal elections a month earlier. The two townships of Athol and North Marysburg are the only ones which will hold their elections on the regular date.

The reason for the change to early nominations and elections this year is to attempt to hold elections before snow completely blocks the county roads as has been the trouble in previous years. In many townships in Prince Edward County, acclamations are expected for the Reeve and councillors, but in any event, an election will be necessary as the question on the length of the council term is to be decided.

Mayor Glen Thompson To Seek Re-Election

Announcement that he will present himself for re-election as chief magistrate of the city in the forthcoming civic elections was made today by His Worship Mayor Glencoe E. Thompson.

The Mayor refused to comment on any possible planks of an election platform when interviewed, but pointed out the fact that taxes have been reduced four mills during his tenure of office.

"This is not", he said, "any statement of what the 1941 council will do, I have no voice as yet in those matters. I merely wish to inform those ratepayers, who", and here His Worship who is usually exceptionally modest about his own personal and civic qualifications, hesitated a moment, "have requested me to again enter the election lists as mayor of the finest city in Ontario".

Police Blotter

Claiming to have been blinded by the headlights of oncoming automobiles, a motor car driven by J. Windover, Frankford, crashed into a telephone pole on Highway No. 2 three miles west of Belleville last night. Windover told Motorcycle Patrolman J. H. Hatch that bright lights of other vehicles blinded him and he brushed guard rail posts along the highway before careening into the pole, which was broken off by the force of the impact. Windover escaped with minor injuries.

Fourteen Pigeons Stolen

The janitor at the Albert College reported the theft of 14 valuable homer pigeons, stolen from his private pens sometime last night. A hasp on the pen door was pried off to gain entrance.

Sedan Stolen

Kingston police reported the theft of a 1939 model Dodge sedan Friday evening. The vehicle, which was equipped with Ontario licence plates No. 648-E-9, was seen driven away by a soldier.

Contsables Taylor and Thomson answered a call to Great St. James Street where a man was found lying in the gutter in a drunken stupor. A portion of a bottle of liquor was found on the man's person and he was taken into custody.

Two gallon cans of anti-freeze were reported stolen from a service station on the Bay Bridge Road during the night.

Two Bicycles Found

Public Library Has Definite Place In Wartime Service, Report Shows

264 New Members in Two Months, Including Many War Guests, Establishes Record at Corby Library

At the regular monthly meeting of Corby Public Library Board held last evening the report of the chief librarian, Miss Kathryn Gallagher, was submitted. Mr. T. V. Scanlan, the chairman, presided.

Miss Gallagher expressed appreciation to the board for the confidence placed in her in her recent appointment, and the thanks of Miss Delaney for her promotion. The report was as follows:

"Gentlemen: My first month as chief librarian has necessarily been a very busy one, involving new planning of duties and hours for our staff, checking over the many branches of the work which had been shelved during the summar holidays and attempting to arrange a workable routine which will meet the needs of our rapidly growing membership.

Record Membership.

"The number of new members joining the library continues to be a satisfying one. A total of 102 joined this month of which 72 were adults and 30 children, seven of these also were non-resident members. Thus for the first two months of the Fall season we have broken all records for membership with a total for the two months of 264 new members.

"Total circulation for the month was 8892, of which 6052 were adult books and 2764 children's books.

Wartime Service.

"The library as well as other businesses is feeling the effects of the war. With our readers clamoring for new books and orders given to many publishing firms, we find that shipments are very slow. In many cases as few as 10 books arrive in an order of thirty. Many of the firms do not know definitely when shipments can be made as they connot be informed when ships are sailing from England. Many firms also have suffered heavily with cargoes lost at sea. We are finding too, that our book money does not go as far as in other years, with war taxes added to the rising prices. In this regard, I was requested by Miss Elizabeth Morton, secretary of the Ontario Library Association to act along with the St. Thomas' Public Library in sending an appeal to the government to remove the taxes on public library books. Since that library as well as our own is in a military zone it was thought feasible to use us as an example. In my statement, I explained how we are giving co-operation to the war effort with books of interest to men and boys attending the Dominion-Provincial Youth Training Classes and to Air Force readers. We have added many books on mechanics, welding, blue-print reading, wireless and the many technical fields so busy this season. As books of this nature are more expensive than any other kind, we feel that we should not have to bear the burden with war tax added. Many of the hundreds of new borrowers also are families who but for the war would not be living in Belleville, who are men and families connected with the Air Force or are guests from overseas. We welcome them all to the library but feel that since we are thus carrying our part of the war effort our burden of tax should be lightened. This summer also we were called on for discarded books and magazines to be used in camp by the local regiments.

Community Centre.

"The growing interest in the library as a community centre was shown also in the splendid use made of our reference department by study groups, extra-mural, collegiate and primary schools and by individuals. During the month we collected material for thirty different topics and looked up three complete class projects covering various periods in history, costume, customs, etc. We were consulted too by various study groups to help in preparing reading lists for their winter meetngs.

"A rural school has requested to visit the library during Education Week beginning Nov. 10. We have had a request also from the Director of Education for the Ontario Reformatory for discarded books for use in that institution, for he adds "with the cold winter months we expect our large population to increase."

Poster Display.

"During the month I placed a display of posters and book jackets in the Nurses' Residence, at the General Hospital since we had had many enquiries about membership and book suggestions. As a result we obtained ten new members and had many requests for the books whose covers were displayed.

"Thus we feel that the fall season of 1940 is finding the library deep in many activities and with the co-operation of my enthusiastic staff I feel that we may accomplish many things.

'Respectfully submitted,
"Kathryn Gallagher, Librarian."

Routine business matters were discussed, during which the librarian was appointed assistant secretary of the Board.

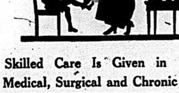
Victorian Order of Nurses



Skilled Care Is Given in Medical, Surgical and Chronic Cases

Bringing healing to the sick and new understanding of health conditions by their instruction to mothers the Victorian Order of Nurses go their busy way each day. The record of their work in Belleville since organization here is one of achievement and progress, the many community health enterprises, and the thousands of grateful patients who have come under their care being a lasting tribute to the activities of the Order here.

As this same service is available to those who circumstances make it impossible to pay the nursing fee and to those who can meet this obligation there is necessarily a deficit in the year's budget. This deficit is met by grants and particularly by the donation of the Belleville public through tag day and the annual membership drive which is being conducted throughout the city this week in an effort to raise one thousand dollars.

Canvassers have called at every home. Those who were not prepared to make a donation during the week are reminded that the expenses of the Order continues every day in the year. Those interested are asked to contribute at any time, by taking out a membership in the V.O.N., if they cannot do so at this period.

The response has been encouraging so far. The Committee and the nurses feel that the community is showing through its practical assistance a whole hearted interest in this civic enterprise which is in itself an inspiration toward future progress.

AMATEUR SHOW MUCH ENJOYED

Entire Program Staged by 3 Little Belleville Girls, the Proceeds Going to British War Victims' Fund

The contributing effort of three petite Belleville lassies, Mary Lou Pigden, Madeline Walden and Barbara Jean Diment, will doubtlessly prove an example to others in patriotic endeavors. Assisted by a galaxy of professional guest talent, these three little girls staged a variety concert and amateur show at Christ Church Parish Hall last evening, the entire proceeds of which will be given to the British War Victims' Fund.

Besides the guest artists who added much to the program, upwards to twenty amateurs contested, proving themselves ardent entertainers, as the final results and voting ended in one tie. The winner of the amateur contest was William Navan, blind pianist of this city, whose medley contribution received loud acclaim. Jack Shaddock and Ethel Smith, vocalists, were tied for second prize, while Becky Gitelman of Trenton gave a monologue that was judged third and the Pigeon sisters, with a piano accordion act playing "Hungarian Dance" received fourth prize.

Guest Artists Perform.

The guest artists on the program included Miss Mildred Lloyd, L. C. C. M., reading; James Bankier, tenor solo; James Lazenby, impersonator; Muriel Jobson, vocal; Walt Taylor, guitar; Mrs. T. A. Tucker, reading; George Sheppard, solo; A. C. Walt, violin solo; one Calgary Pete, cowboy songs; and the Air Force quartette. Tommy Mason was master-of-ceremonies and kept the show moving in the accustomed inimitable manner, while Miss Margaret Saunders accompanied the guest artists at the niano and Arthur Sweet operated the public speaking system. Other guest artists were the sponsoring girls (Madeline Walden, Mary Lou Pigden and Barbara Jean Diment) in a tap dance, while Joyce Cooper assisted in a soft shoe dance.

Many Contestants.

The contestants included Beverly Blue, tap dance; Ila Keene, Irish songs; Valerie Fleming, Highland fling; Cecil Reid, solo, Jack Hull, guitar; Barbara Hanna, solo; Dorothy and Arline Dickey, tap dance; Pigeon sisters, accordion duet; Norma and Alice Chambers, duet; Jack Shaddock, solo; Becky Gitelman, monologue; Doris Rodgers, tap dance; Wm. Navan, piano medley; Beryl Mallory, vocal; Ethel Smith, solo, and Audrey Parks, yodeller.

Concluding the program the entire audience, guest artists and contestants sang "There's Always Be An England" with the Air Force instrumental quartette and Will Navan at the piano supplying the music. The National Anthem closed the show.

The appreciation of the sponsors to the Sweet Brothers for the use of the microphone and to Templer's for flowers was graciously expressed.

Enticing Workers Away From Firms Engaged in War Work Will Not be Tolerated

The new Order in Council issued by the Federal Government recently introducing fines up to $500 to back up its policy of no enticement of labor by industrialists in the field of war production, will cause local industrial firms now handling war orders to work in closer co-operation with the Employment Service, when seeking additional skilled help for their factories, is the opinion of local employment officials.

The Order in Council, dated November 6th, provides stiff fines on summary conviction for firms guilty of enticing workers away from other firms engaged in wartime production. The statement made by Labor Minister McLarty included: "Under the new Order in Council, persons, firms, corporations or their agents, when advertising, when writing, or otherwise appealing to the public are required to state that applications for employment will not be considered from those employed in the production of munitions, war equipment or supplies for armed forces.

"Exception is made for employees not actually employed in their usual trade or occupation. The order also prohibits verbal solicitation of any person engaged in the manufacture of munitions, war equipment or supplies."

The Order in Council expressly provides, however, that the measure is not intended to limit the individual rights of the workers.

Tenders For Buildings At Mt. View Airport Soon to be Called

Tenders will be called and contracts let in the immediate future for the construction of buildings and hangars for the housing of men, planes and equipment at the Mountain View Air Gunnery and Bombing School, according to a story in the Picton Times.

It is expected that construction of the buildings will begin some time this month and work will proceed all winter with June set as the date of completion.

The Mountain View link in the British Commonwealth Training Scheme will be similar to the one nearing completion at Picton. Both are the same type of air school and are operated directly by the Royal Canadian Air Force.

The construction is expected to involve an outlay of nearly a million dollars by the Dominion Government and a small army of skilled workers will start construction as soon as the contracts are announced.

At present the runways are nearly completed and other field developments now being speeded, are scheduled to be finished in the near future.

Trenton, November 9.—Veterans, Soldiers and Airmen will take part in the Armistice Day Parade on Sunday and on Monday, in this town. Tomorrow morning, the soldiers of the Hastings & Prince Edward Regiment, the Air Force Band, the Veterans and a number of Airmen will line up on the market square and march to St. George's Anglican Church. Following the service, the parade will move down Dundas Street to Front Street and back to the market square where it will be dismissed.

Services will be held on Monday at Memorial Park and wreaths will be placed on the memorial. It is expected that large numbers of townspeople will turn out for this service as it is brought home to us more than ever before that we should pay tribute to the fallen.

Col. G. M. Grant of Military District No. 3 inspected the various companies of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment yesterday. Col. Grant was met at Picton by Lt.-Col. B. C. Donnan, E.D., and other officers and inspected the Picton Armouries, Wellington Armoury and Trenton Armoury. Following the inspection, Lt.-Col. Donnan, Major Angus Mowat, Capt. E. Grothier, Picton; Capt. J. Davern, Wellington and Capt. Broad of Madoc, left for Bancroft where they will hold a conference of the Company Commanders.

A Costly Ride

Taking his friend's car for a ride for only ten minutes cost Cpl. John Balanger the sum of $37.00 in police court here yesterday. He was fined $19.75 on a charge of leaving the scene of an accident and $17.25 for taking a car without the owner's consent.

Chief W. Bain testified that Balanger took his friend's car when he went into a servce station. Driving down Dundas Street, the car collided with another car parked on Dundas Street but failed to remain at the scene of the accident. Dr. W. J. Farley, a witness to the accident, took the number of the car and later the charges were laid against Balanger.

Twelve cases of breach of by-law were laid over for one week. The cases involve a number of storekeepers and restaurant owners who have slot machines and similar contrivances.

Charged with Thefts

Four youthful Toronto residents were arrested here yesterday and appeared in police court before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., on charges of stealing from parked automobiles. The quartette, Frank McDonnell, 26, James McCullough, 20, John R. Pitcher, 20 and Clarence Hawkins, 23, were remanded to the custody of the Belleville jail on remand.

Trenton police allege that the quartette had stolen motor rugs and other valuables from parked automobiles left on side streets in the town.

1918 — Armistice Day — 1940

"Take up our quarrel with the foe;

The Torch; be yours to hold it high.
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow

Mr. Thomas Bata of Frankford Addresses Teachers' Institute at Their Convention

Education in the democracy of Czecho Slovakia in the years following 1918 was described in a most interesting manner to the members of the teachers' profession in convention in the city at yesterday afternoon's session in Queen Victoria School when Mr. Thomas Bata president of the Bata Shoe Company, Frankford, was the special speaker for the occasion.

Mr. Bata introduced by the president of the Teachers' Institute of South Hastings, Mr. W. L. Whyte, Trenton, expressed pleasure at the opportunity of addressing such a distinguished gathering of men and women devoted to the imparting of education and knowledge. He spoke of the educational ideals held by his father and maintained in the Bata organization, that every human being should be independent, free to choose his particular pursuit in life and educated, to acquire skill to maintain himself and his family in his chosen vocation.

Ideals of Education

On that same aim was built the educational system of Czecho-Slovakia when in 1918, following years of oppression, that little country finally acquired independence and freedom by the Treaty of Versailles after the Great War when they had fought on the side of the Allies. Every person was to be an independent and free individual.

Thomas Masaryk, first president of the Czecho-Slovak republic, a college professor with a brilliant academic record, a great educationist, a great humanitarian and a great democrat was intensely interested in the advance of his countrymen in education. He desired education for all and at as low a cost as possible. The people were given every help to attain this goal. The result of the system of education was that twenty years later, in 1938, illiteracy was reduced to 1.4 per cent in the Czech district, while in Slovakia which in 1918 had only three hundred schools for a population of three millions, had twenty years later, three thousand schools and the rate of illiteracy which had been overwhelmingly high in 1918 was reduced to only 7 per cent. That success had been attained under democratic government.

Apprentice System

Mr. Bata explained the system of education in detail. Children attended school compulsorily from the ages of six to fourteen as in England. For the first five years all had the opportunity of attending grammar school. For the next four years they were pupils at an Intermediate school, at the conclusion of which they decided whether they desired to follow an academic course at university, a commercial academy or learn a vocation. The few private schools were not efficient but the Bata organization and the speaker's father tried to remedy this defect by advocating private schools to supplement the state schools and to provide the technical or highly specialized training which government schools had difficulty in giving as they had to provide general education.

As a further development came the apprenticeship schools; boys and girls entering industry after their years at elementary schools had the opportunity of training in vocational work with pay and attending classes in specialized subjects as well. The goal achieved almost by everyone attending these schools was, of acquiring after three years the savings of three hundred dollars which could be devoted either to continuing with a higher education or used as a foundation for future savings. Emphasis is placed on training boys and girls to be economical, to make the best use of their money, to invest it for the future and not to waste it on unnecessary things.

Importance of Teacher

In totalitarian states during the later years, a different system of educating youth, preparing them for war, was underway. The leaders in totalitarian states knew all too well that the teachers are the people who build up and form a nation and what the teacher places in the mind of a child is what he will think and what he will do when he grows up. Education in most European countries was reorganised to teach the people to prepare for war.

Czecho-Slovakia, almost entirely surrounded by countries who wanted war again, had to educate a generation of young people that would not only accept the advantages of democratic life but accept the responsibility of defending it. Schools were organized on that basis, realizing that unless the nation was prepared to defend its ideals of democracy and freedom they would lose them.

Nazi Education

To contrast with the democratic system of education for all, Hitler's conception of education, Mr. Bata read from "Hitler Speaks" by Herman Rauschning one-time confidante of Hitler, his views of "education for the chosen classes" and the "blessings of illiteracy" for the masses. "Only to the ruling classes" says Hitler 'should come the gospel of the free man". Excerpts from the volume read by Mr. Bata impressed on his hearers the fallacy of the so-called ideals of Hitler.

"This is what the people who want to conquer the world, want to bring the world to", said Mr. Bata. "You must decide whether what you are putting into the minds of youth and what our enemies wish to destroy, is worth fighting for.

Ideals Worth Defending

"I will show you a film expressing the enthusiasm and joy of the youth of Czecho-Slovakia for their homeland and its ideals. You will see why Czecho-Slovakian youth wanted to lay down their lives for these ideals and to preserve all that has been built up in two decades of freedom. It is a picture of youth that was Czecho-Slovakia and what we hope it will be again. I am glad that the youth of this country is just as enthusiastic in defense of its ideals. All of us must hope and pray that the time is not far off before the dangerous plan of our enemies is abolished forever".

A very interesting sound picture of the youth of Czecho-Slovakia at a sports demonstration concluded Mr. Bata's fine address. Expression of the deep appreciation of his hearers was made by Mr. A. C. Wilkin, prinicpal of Queen Victoria School who referred in highest terms to the remarkably informative and entertaining address on the country of Czecho-Slovakia.

Public School Band

The program of the afternoon was most interesting. It opened with selections by the Public School Band playing under the direction of Mr. A. Cooper. These young bandsmen are already proficient on their various instruments and their excellence of performance reflected great credit on the training they had received. The progress made by the band under the tuition of Mr. Cooper has added another fine group of musicians to the artists of the city and one in which Belleville can well be proud. During the program the band contributed splendidly rendered numbers.

"A Chant of Love for England," was very well done by two uniformed cadets bearing flags.

Choral Readings

Choral readings proved one of the most delightful features of the afternoon. Directed by Miss Mildred Lloyd, the pupils of Queen Victoria School presented with rhythm, clarity of tone and that particular "singing" quality so desirable in choral work, a number of appealing selections.

With Miss Mary Lockard as director two groups from Queen Alexandra School were splendid in Choral Readings later in the program. These children, too, had perfect enunciation and a fine manner of presentation. The dramatic quality of the readings was carried in splendid style by the principal performers.

A girls' quintet from Thurlow S. S. No. 6, under the direction of Miss Bernice Robinson was heard in an enjoyable number.

Puppit Show

A Puppet Show directed by Miss L. Hart of Queen Mary School captured the fancy of the entire audience. The Puppet Theatre curtains of deep blue parted to reveal smartly designed stage settings. The first play, adapted by the children after hearing the story, concerned the adventures of Peter Rabbit in Mr. MacGregor's garden. The clever manipulation of the puppets by the children who also gave the dialogue in a very finished manner aroused the keen admiration of the delighted audience. Peter Rabbit was followed by Hiawatha, and the stage which had been peopled by rabbits in miniature, was soon filled with tiny Indian figures in all their colorful raiment. Scenes from Longfellow's poem were dramatized as the lines were read by one of the children.

"Land of Hope and Glory" was beautifully sung as a solo number by Miss M. Atkinson, accompanied by Miss Hardy.

Morning Session

Friday morning's session was devoted to a discussion of problems in general dealing with Grades I to VII, which took place at Queen Victoria School. At Queen Alexandra School groups discussed such special subjects as Health Habits, Art, Social Studies, Problems in Ungraded School Organization and Management.

Bombing of German And Italian Oil Plants Most Important

London, Nov. 9 (CP)—Bombing by the Royal Air Force of German and Italian synthetic oil plants is "the most significant and important operation of the war." Philip Noel Baker, M.P., said Friday in a talk on the British Broadcasting Corporation's "Britain Speaks" feature.

"For months the Royal Air Force has been smashing refineries, synthetic oil plants and storage tanks," Mr. Noel Baker said. "Now they are starting on the Italian supplies, and using their new air bases in Greece."

Supplies of crude oil from outside Europe had been cut off by the British blockade, he said, and in the vast area controlled by Germany, the only major crude producer was Rumania.

"Economists estimate that next year Germany's available supplies will only be half the normal European peacetime demand," he continued, "and the Axis powers may need more than the peacetime supply, in spite of their restrictions on civilian consumption."

This had emphasized the importance of German's greatly-increased synthetic oil production but now the blows dealt by the R.A.F. were having a great effect in this field.

"Perhaps an oil famine will help to rekindle the fires of freedom in the vassal lands," Mr. Noel concluded.

REMEMBRANCE DAY, NOV. 11

Remembrance Day comes again. It brings memories of the day when the Great War ended and of the days when that struggle was in progress and the Allies were fighting and sacrificing for the security of the world against aggression. The memory of the men who served and suffered on the battlefields of Europe from 1914 to 1918 has not dimmed after the passage of nearly a quarter of a century. Their comrades and their friends recall their memories even while another war is being fought for the same cause of security and justice.

Remembrance Day has become a day of rededication of the lives of the people to their country's and empire's cause in support of which they have pledged all their strength and possessions. The second war against warlike and totalitarian Germany with her ally Italy demands the utmost of every citizen to assure the victory which will mean security against disturbance of the world's peace by violent men who disregard pledges, treaties and national promises and use them only as means to deceive mankind.

Remembrance Day which is observed on Monday finds an increasing clearness of vision of the duties which are involved in devotion to the national and imperial cause. On all hands there are the young men who have signed up and are signing up for their country's protection. The Dominion is armed and is increasing steadily her help to the Motherland and Empire. The need is that no one should forget the absolute necessity of performing the utmost that is humanly possible to achieve victory. There can be no half-way measures, no hesitation, co-operation must never let up.

The memory of the men who gave their lives or suffered wounds and the presence of those who came back after doing deeds of greatness in the last war inspire the nation today to its fullest effort.

Even truer today than in the days of the former conflict is what Col. John McCrae wrote in his ever-living lines in the poem, "In Flanders Fields:"

"Take up our quarrel with the foe:
To you from failing hands we throw
The Torch; be yours to hold it high!
If ye break faith with us who die—
We shall not sleep though poppies grow
In Flanders fields."

There will be no breaking faith with those who fought the last war and with those who are fighting in the second struggle to destroy Nazism and Fascism. Canada is a unit in the fight to the finish.

The advent of this season finds the nation steeled to action and sternly confident in the justice of the British cause. It brings the nation in prayer to a solemn rededication of itself to the great task which is to be performed for the sake of goodness and justice.

ATTEMPT IS FOILED

A piece of news of interest to Canada was contained last week in the German language broadcast by the BBC stating that a Nazi expedition of fifty men had been captured in an unsuccessful attempt to seize the meteorological observation in England. A Norwegian patrol boat made short work of the Hun plans and made the Nazis prisoners.

It can be realized how the shutting off of meteorological information of weather forecasts and such information which was decided upon at the beginning of the war is cramping the air service of the German army. These forecasts would have been of immense value to the Huns in charting their plans.

The aggressiveness of the Huns was fortunately nipped in the bud by the alertness of the Norwegians. The decision of the British Government to protect Iceland from the enemy was one of the steps taken to prevent the Hun from gaining possibly a very valuable post for air raiding of the British Isles and for gathering of just such information as to weather.

CANADA HAS PLENTY OF FOOD

Although Canada has been at war for more than a year, the nation's larder is well stocked with good things to eat, according to a recent survey of food in storage in the Dominion. Stocks of all products except cheese and eggs were reported to be higher in September, 1940, than the ten-year average for the month of September.

Wheat is the most important foodstuff held in large volume, and stocks of it in store were reported on September 20, 1940, at 358 million bushels compared with 255 million bushels on the corresponding date in 1939. In addition to the supplies in store, there is a large part of the 1940 wheat crop remaining on farms.

Stocks of beef and pork in storage on September 1, 1940, were also above those of the same date a year ago. The increase in beef was slight but in the case of pork there were 13 million pounds more on hand than a year ago.

Normally stocks of butter, cheese and eggs are built up during the summer months of high production. This year the accumulation of high supplies of cheese and eggs has been offset to some extent by heavy exports to the United Kingdom with the result that stocks on September 1, 1940, were somewhat below the usual amounts at that time of year.

The Heel Of Achilles

It is so long since we have heard a word out of the Sudetenland, which is as mute since it was "liberated" as it was vociferous in the days when it was "repressed" by the Czechs, that it is interesting to read that this was the retreat chosen for the latest conference of Herr von Ribbentrop and Count Ciano. This time they are joined by Franz von Papen, which suggests that the chief subject of discussion is Turkey and her attitude toward the Axis moves in the Balkans. With the Germans on the Rumanian shores of the Black Sea and the Italians at least started on the road to Salonika, the next step brings them to either a deal or a battle with the Turks. The meeting in the Sudetenland may be preliminary to new parleys with Moscow, as is rumored; or it may be merely precautionary—called to hear a report of Turkey's intentions, and therefore Russia's, should the drive eastward impinge on the Straits.

These intentions depend largely on the amount of effective aid the British are able to give to the Greeks. Evidently some units of the fleet are cruising around in the labyrinth of the Aegean islands. The British have landed troops in Crete and used that convenient island as a base for the air raid on Naples. In giving them an excuse to establish themselves on these islands, so important to the defence of Egypt, so handy to the Italian mainland, the Italians may have committed a strategic blunder in their own campaign while strengthening the British position vis-a-vis Turkey and the Soviets.

In any case, the continuous conferences conducted by Hitler and his lieutenants suggest that it is not easy to produce a new order. The teamwork within the Axis seems far from perfect and even vassal states are not as amenable as expected to the ideas of the master organizer, Spain and France are not ready to accept the articles of incorporation. Even Italy makes reservations. Furthermore, it is just possible that little Greece may turn out to be the Achilles heel on which the scheme collapses. If Britain gets a foothold in Greece, Hitler does not occupy the whole continent, and what happens then to the logic of the grand plan?—N. Y. Times.

Heroes of The Press

The London newspapers of these terrible days are, in themselves, documents that deserve to be treasured. They explain how millions in London have been able to endure a month of terror from the skies. They prove, better than speeches or cable dispatches or photographs, that life in the great city goes on in spite of all Hitler's efforts to strangle it. The London milkman goes his rounds, the subway trains and buses keep moving in spite of all obstacles, the light and power services are maintained as far as possible, and the newspapers appear as usual. The thousands of humble men and women who maintain the essential services of London are helping, fully as much as the fighter squadrons and the anti-aircraft, to keep the body and soul of London alive. Whatever the risks, they face them without flinching.

An unforgettable picture of these conditions of work was broadcast the other night by Mr. F. P. Bishop, assistant manager of The Times of London, who told of newspaper production during the air raids. He told of the editors and reporters, the typesetters and make-up men, at work in the basement during the night hours while bombs were falling. Watchers in steel helmets stand on the roofs during the night hours and sometimes signal to stop work below when whistling bombs come too close for comfort. "We can carry on without too much interruption and without too much risk," said Mr. Bishop, "but we have to come up again to send the papers away to the railway stations."

Driving a newspaper van to catch a train in the blackout is ordeal enough at any time. But night after night our drivers go out in the quiet spells, hoping they will not have to dodge bombs and shrapnel in the streets before they get back again. Some of them had narrow escapes, but they take all risks and discomforts as part of the night's work.

Like the correspondents who carry on during the raids, the linotypers and truck drivers of London are proving themselves heroes. Their finished products look as orderly as if there were no raids; the descriptions of the raids themselves are almost as objective as if they had taken place on another continent. To look at the unchanging front page of The Times one would hardly know that London was being bombed, apart from a pathetic death notice now and then, telling friends that some man or woman or child had died, "due to enemy action."

"Hitler would like, among other things, to destroy the free press of England," said Mr. Bishop. "We are determined that he shall not succeed." With such a spirit the free press of England is now writing a chapter of courage and devotion which will take its place among the finest records of the newspaper profession.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M.D.

Shaking the Liver is Good For Mind and Body

A friend asked me to look at an "exercise" for which he had taken the agency. It consisted of a square box on which he asked me to sit or stand. I stood on the box; he touched a button and immediately the box and I began to vibrate.

I told him that this was the same idea as the mechanical horse found on shipboard or in a gymnasium which "shook up" the whole body. What about these mechanical seats or horses? Can they help the body?

There is no question but that the vibrating of the entire body in this manner is helpful. Movement of all kinds is stimulating which is just what many business men and others need after sitting for hours at a time at their desk.

For a long time I wondered how these men with country estates kept as well physically as they did, despite the fact that they were often very heavy eaters. It was only when I remembered that so many of them did a lot of riding that I found the answer. The jogging of the horse was just what was needed to stir up their liver, empty the gall bladder, and stimulate bowel action.

For years it was believed that exercise that shook up or squeezed the liver would make the bile flow and this was proven a few years ago by research workers at McGill University. In fact, I recently came across a rhyme in a little book "Byways to Health" by Wood and Dansdill, as follows:

"A jaundiced young gent in an attic
Once thought he had trouble hepatic (liver)
He bought him a flivver
Which shook up his liver
And now his mentality's ecstatic".

For those that are unable or unwilling to ride, and for those who are unable to take active exercise, anything that will shake up the liver will help them mentally and physically.

That is why massage, electric vibrators, electric rollers, can be helpful where more active exercise cannot be taken.

For the vast majority of the middle-aged who do not play golf or other games, a daily walk at a brisk pace, some bending exercises with knees straight, and not eating heavy meals should keep liver and bowels active and the mind free from depression.

Stewart Says—

By CHARLES P. STEWART

Central Press Canadian Columnist

Washington.—Asked whether or not the U.S. can defend the Philippines, Navy Secretary Knox's answer was, "We can defend anything."

Of course the secretary's questioner meant, "Can the U. S. defend the islands against Japan?" From chats I've had with a great many naval officers in the U. S. service, I conclude that generally they agree with Frank Knox—we can do it. They concur, however, that it must be a terrible chore and an enormously expensive one.

Naturally it will be a job for American sea fighters to attend to. To get to the archipelago's vicinity they'll have to cross two or three thousand miles of ocean, even from Hawaii. To be sure, Secretary Knox promises more bases for warships on the other side of the Pacific—Singapore, for instance. But these prospective bases are as far away as the Philippines are. There's all that salt water to negotiate, no matter how many bases the U. S. have. Japan, on the opposite hand, has a formidable base at the southern end of Formosa, a scant overnight's steaming from a northern Filipino landing.

Obviously the clash, if one occurs, will be mapped especially for the Jap's convenience and about as inconveniently as possible from Uncle Sam's standpoint.

What Can U. S. Gain?

And if, again, the rumpus does eventuate, and if America wins, as forecast by Secretary Knox, with U. S. navy men's endorsement, what'll they gain by it?

It's been emphasized again and again that the Philippines never have been an asset to the United States, only an expense and a liability. Moreover, they're to have their independence shortly. Nevertheless, comments Secretary Knox, so long as they're under the U.S. flag the U.S. will defend 'em. I don't think anybody'll dispute the propriety of that utterance. Even though the United States may not want 'em, it would be an intolerable affront to have 'em taken away from them forcibly.

And even after they become independent? Even then the U. S. probably shan't like to see Japan grabbing 'em immediately. American sense of responsibility may wear off in the course of time, but only, in all likelihood, after a considerable interval.

The fact is, as U. S. state and navy departmental functionaries currently remark quite infrequently, we certainly stuck our neck out in a most injudicious fashion when we took those islands over from Spain following Admiral Dewey's Manila Bay victory—a victory that wished a highly undesirable overseas possession on to American hands, as repeatedly has been demonstrated since then.

Over and over I've heard competent commentators in Washington blame Rudyard Kipling for that error, as they describe it.

Rudyard, at the juncture referred to, was at the flood tide of his stories relative to the activities of the English in India. They caught the American fancy. The U. S. wanted to be a far-flung empire also, with dependencies to send "younger sons" to. The Philippines offered precisely such an opportunity. The U.S. grabbed at the chance, accordingly. Now they're having troubles to unload it.

Defend Themselves?

The suggestion's made that maybe the Filipinos can defend themselves against the Japs.

General Douglas MacArthur, former American chief of staff, is trying today to train a Philippine army. His account is that the Japanese can't afford an invasion of the islands, either financially or numerically. But Filipino President Manuel Quezon, who ought to be a pretty fair judge, doesn't agree with him. Quezon's verdict is that a successful defence of the archipelago, at best, is doubtful.

The U.S. is rushing thither such warplanes as they can spare, anyway. If they can scare up any additional surface war craft they're due to send them likewise.

Rudyard Kipling was primarily responsible for the situation.

And Teddy Roosevelt was a strong booster for the island's acquisition.

The Filipinos aren't to blame. They wanted to be independent from the first—had been fighting for it against the Spaniards when the Spanish-American war started. Uncle Sam had to lick 'em subsequently, under Aguinaldo. If Aguinaldo'd won (which, of course, was impossible), Uncle Samuel would not have had the islands to worry about at present.

Launching of A Cruiser

Naval launchings in wartime are generally private occasions at which only those who have ordered or made the ship are present to see her waterborne. But the public, through the newspapers can sometimes join in such a ceremony and wish Godspeed to the ship and all who sail in her.

Recently a cruiser took the water in a British yard. Even the lads there did not know the name Mrs. Dorling (wife of Rear-Admiral J. W. S. Dorling) gave her but one day her name may be honored as are the names of the Ajax and the Achilles. As the vessel stood on the slips, just a hulk with superstructure and funnels added, she was a mystery ship to us. She will be fast, but no details were made available, and at that stage one could not even guess at her future armament.

After all that she had suffered under the priorities scheme she was ready now at the halfway point in her building. Months ago the keel was laid in peace-time—voluntary stoppage of work occurred—for four hours during an air raid. On this day there were two "alerts" in the hour before the launching, but the second "all-clear" sounded with ten minutes to go. It would not have mattered had it come later, for only immediate danger will stop activity in this yard.

As one looked at the sister ship and the submarine which were the skeleton companions of this vessel on the stocks, and from them along the lines of other ships building, one realised something of what we owe to the men and boys of the shipyards. They must have a special pride in their handiwork in these days. The cheers as the cruiser slid on her way, curtsied and rode on the tide, amid the spurned timbers of her cradle, were evidence of that. Such salutes are almost grudged in "better" times, for the occasion may mark the end of a term of employment for some of the hands; but today there is war work waiting.—From the London Times.

The Ruins Of St. Paul's

(New York Times)

When Macaulay invented the New Zealander who was to sketch the ruins of St. Paul's he invoked the thought of a new invasion by the barbarians, followed by another Dark Age in which Britain's monuments crumbled to dust because Britain had fallen. To the historian of England Sir Christopher Wren's famous church was the sign and symbol of the fate of England. To-day his prophetic vision is partially realized. Londoners walk in ravaged streets, sleep in caves, behold a great gap in the roof of St. Paul's. In recent days they have seen the ancient windows of Westminster Abbey smashed. Bombs have burst in the courtyard of the Mother of Parliaments. Big Ben is grazed and the roof of the House of Lords is rent. The face of the city looks more like Macaulay's picture than any one could have believed even two months ago.

But thought walls are ravaged and landmarks disappear, London is not a ruin. Through the broken apse of St. Paul's the steady eyes of its defenders see a new city rising. What Macaulay did not foresee was that though St. Paul's might be shattered, London would stand and though London might be razed to the earth, England would stand.—New York Times.

AN EXPLANATION

A copy of the Evening News of London, just received here, contains the following provocative little item:

> Puzzle: "When my husband has money he goes for a drink. I wonder why" said a wife at a North London court today.

He went for a drink because he was not feeling well, or he was feeling so chipper that he wanted to share his exuberance with companions. He was unbearably lonely, or else he is the gregarious type, never happy unless drinking with his pals. He was terribly worried about something and sought to find nepenthe in strong drink or he hadn't a worry in the world and went out to find or invent something to worry about.

The weather was too hot or possibly it was too cld. He may be an introvert, or, as another possibility, he may be an extravert. He may have been misunderstood at home; on the other hand, perhaps he was misunderstood at the pub and wanted to set things right.

Perhaps he is getting along in years and frets about the oncoming of old age; or, it may be, he is a young fellow who is depressed by the outlook for today's youth.—New York Herald Tribune.

COSTLY FISH

The housewife who pays 15 or 20 cents a pound for fish in the neighborhood market gets the break every time over the sports fisherman who fishes for the fun of it and pays, for every piscatorial item he brags about, an average of from 3 to 5 dollars a pound.

Unofficial estimates in United States sports-fishing circles hold that 13000,000 sports fishermen spend more than $1,000,000,200 a year for the privilege of getting out into the waters and "tryin' the ol' fam'ly luck." Fishing licenses, these sources estimate, cost them more than $10,000,000; tackle equipment, $35,000,000; transportation, hotel quarters, food, gasoline for automobiles and launches, hats, coats, shirts, jackets, trousers, boots, overcoats, tents, cots, blankets and miscellaneous odds and ends total more than $955,000,000.

Sports fishermen sell no fish, so they derive no profit from their efforts and they outnumber the men engaged in commercial fishing 80 to 1.

Recreational fishing as a sports industry is said to top all sports, including golf, baseball, tennis, football, ski-ing, polo, basketball, hockey, ice skating, hunting, swimming and roller skating.

REINFORCED RABBIT.

(Although Italy already raises more than 50,000,000 rabbits a year, Italian citizens are being urged to devote still more attention to rabbit-breeding in order to supplement the country's meat supplies.)

Do peoples grow more like the food they eat?
Some hold that view, although it sounds fallacious;
On beef the Briton rises from his seat,
Bold as the bull and equally tenacious.
What if the rabbit-fed Italian clings
To lighter meat, by swifter tactics smitten?
Will loud Gayda see him running rings
Round that more ponderous brute, the beef-fed Briton?

Still, you may say the rabbit shows no fight
And far more fondness for a role discreeter;
When danger dawns, at hopping out of sight
It is, than any Fleet, a good deal fleeter.
Ah, but on land it is the tank that counts,
A new technique is nowadays created,
And courage with occasion often mounts
The better, it may be, when armor-plated.

Therefore, when Musso's minions roam the sands
Their later tactics one should not disparage;
The rabbit-fed may rise to stern demands,
Tucked up within their newer type of carriage.
It seldom pays to minimize the foe,
And least of all when he has changed his habits;
These later Roman legions yet may show
Strange prowess as the army of tinned rabbits.

Germans Lie About Picture Of a 'Plane

The Germans are finding it so difficult to obtain R.A.F. bombers to photograph for propaganda purposes that they are taking pictures of their own crashed aircraft and describing them as British.

A case occurred on September 14, when the Volkischer Beobachter published in its North German edition an impressive photograph of a wrecked airplane, alleged to be a British machine which had been shot down. It was accompanied by the triumphant caption: "The end of a British air pirate. He tried to cross the French coast, but our air defences were on the look-out and brought him down."

The aircraft is, in fact, quite clearly a Junkers 88. The curious un-English draughtsmanship of the death's head painted on the fuselage in true Nazi fashion would in itself arouse the suspicion of the observant, and a closer examination of the wreckage reveals it beyond any doubt as a Junkers 88, hundreds of which have been shot down over this country.

A comparison of photographs shows that they were identical machines. Great Britain could supply Goebels with a formidable selection of photographs of Junkers, which have now proved so vulnerable to our fighters and anti-aircraft guns that they are rarely, if ever, sent over this country these days.

It is only in exceptional circumstances that the British authorities reveal the exact types of German machines, the names of crews (dead or prisoners), and the dates and places where the aircraft have been shot down in this country. Such an occasion was on October 9, when the German High Command stated that "all but three of our aircraft returned safely. The Air Ministry had announced that eight German aircraft had been destroyed, including two Heinkel 60 floatplanes which were lost in the sea without survivors. After the German claim had been made, the Air Ministry gave the types, the markings, and the places where the aircraft were shot down, together with the names and ranks of the crews.

The examples given above are only two of dozens of cases in which German propaganda statements about the air war live up to their well-known reputation for untruthfulness. — From the London Times.

Far-Reaching Law Against Jewish Race Promulgated by Nazi Commander

Berlin, Nov. 9—(AP) — A far-reaching law against Jews has been decreed in Belgium by Gen. Von Falkenhausen, commander of the Nazi army of occupation, it was reported Friday.

The chief points of the decree, according to the Dienst Aus Deutschland, are as follow:

1. Jews who fled from Belgium during the German invasion will not be allowed to return. Local officials must register all Jews over 15 years old.
2. Jewish enterprises, clubs, institutes and other groups, as well as factories, land, forest and property belonging to Jews, must be registered by May 1, 1941.
3. Hotels and restaurants owned or operated by Jews must display a sign outside in Flemish, German and Walloon dialect, reading "Jewish Business," effective Nov. 30.
4. Jews will not be allowed after Dec. 31 to hold public office. Jewish civil service employees will be pensioned.

It was said that affairs of religious organizations would not be affected by the new rules.

GANDHI FOLLOWER SENTENCED

Bombay, India, Nov. 9 (CP) — A prison sentence was imposed on the third of Mohandas K. Gandhi's followers to undertake a demonstration in his civil disobedience campaign in India.

Brahamadutt Rai Nirmal was sentenced to six months' "rigorous imprisonment" for an anti-war walk. Two other demonstrators have been sentenced to three months and four years, respectively.

Gandhi sent circulars to all local branches of the All-India Congress (Nationalist Party) asking that there be no disturbances and recommanding that his followers discipline themselves by daily spinning and working among the "untouchables."

WATER REBATE

Your Commission takes pleasure in announcing that due to the successful operation of the Water Utility it is in a position to make a rebate to city users and now when so many calls are being made on the public, it is an opportune time.

It has been decided that all users who have been taking water service for a period of one year or longer will not be charged for water during the months of November and December.

Users who are on meter will receive a rebate of the November and December accounts but the rebate will not be more than the November and December accounts of 1939.

The Commission would point out that the above makes the second reduction which has been made in the water charges since it assumed control. A reduction of 10% was made in January, 1938, and this rebate amounts to approximately 15%.

Ninety-four have been received in this way. The evening opened with games led in her usual efficient way by Jean Matthews. A sing song followed leading into the devotional period. Rev. D. T. McClintock introduced as guest speaker, Reverend A. M. Laverty, of Stirling. His address on "Jesus as Guard and Guide" was helpful and impressive and appreciated by all. After refreshments Miss Mary Kerr expressed the appreciation of the guests for their entertainment and asked them to stand as a token of their gratitude and a pledge of their loyalty to the church and the King and head of the church. Mr. John McClelland responded for the Session in appropriate words. The meeting closed with singing "The more we get together", "Blest be the tie that binds" and repeating the Mizpah benediction. The elders' wives were in charge of refreshments were Mrs. Archibald, Mrs. Gorsline, Mrs. Edmondson and Mrs. Hicks.

After the regular meeting in the Oddfellow's Hall on Friday, Nov. 8, the childern and grown-ups as well enjoyed a most delightful program, arranged by Minerva Chapter No. 138, O.E.S. The honored members were: Mrs. (Dr.) D. L. Curtis, who is leaving for Lindsay and Mrs. Charles Jones recently removed to Havelock. Ear Trouble

As I have said before, if we could just eradicate the common cold from our catalogue of diseases, then I think a great many of mankind's other complaints and infections would disappear. It is astounding how many different infections that begin with the ordinary cold.

Ear trouble cases would be reduced almost to none if we ever found a way of preventing colds. One of the most common ways children develop ear trouble is by blowing the nose too hard when they have a cold. This is because there is a little tube which connects the ear with the nose and throat. This tube is sort of elastic and it remains closed except when we sneeze, cough, or blow the nose. Within this tube right behind the ear drum is an ideal place for germs to gather, breed and multiply. When the child blows his nose too hard, this tube opens and some of the cold infection may be forced up into this tube. If this happens it is altogether likely that inflammation will set up in the middle ear.

The human ear is divided roughly into three sections: the external ear composed of the part we can see and the passage in as far as the drum; the middle ear, that part behind the drum, and the inner ear, comprising the delicate parts of the ear that conduct the sound to the brain.

When this middle ear gets infected in the manner I have outlined, the child may get quite sick. I remember very well how Marie Dionne developed ear trouble when she was about a year old. She had had a cold, and the infection worked its way up the eustachian tube, which I have described, and lodged in the middle ear. She had pain, and ran a temperature. We examined her ear and saw the ear drum inflamed and bulging with the pressure from behind.

The minute we saw this, we knew that pus had formed behind the drum and was causing a lot of pressure. The thing to do was to pierce the ear drum and let that pus escape. So we made a small, regular puncture in the tissue of the ear drum, and the yellowish fluid spurted out. It continued to discharge for a couple of days. Then it stopped, and in a couple of days, the small hole we had made in the drum healed over and Marie's hearing is as good now as ever.

Now what would have happened if we hadn't pierced that ear drum? Well the most likely thing would have been that after a day or so more so much fluid would have gathered that its pressure would have split the drum. This would have given Marie relief but chances are that the irregular rupture made in the drum could never have healed properly and the hearing of that ear would have been impaired for life.

The other thing that happens in such cases is that this fluid would have been driven back into the cavity of the skull which houses the ear. There the bone itself would have become infected and we would have had a mastoid operation to perform. As you all know this is a very serious operation, for in it all the infected bone must be chiselled and scraped away, and all this takes place very close to the brain.

Keep your child from getting a cold; if he does contract one, teach him to blow his nose properly.

Dodging the Cake Platter

By HELEN FOLLETT

If you have a trim waistline, treasure it and keep it; if you haven't, then go get it. One way to slenderize the mid-section is to place your chest upon your knee. Does that idea make you laugh? Tut-tut, my child, it can be done, and one doesn't have to be an acrobat, either.

Stand erect, arms out at the side. Take a long step forward with the right foot. Keep the left leg rigid, bend the right knee, place your chest upon it. Back to first position and repeat. Keep the arms out on a line with the shoulders; that pose is for balance. You may take a tumble at first, but what's a bump in the glorious cause of pulchritude?

Cut Down Starches

If the waist measurement exceeds the normal then cut down on fats, sweets and starches which are your arch enemies if you don't expend enough energy to burn them up, they pack themselves away in the form of adipose tissue. You'll need some of these elements for well being, but very little. Close your eyes when the cup cakes are passed. Never look a candy store in the face. Be sparing when spreading butter on your bread.

Drink buttermilk and unsweetened lemonade, eat lettuce, broiled meats, tomatoes, cottage cheese. Plenty of good groceries can be found that won't add an ounce. And keep right on with your exercises.

The longer the period between permanents the better wave you will get. The treatment tightens the shafts so they form coils. As time goes on the shafts relax; the more relaxed they are the stronger the new wave will be.

For a fortnight before the hard-boiled frizz use oil freely on the hair and scalp. Olive or mineral oil will do; brilliantine is a desirable application, washes out easily. Reconditioning of this kind is well worth while.

Seek a reliable, experienced operator when getting a permanent. Hurried work is bound to be unsatisfactory.

Dress-and-Turban Ensemble

By ANNE ADAMS

Pattern 4512

That "complete ensemble" look is most important this season! And here it is, in Pattern 4512, an Anne Adams turban and dress outfit that would be striking for working girl, young housewife or co-ed. The dress has short, three-quarter or long sleeves and would be lovely in velvet, soft wol or crepe. That high round neckline is a perfect backdrop for necklaces. And the yokes hold soft gathered fullness below. A back buttoning goes saucily to the waist; the skirt has front and back panels. Most important fashion feature is the broad waist-girdle that may tie in front with brilliantly colored bow-tie to match the fabric of the softly draped turban.

Pattern 4512 is available in junior miss sizes 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16, 17 and 18. Size 13, dress, takes 3 1-8 yards 39-inch fabric; sash and turban, 1 yard contrast.

Send twenty cents (20c) in coins (stamps cannot be accepted) for this Anne Adams pattern. Write plainly SIZE, NAME, ADDRESS and STYLE NUMBER.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

COURTEOUS PERSON WAITS HIS TURN

When you are standing in line at a postoffice window, at a ticket office, bank, or at any place of business, don't disregard the rights of other people.

The person who has come first should be served first. People who try to barge in ahead of others at a stamp window or ticket window—or into a public telephone booth!—are boors and pests.

And pests, too, are the ones who, when the wait is long, make impatient or disagreeable remarks to strangers.

"How poor are those who have not patience!"

Flower Girl and Junior Usher

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I am to be married soon, and would like very much to have my seven-year-old nephew and my three-year-old niece in the bridal party. Would it be proper to have my niece as flower girl, and my nephew as junior usher? If this would not be proper, what would you suggest?

2. Would the flower girl necessarily carry a basket of flowers? If so, what kind?

3. My father is not living. Should my mother's given name be printed on the announcements? What is the proper wording of these announcements?

Bride-to-be

1. Your three-year-old niece—although she is pretty young!—may be your flower girl, but I'm not enthusiastic about your having your seven-year-old nephew as a "junior usher". If your wedding is to be formal and you are wearing a bridal dress with a train, he might be a train-bearer. If you will be unhappy not having him in your procession, he might walk with his sister — she is so young that she will probably be delighted to be escorted by her brother!

2. Your little niece may carry a tiny basket of such small flowers as sweetheart roses or it would, I think, be charming for her to carry a little old-fashioned bouquet of circles of small flowers around a center bud.

3. Your mother's formal name is the same as it was when your father was living— Mrs. John Smith. It is this name that should be used on the announcement:

Mrs. John Smith has the honour of announcing the marriage of her daughter Elizabeth Marie to
Mr. Albert Wells Worthy
Tuesday, the first of December

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Helpful Companionship Most Desirable Attribute in Wife

In these days of economic storm and stress, the old Biblical term "help-mate", which means a helper as well as a companion, must seem the most desirable gift in a wife.

It's an unusually far-seeing young man who recognizes this quality in a girl. Ordinarily, the high heels, the cobweb stockings, the applied Cupid's-bow mouth and hair of the latest popular shade continue, as from the beginning, to exercise their usual sorceries.

Countless letters have come to this column from men who attribute their lack of success to wives who have no interest in their careers. Their husbands' professions, if professions they have, are little more to the wives than a means to writing checks.

There returned to Washington, as a member of the House of Representatives, the other day, a man who had been absent for several years. He confided how glad he was to get back, and said his wife enjoyed living in Washington. But she had never been interested in keeping in touch with his constituents at home or being anything but bored with the amenities of politics, which had accounted for his defeat.

In her biography, Mrs. Roosevelt tells how pleased she was when her handsome young cousin Franklin, just out of Harvard, invited her to a dance at a family party. Perhaps Mrs. Roosevelt stresses too much her shyness and awkwardness in adolescence. It's hard to believe, seeing what an evolved product she is today. Mrs. Roosevelt has since become the paramount example of "How to Make Friends and Influence People."

That Franklin Roosevelt as President of the United States broke more precedents than any of his predecessors is due in no small degree to his wife. From the time he was stricken with infantile paralysis, Eleanor Roosevelt labored early and late to keep him from considering himself an invalid. His mother was for accepting the blow of her son's illness, the wife fought it, in which she was ably assisted by the late Louis Howe, the presidential secretary.

In Ruby Black's book, just off the presses, she relates that when Roosevelt became Governor of New York and wanted to investigate the seamier side of his gubernatorial job, but owing to his handicap was unable to climb stairs, his wife saw things and reported them to him.

Miss Black states: "She went to the people and she brought them to the President, both in person and through her reports on what she saw in her travels." That many of Mrs. Roosevelt's trips were taken in response to the chief executive's need for first-hand information, has long since been accepted by the Press in Washington. Miss Black says that Mr. Roosevelt and his wife do not always agree on ways and means.

Whether you are pro or anti-Roosevelt, and disagree and disapprove of Mrs. Roosevelt's varied and ceaseless activities, you must admit that she has not spared herself, working on housing and unemployment programs, and unceasing efforts to aid the underprivileged of all ages.

We began this article by talking about help-mates.

To my way of thinking, Mrs. Roosevelt provides the perfect definition of the word.

What a Grand Girl!
Energy, Poise and Personality

She has energy, poise and personality and is always so sure of herself. Worry and irritability are farthest from her thoughts for she is filled with the joy of healthful living.

Most any girl can have similar attractiveness if she gives proper attention to her health. Anaemic condition, jangled nerves and tired, languid feelings soon give way with the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. And what a pleasure it is to win back the joy of healthful living.

The foundation of all beauty is health. Creams and makeups have their uses but they cannot take the place of vigor and vitality.

Bomb Splinters From Battle of Britain

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Somewhere in London a school suffered heavily from enemy action. There is no roof, the windows are gone, the interior damaged by fire and the walls scarred by splinters. This notice, posted on two walls, remains unscathed: "A reward of five shillings (about $1.00) will be paid to anybody giving information which will lead to the conviction of persons damaging these premises."

Time-bombed out of their shop, assistants at a North London provision store carried on business in the street. Customers were served from an improvised counter in the road.

Londeners have become so accustomed to continuous bombing that quiet spells during raids get prominent play in newspapers. "Half-Hour Lull" read a sub-heading in one paper after an all-night raid.

John Baldwyn Beresford, 52, who resigned a year ago as Director of the Intelligence Department of the Ministry of Information, was killed in a London air raid while on duty as a Home Guard.

Usually if a piece of shrapnel strikes you near the heart you don't live to tell the tale but J. A. Smith of London escaped with only scratches and a bruise when it happened to him. The shrapnel struck his watch and was deflected from his body.

New evening party idea is not to speed your parting guest into the teeth of an air raid, but to add "bed-in-the-basement" to your invitation. In these times of all-night raids you take your toothbrush and pajamas with you when you go to a party.

Charles L. Hyde, well known Belleville business man and veteran in civic politics in Belleville, announced today he was seriously considering entering the mayorality race in Belleville for the year 1941.

"I have been solicited by numerous ratepayers to accept the nomination for mayor in the forthcoming municipal election. For the past 15 years I have served Belleville on both the council and Board of Education and feel I am qualified to assume the chief magistrate's position with such a background," Mr. Hyde, who is at present a member of the Board of Education, stated to the Ontario-Intelligencer today.

"I would like to make my native city of Belleville a greater and grander Belleville. One item I would stress, if I accept the nomination for mayor and am elected, would be to lower the tax rate to at least 35 mills and thereby encourage building and industry in our city," added Mr. Hyde as he stated he was seriously considering the solicitation of his many friends to contest the 1941 mayorality race.

Minesweepers Are Grateful for Jackets From Canadians

The leather jackets painstakingly and skilfully made by Red Cross workers in Belleville, from old pieces of leather and chamois under the direction of Mrs. George Graham, filled a great need among the men engaged in the dangerous work of minesweeping for the Royal Navy. The following letter expressive of the gratitude of those who received them will be an impetus to Belleville workers and those engaged in this special Red Cross activity in Canada to continue this particular project.

FROM A MINESWEEPER'S WIFE'S LETTER

Dear Mrs. Blank: I am writing to let you know that your box arrived safely. As for the contents—it would have been a picture to keep in memory if you and your friends could only have seen the lads' faces when they were handed the jackets, etc. I can just imagine the time and labor that was spent on those jackets but know pleasure it gave you and your friends doing them for a cause such as ours. The raids are night and day here . . we have just to hope and pray that this war will soon end. . . . The nights are getting dark now, and I don't know how people with small children are going to manage, for many of them are catching bad colds from being lifted out of warm beds. It must be wonderful to live where you are—getting to bed and no siren to trouble you . . . On behalf of my husband and his lads I send across the ocean their gratitued to you and your friends for the warm gifts and loevly jackets".

PUNCH.

George A. Reid Is Candidate for P. U. Commission

"You can say that I am definitely in the field for the commissionership of the Belleville Public Utilities", Ex-Mayor George A. Reid, told The Ontario Intelligencer today.

"There is no fooling about it and any reports to the contrary are fictitious", he added. Ex-Mayor Reid has served on the Utilities Commission previously and was defeated in the 1938 civic elections by present Commissioner Clifford Baragar.

Saga of British Empire Depicted in Movie

Collaborating with some of the most influential personalities of the present day, John Drinkwater, well known English playwright, has written a story which graphically portrays the people of England, her colonies, he metamorphosis of the British Empire of Queen Victoria's day into the mighty Commonwealth of Nation which it is today. This story has been produced in a motion picture play and will be shown at the McCarthy Theatre.

The picture depicts the various outstanding phases of the British Empire since Queen Victoria's coronation, the Boer War, Edward, the Peacemaker, the First Great War and the scourge of totalitarism which the Empire is courageously standing before in the seeking of world freedom.

"I have often said that it took a miracle to make the Empire, and it takes a daily miracle to keep it. But I'm not afraid that the miracle will be lacking, for our fathers knew how to build and our children will know how to keep in unity and strength. Each nation is the stronger for being a part of our great Commonwealth of Nations, that will stand," said Mr. Drinkwater when commenting during the screening of his picture, "A Family of Nations," a saga of the greatest nation of nations on the face of the earth.

William Poole, of Cooper, and foreman at the Madoc Marble Mine, was arrested yesterday on charges of uttering threatening letters, with intent to intimidate, contrary to section 516 of the Canadian Criminal Code. Poole, who vigorously protested his innocence, was arrested by Provincial Constable Arthur Dymond, of Madoc, at the Eldorado Marble Mine, where he was employed by Karl Stockloser, the owner.

Stockloser acquainted Constable Dymond with an annoymous letter he received through the mails recently, the contents of which threatened to blow up the mine if a certain employee was not discharged. It was following a two-day investigation by Constable Dymond that Poole was arrested while at work in the mine yesterday. Poole has been employed by Stockloser as mine foreman.

Te accused man was lodged in the county jail yesterday being refused bail. The case will be heard in County Police Court at Madoc next week, Constable Dymond announced.

Little Information On Shipping Losses For the Past Week

(By The Canadian Press)

Although German claims ran high little definite information as to merchant shipping losses became available from British or neutral sources in the week ended Nov. 8.

The 16,698-ton British liner Rangitiki and the 4,952-ton freighter Cornish Star sent messages they were being shelled by a German warship in the North Atlantic, but there was no further word and it was not known whether they were sunk or escaped.

Two other liners, the 18,724-ton Laurentic and the 11,314-ton Patroclus, were announced as torpedoed, but as they had been armed as merchant cruisers and were therefore classified as warships rather than merchant vessels.

The 5,527-ton British freighter Empire Dorado advised she was "sinking slowly" west of Ireland. The cause of the ships plight was not known and the vessel's final fate was not established.

All this left the 1,583-ton Swedish vessel Meggie the only ship known positively to have been sunk in war action this week, but Naval Minister William Hughes announced at Sydney, Australia, today the sinking, probably by mines, of an unidentified British freighter and the 5,883-ton United States freighter City of Rayville.

If the City of Rayville was mined, she was the first United States vessel to be sunk in the second great war.

In its summary for the week ending Oct. 28 the British Admiralty said eight British, neutral and allied ships, totalling 16,860 tons were sunk in that period. These did not include the liner Empress of Britain, 42,348 tons, sunk Oct. 28. Altogether, however, these losses—totalling 59,208 tons—were far below the 190,000 tons lost the previous week and only 3,000 tons over the weekly average of 56,250 tons since the war began.

BUT MANY SHIPS WILL ARRIVE

Berlin, Nov. 9 (AP)—Nazi spokesmen said today that the 50-50 division of United States munitions production with Britain, announced yesterday by President Roosevelt, is "English-American propaganda."

"We are of the opinion that it will be a different matter to bring the material to England," it was added. "A good many ships do not arrive there."

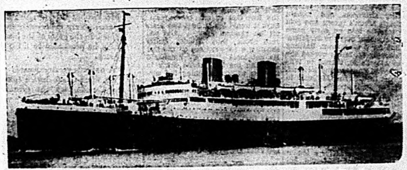
NAVY ABANDONS LIUKUNG ISLAND

Shanghai, Nov. 9 (AP)—The British navy was officially reported today to have abandoned Liukung Island off Shantung Peninsula, which is used as a base for summer manoeuvres, for "the duration of the European war."

Japanese Marines landed on the island several weeks ago after the Japanese-sponsored Chinese regime at Nanking had declined to recognize renewal of a 10-year lease granted the British by Gen. Chiang Chiang Kai-Shek.

The British Consul at Weihaiwei reported that naval stores on the island had been shipped to Hong Kong and that a maintenance party stationed there had departed.

REPORTED BEING ATTACKED BY NAZI SEA RAIDER



After reporting themselves being fired upon by a German raider of the Graf Spee type in mid-atlantic nothing further has been heard from the 16,698-ton British liner Rangitiki, ABOVE, and the British freighter Cornish City. Both vessels sailed recently from an eastern Canadian port. The attack was reported to have taken place approximately 600 miles west of Ireland.

St. Mikes and Collegiate Win Junior School Grid Games; "Irish" Now Lead League

NO CONVERTS

St. Michaels Eke Out 11-10 Win Over Albert College in Closely Contested Grid Game

St. Michael's and the Belleville Collegiate were returned victorious in their respective six-man Junior City League interscholastic football games here yesterday when the "Irish" eked out an 11 to 10 victory over Albert College, while the Church Street "Collegians" handed the O.S.D. an 11 to 0 whitewashing. In winning from Albert the St. Mikes "Irish" moved into sole possession of first place in the league standing, while the B.C.I. squad, who had been shorn of two previous victories owing to playing ineligible players, advanced into a tie for second place along with Albert.

Albert and St. Mikes were tied for the group leadership when they tangled at the Collegiate campus yesterday afternoon and Dobbin put Coach Munn's "green and gold clad" sextette into an early game lead by crashing over the St. Mikes' goal line for a touchdown. Battling back strongly St. Mikes worked the ball to Albert's 20, thanks to Wilson's 45-yard dash around left end, but Albert held forcing McQuaid to punt for a single point and the halfway mark found Albert leading 5 to 1.

First Play Scores

On the first play in the second half elongated Maurice Callaghan speared a forward pass from Goyer and galloped 45 yards for a touchdown that was not converted, but put St. Mikes 6 to 5 in the lead. Albert rallied and had the Irish backed down to their own two-yard line, when Vern Goyer cracked through centre, stumbled, regained his footing and reeled off 50 yards before being hauled down by Dobbin. Goyer subsequently drove through the Albert line for a touchdown making the count 11 to 5. Albert rallied, headed by the fast-moving Buster Donnan, who made two sensational runs and then rifled a forward pass into the arms of Ardiel, behind the Irish line. A convert would have knotted the count, but Albert failed and the final whistle saw Coach Jack Doran's sextette winners by an 11 to 10 score.

The lineups: Albert College—Snap, Pringle; wings, Chatson and Bailey; quarter, Anderson; halves, B. Donnan and Dobbin; subs, Kennedy, T. Donnan, Higgs and Ardiel. St. Michael's Academy—Snap, M. Callaghan; wings, Pigeon, D. Callaghan; quarter, Shepherd; halves, Wilson and McQuaid; subs, Goyer, Power, Bradshaw and Barrett.

Referee—Homer Townsend.

Two Tries Enough

Touchdowns by Doug. Mott and Graydon Rogers proved sufficient to beat the O.S.D. on their own campus yesterday when the B.C.I. sextette blanked Jim Rickaby's deaf lads 11 to 0.

Mott punted a singleton in the first quarter and plunged over for a touchdown in the second stanza to make the score stand at 6 to 0 at the halfway mark. Rogers speared a forward pass in the third quarter and romped over the O.S.D. line for the last score rung up by Coach Cliff Yerex's squad. There was no scoring registered in the last canto.

Of the six touchdowns scored in both games not one was converted, although the front lines in both games held quite securely, as the scores would indicate.

The line-ups: Belleville Collegiate—Snap, Rogers; wings, Sills and Thompson; quarter, Carson; halves Mott and Cunningham; subs, Smith, Welsh, Graham and Brown. O.S.D.—Snap, Wedge; wings, Hood and Wilson; quarter, George; halves, Cork and Conlon; subs, Calder, Styles and Thibault.

Referee—Frank Cunningham.

Sports Roundup

New York, Nov. 9.—(AP)—Joe Louis vs Al McCoy made the fourth sports page in one Boston paper and the third in another. Detroit Tigers have given Coach Bing Miller the good will portfolio and assigned him to the winter banquet circuit . . . . Larry MacPhail's Dodger contract will net him about $50,000 per, including bonuses.

Today's guest star.

Arch Ward, Chicago Tribune: "Bill Terry says he is going ivory hunting, which must give Lefty O'Doul a chuckle . . . O'Doul first tried to sell Terry on Joe DiMaggio. . . . . No deal . . . . Then Dominic DiMaggio . . No deal . . Then Ted Williams . . . . no deal".

Max Baer will sing no less than three numbers in his forth-coming musical . . . . Jimmy Foxx swears he'll not catch another game—for the Red Sox or any other team. Says it would lop at least two years off his baseball life . . . Did you read about that Atlanta golfer shooting a 180-yard ace on the fly? He cut loose with a number 3 iron and the ball landed fairly in the cup without touching the surrounding turf.

As for Louis vs McCoy, it's a darned good thing Sinclair Lewis got "it can't happen here" off the press first.

DETROIT WINGS HAVE TWO GAMES DURING WEEKEND

Play Toronto Leafs in Toronto and Then Move to New York to Battle Rangers

HABITANTS READY

(By The Canadian Press)

Tackling Conn Smythe's Leafs in Toronto on a Saturday night is a tough assignment at any time in the National Hockey League. Taking on New York Rangers the following night is just piling on the agony.

So, no matter how you figure it, Detroit's Red Wings are in distinct danger of having their wings partially clipped at Toronto and Detroit this week-end. But Jack Adams and his right-hand bower, Ebenezer (Ebbie) Goodfellow aren't pessimistic.

For that matter neither is Dick Irvin whose surprising Canadiens play Paul Thompson's Chicago Black Hawks in Montreal Sunday night in the other game of the week-end schedule. The Habitants' tie game with Boston in the season's opener instilled a lot of cheer in their supporters.

Davidson Will Not Play

The revamped Red Wings should be at least an even bet to split points with the weakened Leafs, who will be without Bob Davidson tonight. Didn't the Detroiters beat New York Americans in their first start a week ago while the Smythemen were losing to Lester Patrick's inimitable Rangers?

And didn't the Americans come right back to edge the highly-rated Black Hawks right in Chicago Thursday? All of which adds up to the impression Adams and Goodfellow drew a winning first hand in their pre-season shuffling.

Davidson's knee gave out in last Monday's practice and the rugged left-winger has been unable to skate since. The equally durable Nick Metz is expected to take his place alongside Syl Apps and Gordie Drillon.

Billy (the Kid) Taylor and Don Metz, two of last year's Leaf rookie, may possibly get into the game against the Red Wings. They missed the Rangers' contest.

Canadiens are expecting a bitter tussle with the Black Hawks, who failed utterly before the largest crowd ever to attend an opening game in the Windy City. The game should go a long way in determining just how good the Habitants are.

PORT COLBORNE, HAMILTON TIED FOR LEADERSHIP

Sailors Defeat London 3-1 While Hamilton Trounces Oshawa 8 to 3

MARLBOROS WIN

Toronto Team Gets Winning Goal in Last Minute of Play

(By The Canadian Press)

Hamilton Dofascos and Port Colborne Sailors were tied for leadership in the Ontario Hockey Association's senior series today, having hurdled over the idle Niagara Falls' Brights with victories last night.

The three-game program last night saw Hamilton trounce Oshawa G-Men 8-3, Port Colborne Sailors beat London Streamliners 3-1 and Toronto Marlboros edge out St. Catharines' Saints 3-2.

At Hamilton the Brady-Fritz-Shillington line stood out as Dofascos swarmed over Oshawa for a one-sided win. The line was responsible for seven of the eight Hamilton goals, Brady scoring three and Shillington and Fritz two each. Turner shot the other goal for the winners while Barnes, Cooper and Chappelle counted for Oshawa.

St. Catharines who remained in the league cellar with with the pointless Oshawa squad suffered a tough loss at home, Marlboros getting the winning goal in the last minute on a breakaway from a Saints' power play.

Ten seconds earlier Rossini had scored what might have been the winning goal but it was called back. With a man advantage Saints continued their ganging and Johnny Inglis of Marlboros broke clear and had only ran Forder in the St. Catharines' nets to beat. Inglis made no mistake and won the game.

Earlier Mair and Ezeard had scored for Toronto and Rossini and Backor for St. Catharines.

The win left Toronto with three points and in a third-place tie with Niagara Falls. Hamilton and Port Colborne both have four points.

At London the Streamliners went ahead with a goal by Marzo after two minutes but they were held off for the score sheet for the remaining 58 minutes while Laroche, Thompson and Swanson were counting for Sailors. The loss left London in fifth place with two points.

TO SUCCEED VITT?

Charlie Gehringer has been offered the managership of Cleveland Indians, according to the latest baseball gossip. He was also mentioned as manager of the Detroit Tigers when Mickey Cochrane was removed, but was also passed over at that time.

New York Rangers are not the only team with one of their star forwards off with injuries. With Pike subbing for Hiller on Hextall-Watson line of the Rangers, Nick Metz is subbing for Davidson on the Drillon-Apps line of the Maple Leafs. Years ago when the North American Indian roamed the plains and forests of this continent one of the most common means of procuring game was with the bow and arrow, arms with which the Indians were most proficient. The use of the bow and arrow passed out of existence with the introduction of the rifle (thunder-stick). Of recent years archery has been practiced and the use of the bow and arrow employed more as a recreational sporting venture. However, the white man now is back where the Indian left off over a hundred years ago on this continent, that is according to a recent press dispatch emanating from Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Believed to be the first white man to shoot a deer with a bow and arrow in Algoma, Carl Diekman of Rushville, Ind., shot and killed a deer near the Soo this week. Diekman made the kill at thirty yards with a 32-pound pull on a five-foot bow. An archery club was started in Belleville last spring, but apparently passed out of existance since. Too bad, else the above story might be date-lined Belleville some day.

Throughout the length and the breadth of this continent sports mentors have suddenly become conscious of the fact that the future success of their sporting teams lies with the minors or juveniles. The Kingston and Peterborough sports scribes are strongly recommending the sponsorship of juvenile hockey on a larger scale in their respective cities. Northern Ontario hockey interests, after winning the Allan Cup last year, have suddenly created a strong urge to abandon the higher brackets and today are fostering hockey among the minors on a larger scale than ever before. In order to ice a contending intermediate hockey club here this winter it was necessary to import several puck illuminaries into a city of nearly 15,000 population. Belleville was productive of some high class hockey players in years past and no doubt, if given the opportunity, the same could be said of the future. Last year a move in the right direction was made in the organizing of a four-teamed city juvenile league. It is from this league Belleville will have to look for its future hockey talent, so it is hoped a goodly number of business men will affiliate themselves with the teen-aged kids and help assure its successful future.

When men like Jimmie Powers, sports editor of the New York Daily News, makes a plea on behalf of ambitious youth in sporting circles it would be apparent the movement is widespread and deserves the consideration of the smaller centres, as well as the big cities. Jimmie Powers says he'd like to organize a "Little Brother League" for ambitious boys desiring to play baseball between the ages of 17 and 20. "I would like to make a deal with each big league ball club so the kids could play in their parks when the majors are on the road," writes Powers, as he adds: "An interocking schedule could be arranged between the minor league and the major league," explains Powers. "Kids would get Class D salaries and the best of care and attention. And fans could see lively, sprightly ball for an admission fee of 25 cents.

"The tragedy of baseball is that many a youngster is ruined, literally and figuratively, knocking around some of the Class D wheels I have seen. Besides, many boys cannot afford to live far from home. With a big league park to play in, a fraction of the big league attendance to pull from, and a workmanlike farm arrangement whereby the home club has first call on the home talent—the idea stands more than a 50-50 chance of being mutually profitable all around."

The Trent Valley Hockey League that has seen as many ups and downs as the proverbial elevator boy, will not function this winter, we hear. Tweed, Stirling and Madoo are definitely out of the picture, but out north the boys are eager to learn about the sponsorship of teams in the Ontario Juvenile Hockey Association. Already Art Black and Mr. Carswell of Trenton have entered a team while Lynn Fair and Art Duncan are keenly interested in sponsoring a juvenile puck squad in Stirling. S. R. "Sam" Curry, Tweed's enterprising newspaper publisher, was always interested in minor league sports and is said to be willing to enter a Trent Valley juvenile setup, proving that during war periods is the time to foster sports among the teen-aged, thus assuring replenishment of material for the future. If Madoc and Marmora could follow suit a strong juvenile loop could be assured the Trent Valley district.

Do you remember when—the British government, eighteen years ago today, disallowed a boxing bout between Joe Beckett and Battling Siki, negro fighter, scheduled for Dec. 7, 1922. Similar action had been taken eleven years earlier when Jack Johnson was barred from fighting Bombardier Wells. In the late 1920s however, Larry Gains, Toronto negro, campaigned in England and won the empire heavyweight title.

By mutual agreement the Belleville-Bowmanville senior interscholastic C.O.S.S.A. semi-finals will be of the home and home nature. The Bowmanville scholars desired two Saturday playing dates while the local students wanted week-day playing dates, so the heads of the two squads merely comprised and they will play one week-day and one Saturday date. The series will open here on Wednesday, Nov. 13 (and it'll be unlucky for one or the other, sure enough), with the return game scheduled to be played in the rubber town on the 23rd of the month. The total points on the round will determine the winner that continues to Toronto and the C.O.S.S.A. playdowns on Nov. 30. Coach Baker's "scarlet scourge" is still smarting under that Albert College reverse and they've vowed vengeance, which it is hoped they'll take out on Bowmanville. The "collegians" would have liked to meet Peterborough this year and wipe out that sting of last year's fluky defeat at Port Hope, but as Bowmanville eliminated the lift-lock city squad here's their chance to redeem themselves and ride on to an interscholastic championship.

Sport Slants — Six seniors and four junior teams have entered the Kingston Van Horne series, including the Belleville entry, which will no longer be know as the 'Redmen' ....Of the six senior clubs, the Watt-St. Louis squad and the Perth-Smith's Falls "Combines" are the only out-of-Kingston entries... Queen's, Kingston City and two military teams, including our own 3-47th Battery sextette are in the swim....It was with reluctance that Clark Griffith, owner of the Washington Senators, announced that the Nationals would play night ball in 1941....And it won't be long before they'll all be in, including the high and mighty Yankees.... Remember Roger Peckinpaugh of the old Yankees?....Well he is being prominently spoken of as a possible candidate for Ossie Vitt's vacant job at Cleveland....Incidentally "Peck" don't scare very easily, the Indians should be told...

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was looking at the paper, saying to pop, P. Willis Hinkle has a very intristing article tonight, Willyum. It's on the subject of children's senses and how much keener they are than our grown up senses.

That may apply to everything but the 7th sense, the sense of when to keep quiet, pop said, and ma said, P. Willis Hinkle referred especially to the senses of site and taste. For instants when you see a boy attacking a portion of ice cream with great intensity you're quite apt to attribute it to innocent childish greediness, but not at all. It's meerly because his sense of taste is so acute that he's deriving an enjoyment that we've almost forgotten because we haven't experienced it for years, she said.

Backward oh backward turn time in thy flite, make me a boy again just for a dish of ice cream, pop said, and ma said, Exactly. When we wistfully long for the return of our childhood days it's usually because of an unconscious longing for our departed sense of taste, but alas it's not to be, she said.

Well G, ma, why not? I said. All you have to do is watch me eating a nickel's worth of candy and study my expressions and you'll remember how you used to feel yourself. If you give me the nickel I'll run and get it right now while you're in the mood, I said, and ma said, Such an idea so soon after your dinner.

Well then how about if I dont eat it till just before I go to bed when my stummick is part ways empty again? What do you think, ma? I said, and she said, I think the idea is utterly fantastic.

Well then will you give me 2 pieces out of the box pop brought you? I said.

Wich she did, not even watching me while I ate them.

Library Corner

(By K. G.)

Interesting volumes recently added to the shelves of Corby Public Library include:

Brion, Marcel....Michelangelo

A sympathetic biography of the great Florentine painter, sculptor, and architect is given in this new life of the loneliest of artists. M. Brion has interpreted not only the story of great art but something of the character of the man himself. The volume contains many lovely color reproductions of the artist's masterpieces.

Lewis, Wyndham....America, I Presume

A portrait of America in the winter of 1939-40 as seen by a visiting Englishman is presented by the writer, with usual flair for satire. The book discusses, shrewdly and humorously, the American scene, American society and politics and the attitude of Americans towards themselves and others.

Basil, George Chester....Test-Tubes and Dragon Scales

The Chinese experiences of an American doctor, former superintendent of a hospital in Chungking are told by Dr. Basil in his autobiography. The customs of the people together with the highlights of a medical career in China serve to make an entertaining as well as an informative book.

Komrof, Manuel....The Magic Bow

For years the style of the great violinist, Paganini, has tempted novelists but not until now has the legend and romance which surrounded him been brought to life. The author has written a vivid story blending fact and fiction.

Falstaff, Jake....Jacoby's Corners

A novel that will make you think wistfully of Mark Twain has been written in this story of family life in the Middle West. The scene is peopled with railroaders, horse traders, auctioneers — interesting figures of the turn of the century.

Macaulay, Rose—And No Man's Wit

The scene of the author's new novel is Spain in the summer of 1939 and the events which attend an English family in search of their son who fought in the Spanish war.

For Saturday, November 9

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

SPLENDID opportunities for those seriously ambitious to attain worthwhile objectives are shown by auspicious planetary directions. This definite advance upon high goals may be indicated by promotion, preferment, and other manifestations of confidence and esteem from employers, superiors and others in influential positions.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a year of excellent opportunities for putting over their cherished programs, mainly through industry, application and sound objectives which arrest the attention of employers, superiors or others in power, who are disposed to offer signs of appreciation, preferment, favors and promotions.

A child born on this day may have excellent mentality, force and energy with many sterling qualities to assist it with those of prestige and influence. Hard work, sound ideas and enterprise assure it enduring success in life.

Nazi Surface Raiders Present Real Problem For British Admiralty

(By KIRKE L. SIMPSON)

Washington, Nov. 9 (AP).—Another grim game of naval hide-and-seek is being played out in the darkening North Atlantic. Again one or more powerful German surface raiders are on the loose. It cannot be doubted that all the power of the British Navy has been primed to run them down.

Berlin claims that Nazi "surface" raiders, at a single stroke destroyed 86,000 tons of shipping under British convoy in the North Atlantic.

Whatever British warcraft formed the escort of the convoy certainly flung themselves at the Nazi foe regardless of the odds against them. Traditions of the British Navy, gloriously upheld off Montevideo in the South Atlantic last December, ensure that.

A trio of British cruisers utterly outmatched in gunpowder by the Nazi pocket battleship Graf Spee hunted her to her inglorious death then. Earlier a German sister ship, the Deutschland, was roving the North Atlantic. The Deutchland slipped back to refuge in German waters, however, with a small score of tonnage to her credit.

Presumably it is the renamed Deutschland (the Luetzow) or the third of the Nazi pocket battleship trio, the Admiral Scheer, which is now roving the North Atlantic. Possibly both of them are on the loose. Such lightly armored but fast and heavy gunned craft are a menace to British lines of communication with Canada and the United States.

There are indications, however, that Britain is better able to cope with that menace than would have been the case only a few weeks ago. While the invasion danger hovered close, the bulk of the heavy ships of her Home Fleet were necessarily marshalled close to home. They formed Britain's first line of defense.

With invasion prospects virtually ended, the swiftest British battleships, battle cruisers and airplane carriers can be spared to hunt down the surface raiders. The difficulty for the Royal Navy is to find the foe, not to destroy him once found.

The overwhelming naval superiority of Britain ensures ultimate removal of the new threat. Yet before the raiders are sunk or driven from the open sea they may cause double havoc on Britain's most vital life line. In addition to the actual tonnage they destroy, their activities will compel British merchant convoys to swing far southward in shuttling back and forth between the New World and the Old. That will add days to their voyages.

"Our shipping is not so fruitful in war as in peace times, because the ships have to go the long way round and often to zigzag, and there are delays in marshalling convoys," he said.

Moreover, Nazi-conquered Norway, with its many deep fjords, affords the Nazi raiders innumerable refuelling bases on hide-away holes. It is a tough assignment even for Britain's vast navy to hunt them down, but it must be done. And the hunt is on amid all the fog and storms and the long nights on that wide sea.

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER TEN.

North strode to the slab bearing the slight burden. He must, he realized, be very thorough in his examination. This dead beauty was, so far, his one and only reliable clue—yes—she HAD meant something to Kanamura and Phedre Renoire. And he must work fast, too, for those war clouds were piling up all too swiftly on the horizon.

Obeying North's gesture, Captain Amalu stolidly pulled away the sheet to reveal in an unkindly white glare the perfect alabaster outlines of the unknown figure. The only bits of color on it were twin touches of paint on faintly parted lips.

"We don't get them as pretty as that often," grunted the Eurasian, turning his immense moonlike face. "Last one we had was back in '23 when a big yacht got wrecked off Molokai."

Quite abruptly the intelligence captain took two steps forward, gazed narrowly at the dead girl's neck, and then shot the Hawaiian a searching glance, asking, "Sure no one came with the body?"

Captain Amalu's face was quite devoid of expression. "Quite sure, sir—but a Japanese gentleman came part way from Waikiki side—"

"Ah—I see," and North gently tested the still damp hair. But there were no more of those helpful hairpins. No doubt the "Japanese gentleman" had seen to that.

Next from his pocket the intelligence captain produced a small lens through which he studied the head, face, and shoulders. . . . That wound must be somewhere. When the cold left arm had been minutely examined, North drew out a notebook and pencil.

"What can you tell about her?" the bronze-faced Hawaiian querried anxiously. "We're trying to complete our identification before the morning editions of the newspapers come out." His flat visage contracted a little. "You know how it is, sir; the public is always so quick to criticize."

A smile of sympathy flitted across North's gaunt features. "Yes, Captain, I know how it is."

Captain Amalu hesitated, then turned the body over with the dexterity of long practice. "I noticed one thing, sir. Do you see?"

At the base of the skull where North had previously tested was visible a single drop of blood.

"I wondered about that, sir."

The intelligence captain's face and voice were utterly devoid of expression as he said: "Interesting, Captain Amalu — very interesting. It looks as if your men now had something definite to work on."

The Eurasian looked both bewildered and unhappy. "Work on? This one blood spot cannot be of such importance, sir."

"If my guess is right," North corrected gravely, "that spot of blood which you say 'cannot be of such importance' may very well explain her death."

It seemed impossible that Captain Amalu's ordinarily large eyes could grow any wider, but they did.

"That little drop of blood? I am afraid you make fun of me."

"Not at all," North hastened to say. "I believe that an autopsy will show you a needle was expertly driven into the nearby nerve centre—killing her instantly. The murderer, however, timed his thrust badly, so that she died with her lungs full of air — and so floated. . . . But" — frowning, he checked himself . . . "perhaps the killer DID want her to float."

"But who is she?" insisted the Hawaiian.

"I think you can say this much, that from these traces of callus I'd venture she was once a ballet dancer—and lated got her living otherwise—as a less strenuous entertainer, perhaps."

"Why . . . . entertainer?"

"Two things—manicured toe nails and the nearly vanished calluses on her feet seem to indicate that she's been through with dancing quite a while. Further, there's a trace of perfume in her hair of the type much used by such gay restaurant charmers."

Punctuating each point that North made the Eurasian's head nodded.

"Yes, sir, I see. And of what nationality would you say she was?"

Captain North straightened and again tested the texture of one damp lock above a small pierced ear.

"On that question it's very easy to fall into error, for the time being it's impossible to be sure. I suppose you checked up on the customs and immigration reports?"

The other's voice boomed hollowly in that desolate chilled room. "Yes, there is no report of her entry."

"Perhaps this will help us."

Th Hawaiian looked a little uneasy as North bent again over the corpse's rigid left arm and studied it narrowly under his lens.

"What do you see?"

The intelligence captain invited the other's inspection. With an obvious effort Captain Amalu bent down. "I see some very little white marks on the skin," he mumbled through a little cloud of vapor. "Like scars. What are they?"

North smiled mirthlessly. "Scars . . . I noticed them on this interesting young woman's left shoulder during the early part of the evening and so—"

Even while he syoke, the intelligence captain produced from his pocket a smal porcelain jar.

"Nothing but lampblack and vaseline," he explained to the sadly puzzled police captain. "It'll come off without leaving a trace."

Deliberately, with the ball of his third finger, he placed a dab of the sticky black substance on the dead girl's arm, then spread it with quick deft motions until the sable paste had paled to a dark gray. The morgue was chilly. This room—

Chilled room? . . . Where had he heard those words before? . . . With a deep sense of annoyance he recalled that unknown woman's voice on the phone. . . . First Cross—and now Clark would be here soon. And then—would he himself occupy one of those hard white enamel slabs?

A moment later Captain Amalu's slightly pop eyes protruded still further.

"Why—why, look, there is a design on her arm!"

All at once Captain North straightened with two blackened fingers held carefully away from his white linen coat. "Get outside," he whispered. "Someone's in the corridor. Keep 'em out for at least two minutes; no matter who it is."

"Yes, sir." Captain Thomas Amalu's rotund figure shuffled silently towards the door. He was not quite quick enough to keep the door shut. Just before he got there the white painted portal opened a few inches. North thought he caught a glimpse of Kanamura's yellow-brown face—a face which was frozen in rigid lines that were much more eloquent of menace than of fear.

A sharp irritation filled North. Had he stepped in front of that blackened shoulder just a second too late? Decidedly, this singular Japanese ship chandler was beginning to assume a dominant role in this mystery of the nude woman.

When the door had banged behind Captain Amalu's ample bulk, North swiftly caught up the pencil and paper he had placed ready on the vacant slab behind him, and replaced the jar in his pocket. He bent over that smear which stood out against the lustre of the dead beauty's blue-white skin.

"Ha! Now who'd have thought THEY were in on this!" he muttered while he swiftly copied the symbol on a page of his battered black note book. The curious design, roughly oval in shape, was formed by the tiny cicatrices now presented.

From the far side of the door panels sounded the angry arguing of the Japanese, and Hugh North became very busy.

"I demand," Kanamura was shouting, "that I be allowed to see the body immediately. Here is a pass signed by the Lieutenant Governor himself."

Apparently the pass was enough to break down Captain Amalu's resistance, for the door presently reopened and Kanamura hurried in. But on the arm of the unknown girl was no longer a black smudge; it was white and visibly unmarred.

Captain North straightened and smiled cordially.

"Oh, hello, Mr. Kanamura, I'd no idea it was you."

For all his easy manner, Hideyo Kanamura was deeply agitated; his beady black eyes were darting from the corpse to North, and then to Captain Amalu.

"Good-evening, Mr. Nevins — a cheerless place, no?" he suggested. "Can I help you?"

North, with convincing calmness, said, "I was merely trying to find some means of identifying this body."

"May I ask why should you be so interested in her?" demanded Kanamura, as he polished the spectacles fogged by the sudden chill of the room. "Do you know her?"

With unruffled good nature North responded, "Oh, no! Mr. Polk is very much upset at what happened at Kalua, and he asked me to find out what I could."

"Mr. Polk?—ah, I see!" said Kanamura and nodded twice.

North, meanwhile, was puzzled to witness the subtle change in the slender brown man's manner. Whereas before the Japanese had appeared only suspicious, he now exhibited a definite hostility. Being a firm believer in the theory that offence is ever the best defence, the intelligence captain demanded casually: "Incidentally, I'm wondering just why YOU are here?"

Kanamura apparently held some lightning consultation with himself before murmuring, "I had an idea, Cap—er, I mean Mr. Nevins, that I had seen this unfortunate young lady before somewhere."

"Saw her before?" Captain Amalu abruptly awoke to official responsibilities. "You should have informed me of that."

The Japanese raised a quick apologetic hand. "Not so fast, please, not so fast. I see now that she is not the woman I thought for a moment she might be."

Large Increase in Egg Prices in Week

Toronto, Nov. 9—Strength in egg prices featured the current week's dealings on the Toronto open produce market. Gains on top grades of 2 cents to 3 cents a dozen were added to the previous week's advance, which ranged to 6 cents. Although buyers turned cautious because of these substantially higher prices, local buying proved sufficient to absorb the continued light arrivals of fresh eggs. Lower grades moved well without showing any material price change. Several l.c.l. shipments of storage eggs went forward to Eastern points, while three cars were shipped for export. Northern Ontario points took only small quanities.

Quiet trading ruled on the butter market most of the week and prices lost the major part of the one-cent increase registered last week-end on the bullish nine cities' stock report. Belief was that buyers were drawing on their own storage holdings while awaiting to see if the final all-Canada stock report confirms the marked improvement in the statistical position of the market indicated in last week's preliminary figures. Offerings were in excess of the slow demand during the last few days, the market closing yesterday unsettled at 29 1-2c a pound for No. 1 grade Ontario creamery solids. The small morning business was transacted at 29 1-2c.

Supplies of live and dressed poultry arriving here during the week were more than local demand could absorb. Some dressed chickends of five pounds and over were forwarded to Montreal, any surplus of chickens and fowl being packed for storage.

Bernard Shaw Joins "Bomb Rome" Chorus

London, Nov. 9 (CP). — Bernard Shaw, octogenarian wit and playwright, joined in the "bomb Rome" chorus Friday.

He told the Daily Mirror: "I should not weep if Rome were bombed. London with its monuments and works of art, good and bad, has been bombed. Why not Rome?"

"Of course this bombing of London or Berlin or Rome is just senseless," Shaw added. "If the idea the Germans have in mind is to exterminate Britain's population it will take 470 years to do so at the present rate. It will take us even longer to exterminate the Germans.

"But admitting that war is the only way we have at present of settling disputes between nations there is no reason why Rome shouldn't have it.

"If only people weren't being killed and we could select places to be bombed, I would welcome a German attack on London. They are knocking down a good many things we ought to have knocked down ourselves many years ago.

"I should hate them to bomb Westminster Abbey, but I should be happy for them to bomb some monuments in it."

Then Shaw added:

"Then same applies to the House of Commons and its members."

Department Draws Up Code System

With the coming of rail grading many farmers felt that it was not possible to pass back to the farmer definite grade information. In the days of live grading both the farmer and the grader looked at the live hog and had as it were a common denominator upon which to base their decisions, but on the dressed basis the farmer looks at the live hog and the grader looks at the dressed carcass.

To bridge this gap the department have drawn up a code system of descriptions that is printed on each scale ticket and as the carcasses are graded the reasons for not placing them in the A grade can be quickly recorded. The packers have settlement forms designed to pass this information back to the farmer and it is only a matter of a short time until every rail grade settlement will carry individual weights and descriptions of the carcasses not in the A grade.

CHURCHILL

ple we send from the heart of London our promise to them that we will do our best to aid them in their struggle.

"We will never cease to strike at the aggressor in ever increasing strength from this time forth....

"It is now nine months since the King and Parliament confided to me and my colleagues the grave and heavy tasks to which we have devoted ourselves.

"It is lucky we did not make any extravagant or optimistic promises. Because a succession of melancholy disasters and terrible assaults and perils have befallen us......

"Between survival and victory there is a long road to tread. In spite of all the blows we have endured we have not abandoned one jot of any of our obligations and undertakings towards the captive or enslaved countries of Europe."

"Will Liberate All"

"For all of these are striving and toiling and our victory will liberate them all."

Mr. Churchill also referred to the campaign of Wendell Willkie, Republican candidate, in these words: "We are deeply touched by the words of kindness and goodwill and promises of aid which were uttered by Mr. Willkie on behalf of the Republican party which he championed so ably."

48,238,481 VOTES CAST IN U. S. ELECTION

Washington, Nov. 9 (AP)— The total of votes cast for President Roosevelt and Wendell L. Willkie in Tuesday's election mounted to 48,238,481 in the latest unofficial tabulation, indicating that the final count, covering also minor party candidates, would be close to 50,000,000. The final 1936 total was 45,647,117.

The latest tabulation showed that President Roosevelt received 26,361,726 votes and Willkie 21,876,719 in 120,620 of the country's 127,245 voting units, making Mr. Roosevelt's plurality 4,485,043.

JACK McVEIGH IS PRESIDENT OF ASSOC.

In Friday's issue an account of the business transacted by the Retail Merchants' Association was included. It was stated that Morley Wyman was president of the association. This is in error as Jack McVeigh is the presiding officer and officiated as such at Friday's meeting.

LATIN-AMERICAN REPUBLICS CHECK NAZI ACTIVITIES

Uruguay Prefers Charges of Plotting Against State Against Eight Germans

ALL LEAVE COUNTRY

(By The Canadian Press)

Uruguay, which has preferred charges of plotting against the state against eight Germans, has led the twenty Latin-American Republics in measures to check subversive activities by undercover representatives of the Nazis and Fascists.

But all these nations have shown themselves alive to the threat which the totalitarian idea holds to the Republican form of government. All are banded together under the pact of Havana aimed at preventing any European-owned territory in the Americas from changing hands, and most of them have taken steps against foreign activities within their countries—steps which have curbed the teaching and demonstration of Nazi-Fascist ideology.

In Uruguay, the trial of eight Germans charged with an attempt to convert the nation into "a German colony of peasants" has not been completed. But it has had one important result. Julio Dalldorf, the press attache in the German legation there, was charged with being the director of Nazi activities and had to leave the country.

Adolfo Fuhrmann, one of the accused Nazis, assumed responsibility for the plot but called it a "joke". He said it developed from published reports that the Nazis had drawn up plans for the invasion of Patagonia, the southernmost region of Argentina. It was recalled, however, that five months ago the chamber of deputies investigating committee announced findings to the effect that the Nazis plotted what amounted to a foreign invasion.

Throughout Latin-America generally activities of the Nazi-Fascist agents have been crimped by the defence of Britain. They need new successes in an attempt to sell their ideas.

Before the war Brazil, after breaking up an attempted insurrection by the Brazilian Fascist movement, the Integralists, banned foreign language schools, and papers, although an English language paper was permitted to publish in Rio de Janeiro. Foreign political parties, emblems and so on were barred.

The various Central American republicans just after the war issued simultaneous decrees, banning foreign political activities, emblems, uniforms, schools and so forth. Guatemalia, where many Germans live, issued a decree ordering all naturalized citizens to renounce formally allegiance to the country of origin or forfeit their citizenship papers—a move aimed at the Nazi theory of duel nationality.

Venezuela sent home an Italian military mission and Brazil did likewise with a German mission. Colombia forced Germans to give up control of the Colombian air lines, which now are operated by Pan American and German pilots were required to leave the country.

The press in general among the Latin-American countries has been conducting a campaign against Nazi influences.

Mexico forced Arthur Dietrich, brother of Adolf Hitler's press chief to leave that country. It was found that Dietrich, head of the German legation's press bureau and director of Nazi propaganda in Mexico, had meddled with internal affairs of the republic.

U. S. FREIGHTER

The explosion occurred while the American freighter was en route from Adelaids to Melbourne, about 10 miles off the coast, and the blast wrecked the forepart of the vessel and hurled wreckage and a portion of the lead cargo through the superstructure. The bridge was awash within five minutes.

Fragments of metal which fell into the Rayville's life boats after the explosion were turned over to mine experts for examination.

Second Officer Green, who was on the bridge when the blast occurred, said:-

"We saw nothing suspicious. After the explosion the ship dived by the head with incredible speed. There was no need to call the crew to boat stations because they were already there. I went overboard when she was three-quarters down and was picked up after 15 minutes."

The City of Rayville, owned by the United States Maritime Commission but leased to the United States Lines last February for $4,706 a month, was built in Tampa, Fla., and was registered at that port.

The State Department in Washington received a message from the United States Consul in Melbourne last night saying the vessel "had an explosion" about 120 miles from Melbourne but giving no details.

SUGGESTS GIFT TO BRITAIN

Victoria, —(CP)—Outright gift by British Columbia of $1,000,000 of lumber of foodstuffs to Great Britain as a gesture of gratitude and appreciation "for all she is doing for us" was suggested in the British Columbia Legislature Friday by Lieut.-Col. Macgregor Macintosh.

PARLIAMENT WILL

Before the address was taken up, Prime Minister Mackenzie King, answering questions in a voice hoarse and unnatural because of slight throat infection, told the House he would table next Tuesday correspondence between Canada and the United States on recent St. Lawrence River power negotiations.

First Intimation In Papers.

Mr. Hanson also asked the prime minister if he cared to make any comment on yesterday's report from Washington that President Roosevelt had promised half the American output of planes and munitions would go to Canada and Great Britain.

"May I say to my honorable friend that what he has just read is the first intimation I have had of any report of the kind," Mr. King replied.

Mr. Claxton moved the time-honored motion—that the following address be presented to the Governor-General:

"May it please your Excellency: We, his Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the House of Commons of Canada in parliament assembled, beg leave to offer our humble thanks to your Excellency for the gracious speech which your Excellency has addressed to both Houses of Parliament."

Must Establish Priorities.

Next to Great Britain, Mr. Claxton said, "Canada is the strongest power facing the enemy today." He referred to the 200,000 men" who had answered the call to service but stressed the need for trained men and women in production capacities.

"Priorities must be established," he said, referring to the production demands on Canada. We are already training many workers; we shall have to train more.

"We might start in now with 100,000 additional men and an additional 100,000 women and find a year from now that we had not trained half enough."

Mr. Claxton said the time was coming when the government would have to indicate to the people the extent of their duty in the war effort. He was sure nothing more would be needed.

Must Tighten Belts.

"While we supported national participation (in the war) we are only beginning to translate national sentiment into personal action," he said.

"Few of us have yet begun to give up things we like, still less things we need.

"Unless we also tighten our belts our effort will fall short of what is necessary to stop the Nazis. We must consume less, save more and steadily invest in war savings certificates and war loans."

Mr. Claxton urged the government to spend not less than $1,000,000 a year on attracting tourists, and placed great hope in the forthcoming Dominion-Provincial conference on the Sirois report.

Mr. Jutras urged the government to consider the plight of 3,000,000 farm residents and 2,000,000 more whose prosperity depended upon that of the farm producers.

BRITISH RAIDERS

Crossed Alps By Moonlight.

The Air Ministry Press Service, expanding the Air Ministry's communique on offensive operations against Italy, said the R.A.F. crossed the French Alps by moonlight and was over Italian territory shortly before 10 p.m.

"At 10:10 p.m.," it said, "the leader of the force detailed for Turin had located his objective by the light of parachute flares and the first high explosive bombs were falling on a large branch factory of the Fiat motor Works in the southern outskirts of the city.

"The bursts of the exploding bombs could be plainly seen within the factory area and were followed by outbreaks of fire."

The attack was carried on "incessantly by relays of aircraft" for more than half an hour, with salvoes of incendiary bombs and sticks of high explosives straddling the factory, it was said.

One stick of heavy bombs was reported to have struck a nearby Fiat aircraft works, where it started "a train of white explosions".

The main railway junction at Turin was attacked for "fully 15 minutes", the service went on, and large fires and explosions were sighted.

Bombs dropped on the Pirelli factory, north of Milan, started a series of fires which, the press service declared, were still burning at 11:10 p.m., when "the last salvo of high explosive bombs burst."

Montreal, Nov. 9 (CP)—Hopital authorities reported today the birth of triplets Thursday night to Mrs. Iris Fryer, wife of a member of the Royal Canadian Navy.

Attendants reported the mother and the triplets, the smallest of which is estimated to weigh about 2 1-2 pounds, as "doing well." Because of their delicate condition the youngsters have not yet been placed on scales.

The triplets, all boys, will receive naval names—Beatty, Jellicoe and Nelson. Their father, Frank Edward Fryer, stationed here, was a member of the R.C.N.V.R. before the war.

NAZIS CELEBRATE

Munich Bombed

(The British Air Ministry announced that Munich was heavily bombed last night by Royal Air Force warplanes which reached the city before 9 p.m. (4 p.m. EDT).

(Hitler's speech originally was scheduled to be broadcast from 2.20 p.m. to 4 p.m. EDT yesterday, the National Broadcasting Company in New York reported, later was postponed to 4 p.m. and then abruptly cancelled altogether.)

(The British Press and the British Broadcasting Corporation earlier had declared that R.A.F. raids forced cancellation of the broadcast.)

Spoke Sarcastically of U.S.

Hitler spoke sarcastically of the United States as "the land of unlimited freedom", adding that "every immigrant must pass an unusually difficult examination before permission is given him to tread the sacred soil of democracy, although scarcely ten persons to the square kilometre live there.

"As far as American production goes," he said with heavy sarcasm, "one cannot even represent it with astronomical figures.

"But I can assure you that German production capacity is the highest in the world. . . . For we are today n a position to mobilize the powers of almost all Europe. . . . Our reserves are so great that I must stop production in many fields because there is no possibility of storing these masses now."

He indicated that the Reich, as a result of this stop order, has freed additional industrial facilities for airplane production. He said he had swtched producton facilities to the improvement of the things which "I believe must be especially strong."

Leaders of Party Present.

Around him as he spoke behind closed doors in the Lowenbraeu beer cellar were leaders of the party and survivors of both the 1923 putsch and the bomb explosion which rocked Buergenbrau Hall a year ago only a short time after Hitler had left. He made no mention of that incident last night.

The fuehrer rejected all thought of compromise in the war and declared:

"I imagine that I am not only the hardest man which (sic) the German nation has had for decades, perhaps centuries, but in addition I possess the greatest authority.

No Munitions Shares.

"I have no munitions shares in my possession, I earn nothing from this war. . . . These international criminals are at the same time the greatest muntions profiteers there are. The factories belong to them. They make the business. They are the same people we had earlier in Germany."

(In New York the National Broadcasting Company said its Berlin office reported cancellation of the broadcast was ordered by Hitler personally.)

He threatened Britain with intensified air and submarine warfare and declared: "We will see who is blockaded in a few months; we or the others."

The anniversary today has been designated as a "work day", and ceremony was dispensed with so that Germans may concentrate on the war effort.

Boastful Adolf.

"One of us must break and that will not be Germany," Hitler said of the war and Germany's enemies.

"The moment will come when the gentlemen who now conquer the entire world with their mouths will have to stand up with their weapons. Then we will see who has employed the months better; we or the others."

He said that when the hour for the decisive attack comes "I hope to reach again the same results which we have behind us."

"We have prepared everything most fundamentally to act quickly and daringly then."

He said that when he "became aware" that Britain was "determined under any conditions to go to war," he had "only a single wish: if they are already determined to war on us that they do it while I still lived. For I know that would have to be the hardest struggle ever set before the German people."

Seeking to ridicule British estimates of the number of German submarines sunk, he said Prime Minister Churchill had no idea of how they were being increased in number.

He also sought to ridicule Mr. Churchill "for beginning an air war with exactly the weapons in which, compared with us, England is the weakest."

Sarcastically he called Mr. Churchill a 'strategist of the greatest genius yet born."

"They wanted to destroy Germany with an air war,' he said. "I will now show them who will be destroyed."

Food Shortage in Albania

There were consistent reports from Albania, even before the Fascist invasion of Greece, of a shortage of food there.

The Greek Red Cross received much-needed medical supplies when 19 trucks loaded with material arrived from the British Red Cross in Belgrade.

Buses, taxis and trucks for civilian use appeared on the streets for the first time today since transportation facilities were requisitioned at the start of the war.

A new decree called all officers 46 and 47 years of age for service and at the same time workers in several industries were assigned to making war materials. Those failing to report were subject to court martial.

An air alarm sounded in Salonika at 10:40 a.m. (4:40 a.m. EDT) today but no Italian planes were sighted over the city.

Last night's High Command communique noted a let-up in Italian air attacks and said "enemy activity was unimportant" yesterday with only one village bombed.

(A Rome radio broadcast seeking to excuse the slowness of the Italian invasion, attributed it to Fascist "generosity" and added: "Greece recently has been given time to come to her senses.")

(A report by the British Broadcasting Corporation last night said Marshal Badoglio, chief of the Italian general staff, had taken personal command of the drive into Greece, replacing the former Italian commander in Albania whose name has not been made public.)

GERMAN RAIDS

On Small Scale

The secondary raids, however, were described as "on a small scale" and "reports indicate that little damage and few casualties have been caused," the Ministries' communique said.

It added that "one of our pilots reported as missing yesterday is now known to be safe. Our losses, therefore, were six aircraft and three pilots."

Against this loss the Air Ministry last night estimated at least 20 German aircraft had been downed by fighter and anti-aircraft action. Ground watchers along the banks of the Thames Estuary said they saw two German aircraft downed by anti-aircraft fire and it was believed these were not included in the Air Ministry's total.

British Public Jubilant

The British public was jubilant over an Air Ministry announcement that Munich was bombed last night during the time Hitler was making a speech in commemoration of his abortive beer cellar putsch in 1923.

The public already had been told that a German plan to broadcast the speech was cancelled, presumably because of the proximity of Royal Air Force raiders. It is usual for German radio stations to get off the air at the time British raiders are expected, so that the R.A.F. pilots cannot use the station's signals as navigation beams.

The speech itself, regarded as the usual wind-bag stuff, received secondary treatment in the morning press which gave first place to President Roosevelt's announcement that Britain would get half the output of the United States defence industries.

BRILLIANT

Dense clouds of black smoke issued from the tank-car immediately following the explosion. A fire-alarm was issued and the City Fire Department raced to the scene and removed the smoking tank to a place of safety. Imperial Oil officials stated that the valves on the huge storage tanks were closed at the time of the explosion.

Cause Undetermined

Fire, police and company officials were at a loss to understand the cause of the explosion. Allan D. McLean, local manager of the Imperial Oil Company, stated that Collins had been sent to load the empty tank car, and no one was in the vicinity of the storage tanks at the time. He had heard a loud explosion and immediately rushed to the scene and found the mangled body of Collins lying where it had crashed to the ground between a second tank-car and the fence that surrounds the storage tanks.

The still-smoking car, hauled some distance away by firemen will be the object of investigation, Fire Chief Lynch stated. Many theories were advanced as to the probable cause, but a thorough probe into the tragedy will, in all likelihood, be held.

Collins was very popular with his fellow employees and also those of the British American Oil Company the tanks of which are situated directly opposite those of the Imperial Oil Company.

Explosion Heard By Many

The explosion was plainly audible to many residents. Saturday morning market shoppers paused in their activities when the dull thud of the detonation reverberated in the air. Front Street pedestrians in the vicinity of the Front-Bridge intersection heard the noise and raised curious eyebrows as fire-fighting equipment, sirens shrilling, raced down the main thoroughfare. Close on their heels came the ambulance of the Martin Funeral Home, which removed the body of the dead oil company employee to await the preliminary inquest this afternoon.

Glamoureus Sport History

The late Frank Collins was well known in Belleville, where he played both baseball and hockey for Peterborough clubs in years past. Last Winter Frankie took a marked interest in local hockey activities, when he graciously consented to coach one of the clubs in the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association and had only recently enquired regarding the continuance of the league this year.

A native of Peterborough, Frank Collins played hockey and baseball in the school leagues of that city, having played third base with the Peterborough senior club in the old C.O.B.L. under Jake Solomon, from 1924 to 1929. Frankie played centre on the championship Peterborough senior clubs of 1926, along with "Ace" Bailey, when that team won the senior O.H.A. championship under the direction of Joe Dwyer.

Toured Europe in 1933

Later Frank Collins joined the Toronto National 'Sea Fleas,' when that club not only won the senior O.H.A., but continued to win the Allan Cup, emblematic of the world's amateur hockey title. It was following this accomplishment that he accompanied the National "Sea Fleas" on a triumphant hockey tour of Europe and the British Isles, when his team-mates represented Canada at the world's ice hockey championships held at Zurich, Switzerland, in 1933.

Frank Collins was always an aggressive player at both baseball and hockey, although he excelled at the latter game and previous to becoming affiliated with the Imperial Oil Company, had refused a professional hockey contract. His last hockey days were spent with the Imperial Oil team in the senior Toronto Mercantile League two years ago. He came here from Toronto and was to receive a transfer to Montreal some time after the New Year. He was well known throughout all of Ontario for his sporting activities.

ONE KILLED IN CAR - TRUCK CRASH.

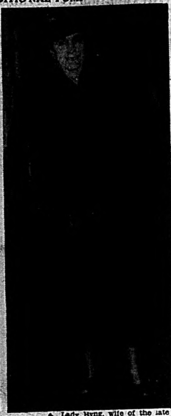
Montreal, Nov. 9 (CP)—Mrs. Lucille Trepanier, 25, was killed last night and a companion seriously injured when an automobile in which they were riding crashed into a parked truck at nearby St. Hubert.

Police said the car was driven by Thomas Ernest Eddisford, 31, who suffered a broken leg and head injuries.

Cheek to cheek are Brian Donlevy and Muriel Angelus, whose marriage of convenience confounds the two when it develops into the real thing. It's all part of the year's surprise comedy hit, "The Great McGinty." "Cross Country Romance" is the second feature comedy at the Belle.

SECOND SESSION OF 19TH CANADIAN PARLIAMENT OPENED WITHOUT TRADITIONAL POMP

Princess Juliana of the Netherlands is shown struggling against the cold wind that swept Ottawa as she left the parliament buildings after attending the opening of parliament.



Lady Byng, wife of the late Viscount Byng of Vimy, former Governor-General of Canada, was among those present at the opening of the second session of the 19th parliament of Canada.

PRESIDENT WELCOMED BACK TO WASHINGTON

Assured of a third four-lease on the White House President Roosevelt received a roaring welcome from hundreds of thousands when he returned to Washington. With the chief executive as he waves from his train are, LEFT to RIGHT: Mrs. Roosevelt, Mrs. Henry A. Wallace and Henry A. Wallace, the vice-president elect.

AT THE BELLE

"The Great McGinty"

McGinty, the mythical character of song and story, the gent who figuratively "went down to the bottom of the sea," has come to life, and as a politician of the shadier sort, follows his counterpart in his rise and fall in the new Paramount picture which is now on the Belle Theatre screen.

McGinty of the movies is a two-fisted so-and-so who, after being plucked from a breadline, wins favor with the boss of the city by virtue of a good left hook and his eagerness to use it on anyone, including the boss himself.

Mr. McGinty punches his way up the political ladder as second in command of the city in the collection and division of political spoils. He goes from Alderman to Mayor, and from Mayor to Governor of the state. This latter post, however, does not materilaize until he marries his secretary, an idea advanced by his only superior as a means of assuring the feminine vote which favors married men in office.

"Steam-rollered" into office, and finding that being married to his former secretary isn't bad at all, McGinty decides to go straight at his wife's suggestion, which in the long run, turns out to be a very bad idea, at least for McGinty and his boss. They both land in jail. They're still able to pull a few strings, however, and finally find themselves on a "liner" destination unknown. It happens that they stowed away on a banana boat and wind up in South America republic sans everything but the clothes they stand in.

"The Great McGinty" starts the beginning of the end on this note, and much of the tense drama that permeated the film to this point, gives way to some hilarious comedy situations.

"Cross Country Romance"

A rocky road to romance, traversed in a bumping trailer by a penniless doctor and a slap-happy heiress, threads a laugh-filled course through "Cross Country Romance," sparkling comedy co-starring Gene Raymond and Wendy Barrie announced as the companion feature attraction.

The rollicking RKO Radio film deals with the madcap exploits of a harum-scarum rich girl who flees from her own wedding ceremony, hides in a strange doctor's transcontinental-bound trailer, makes violent love to him through seven states and breaks down his stubborn resistance on board a boat for China.

Bancroft

Bancroft, Nov. 9. — Mrs. R. W. Blatherwick and her mother, Mrs. W. E. Wiggins, returned home from Belleville Tuesday afternoon having been in the city since Sunday.

Mr. Daniel Welsh died at his home in Monteagle Monday in his 81st year. The late Mr. Welsh was born in Renfrew County June 20, 1860 and moved to Monteagle when he was quite young. There he made his home until his death. He was predeceased by his wife Mary MacDonald thirteen years ago and is survived by one son, Herbert of Monteagle and three daughters, Mrs. A. A. Wilson of Elora, Mrs. A. W. A. Bartlett of Dunnville and Mrs. Gordon MacDonald of North Bay. The funeral was held on Wednesday and conducted by the Rev. Major of Lakeview. Interment was made in the cemetery at New Carlow.

Mr. Shirley Hawley, a resident of Bancroft for quite a number of years, passed away at his home on Wednesday evening in his 72nd year.

James Maxwell while out hunting this week was fortunate enough to contact one of the bruin family prowling the woods and was successful in bringing the trophy home dead in the back of his car. Mr. Maxwell must have had pretty keen eyes as he never noticed until after the bear had been shot that he had no rear sight on his rifle.

Mr. W. J. Davis of Maple Leaf is in Belleville this week on business.

Mr. Clifford Broad who is Imperial Oil Agent here at Bancroft is away on a two weeks' vacation spending a part of it hunting. During his absence the work is being carried on by Mr. Cecil Wiggins of Bancroft.

Mrs. E. Hagerman motored out to Madoc Monday afternoon spending the night with her brother, Mr. F. Fleming. The following day Mrs. Hagerman spent in Belleville returning that evening to Bancroft.

Mr. Flint, a representative of the Ford Motor Company of Toronto, was in town this week making a business call on the local dealer Mr. Wilfred Maxwell.

Mr. Charles Plumley Jr. and Mr. Norman Mitchell, both business men of the village are away this week with out-of-town huntsmen hunting in the vicinity of Gilmour.

Sixteen trainees who have been in camp in Peterborough for the past thirty days returned to the village Thursday evening seemingly none the worst for their venture.

AT THE McCARTHY

AT THE McCARTHY

"A FAMILY OF NATIONS"

Sir Austen Chamberlain, one of Great Britain's most distinguished statesmen, is one of the many famous people who offered their services to John Drinkwater's film production, "A Family of Nations", the sweeping story of the British Commonwealth of Nations, which will be shown at the McCarthy Theatre, beginning on Armistice Day.

As the story unwinds Sir Austen has an opportunity to give his frank views on the stability and future of Great Britain, no longer an empire but the greatest permanent league of nations the world has ever seen. Here are his very words

"I have often said that it took a miracle to make the Empire, and it takes a daily miracle to keep it. But I am not afraid that the miracle will be lacking, for our fathers knew how to build and our children will know how to keep it in unity and strength. Each nation is the stronger for being a part of the whole, and each is as free to manage its own affairs as if it stood alone in our great commonwealth of nations. You know I like that expression."

"A Family of Nations" was produced by E. R. Conne and is being released by United Artists. Alan Mowbray, famous Hollywood actor, narrates the story.

AT THE CAPITOL

Field as Micawber; Frank Lawton and little Freddie Bartholomew as David, man and boy; Edna May Oliver, Lionel Barrymore, Lewis Stone, Madge Evans, Roland Young, Maureen O'Sullivan, Basil Rathbone, Herbert Mundin and many others of equal prominence.

Thrill once more to each golden moment, each tearful, touching episode of this greatest story of all literature. "David Copperfield" returns to the Capitol for a limited engagement only. Don't miss this last opportunity to see "David Copperfield." On the same program—

A girl without fear....and a man without price....are trapped by killers without mercy! But when the mobsters whispered, "money talks"....he taught 'em "bullets talk louder"! He carried a torch for this dame....and a load of hot lead for every rat in town!

That's the story of Paul Kelly and Jacqueline Wells in Columbia's "The Frame-Up."

When this hard-hitting "dick" proves he's rough on rats—but smooth with a dame—he'll leave you limp with excitement!

Collect Examples Of 'Smear' Material

U.S. Politicians and Citizens Urged to Send in Examples of 'Scurrilous and Vicious Campaign Literature'

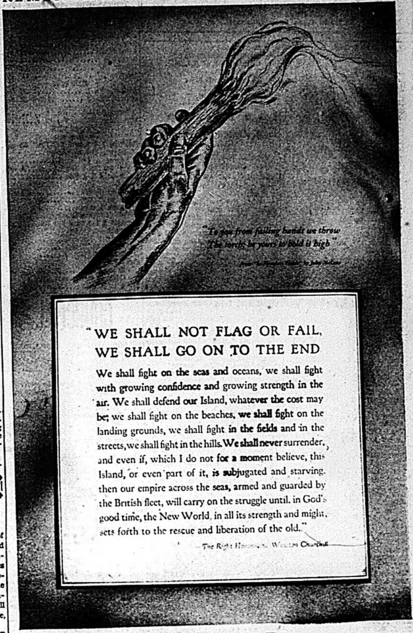
Washington, Nov. 9 (AP)—Politicians and public-spirited citizens were requested Friday to send all examples of "scurrilous and vicious campaign literature" used in this year's United States election to the special Senate committee appointed to police the national contests.

Chairman Guy Gillett (Dem-Iowa), issuing the request, said the material would be used to give the "American people a complete picture of this type of campaign methods."

"Every campaign has developed some of this undercover material but this one apparently produced more than ever," the Senator told reporters. "The committee will ask both national political headquarters to furnish copies of this scurrilous campaign literature."

The Senator said much of this "smear" material had been distributed by "undercover methods and late in the campaign so there was no chance for a fair answer to it."

REMEMBRANCE DAY, NOVEMBER 11th, 1940



"To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high"

"WE SHALL NOT FLAG OR FAIL, WE SHALL GO ON TO THE END

We shall fight on the seas and oceans, we shall fight with growing confidence and growing strength in the air. We shall defend our Island, whatever the cost may be; we shall fight on the beaches, we shall fight on the landing grounds, we shall fight in the fields and in the streets, we shall fight in the hills. We shall never surrender, and even if, which I do not for a moment believe, this Island, or even part of it, is subjugated and starving, then our empire across the seas, armed and guarded by the British fleet, will carry on the struggle until, in God's good time, the New World, in all its strength and might, sets forth to the rescue and liberation of the old."

Letters From the Troops

Following is letter received from Private Harold Skillicorn, of Stirling, now somewhere in England with his regiment. Private Skillicorn formerly came from the Isle of Man where he resided in a place called Douglas. An Isle of Man daily paper recently gave Private Skillicorn space when he visited his former home on leave.

"You will undoubtedly know of the large number of air raids which we are having in this country and though some of the people are making the extreme sacrifice there is no danger of Hitler breaking our spirit , oh no. The country which has bred such heroes in the past is now finding them in every street, alleyway or mansion. I cannot describe in detail, just how this nation has risen as one man in this, our supreme effort but every man, woman and child is actively and enthusiastically playing their part and on my word of honor I am not pulling the wool over your eyes when I tell you that M-C and practically the whole of England is just the same today as it was two years ago and I would draw your attention to a parallel which is that a boxer in the ring does not suffer half so much as does his wife watching at the ringside. Now as for our Allies the collapse of France and other continentals although tragic has really only strengthened our resolve to see this war through and we are not alone for have we not the best Allies that any country could possibly have and greatest among these is Canada of whom every Englishman is inordinarily proud and for your country's unstinted effort and sacrifices we would simply but very sincerely say Thank You."

Final Total of Disaster Will be More Than 1,000 to 2,000—Raging Fires Start In Rich Rumanian Oil Fields

By ROBERT ST. JOHN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Bucharest, Rumania, Nov. 11 (AP)—Earthquakes without equal in the written history of Rumania ravaged the Nazi-controlled oil wealth of the kingdom yesterday and today, tore up the transport system, knocked down buildings and weighed in the unpredictable military future of southeastern Europe.

At least 1,000 to 2,000 persons were dead; the injured and homeless uncounted, and new shocks prolonged the terror and increased the desolation.

The grey-clad soldiers of Germany who have poured into Rumania for weeks for a purpose known only to Hitler and his confidantes, became in a few quivering seconds rescuers, fire-fighters and guardians of what order was left.

Bridges Twisted, Split Apart.

Oil fields on which Hitler has counted for the fluid without which mechanized war cannot be waged were licked by flame and littered with the splinters of their wooden derricks.

Air an insulator! It is well-known that gases are the best heat insulators: they keep heat from flowing. But air and other gases act best in their role as insulators if they are not allowed to circulate. Therefore, light, fluffy wool blankets are warmer than hard, wool, felt ones of the same weight. This is because the former are full of tiny pockets or cells of air, making circulation just about impossible. Even wood shavings introduced into an air space, as between the two-by-fours of frame house, will make a warmer wall. Many of the modern heat insulating materials embody this principle.

GENERAL SODDU TAKES COMMAND OFALBANIANARMY

CAVALRY USED

Rome, Nov. 11 (AP).—Gen. Ubaldo Soddu, 57-year-old veteran of every Italian military campaign since 1900, has taken command of the Fascist invasion of Greece, apparently under instructions from Premier Mussolini to get the broken effort back into high gear.

General Soddu, Mussolini's secretary of war, went to Albania in a change which the Fascist editor Virginio Gayda declared yesterday meant the campaign would be speeded at once.

(British dispatches Saturday from Athens said captured Italian officers reported that Gen. Visconti Prasca had been in charge of the Italian campaign in Greece.)

At the same time, the Italians announced their first use of cavalry in the battlefront mountains. Mounted detachments were claimed to have struck swiftly into the northern Epirus in the vicinity of the Vojouso

TRICK PHEASANT FOOLS HUNTERS

Eagle, Idaho, Nov. 11 (AP)—A pheasant bombing in a field northwest of here has been the tantalizing target of many a "trigger-quick" hunter—but the bird still is bobbing. Young Donald Mittleider stretched the skin and feathers of a pheasant over a board, placed it in tall grass 40 yards from the highway and rigged up a control system to manipulate the bird. Hunters take a look, stop their cars and bang away.

U. S. BEHIND BRITAIN

Toronto, Nov. 11 (CP)—E. T. H. Shaffer, author and editor from Walterboro, S.C., said in an interview here yesterday that pro-British feeling in the United States has developed to the point where 90 per cent of the people would be willing to take up arms in Britain's defence if active United States help suddenly was needed.

One-Time Crony of Adolf Hitler Now Pilot in Free French Force

(By J. F. Sanderson, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 11—(CP)—He used to have an army of his own, vast wealth, 11 castles and he marched alongside Adolf Hitler in the abortive beer cellar putsch at Munich in 1923.

Now he is fighting Hitler, his one-time crony, as a pilot officer in the free French Air Force. His pay is £1 11s 4d (about $6.70) a day. His estates and his fabulous fortune have been confiscated. The German government has condemned him to death.

His name is Prince Ernest Ruediger Von Starhemberg, 40, former Vice-Chancellor of Austria. His private army, the Heimwehr, helped Engelbert Dollfuss establish a dictatorship in Austria that stamped out democratic institutions. Now Starhemberg is fighting for democracy.

The other day in the House of Commons Col. Josiah Wedgwood asked the government if it was not "indecent that this man who assassinated democracy in Austria should now be allowed to fight on our side and should be paid by us in the war for democracy and against all that Prince Starhemberg has stood for."

Rejected Suggestion

H. H. Balfour, Under-Secretary for Air, rejected that suggestion. "To anyone who is willing to risk his life in the air and fight in our cause we owe a debt of gratitude."

In the ensuing cross-chamber exchange, Col. Wedgwood called Starhemberg a scoundrel and asked the government why it kept hundreds of Austrians in internee camps and allowed men like Starhemberg "to fight for democracy." He received no reply.

A few hours later Starhemberg was sipping a tomato juice cocktail in the bar of the Ritz Hotel when he admitted his early association with Hitler but dismissed them as the indiscretions of youth. "I was little more than a boy then—only 23," he explained.

"I never was a Fascist or a member of the Fascist party," Starhemberg went on to say, "but in those early days people did not understand the true meaning of Fascism. All the young men thought the Hitler movement was fine and patriotic. I soon learned better.

"I organized the fight against Hitler in 1936 and I became one of the first victims of the Nazis."

THIRTEEN ITALIAN, THIRTEEN GERMAN PLANESSHOTDOWN

100 Planes Used in First Daylight Raid Followed by 50 Fighter-Bombers

DAMAGE NOT GREAT

During Night German Bombers Roared Over City at One-a-Minute Clip

London, Nov. 11 (CP). — British fighter planes shot down 26 axis raiders—13 Italian and 13 German—in widespread air battles over Britain today, the government announced.

"Our losses remain at two," said the brief Ministry of Information announcement, reporting the air warfare score up to 5 p.m. (12 noon E.D.T.).

The Italian planes downed—seven bombers and six fighters—were the first bagged over England.

They participated in an axis Armistice Day air parade which set off six alarms in the capital. The sixth heralding the nightly darkness raid, sounded a short time after the last daylight "raiders passed" signal at dusk.

Announcing an earlier tally of eight Italian planes felled, a communique said they were shot down by a single R.A.F. Hurricane fighter squadron which intercepted them in "an attempted attack on shipping" off the Thames estuary. It said "there were no British losses in this combat".

(The Rome newspaper Il Giornale D'Italia announced Saturday that a "tremendous air bombardment of England and her allies" would be loosed by the Italian Air Force as a reprisal for the alleged killing of civilians in recently intensified British air raids on Italy.

(Italian reports previously had said that a "tremendous" Italian air base has been established near the French coast of the English Channel.)

Heavy gunfire and the thunder of bursting bombs could be heard during the fifth Armistice Day alarm. Five persons were entombed by one bomb which wrecked three houses and all were believed to

British Sources Expect Near East Will Be Major Theatre of War

By J. F. SANDERSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 11 (CP).—Britain is sending to the Near East every man, gun, tank and plane that can be spared from the defence of this country in anticipation that it will develop this winter into a major theatre of war.

An informed source said Britain would strike at the axis in the Near East at the earliest possible moment but meanwhile it would be necessary to build up forces of men and equipment to hold Egypt at all costs.

"We are now at the beginning of what will be a fierce, protracted struggle in the Middle East," a military source declared. Britain, he continued, has four primary objectives in this area:

1. To reinforce land and air forces to the limit of industrial production and shipping facilities.
2. To hold Egypt at all costs because of the strategic importance of Suez and Alexandria as a naval base for the eastern end of the Mediterranean.
3. To go the limit in helping Greece against the Italians.
4. To strike the axis forces at the earliest possible moment when resources permit.

Italian Strength 250,000.

Italian strength in Libya was placed at 250,000 troops in addition to German technicians and tactical experts. Britain's position in the western desert was described as "immensely improved" with "better"

VINCENT MASSEY PLACES WREATH ON THE CENOTAPH

No Ceremony Accompanies the Placing of Canada's Tribute to the Dead

OTHER TRIBUTES

By D. E. BURRITT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 11 (CP Cable)—On broad Whitehall, once the scene of pomp and pageantry, the empire merged its sorrows today and paid tribute to the dead of the First and Second Great Wars.

At the base of the Cenotaph and on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Westminster Abbey, representatives of the United Kingdom and the Dominions placed wreaths alongside those laid there on behalf of Queen Mary, the King and Queen, the Duke of Connaught and numerous others, including a group of maple leaves and poppies dedicated to the men of Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry.

A giant wreath of poppies, fern and white chrysanthemums from the government and people of Canada was placed by Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian High Commissioner, who went unaccompanied to the Cenotaph, which usually is ringed by thousands of bare-headed persons.

Mr. Massey and representatives of the other dominions, walked bare-headed from their cars, placed the wreaths, and left.

DETAILS LACKING IN FATALITY ON CONCEPTION BAY

FOUR ABOARD SAVED

St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 11 (CP).—Details were still lacking here today of how 28 persons were believed drowned when a motorboat collided with another small boat in Conception Bay. A snowstorm which obscured vision was believed responsible for the crash last night.

With 29 men and three women aboard, the motorboat Garland plunged to the bottom after it was holed in the collision with the Golden Dawn. The Garland was acting as a ferryboat between Bell Island and the mainland.

According to reports today reaching here fifteen miles from the scene of the accident, only four men aboard the Garland were saved. They were picked up by the captain of the Golden Dawn who was the only one aboard his vessel.

William and James Quilty, Norman Ash and Gerald Tucker were picked up by the Golden Dawn. The bodies found were those of Hector Tucker and a Mrs. Clement.

Seventeen others are known definitely to have been passengers on the Garland while another nine were believed to have been aboard the little ship.

The Greek successes included defeat of Italy's Alpine Centaur division, which had trained for a year in Albania for a lightning attack on Greece.

One patrolman was bitten, and the cat died soon afterward—from shock.

British Nation Mourns Passing Of Former Premier

Carried Britain From The Munich Appeasement Through First 8½ Months of War —Retired in May, 1940

London, Nov. 11 —(CP)— Plans for a public memorial service—possibly in Westminster Abbey—were being arranged today for Neville Chamberlain who died Saturday amid the bomb-strewn wreckage of his dream for "peace in our time."

The tall, lean statesman who led Britain from the Munich appeasement through the first 8½ months of war with Germany resigned as prime minister May 10 after the British withdrawal from Norway and stepped from his last cabinet post little more than a month ago an exhausted, ill man.

He died at 5:30 p.m. Saturday (12:30 p.m., EDT) at his Hampshire countryside estate where the grounds near his rambling, 16th century home have been pockmarked by Nazi bomb craters. He was 71.

MOLOTOFF'S VISIT IS SUBJECT OF WIDE DISCUSSION

Observers Believe Visit Will be Concerned With Axis Drive in Southeast Europe

FAITH IN TURKEY

By J. F. Sanderson Canadian Press Staff Writer.

London, Nov. 11 CP Cable)—The visit Premier Vyacheslaff Molotoff of Russia will make to Berlin this week was the subject of widespread speculation among diplomatic observers in London during the weekend.

Official sources declined comment but diplomatic quarters seemed to agree that the visit of the Soviet Premier who is also Russia's Foreign Commissar, to Hitler and Ribbentrop will be concerned wholly with the Axis drive in southeast Europe.

There was little disposition here to believe that Molotoff would be pressed to broaden the base of German-Soviet economic collaboration, although it was admitted this possibility could not be ruled out.

It was believed more likely that some sort of a deal concerning the

HOOF PRINTS OF DEER SEEN IN OAK HILLS

"There's deer in them thar hills," quoted Sergeant Arthur Booth yesterday when he came upon hoof prints of deer in the Oak Hills while visiting friends south of Stirling yesterday afternoon.

"Judging from the hoof prints I would say that a doe or young fawn are feeding on the slopes of the Oak Hills. The hoof prints were quite distinct and were undoubtedly those of deer," Sergeant Booth told contemporaries at the police station today.

Reports of at least one deer having been seen in the Oak Hill section were prevalent in that section early last week when a farmer reported he saw a doe clear a fence of his property recently. Sergeant Booth is convinced the farmer was not suffering under hallucinations.

HUNTER RETURNS WITH BEAR AND DEER

Brought together in death by the rifle of a hunter, a bear estimated at two hundred pounds and a handsome buck deer, graced the fenders of the car of a returning trio of hunters on Sunday.

The car, owned by out-of-town nimrods, was parked outside a city hotel, but whirled away before identity of its occupants could be established.

Others evidence of the luck of the hunters now roaming the northern hinterlands for the elusive bucks was seen on another automobile that carried the carcasses of two deer. The car passed through the city late Sunday afternoon.

J. Robertson with a jury empanelled by Police Sergeant Arthur Booth.

Identification was made by Mr. Allan D. McLean, manager of the local branch of the Imperial Oil Company and the body released for burial.

The adjourned inquest will be held in the local police court chambers.

Action of Incendiary Bombs Explained to Fire Departments

All fire departments throughout Ontario are being schooled in the action of incendiary bombs such as are used to start fires during bombing raids. Charts illustrating these incendiary aerial bombs, together with explanatory sheets are being sent by the Ontario Fire Marshal, W. J. Scott, to all fire departments.

The incendiary bombs which have been used with such devastating effect over European cities during bombing raids are commonly known as the electron bomb, and sometimes referred to as the thermite bomb, being only nine inches in length and two inches in outside diameter and constructed as a hollow tube of magnesium alloy. This tube is filled with a primary composition of the thermite type, such as powdered aluminum or iron oxide, and is fitted with a firing pin and percussion cap.

When these bombs strike their objectives there is no explosion, but the primary composition is ignited by the percussion cap and burns from 40 to 50 seconds at a temperature of 4,500 degrees Fahrenheit. This intense temperature melts the magnesium tube and ignites it, with the mass burning for fifteen minutes at a temperature of 2,400 degrees Fahrenheit, igniting all combustible material surrounding the bomb.

During the first fifty seconds which the bomb burns, pieces of molten metal may be thrown a distance of fifty feet and during the first few minutes the intense glare produced is sufficient to seriously injure the eyes if they are unprotected. The bombs supply their own oxygen and it is impossible to smother the flame with water as the application of water only causes the bomb to burn more fiercely. Carefully applied in a light spray, however, water will prevent the burning of combustible material nearby. Chemical extinguishers are not suitable for controlling the blaze, it is revealed.

Such bombs are dropped from a height of approximately 5,000 feet and in lots of 10 to 20 at one time. They are intended to penetrate the roofs of buildings and to stop in the attic or top floor.

Cause of Tank-Car Explosion Unknown

The cause of the Imperial Oil Company tank-car explosion which instantly killed Frank Collins, 38-year-old company employee on Saturday morning, still remains a mystery as far as local officials are concerned, Fire Chief William Lynch stated today.

The blast, which occurred a moment after Collins had removed the dome from the top of the car, hurled the ill-fated employee 100 feet in the air.

The car, which has been sealed, will be shipped today to headquarters of the company in Toronto where a rigid examination of its structure, and a search for potential causes of the explosion, will be made by company experts.

Fire Chief Lynch, Fire Marshal McCaskey, Toronto, company engineers from Toronto headquarters and local officials conducted an investigation of the car on Saturday afternoon and Sunday and found nothing to which could be attributed the cause of the blast. Electricians from the city were also called in and reported that no "shorts" or other causes from which electricity could be blamed were evident.

City Pays Silent Tribute to Memory Of Canada's War Dead

Industrial, business and professional Belleville paused in its stride at eleven o'clock today to pay a two-minutes' silent tribute to the memory of the Dominion's glorious war dead.

The sonorous tolling of the City Hall bell marked the beginning of the tribute. Stores, shops and factories ceased their activities as the bell slowly tolled off the seconds. As the echo of the last chime slowly died away, the city resumed its activities and the twenty-second anniversary of the signing of the Armistice had passed.

Conspicuous among the few Front Street shops that decorated their windows in memorial motifs were those of the Canadian Department Stores and the Zeller's store. The former's window looked impressive with the colors of crossed flags against the sombreness of a black back-drop. On a field of red in the foreground lay an open book, upon which was inscribed an excerpt from one of Winston Churchill's famous speeches.

A large white cross against a black background contrasted with the colors of flags and the scarlet of poppies in the Zeller's window. The display attracted the [illegible] tion of a number of pedestrians over the week-end.

Returned soldiers of the Army and Navy Veterans of Canada, Belleville, and members of the Imperial Veterans' Association here, paid tribute to their fallen comrades at the City Cenotaph. The veterans held no parade but arrived at the memorial in cars. Major the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, chaplain of the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) conducted a brief service at the Cenotaph. Wreaths were laid at the base of the monument by representatives of the veterans' organizations.

Moderator Right Rev. Dr. Tuttle Opens 125th Anniversary Services of Bridge St. United Church

MAN IS RELIGIOUS

Rev. Dr. Archer Wallace Speaks at Evening Service on the Procession of Triumph and Victory

Delivering a masterful address which imparted a message of inspiration to his listeners and which laid bare many of the opposing influences which today confront the Christian Church to its hindrance in attaining the ultimate goal among men and nations, the Right Reverend A. S. Tuttle, M.A., D.D., Moderator of the United Church, fittingly spoke before the congregation of the Bridge Street United Church on Sunday morning to mark the 125th anniversary of its founding.

Choosing for his sermon theme, "The Task of the Church," it was indeed fitting that the Rev. Mr. Tuttle, as the Moderator of the United Church, should on this memorable occasion, deliver such an inspiring address, outlining as it did, the formidable task which the church today faces in ridding the world of demoralizing and degrading influences.

Invisible Things Real

The speaker stated that the church today faces a great deal of unfavorable criticism. In fact, he said, every institution whose history dates back into the past is being scrutinized by a critical world. We may take comfort from the fact that the church will continue to exist in spite of the criticism and will fortify life here on earth. To substantiate this is the one great interpreted truth of the past, that man is "incurably religious." He looks upward because the great aim of life is to look upward. He has made religion an instinct of his own.

Referring to customs which today are regarded as commonplace, the speaker lamented the fact that moral code of the people of today appeared to be slipping, but declared the church stands to guard the morals of young men and women. The crying need of the people of today, however, is not for a new code of morals. The church stands as a resolute guard against slipping morals and stands for religion with a purifying and unifying power.

Turning to the political chaos and military strife now rampant in the world, the speaker declared that there is a growing conviction of a needed change in the international and political world and a feeling that after the war we cannot go on as we have been going. When men see the new glory and the light of God, then men will be fit again to take part in international affairs, to come back and be politicians." If they don't do this, we labor in vain, said the speaker.

No Contradiction

There is a growing feeling in the world that what is being taught in the churches is in contradiction to what is being taught outside, but, said the speaker, if people would come to church a little more they would find that what is being taught there is not in conflict or in discordance with other teachings. If there is a seeming contradiction in what is being taught in the churches, then there must be a misinterpretation of either what is being taught in the churches or that which is being taught in the world.

In closing, the speaker urged the need for sacrifice if the needs of the political and international life were to be met.

Heard of Church 35 Years Ago

In opening his address, Rev. Mr. Tuttle claimed that 35 years ago when a minister in Western Canada he first heard of Bridge Street Church. "It was then," he said, "that I met members of Bridge Street Church who became members of my church in Western Canada, and there was something in their eyes, something in their voices, which indicated depth of emotion and feeling for their church." He was happy indeed to bring to Belleville, the greetings of the United Church in Canada, of which he was Moderator, stated the speaker.

The Rev. J. Semple, B.A., S.T.B., Th. D., Minister of Bridge Street United Church had charge of the service and introduced the Right Rev. Mr. Tuttle, the guest speaker. "He is a man who has been in pastoral work for many years, a man who knows Western Canada, a principal of a theological college and a wise counsellor and able administrator in all affairs of the church. The United Church was indeed wise in its choice of Moderator," said Rev. Mr. Semple. Rev. Mr. Semple also extended a cordial welcome to all former members of the United Church who were present at the anniversary service.

Special music was provided for the occasion with Mr. Alec Gordon at the organ. Springs of the Desert" (Jennings) was rendered by the choir as their anthem number, while solos were rendered by Mrs. George Stobie and Mr. J. W. Deacon. A large bank of white chrysanthemums decorated the altar stand, the flowers being presented in memory of the late Lt. Col. R. J. E. Graham, while a Union Jack was displayed at the right of the altar in tribute to those who sacrificed their lives during the last Great War.

"The Procession of Hope"

Rev. Dr. Archer Wallace of the department of publications of the United Church, spoke before a large congregation in the evening on "The Procession of Victory." He chose the situation of the meeting of two processions as related in the seventh chapter of St. Luke, the widow of Nain in the one procession walking alongside the body of her son who was being borne to the grave and the procession of Jesus and His eager and enthusiastic disciples who were filled with joyful anticipation.

The Tragic Procession

The funeral procession of widow's dead son is symbolic of sorrow of the world, baffled, beaten back; the widow being emblematic of all the pessimism of the world. "I suppose ever since this world began there has been a procession of defeat. I do not wonder that sometimes people lose heart. In the third, fourth, fifth centuries and in the Middle Ages this view it is which gave rise to monasteries and convents by men and women who were sincere, earnest and devout and felt the evils of the world.

"There must be a lot of people asking 'Why doesn't God intervene?' We don't know. But there is one thing that is true. God cannot make men free and then compel them to do anything. God made men free.

Procession of Jesus

"Let's take a look at the procession led by Jesus and these young Galilean fishermen. We have abundant evidence that they thought Jesus was coming into a kingdom. We know that this procession stood for the world's hope.

"Jesus saw the cross all the way to the cross but He saw beyond the cross. He saw the ultimate triumph of the Gospel which He brought. He knew it would be proclaimed to the ends of the earth.

"With all our sympathies for defeated people we belong to the second procession, that of the ultimate victory, not any cheap future, not any procession along the primrose path, but the procession to victory.

Triumph Note of Restoration

"A Jewish story relates that what Satan missed most when he lost heaven was the sound of the trumpet. We hear so much of despair, but we must hear the sound of the trumpet.

"Jesus stopped the funeral procession and raised the widow's son from the dead. That means that whatever the outcome all will be restoration, revival, victory. He gave back the boy to his mother.

"The watchman cried 'The night cometh, but also the morning.'

"God leads us not into the valley of the shadow but through the valley. If there is no scheme of things, if this world is like a barque blown about, there would be no singing. No one sees clearly but amid all the confusion we believe we shall hear the note of triumph.

"This is the procession we belong to, the procession of victory, led by Jesus, not into the valley of the shadow but through the valley to the meadows and to the other side where there is no night."

Rev. Dr. Semple extended on behalf of the congregation a welcome to Dr. Wallace. During the service the choir, directed by Miss Leona Riggs, sang "When Wilt Thou Save the People?" The organist, Mr. Alec Gordon, played "Spring Song," by Hollins and Mr. J. D. Bankier sang Allitsen's "Like as a Hart." Special organ music as prelude and postlude to the service was played by Mr. Gordon.

Twenty-two years ago the war-buglers blew the "Cease Fire" to end a war that would end all wars. Today the democracies of the world pause to pay brief tribute to those heroes who "went west" in a glorious effort to maintain the ideals for which they fought.

Today the spirits of those splendid men, the flower of their country's manhood, parade in silence as a war-shattered civilization bows its head in memory. For twenty years, the ghostly parade has slowly wended its way along the misty corridors of Valhalla, gazing earthward in an effort to see if the torch of sacrifice they threw to their comrades and countries has been held aloft.

Today their ranks are augmented by fresh young faces. The cream of the Empire's manhood, now patrolling the flaming skies over Europe, the danger-fraught seven seas and the far-flung outposts of Empire, is adding its quota day by day to the "Spirit Patrol."

Perhaps the leaders of twenty-two years ago had foresight. They proclaimed an "Armistice" not a "Peace." Today the world flames anew with the roar of armed conflict. The Empire's youth, gallant, courageous has taken up the torch thrown to them by brave sires. The brief interlude of two decades, in which nations of the world jockeyed for position to break the barriers of a new world conflict, has not lessened the courage and gallantry of Britain's sons.

Today the torch of Liberty, Justice and Freedom flames anew. Dimmed at times, it has never been extinguished. Hands of the Empire's youth reach out eagerly to hold it aloft. It will never dim as long as British courage and fortitude has strength to hold it high.

Today, as the memory of those gallant heroes of 1914-18 who walk hand in hand with the Empire's best who have laid down their lives in the present war, flames anew, civilization will strengthen its vows to pursue to a glorious end, the struggle for freedom for which gallant men and women laid down and are laying down their lives. We must not forget.

ARGYLLS, 34TH, VETERANS ATTEND DIVINE SERVICE

MARCH TO CENOTAPH

Wreaths Laid in Memory of Honored Dead — 'Last Post' and 'Reveille' Sounded

The khaki of Canada's new army mingled with the colors of the Dominion's fighting divisions of the last Great War on Sunday when Belleville's militia units of the Canadian Army paid Armistice Day tribute with the city's veterans to the glorious dead of 1914-18.

It was perhaps the most impressive memorial tribute in years. Five hundred members of the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) Regiment under Lieut. Colonel A. B. Gribble, and the 34th Battery, Royal Canadian Artillery, under Captain Hare, augmented by some the colorful berets and armbands the colorful breast and armbands of their units swung along city streets to the martial tempos of the Argyll's brass and pipe bands. The tartans of the pipers provided an additional touch of color, relieving the war-time sombreness of the khaki-clad militiamen.

The parade attended St. Thomas Church where Major the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, E.D., Chaplain of the Argyll Light Infantry (Tank) delivered an inspiring Armistice Day address. After the church service the units swung along Bridge Street East then northward to Station Street and the city cenotaph, where a brief but equally impressive service was held. Here the units formed a square around the memorial and a two-minute silence observed. Massed trumpets of the Argyll Band played the haunting tones of "Last Post," followed by the lively tempos of "Reveille."

Wreaths Placed on Cenotaph

Wreaths to the memory of the gallant dead were placed by Lieut. Colonel A. B. Gribble on behalf of the Argyll, by Mrs. Fred Lazier, Mrs. Caldwell and Mrs. M. Davidson for the Argyll Chapter, I.O.D.E. and by Robert Browning, Sergeant Major William Lindsay and Sergeant Major Noakes on behalf of the veterans and the 32-34th Battery R.C.A.

Leaving the cenotaph, the parade swung down Station Street to Front where the salute was taken by Lieut.-Colonel Gribble and Col. Roscoe Vandewater in the march-past. The units were dismissed at the Armouries.

Impressive Service

The quiet dignity of the interior of St. Thomas Church echoed to the muffled tread of military feet as a few minutes before eleven the units paraded quietly to their seats. By eleven o'clock the church was filled to overflowing with church-goers crowding the balcony to capacity.

The main body of the church was a mass of khaki clad soldiers, with the members of the Army and Navy Veterans of Canada, Belleville Branch, occupying special seats toward the rear of the church.

The majestic thunder of the organ echoed through the edifice during the service, played by Ernest Wheatley, A.R.C.O. Particularly impressive were the stirring tones of "There'll Always be an England," which rang through the church as the troops slowly filed out after the service.

"If you want to play your part well," Mr. Payne said in his address to the militiamen, "the first essential is to be convinced of your soul. We are sons and daughters of sires who handed to us the custody of a heritage that is composed of liberty, freedom and justice. It is necessary that we give one hundred per cent. but we cannot do this until we are convinced that we can give our best. Only with the spirit can we go forth with a purpose of achievement."

Have Truth, Justice, Liberty

"We can give, just as those gave, whose memory we honor today," the speaker said. "We have truth, justice and liberty, in fact we have all. And these are the things we cherish. The long line of warriors who are marching past today unseen, unheard, are the invisible witnesses and know of what I speak."

The quality of unity, achieved only if we have the power of vision the traditions of the past is one of the attributes of a service which must be the best you have if you are to glorify yourself, the speaker pointed out. Quoting a heroic England, war-shattered but undaunted, Mr. Payne urged his congregation to "live your lives so you will have the utmost to give to yourself, the King and the Empire. So long as you have vision, you will be able to play the game."

Mr. Payne paid tribute to the late Neville Chamberlain "as one who lived for achievement. His just reward will be the prayers of a loyal nation and Empire," he said.

Chamberlain Was Not Primarily Responsible For All the Errors Says N. Y. Times

New York, Nov. 11 (CP)—Neville Chamberlain always will bear the blame for Britain's failure to rearm in time "but he was not primarily responsible for this most disastrous of all British errors," The New York Times said editorially today in commenting upon the death of the former Prime Minister.

"It was not Mr. Chamberlain but his predecessor who confessed that he did not dare to tell his people the truth about German rearmament at the end of 1935, because nothing 'would have made the loss of the election from my point of view more certain'," it said. "The damage had been done when Mr. Chamberlain became Prime Minister in 1937."

Concluding, The Times said:-

"But his good qualities will be honored in due time. After all, Neville Chamberlain tried to bring peace to Europe. He tried boldly and bravely when other men had shrugged their shoulders. Was it not better to have tried and failed than never to have tried at all?"

Said The Herald Tribune:-

"It was the Prime Minister's misfortune that he was constitutionally unable to understand Hitler. Mr. Chamberlain could not divert himself of his rugby training. He treated the Fuehrer as one gentleman would treat another—and Hitler, having not even the remotest understanding of what the code of the gentleman demanded of him, made the most of his opportunities...

"It is thus the tragedy of his life that the record is woefully against him—that it is a record of futile gestures in the face of an arrogant and brutal aggressor."

MOLOTOFF'S VISIT

Dardanelles and involving Turkey would be laid before Molotoff. It was suggested in some quarters it might go farther and include Iraq, perhaps Afghanistan.

Given Sphere of Influence

For some time it has been reported here that Germany is preparing to lay before the Soviets a scheme under which Russia would be allotted a sphere of influence over the Dardanelles and the western end of the Black Sea in return for a guarantee of neutrality, if the German and Italian armies start a general campaign against Turkey and Greece. This campaign would be aimed at the conquest of Egypt and Palestime and the seizure of the Suez Canal and the oilfields of Iraq.

Ever since the capitulation of the Rumanian government to German pressure Hitler has been massing troops in that country. It is believed he has 100,000 or 150,000 mechanized troops there, a force too big to be explained away by suggestions it is being used to guard the Rumanian oil fields and train the Rumanian army.

Might Bring Pressure

The Germans might be preparing to bring pressure against the Soviets by building up an army in Rumania that could be used against the western Ukraine, Russia's wheat-growing country. This army might be used to bring pressure on the Soviets to agree to a freeze-out on Turkey in the Dardanelles.

Against this theory is the fact Turkish-Russian relations have been improving recently and the further fact that this is no time of the year to start a military campaign in southeastern Europe, as the Italians have discovered in Greece.

FIRST DIVISION, CANADIAN ARMY ATTENDS SERVICE

Col. George A. Welles, Principal Protestant Chaplain, Preaches Short Sermon

SECOND TAKES PART

(By Ross Munro, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Somewhere in England, Nov. 11—(CP Cable)—More than 1,500 officers and men of the Canadian 2nd Division Sunday attended a Remembrance Day service in a church in their camp area. It was the largest mass church attendance among the Canadian troops in England and the first representative gathering of members of practically every unit of the division.

Dozens of platoons marched from their barracks, filling the church. The Field Ambulance Company occupied the choir loft and provided music for the service.

Col. George A. Welles, principal Protestant chaplain with the Canadian Active Service Force, preached a short sermon filled with encouragement to the men of the division.

He was confident that a better turn of events in the war is ahead. He said the Battle of the Marne decided the question of Allied victory in the last war and at Dunkerque the second Great War was possibly decided in favor of Great Britain.

"There the check came, the tide turned," Col. Welles said.

Service Brings Memories

The service brought memories of that other war to the chaplain who then was attached for two years to the 2nd Division and now was addressing its current counterpart.

Major C. G. Hepburn of Ottawa, principal Protestant chaplain to the 2nd Division, assisted Col. Welles.

Meanwhile the chief service of the 1st Division took place in the ancient church of a town where a western regiment is billeted. A choir of twenty-five officers and men from the regiment organized last month by Padre Captain S. B. East of the Jarvis, Ont., United Church rendered "Oh Valiant Hearts."

Captain East was originally from Regina, Sask.

The officer commanding the regiment read the lesson and the Padre prayed.

A stained window in the church had been blown out by a bomb providing a realistic war touch to the soldier service.

Most of the other 1st Division regiments observed the day by attending regular church services.

Britain Loses Friend in Death Of Key Pittman

Reno, Nev., Nov. 11 (AP)—Key Pittman, 68, chairman of the United States Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, and champion in the United States of the British cause, died in hospital here early Sunday.

The veteran legislator, who might have entered the Senate six years earlier than he did but for his observances of a gentlemen's agreement, suffered a heart attack early Saturday.

Although Senator Pittman was not in vigorous health when he came home to campaign successfully for re-election, it was not until last Saturday, when he failed to appear at a political rally here, that his illness became known publicly.

Monday night—election eve—he was taken to the hospital and his physician, Dr. A. J. Hood, disclosed that he had been in bad health throughout the campaign.

Senator Pittman, first elected to the United States Senate in 1912 for an unexpired term of four years, defeated Samuel Platt, Republican, in last Tuesday's election —his sixth successive victory for that office.

Great Loss to Nation

Governor E. P. Carville, expressing deep regret at the Senator's death, said he had given no thought to a successor. Pittman's unexpired terms ends in January.

"Nevada and the nation has suffered a great loss in the death of Senator Pittman," the Governor said. "He had been one of the outstanding Senators of the West for many years and I deeply regret his passing."

Author of "Cash and Carry"

It was largely through Pittman's insistence that Congressional revision of the Neutrality Act last year took the form of "cash and carry" legislation which permitted belligerents to purchase war supplies in the United States for cash and transport them in their own ships. This move aided Britain, which controls the Atlantic.

Health Is Theme Of Meeting of Wooler W. I.

Wooler — A meeting of the Wooler and York Road Women's Institutes was held on Tuesday afternoon, October 30th, in the S. S. rooms of Smithfield United Church.

The president of the York Road W. I., Mrs. A. Hayes called the meeting to order and all sang the Institute Ode. She then introduced the guest speaker, Miss Helen Gardiner of Niagara Falls, who gave an inspiring address on the responsibility of the Institute in promoting public health. She pointed out that self diagnosis and the use of patent medicine often proves to be a very expensive practice.

Public health work is largely preventive and one responsibility the Institutes have, is to find out the needs in their communities and discover what can be done; have proper health supervision in the schools; have the M. O. H. speak at the meetings on his duties in the locality; learn regulations concerning communicable diseases and learn how to take care of emergencies.

The home nursing course was strongly recommended. Upon health depends happiness and personality which is ability to do things well and for the other fellow and not on a cash basis. The more one does for others the more happiness and personality will improve.

The ladies were delighted with the discourse.

LIFEBUOY IN YOUR DAILY BATH Stops "B.O."

HE was the town's most successful young businessman—a likeable, patriotic citizen. But Mr. St. J. never seemed to be able to get close to anybody . . . never understood why.

He failed to realize that we have to perspire to live—just as we must breathe. In warm, stuffy rooms, we perspire more—from a pint to three pints a day, even when we are sitting still. Left on the body, this sweat goes stale—decomposes. Then YOU have "B.O."

Careful people check "B.O." before it starts, with Lifebuoy. Lifebuoy contains an exclusive deodorizing ingredient not found in any other leading toilet soap. Used in your daily bath, Lifebuoy stops "B.O."—its purifying lather washes away stale perspiration deposits. Winter or summer—play safe—with Lifebuoy.

SCIENTIFIC FACTS ABOUT 'B.O.'

The adult skin has 2 to 3 million sweat glands which act as a cooling system giving off from 1 to 3 pints of perspiration daily—even when we are sitting still. If perspiration stopped, we would die from hyper-pyrexia (heat stroke).

Because much of the water in perspiration evaporates, we do not see or feel it —especially in changeable weather Heated rooms, lack of fresh air and heavy clothes quickly decompose this sweat deposit—turn it stale—cause offensive "B.O." (Body Odor).

THE LATE MR. CHAMBERLAIN

The Right Honorable Arthur Neville Chamberlain, on whom fell the task of blocking the path of German aggression in Europe, did not live to see the victory which will crush the menace which has caused war over Europe. He had been ill for some time and his death during the week-end was the cause of sorrow across the Empire and in many other parts of the world, for Mr. Chamberlain was a sincere patriot and despite the heavy burden of the office of prime minister under which even a young man might have weakened, he maintained a resolute attitude against the foe.

No man in the world held as important a post as did Mr. Chamberlain in the years 1938 and 1939. While the world was coming to realize in earnest the danger of Nazism and of Hitler, it was in March of 1938 that Hitler first showed his hand to be the mailed fist when he engulfed Austria. Then began in May his campaign to provoke agitation which led up to the Czecho-Slovak crisis, in September of that year. It was then that Mr. Chamberlain was called upon to reach a decision. He had aimed at peace and striven for peace and according to the views of many Great Britain was not adequately prepared at the time to face a militant Germany. Mr. Chamberlain's policy was for appeasement and he expressed the view that the result of the Munich conference would mean "peace for our time." At that time he was criticized by many and defended by others. But Mr. Chamberlain, on his return from Munich, warned that Britain would go on increasing her defence preparations. Next March Hitler broke the agreement of Munich and absorbed most of the Czech-Slovak provinces with ruthless savagery which showed that with him there could be no such appeasement. The British Government and Poland agreed on defence.

Britain made herculean efforts to prevent war but it was impossible for Hitler was bent on dominating Poland. When Hitler crossed into Poland, Chamberlain did not hesitate. Britain declared war on Germany.

Mr. Chamberlain threw himself into the titanic task though he was over seventy years of age. The man who hoped to devote his energy to plans for social amelioration found that his duty was to wage war on a relentless aggressor who had been preparing for years to loot the world.

In the eleven months between Munich and the invasion of Poland, it is felt by many that Mr. Chamberlain enabled Britain to arm herself far beyond the defences she had at the time of Munich. That these have stood Britain in good stead is believed by most experts and public men.

The conduct of the war was a task for the fullest effort and the strength of the strongest man. Mr. Churchill, after Mr. Chamberlain's retirement, praised Mr. Chamberlain's "unshaken nerve and persevering will. The help you have given me since you ceased to be my chief tided us through what may well be the turning point of the war. You did all you could for peace. You did all you could for victory." Mr. Churchill had always been a loyal supporter of Mr. Chamberlain in the conduct of the war and when the time came to change the British political leadership, these men had confidence, the one in the other, Mr. Churchill honoring Mr. Chamberlain for his loyal and unstinted effort and zeal for the British and Allied cause and Mr. Chamberlain confident in Mr. Churchill's great gifts of leadership.

History will weigh the attitude of Mr. Chamberlain on appeasement and his gifts of leadership and whatever the verdict historians will assuredly give Mr. Chamberlain a high place among the leaders of the day for his sincerity and his resolution as he faced the world's greatest peril and led Britain in defiance of Hitler. The events dealing with the war naturally occupy the largest place in the records of his life but all through his public life has been one of unselfish devotion to his country.

HITLER AND MUNICH LOSE PRESTIGE

Hitler once told the Germans there would be no British air raids over Germany.

For months nightly the British Air Force has pounded the military objectives of the Reich with the result of disastrous destruction to the German war machine.

But the greatest personal disaster as far as Hitler is concerned has been the interruption of his plans and the spoiling of his broadcast of the Munich celebration. Then afterwards British planes bombed military objectives in Munich.

Hitler had to speak within doors tightly fastened. The Nazi radio could not carry the broadcast to the German people. It was because British bombers were somewhere over Germany. So the German radio network had to announce that Hitler's speech would not be broadcast until Saturday and a bare summary without quotations was given of his speech at Munich.

What must the Germans think of their Fuehrer whose words are kept off the air? Will they realize that Hitler was kept off the air by British bombers? Can't they think of Hitler as blocked and as a prisoner within Germany, and even such a prisoner that his voice cannot reach them at his will?

Outside of Germany the incident is of great importance as showing to the nations what British air strength means and what Hitler really is, just a tyrant no more infallible than all the fallen tyrants of history.

WHAT HITLERISM MEANS

Poland, the land which produced large quantities of pork for export in pre-war days, now finds pork selling at five dollars a pound, thanks to the invasion of Poland by Hitler on September 1st., 1939.

This is a fair indication of the insanity and selfishness of the Nazi policy, and but an indication of what sort of world the Nazis would make this globe. It is the reason why no state outside of Germany and Italy wants to see Germany win. It is the reason why Germany and Italy cannot win for the war will go on to victory for Britain and democracy.

WORLD'S FAIR "EXILES"

New York Times

When the World's Fair closed, 369 aliens who had been employed in the foreign concessions found themselves not only out of a job but also under a legal obligation to return to the countries of their origin within 30 days. Many of them cannot comply with this obligation without godly peril to themselves, even though it were possible for them to get home through the fighting lines. A Czech, a Pole or a Frenchman may no longer have a home. If he has one, he may yet be rightly reluctant to submit himself to the Nazi tyranny.

It is reassuring to learn that the Immigration Bureau is encouraging each of the individuals concerned to present his case, to be dealt with according to its merits, and that in no instance will any of the visitors be required to return to a conquered country or territory.

But a specific law on the subject would be better. Now more than ever we owe all possible hospitality to those who are in exile for conscience sake.

Canadian, British and U.S. Toys Monopolize Yule Market in 1940

Montreal Gazette

Almost all the Christmas toys on display this year will be of Canadian, American or British make, it was learned from local wholesale and retail dealers who are preparing for a bigger Christmas business this year than ever before.

There will, of course, be no German or Central European toys. But the consensus among buyers is that imports for some years now have been much less than is popularly believed. "The impression that Germany has supplied us with so many of our toys is a popular fallacy, arising chiefly from the fact that people look back to their own childhood when that supply was much greater." one experienced buyer maintained, adding "for the last 25 years those imports have been dropping off, and during the last eight or 10 years they have been confined chiefly to cheaper lines."

Canadian toy manufacturing, under the impetus of a greater market has expanded during the last year. Most of the dolls on sale, for example, have been made in the Dominion. Likewise, imports from Britain this year are appreciably greater over those of last year. The quality of toys, it is generally felt, will be higher. This is due not so much to raising of standards in British, Canadian and American manufacturing—for those standards have always been higher than elsewhere—but rather to the fact that imports of cheaper toys from Germany have ceased, while those from Japan have shrunk to an almost neglible point. The latter consist chiefly of novelties and celluloid dolls.

"The fact of the matter," another buyer stated, "is that the United States has always been the greatest manufacturer of toys and this year is even more so."

In some instances imports were made from France before her collapse. One wholesaler said that his firm had expected that many of the cheaper toys, such as tops, which were unavailable from Germany, could be imported from France, where manufacturers had taken steps to fill the gap. One large retailer reported that some of their imports from France, chiefly more expensive dolls, came through, but in limited quantities, so that already the supply is gone.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

James W. Barton, M.D.

Mental and Physical Tiredness May Bring on Nose and Throat Infections

When a cold in the head occurs, the first thought in the mind of many is to take a purgative and then begin to use a salt or oil solution up into the nose. Nose, throat and lung specialists advise that this very "active" treatment of a cold is unwise and that rest in bed and leaving the nose and throat alone would give better results.

Some valuable information about the treatment of colds and infections of nose, throat and sinuses is given by Drs. Arlie V. Bock in Annals of Internal Medicine. Dr. Bock tells of the care of 1667 patients with the above infections treated at Stillman Infirmary, Harvard University, from September 1935 to March 1938. The patients were students and recent graduates, the principal age range being 17 to 25.

The first thought in the treatment, whether or not the patient has a temperature is putting the patient to bed. It is because many of these patients are tired mentally and physically that the cold attacks them. Getting off their feet and getting rested mentally and physically saves or preserves the body's energies, particularly the reserve power of the heart.

The second point made by Dr. Bock is that too active spraying, inhaling, gargling of medicines produces irritation of the lining of the nose, throat and sinuses and so prolongs the course of the infection.

The third point is the use of quieting drugs for comfort. Laxatives are not usually prescribed.

By these simple measures— rest in bed and quieting drugs—complications were prevented and the patients made good recoveries.

Some suggestions and findings of Dr. Bock and his associates who treated these cases are, (a) that nose and throat infections would be less common if patients could be taught to live within their physical powers or resources, (b) while weather changes and contagion must be taken into account, tension—mental and physical fatigue—is an important factor in bringing on attacks, (c) when attack does come, get off the feet and don't use sprays, injections into nose, or gargles too often or two vigorously.

WHO'S A KANAK?

(Ottawa Journal)

We agree with the Ottawa Citizen, whose comment on the subject we print in another column, that "Kanak" is a dreadful word, even worse than "Canuck," which never won any prizes in etymology.

Whether "Kanak" is the invention of our London correspondent who has been telling Journal readers for years of his observations from "A Window in Fleet Street," or whether it is in common use in Britain, we do not know. Certainly it is a strange harsh word, and we do not propose to use it any more. But we are puzzled over its origin, and on this point we are seeking enlightenment from London.

The "Fleet Street Letter" has been a feature of this page for many years, and while the identity of the writer has changed from time to time its general style has been maintained — it is a glimpse at the lighter side of British life. The present writer — like his predecessors — is a veteran of the Great War, and obviously familiar with the military scene, so it is probable he has had more authority for "Kanak" than his own invention. But we cannot imagine that Canadians in uniform will take it tamely. "You're an Aussie!" "You're a Kanak!" Such an argument would seem to have an inevitable conclusion.

Our London writer has used the term in his articles for some weeks. At first the word was changed in this office. Then it was decided to try out on Ottawa readers, and the result is as expected. For the future it is banned — unless later it should be accepted by the public, and that would appear highly improbable.

A.R.P. Uncover Fort

Manchester Guardian

In making excavations for air-raid shelters at Carlisle workmen brought to light walls of the great fort at Stanwix, which was by virtue of its strategical position one of the most important fortifications of the Roman Wall. The southwest angle of the fort was found close to the Brampton Road in a footpath of the churchyard. From that point the south wall was traced through the grounds of Stanwix House and the east wall in another garden.

It was possible from these discoveries and others already made to ascertain that the fort occupied corners, the north of which was formed by Hadrian's Wall. It measured no less than 700 feet by 500 feet, some 300 feet broader than any other fort on the line of the wall. It is assumed from these large/dimensions that it was occupied by a Military Ala, a cavalry regiment 1,000 strong. It has long been known that one of the most famous of these was near the west end of Hadrian's Wall.

So our burrowings for shelter in the present war link up with the very different military preparations of a remote age. Should any part of these air-raid shelters persist into the equally remote future, what will the antiquarians of those days make of them?

The Need of Trees

Irish Independent (Dublin): The war has done more than a century of propaganda could do to bring home to the people of this country the need for having adequate reserves of native timber. It has been calculated that Eire would need 600,000 acres of forests to meet normal requirements, that is to say, in those timbers which can be grown in this country. How far we fall short of this minimum may be judged from the fact that, although there are nearly 100 units of State forests scattered in various parts of the country, the actual amount of forest land comprised in this number does not exceed 140,000 acres, and the area planted is not 100,000 acres. All the blame for this does not lie with the Forestry Branch. The officials' resources are very limited, although this year's vote for forestry exceeds £229,000. Moreover, they are constantly hampered by various difficulties when they seek to acquire suitable land, especially as it is calculated that less than 300 acres of plantation is not an economic unit. Even so, we think that the progress made has been too slow, that the State has not grappled with forestry in a sufficiently courageous spirit, something, say, of the spirit which has been observed in dealing with housing and local security. Nor has any great effort yet been made to see what could be done in suitable localities to put spades and saplings instead of doles into the hands of sturdy unemployed young men.

Italy Wants Weather Man

Woodstock Sentinel Review

All is not going well with Il Duce's valiant nondescripts in Greece. The Italians are being held at all points and it now appears that the Greeks not only had a word for it but also an action to suit the word. From bitter experience the British knew what to expect the Italian legions would do when they were thrown against civilized soldiers with modern methods and modern weapons. Mussolini expected the Greeks would capitulate immediately upon the declaration of war to have their ancient cities and historical sites from being bombed by the Italian flyers. Although they have bombed several Greek towns the world at large now knows that the Greeks can take it as well as the Londoner. Unfortunately, for Italy, new bases have been acquired by the R. A. F., which will prove beyond doubt that it is just as far from Greece to Italy as Italy is from Greece.

Ever since Italy's entry into the war it has been one complaint after another. The Italian drive in Egypt burnt itself out because of the intense desert heat. The Italian navy has failed to acquire the "Nelson touch" and lies skulking under the protection of shore batteries and Rome claims that its ships "nearly" trapped the British fleet but rough water and misty air foiled their marksmanship! The latest excuse concerns the Grecian fiasco. This time it is the condition of the Greek raids and the intermittent rains. Evidently, from the foregoing collection of Italian aches and ills, a new meteorologist will be demanded in Rome who can supply, at order, snow storms in Egypt to cool the searing sands; a windless day on the Mediterranean to rule the waves and a good dust storm on the Grecian heights to mop up the sloppy terrain. Now, Fellow Romans! Who'll be the first to volunteer for the job?

PLANES and AUTOMOBILES

One of the encouraging aspects of the defense program is the whole-hearted response of the automobile industry to the request for help in fabricating parts for aircraft. Already airplane manufacturers have placed substantial orders with automobile and automobile accessory plants, as sub-contractors, for parts and constituent assemblies which suit the particular factory set-up. This is a necessary step to speed aircraft production and one which doubtless will be extended.

When it comes to the manufacture of large aircraft sections, such as wings and fuselages, the automobile builders, who still will act as subcontractors to the actual supplies, should be able to contribute much in addition to factory space and skilled man power. Aircraft, almost exclusively built of aluminum alloys, now use riveting for the attachment of sections. Common practice in plane manufacture is to have a single worker complete the whole operation of inserting and setting a rivet. In a bomber of the Flying Fortress type there are 350,000 rivets. Mass production automobile methods may well find a way to accelerate this task by applying the technique of divided operations on a moving conveyor line, with one man reaming rivet holes, the next inserting the shank, another clinching the head, and so on. It may well be, also, that these methods will lead to a technique by which airplane parts can be welded together, as motor vehicle parts are now.

American engineering brains in the aircraft manufacturing industry have been able to produce in increasing quantities planes and engines which set a pattern for the world. American engineering and production brains in the automobile industry have led to a quantity manufacture of motor cars on a scale not even approached elsewhere.

U-Boat Outwitted By Liner Captain

An East Coast Canadian Port, Nov. 11.—(CP)—Hitler's prowling surface raider remained aloof, but two other units of the German war machine made it a dangerous Atlantic crossing for a 6,000-ton British vessel that made port here today.

Not once, passengers said, did they see the pocket battleship which, allegedly, has been terrorizing Atlantic shipping. But, in a zigzagging voyage of two weeks, they came safely through a diving raid by a Nazi bomber and were saved from a submarine attack by the "superb" efficiency of the officers and crew.

They had been at sea about a day and a half when the bomber swooped down on their convoy. Their ship escaped unscathed, but two others were less fortunate.

A bomb severely damaged the fore part of one vessel and she turned back. The passengers said she made port in England safely. Crewmen conquered a fire aboard the other and she defiantly continued on her way.

Purser a Hero

About five days out a storm blew up, their ship wandered from the convoy and the submarine put in an appearance. The seas were snarling and dusk was falling when a warning came from the lookout.

From then on, one passenger related, the officers demonstrated "perfect British discipline and seamanship".

The purser, a "hero", crisply took charge of the passengers, who had been sleeping in their clothes for days. Revolver in hand, he bluntly warned that any man trying to scramble into the lifeboats before a woman or child would be shot.

None did. Without a sign of panic, they took up positions along the rails and awaited developments.

Aft, crewmen quickly stripped the gun for action. The alarm had come in the nick of time. The U-boat was in perfect postion for a shot and was slowly emerging for just that purpose.

Even as she was breaking surface, about 1,500 yards away, a shell came out from the ship. Three others followed in quick succession, bursting near the undersea craft before she had to sink her.

Then, as the delighted gunners congratulated themselves, the sub vanished into the depths without firing a single torpedo. She never bothered them again.

Not in Danger Again

Although she failed to make contact again with her convoy, the British craft finished out her voyage without further signs of danger.

To Joseph Williams, a Montreal engineer, this was an "ordinary" trip. He has crossed the Atlantic six times since the war broke out, has been fired on "times out of number" by U-boats, but has yet to be on a ship that went down. This wasn't his first experience with a bomber, either, but he admits they are "less frequent visitors than the subs".

Williams and two English youths left ship here, but the other 140-odd passengers will continue on to Boston. Majority of them are Jewish refugees from the European Continent, but there are a few English women and children.

Leaving the ship here were John Parry Evans of Liverpool, who will go to St. Thomas, Ont., for the rest of the war, and J. E. Dart, who will be the guest of his grandmother, Mrs. F. H. Dart of Halifax.

Crew Scuttles French Sub

London, Nov. 11—(CP)—The Admiralty announced Saturday that the French submarine Poncelet had been scuttled after an engagement with British naval forces off French Equatorial Africa, where General Charles de Gaulle's free French forces are reported to be storming Gabun.

The Admiralty also announced the submarine Sturgeon has destroyed two German supply ships while on patrol along the German-held invasion coast.

At the same time the Admiralty said that the Submarine H-49 is overdue and considered lost.

Concerning German claims that a raider had attacked a British convoy and sunk some fifteen ships, an Admiralty communique had this to say:

"In spite of the enemy's claim to have annihilated this convoy, it can now be stated that a number of ships successfully eluded the raider.

"Owing to the necessity for maintaining wireless silence, no other details are yet available".

H.M.S Winchester Damaged

The Admiralty said Saturday that enemy action on shipping in the Thames estuary damaged H.M.S. Winchester, but the ship's guns downed two dive bombers and hit and damaged three others. On the previous day H.M.S. Egret destroyed one dive bomber and hit another. A few casualties were suffered aboard the Egret from a bomb splinter, the bulletin added.

One merchant ship of 1,900 tons sailing in ballast was sunk in the Thames and one of 1,200 tons damaged. This vessel reached port.

The Admiralty denied flatly a Vichy claim that a British naval squadron had shelled Libreville, in Gabun, or that light British ships aided the landing of Free French troops near there.

A statement issued by the Admiralty said the only naval engagement the British naval squadron had been concerned in was "resisting an attempt by the French submarine Poncelet to sink a British warship without warning".

The Poncelet, the Admiralty said, was forced to come to the surface as a result of "retaliatory action" and then was scuttled by its own crew.

All members of the crew were saved.

Between The Lines

(Windor Star)

Nazi censorship is not quite as clever and subtle as the Germans would like to think. For instance, there is the dispatch telling of the reaction of the French people to the American election result. It reads, in part, something like this, the dashes indicating deleted words:

"The news of President Roosevelt's re-election gave Vichy and France the — day they have known since the armistice... Water drinkers taking their cure at fountains commented — — — — Roosevelt victory."

Knowing how the French people feel about the German occupation, folk on this side of the Atlantic will have little difficulty in filling in the blanks.

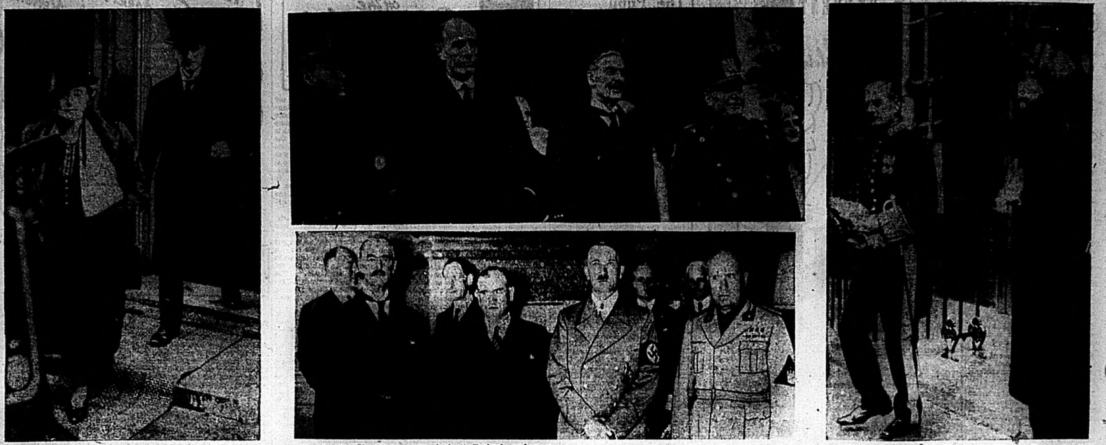
Chamberlain's Life Aims Destroyed by War



Democracies of the world join the British Empire in mourning the passing of Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain, former prime minister of Britain, who devoted his tenure of office in a vain attempt to prevent the present war. The highlight of his career was probably his conference at Munich with Hitler, Mussolini and Premier Daladier of France, LOWER CENTRE. It was from this conference that Mr. Chamberlain came back to England and announced, "Peace in our time". A year later he was faced with the task of declaring war on Germany. In an effort to create a better relationship with Italy, he visited Rome, accompanied by Lord Halifax. They are shown, TOP CENTRE, with Count Ciano and Premier Mussolini. Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain are shown, LEFT, leaving No. 10 Downing St., en route to the House of Commons, while Mr. Chamberlain is pictured, RIGHT, leaving Downing St., to attend the King's levee at Buckingham Palace.

Former Prime Minister Fought for World Peace But Hitler Baulked Plan

London, Nov. 11—(CP)—It fell to the lot of Neville Chamberlain, who once described himself as "a man of peace from the depths of my soul," to lead the British Empire to war against Germany.

On Sept. 3, 1939, in announcing to the House of Commons and the nation the fact that Germany's invasion of Poland has brought into effect Britain's guarantee and that consequently Britain was at war, he said:

"I cannot tell what part I may be allowed to play, but I trust I may live to see the day when Hitlerism has been destroyed and restored and liberated Europe has been re-established."

That hope was denied him.

"Everything I had worked for, hoped for and believed in during my public life has crashed into ruins," he said.

"There is but one thing left for me and that is to devote what strengths and powers I have to forwarding victory of the cause."

Before this he had been the apostle of appeasement and non-intervention in an uneasy Europe, devoting himself to a quest of means to settle international quarrels without recourse to war.

Once, when war seemed imminent over the acute crisis between Germany and Czecho-Slovakia, he staved it off at the eleventh hour with the historic "Pact of Munich."

Thought He Brought Peace

For this he was hailed in London and throughout most of the world. He brought back "peace in our time," he said. Hitler signed with him a declaration that the British and German people planned to fight each other no more. But it was a scrap of paper. Six months later Hitler broke his word by entering Prague; in another six months he invaded Poland.

Mr. Chamberlain devoted himself as wholeheartedly to victory with arms as he had striven for peace. But Britain was not ready. There were staggering problems to be met against the fully prepared Germans. Crises arose in the Government.

The Nazis rumbled over Poland, Norway, Denmark, Britain's expeditionary force was compelled to evacuate Norway. During the fighting there Mr. Chamberlain had proclaimed his confidence of victory and said "Hitler had missed the bus."

But many members of his Conservative Party voted against him. He was sustained on a vote of confidence by only a narrow margin. Last May 10 he resigned.

Winston Churchill succeeded him. The new Prime Minister, an admirer of Mr. Chamberlain's qualities of tenacity and sincerity invited him into the Government as Lord President of the Council.

Then came a serious operation for an abdominal ailment during the summer. He returned to his duties after a long rest, his health below par, and on Oct. 3 he resigned, stating he had suffered a relapse and needed to seek rest.

Led in Hectic Days

Neville Chamberlain rose to world eminence in anxious days — days that threatened Europe with general war less than twenty years after the close of history's deadliest armed conflict.

Through the hectic years of war in Spain, war in China and armed coercion in Central Europe, with the world harassed by totalitarian demands for expansion, demands for trade, demands for colonies, Chamberlain stood out as a figure striving for peace. First, peace by appeasement; and when that appeared on the point of failure, peace by opposing force with force.

Criticized and applauded throughout his efforts to appease the dictators before the dismemberment of Czecho-Slovakia, Chamberlain remained outwardly calm. He was equally calm—and hard—when that "wanton violation of a solemn pledge" brought a reshaping of British policy. For the first time in history Britain, under Chamberlain guaranteed frontiers in Eastern Europe for the first time since Cromwell she conscripted men in times of nominal peace.

Nearly fifty when he entered the House of Commons, Chamberlain rose higher than his brilliant father, Joseph, and his half-brother, Sir Austen. Until the "war scare" years he was perhaps best known for carrying through as Chancellor of the Exchequer, the project nearest his father's heart. In 1932 he inroduced an Empire preference tariff schedule in his budget, reversing the century-old British policy of free imports.

Shortly after Chamberlain became Prime Minister, a biographer, referring to his natural reserve and innate shyness, wrote of him:

"He has no glowing eloquence or aptness for coining phrases that stamp themselves on the public mind or memory."

Became Premier in 1937.

Yet, within a year of that verbal estimate, the practical, realist Premier had given utterance to speeches that will have a place in the pages of history.

War talk and lawless international action were almost epidemic when he took over the Prime Ministership from Stanley Baldwin on May 31, 1937. Although beset with mounting problems at home, he promptly applied himself to the task of saving the Empire, Europe, and possibly the world from war, which he held to be the cruelest and most senseless method of settling disputes.

Undeclared war raged between Japan and China. Spain was wracked by a long and bitter civil revolt in which Italy and Germany openely intervened in behalf of the Fascists. A series of delicate incidents developed, involving Britain, France, Russia and some of the smaller nations. There was an ever-present danger of an open rupture between the democracies and the totaltiarian powers.

Despite caustic criticism and denunciation from the Opposition in Parliament and some sections of the press, Chamberlain persevered in what he believed to be the course toward peace. He steadfastly pursued a policy of "non-intervention" and "appeasement," and sought by every means to win the friendship of Germany and Italy.

This policy, however, cost the Prime Minister in February, 1938, the services of his young and popular Foreign Secretary, Anthony Eden, who even then was being mentioned as his possible successor.

Eden didn't see eye to eye with his chief on the abandonment of collective security under the aegis of the League of Nations, but retired from the Government chiefly over the issue of "standing up" to the dictators. He demanded some prior evidence of good faith from Mussolini before treaty negotiations were opened.

1938 Fall Crisis.

Lord Halifax took over the portfolio, but as he had no voice in the lower House, Chamberlain in effect became the active foreign minister.

He had not long to wait before his personal qualifications in that post were put to the test. In the midst of the world's turmoil and tension Germany annexed Austria, and smouldering embers of discontent among the 3,000,000 Sudeten Germans of Czecho-Slovakia suddenly flared into the crisis of September, 1938.

Original demands for local autonomy and other special concessions developed into a full-throated cry for self-determination. Violent disorders broke out throughout Sudetenland. There was heavy toll of life and property on both sides before the Czech government invoked martial law and arrested some of the Nazi leaders in the frontier area.

Efforts to settle the dispute ended in a deadlock, and Hitler stepped in with the might of Germany's arms to support the Sudeten demands. Danger signals flashed across Europe, and the word "war" was on every one's lips.

It was a situation unparalleled since 1914, but it also provided Chamberlain with a role which earned him world acclaim—and later, some criticism.

Flew To Meet Hitler.

Although on the eve of his seventieth birthday, he essayed three plane trips within two weeks to Germany, where, face to face with Hitler, he sought to save peace. Some questioned the wisdom of the prime minister's decision, but few challenged its timeliness or doubted its sincerity.

The Munich pact was the ultimate outcome. Under its terms Czecho-Slovakia was called upon to grant the fullest measure of the Sudeten demands. But the headlong rush of Europe into war had been halted.

Chamberlain returned to London to receive one of the greatest popular welcomes ever accorded an individual in the city's long and colorful history. His policy of appeasement and direct approach was hailed as a personal triumph.

Less than six months later Hitler's troops were on the march, the Munich pact was dead, Czecho-Slovakia dissolved and brought under the protective wing of Imperial Germany. The era of appeasement was at an end.

Foreign Policy Revamped.

Hitler's action came as a severe blow to Chamberlain, but, by scrapping a solemn pledge and spurning a gesture of lasting peace, the fuehrer became directly responsible for the most drastic peacetime reorientation of Britain's foreign policy in history.

Chamberlain, with the backing of France, promptly launched what became known as the "Peace Front" against aggression.

Guarantees of protection against unprovoked attack were extended to Poland, Turkey, Rumania and Greece.

Peacetime conscription was introduced in Britain for the first time since the days of Cromwell.

Strength of the territorial army was doubled and by the end of 1939 nearly a million men were under arms.

The nation's already enormous national defence program was enlarged and an unprecedented campaign of preparedness set in motion.

In defence of his changed policy Chamberlain said:

"Man of peace as I am, there is one claim which, if it were made, must as it seems to me be resisted if necessary by force. That would be a claim by any one state to dominate others by force, since, if such claim were admitted, I see no possibility of peace of mind or body for anyone."

He insisted, however, that resistance to such claims did not involve denial of the right of any nation to put forward its grievances, its difficulties or desires and to have them examined by others in a spirit of understanding and good-will.

Few families have held such a long and continuous eminence on the political stage of the nation as the Chamberlains. But for the caprice of fortune, the honor of becoming First Minister might have fallen years before to the father, Joseph, known as the "Great Imperialist", or to Neville's half-brother, Austen, who had been dedicated almost from birth to the profession of politics. Actually, Neville as a young man declared: "I have not the slightest intention now or at any time of entering parliament. I desire to be a business man, pure and simple."

With the voluntary departure of Baldwin, selection of Chamberlain as successor was regarded as a foregone conclusion. Like so many of his predecessors, he stepped into the exalted office from the Chancellery of the Exchequer, at the age of 68, or eighteen years after he made his debut in the House of Commons.

"I am assuming the duties and responsibilities attached to the office of prime minister at an age when most people would think of retiring from active work," he told the Conservative party convention following his selection.

In an anteroom awaiting the decision of the party, he had been afforded ample opportunity of reflecting upon the realities of acceptance or rejection of an invitation to lead the nation.

No major point of policy could be decided, he said, no really fateful step taken, without the assent, either active or passive, of the Prime Minister. If things went wrong he could never escape the reflection: "I might have prevented this if I had thought or acted differently."

In his peroration he said: "I have not been so much wracked by anxiety as to the result of your deliberations. I have rather been thinking how much more easily I should sleep tonight if your full choice fell somewhere else. But although I have never sought this or any other office, I have never thought it right to shirk any duties which other people thought me capable of performing."

Forefathers Artisans.

Born on March 18, 1869, Arthur Neville Chamberlain had a lineal descent closely bound up with the history of the English middle class of the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries.

His forefathers were artisans — shoemakers in the City of London—and remained so till the last century but one.

It was his father who installed the family in Birmingham, where he rose to become its leading citizen and founded the Chamberlain succession of political greatness. It was also in Birmingham that the father established a factory for the manufacture of screws and other steel products which became the main source of the family fortune.

After an education at Rugby and Mason College, Birmingham, Neville entered his father's business. When Joe Chamberlain saw his business dwindling in 1890, he sent his younger son to the Bahamas to supervise a sisal plantation he had acquired in an effort to recoup his losses.

Neville remained in the West Indies for seven years, but the sisal market was at a low ebb and he returned to the family hearth disappointed over the failure of the project. Again he became a "Brummagem" business man.

In the years immediately following he became a director or chairman of several small companies which make the Midland capital one of the most prosperous cities in England.

Plunged Into Politics

Then in 1911 he made his bow in public life. He was elected to the Birmingham City Council and chairman of the town-planning committee. Three years later he became an alderman. Thus his career gradually became divorced from the paths of exclusive business interests. In 1915 he was chosen Lord Mayor of Birmingham, the seventh of his name to hold that office.

His emergence on the national stage followed in 1916. While on a visit to London he met Lloyd George, then Prime Minister, who persuaded him to accept a special Government appointment.

A new department was created—the Department of National Service—and Neville resigned from the mayoralty of Birmingham to take up office in London.

In a few months, however, Chamberlain resigned his first national post, saying he had a job, but not enough to do.

Of Neville Lloyd George wrote in his memoirs many years later: "At the time of his appointment I had never seen him and knew very little of him. It was not one of my successful appointments." He declared Chamberlain had failed because he possessed no initiative or imagination, but only a "rigid competency."

Unperturbed by these developments, Chamberlain returned to Birmingham but with a transformed political outlook. As he remarked himself, he had been born a "Little Conservative," brought up as a Liberal and later a Liberal Unionist. He came back as a Conservative and it was under this party label that he was first elected to Parliament in December, 1918, for the newly constituted Ladywood Division of Birmingham.

During the four years he sat as a back-bencher his voice was seldom heard in the major debates, but he impressed his colleagues by his mastery of detail.

Taken Into Cabinet

With the breakup of the Lloyd George Coalition Government in 1922, New Brunswick's native son, Bonar Law, took over the helm. He offered Chamberlain the post of Postmaster-General without a seat in the Cabinet. Impressed by the new recruit's efficiency, Bonar Law advanced him swiftly to the Paymaster-Generalship, and later took him into the Cabinet as Minister of Health.

When Baldwin succeeded to the Premiership it was to Chamberlain he turned for a Chancellor of the Exchequer. But the Conservative Government fell before he was able to introduce his first budget.

The Conservatives came back to power in 1924 and it was generally expected Chamberlain would again be entrusted with the Exchequer portfolio. It had become necessary, however, to bring in a comprehensive plan to reform the whole system of rating and poor laws in the country. He was posted to the Ministry of Health and asked to take on the job. His brother, Austen, went to the Foreign Office and Winston Churchill became Chancellor of the Exchequer.

Housing was his main preoccupation and under acts he laboriously piloted through Parliament he is credited with providing more than a million houses, mostly as slum replacements. He was also lauded for his work in connection with preparation of the Local Government Act, with its elaborate formula of modernizing the Poor Law system. This legislation ranks high among the major Parliamentary reforms of Britain.

After the Baldwin Government's defeat in 1929, Chamberlain became one of the principal critics of the Labor Government. Churchill split with the Conservative Party over the Indian policy and Neville succeeded him as chief spokesman for the party on financial matters. He became involved in many duels with Philip Snowden, then Labor Chancellor of the Exchequer, especially when the taxation proposals were under discussion.

Advent of the first National Government under Ramsay Macdonald in 1931 found Chamberlain among the four Conservative representatives in it. He was back at his old post in the Ministry of Health which which he held for four months.

In the shuffle of Cabinet portfolios after the general election in October, 1931, he became Chancellor of the Exchequer. An orthodox financier, he carefully nourished all sources of revenue and played an important role in the greater expansion of the country's trade.

He believed the intervening years had made the time ripe for a change-over from free trade to protection. On Feb. 4. 1932, he introduced the tariff resolution which made Great Britain protectionist, thus bringing to a triumphant realization the policy to which his father had dedicated his life.

Chamberlain, at the time, declared: "I believe my father would have found consolation for the bitterness of his disappointment if he could have foreseen that these proposals, which are the direct and lineal descendants of his own conception, would be laid before the House of Commons, which he loved, in the presence of one and by the lips of the other of his two immediate successors in name and blood." Austen sat nearby, nodding agreement as his brother spoke.

A few months later he left with the British delegation for the Imperial Economic Conference in Ottawa. In these deliberations he played a master role and departed with a trade agreement between Canada and the United Kingdom, signed by his own hand.

In 1911, the year he stepped into the whirl of public life, Chamberlain married Annie Vere, daughter of the late Major W. U. Cole. But for his wife, he once said, he would never have launched upon a political career.

In his speech, accepting the premiership, he declared his wife had contributed much to any success he had enjoyed in life. Her affection and understanding for many years have made all my troubles seem light," he said.

The Chamberlains had two children, a son and daughter.

Chamberlain's Meetings With Hitler Recalled

London, Nov. 11 (CP).—As Prime Minister, Neville Chamberlain quickly established a reputation for hard work, particularly in the interests of world peace. From the outset his Government was beset with recurring crisis arising from the unstable international situation.

His grand gesture came over the menacing German-Czech deadlock on the Sudeten German minorities question in September, 1938. German-Czech relations had deteriorated so rapidly that a clash appeared inevitable. At this acute stage Chamberlain reached the momentous decision of approaching Hitler directly in the hope of preventing outbreak of war. He despatched the following telegram to Der Fuehrer:

"In view of increasingly critical situation I propose to come over at once to see you with a view of trying to find peaceful solution. I propose to come across by air and am ready to start tomorrow. Please indicate earliest time at which you can see me and suggest place of meeting. Should be grateful for very early reply."

Hitler agreed to meet him and next morning Chamberlain left Heston airport for Berchtesgaden. There he learned at first hand from Hitler that he was resolved to give the Sudetens the right of self-determination without further delay—even at the risk of precipitating war. Chamberlain, however, obtained from the German Chancellor assurance that if Britain would be willing to approve the principle of self-determination, he would be prepared to discuss peaceful ways and means of carrying it out. The Prime Minister set out for London the next morning to discuss the proposals with his colleagues.

Agreed to Terms

Following consultation with the French Premier, Edouard Daladier, and Foreign Minister Bonnet, Britain and France decided to urge the Czecho-Slovak Government to accede to Hitler's proposals, subject to future guarantees of her redrawn frontiers against unprovoked aggression.

The Czech Government finally agreed to the terms and Chamberlain left for Godesberg on Sept. 22 to resume his talks with Hitler. Little progress was achieved, however, when the Chancellor declined to accept the Anglo-French formula for transferring the territory or final delimitation of the Czech frontier. Hitler described the plan as "too dilatory" and insisted on immediate transfer of Sudetenland along with other concessions which had not been discussed at the Berchtesgaden meeting.

Further conversations were then postponed while Chamberlain and Hitler set out their views on the new situation in an exchange of letters. At the British Prime Minister's request Hitler prepared a memorandum outlining Germany's claims against Czecho-Slovakia. A map accompanied the memorandum indicating the zones to be evacuated by Czech troops and officials, with a deadline set for Oct. 1. Provision was made for plebiscites to be held in other districts and on the result of the vote a definite frontier was to be settled by an international commission.

Chamberlain undertook to pass on the terms which he described as an "ultimatum." Czecho-Slovakia, however, unconditionally rejected the demands. War once more appeared imminent.

Retained Hope.

But Chamberlain did not give up hope. He sent Sir Horace Wilson as his personal emissary with a final appeal to Hitler to explore the possibilities of a settlement through negotiations.

In an atmosphere of tension Chamberlain addressed the House of Commons on Sept. 28. Before a crowded chamber and packed galleries, the Prime Minister was slowly recounting every significant step of his long and persistent efforts to save peace. Weary and obviously disheartened he had just told his dejected listeners he had done all one man could do to compose a quarrel, when a note was passed to him by one of his Cabinet colleagues.

There was a dramatic pause while the Prime Minister read the message. Suddenly a broad smile flashed across his face. To a roar of shouts and cheers he made it known that Hitler had agreed to meet him in Munich on the following day. He had also invited Daladier and Mussolini to join the conference. Meanwhile Hitler had agreed to postpone mobilization for twenty-four hours.

The Munich agreement was signed in the early hours of Sept. 30, by which the Sudetenland was to be transferred to Germany in four successive stages and other questions referred to a committee composed of representatives from Germany, Czecho-Slovakia, France, Italy and Britain.

Failure to Negotiate Curves is Alleged Cause of Accidents

Two motor accidents, which occurred east of Belleville on Highway No. 2 over the week-end resulted in four persons being patients in the Belleville General Hospital today. Although the accidents occurred at different intervals and some miles apart, the occupants of both wrecked automobiles were residents of Ottawa.

Failing to negotiate the curve immediately east of Shannonville, a motor car driven by Charles Weatherall, Ottawa, careened into the ditch and crashed into a culvert early yesterday afternoon. Mrs. Weatherall sustained deep scalp lacerations, while her husband, the driver, was cut about the face by flying glass. N. F. Tingsbury, Cobourg, was passing at the time and drove the injured couple to the hospital. Both suffered from the loss of blood.

Later in the afternoon two miles east of Deseronto, a similar accident occurred when a car driven by B. Jervis also of Ottawa, skidded on the wet pavement and turned over in the ditch while rounding a curve on the highway. Mrs. Jervis sustained a fractured arm while Mr. Jervis is also in the hospital with a badly lacerated forehead. Dr. G. H. Stoble attended the latter couple.

Motorcycle Patrolmen Hatch and Siple investigated the accidents.

A Teacher Can Mold The Pupil

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

Reflecting on the values of Sunday school, I keep thinking of the good influence of the splendid persons who are teachers. True, a few of them are over-pious, intolerant and lacking in ability to understand children and youth. Yet most of them are persons whom our children esteem, persons who inspire our children to want to do right and be useful citizens. I am sure the average Sunday school teacher does more good to children as a person than as a teacher.

Bent Twigs

In the Sunday school I attended as a boy—a really rural Sunday school — there were among my teachers Charley McCulloh, George Yeakle, Frank Sosey. I always looked up to them. So did others in that community. I also went to day school to Charley McCulloh, the greatest teacher I ever had. I still revere the memories of those great souls. Only Frank Sosey is left. I still look up to him. When I was a small boy in the ungraded rural school, he was "big" and I marveled at the way he could spell and cipher.

Mrs. Myers grew up in a similar Sunday school.

As in the community in which I grew up, the leaders of this Sunday school have been the outstanding citizens. Of the adult classes there have been Chauncey Allen, Ed Clark, Pete Weber.

While I was sitting in Pete's class one Sunday last summer, a little bored with the lesson, Colonel Walter Sheard, of the U. S. Marines, who sat beside me, whispered seriously: "I often marvel at what this Sunday school and church mean to this community."

Teen Age

Also the teachers of the teen age and younger children of this large rural Sunday school are outstanding young citizens. Unless a person commands respect in the rural community he hardly can become a Sunday school teacher. While this is not true in the city Sunday school where the teacher is not known so well by everybody, most Sunday school teachers are wholesome persons.

I often wish Sunday school teachers would spend less time on theological theories and more on living unselfishly with others; less on talking about things in the Bible and more on motivating children and youth to know the great stories and poems of the Bible. I wish Sunday school teachers would talk less and get their children to talk more.

The Stars Say

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE
For Sunday, November 10

Sunday's horoscope presages some rather peculiar or strange circumstances which may be exciting as well as intriguing and may be baneful or propitious according to the stategy with which they are manipulated. The mind may run into wierd channels and if obsessed by erratic notions, some treacherous contacts may be made. Shun questionable and suspicious persons and ideas. Brilliant thinking and literary output should be highly profitable.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year in which peculiar or intriguing predicaments may have to be unraveled by sound sense and great precaution against being ensnared by tricky, illicit and nefarious schemes. Delusion and bewilderment should give way to the sound creative urges of a stimulated mind.

A child born on this day should have a splendid mental equipment fitting it for outstanding professional or business success. But there are lures of a queer, tricky and pernicious nature to be kept in subjection. It will be impressionable and given to great subtlety and idiosyncracies.

For Monday, November 11

Monday's astrological forecast is for a day of great activity and probably much excitement with the energies and mentality quickened to high tension. All the faculties directed toward important programs should culminate in brilliant performance, with results of enduring success. Matters in connection with groups, fraternities, public, political or diplomatic bodies should flourish.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured of a constructive and highly lucrative year, with their own brilliant facilities pitched to the heights of genius or spectacular performance at its source. The danger lies in an over-enthusiastic, optimistic or extravagant urge to "plunge" or overdo. Curb runaway forces and facilities. Take time to think before leaping into extremes

EYES

Not long ago I found a woman who had bought glasses for her little girl because the child had been suffering from headache. When I asked her if she were sure that the child's eyes had caused the headaches, the mother looked at me in some surprise and said: "What else could it be?" She had not consulted an oculist about it.

Hers seems to be a fairly general idea—that eyestrain is the chief cause of headaches. Consequently, many a child is given glasses to wear when he or she really doesn't need them; when some other treatment would clear up whatever is causing the child's head to ache.

The child of today has a much better chance for good eyesight than his father had. For one thing we have learned a lot about proper lighting, especially in schools, so that eyestrain there isn't nearly so common. Also, the science of correcting faulty vision has also gone ahead by leaps and bounds.

Today in our schools, nurses go around in the Autumn and examine the scholars' eyes. If the nurse detects faults in vision, she sends the child to a doctor, and he in turn, if the case looks complicated, calls in an oculist. Because of this routine, faults are often corrected before the damage is so severe that glasses are needed.

A baby is born blind and blue eyed. The Quins all had blue eyes when they were born and they are all brown eyed now. A short time after birth, babies can distinguish light, then later they can see moving objects. Sometimes it happens that one eye develops more rapidly than the other. We doctors say that one eye is lazy, and that is exactly what it is. One eye lets the other do the bulk of the work. So it has been discovered that the way to make the lazy eye do its share is to put a patch over the good eye. Then the delinquent eye has to work. In this way the weak eye is strengthened, and by doing this the need for glasses later in life is often obviated.

We had this trouble with Marie. She was the only Quin that had anything wrong with her eyesight. She had one "lazy" eye, so we put a patch over the good eye for a while and made the other one go to work. The result has been a distinct improvement in her vision. The "bad" eye still isn't a hundred percent, but we think there is a chance that she won't have to wear glasses.

Before you put glasses on your boy or girl, consult an oculist and have him make a complete examination. Don't let anyone except a trained specialist put glasses on your child.

The headaches he or she suffers from may come from a number of causes. And bad eyes are only one of these. They might be due to sinus infection, or to any one of a half a dozen causes. Diet even plays a part in eyesight, for good eyesight requires certain vitamins. Deprived of these vitamins, people lose all or part of their sight.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Very often it's necessary to be firm for what we know is right, even if it does bring tears to those we love. The following letter was written by a young woman who wants to forego a large wedding so she can have a nice home.

"Dear Miss Fairfax:

"Will you please help me with my problem? Mother and I don't seem to agree on my wedding. I want the very simplest home wedding possible — wearing a good fall suit, with accessories to match, and inviting only my closest friends.

"My mother is holding out for all the frills of the day she was married. Hers and dad's wedding took a couple of years to pay for, afterward. I'd rather put that money into my home, which also suits my fiance.

"In these days, young people are different. I became acquainted with my fiance at an evening class. We had office jobs which kept us busy during the day, and we both decided that perhaps some commercial law would help us get raises. So we happened to pick the same night school. We met and, in due course, fell in love. Now we are going to be married and hope to make a go of it.

"Mother wants me to wear white with a veil and all the fixings, have a wedding breakfast, etc. She is a swell little mother, but we just don't agree on this question.

"I hate to go against her wishes, but if I have a big wedding it will mean a lot of money, and all my plans for a home will go up in smoke. We had planned so many nice little things and had our decorating plans for the room all worked out. Shall I be hardboiled and not pay attention to mother's tears?

"Gretchen"

Many young couples, starting out in these days, prefer not to have as spectacular a wedding as they used to have in days gone by. Then a girl was often given what was called a "show wedding" to illustrate the social standing and prosperity of her family.

These large weddings of pre-war and boom days often crimped a family financially long after the elaborate trousseau was worn out or old-fashioned. And, tragically enough, it sometimes represented a case of "all dressed up and no place to go."

In the roseate glow of courtship, the office promotion which seemed so certain and the salary which seemed ample somehow didn't quite perform the miracle. Yet families went on crippling themselves to give girls big and expensive weddings because they felt such investments paid in social and financial dividends.

You, my dear Gretchen, are to be married; not your mother. You are wise to decide on the home instead of the white dress and veil and wedding breakfast. I doubt if you and Bob — no matter what prosperity awaits you — will ever be happier than when you are planning and decorating your new home.

Be patient and wait until mamma is in a good humor, and then break the news to her that you want to remember your wedding with the same degree of happiness with which she remembers her own. Tell her that weddings these days, especially for bread-winning girls, have grown to be very simple affairs. A little nest-egg saved is better than a trousseau in the wardrobe.

Step Out With Life

By HELEN FOLLETT

KEEP YOUR leg muscles resilient. Do your exercises, like a wise woman, so that all the body fibers will be strong. If you don't, you may eventually join up with that ever present group that plods its weary way. You know 'em. They don't walk like live folks; they push along.

Dancing will keep one from getting muscle bound. Turn on the radio. Up on your toes. Do leaps and bounds even if the family sit around and laugh. Do twirls and spins. Try high kicking. It's good fun and it normalizes the calves, ankles and thighs.

Jump Rope

If dancing does not make an appeal, get a child's jumping rope and use it. Jump like everything! High and fast! Nothing like it for slendering that portion of the body that is below the anatomical equator.

When the ankles are large because of accumulations of adipose tissue, anoint the palms with cocoa butter, pick up the flesh and roll firmly. The rolling treatment crushes the fat cells and they evaporate. After a ten minute massage sponge the flesh with water in which epsom salts have been dissolved. Friction briskly with a coarse towel.

With street skirts fairly short, the unerpinnings must be kept in form. If they are inclined to exceed normal measurements, time will not help.

Don't let dandruff get the best of you. It is persistent, and hangs on like a money-borrowing friend.

Once a week give the scalp an oil treatment. Use olive or mineral oil, have it as hot as you can comfortably bear is. Trickle it along partings of the hair, using a large medicine dropper. Friction the scalp vigorously. Next morning have a shampoo with melted soap. After the hair has dried apply a small amount of sulphur ointment to the scalp.

Wash combs and brushes before the shampoo. Dandruff is the product of bacteria, and it is believed to be contagious.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Best Man's Duties

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am to be best man for a very dear friend very soon and I do not have the faintest idea as to my duties. I remember reading in your column just what the duties of the best man are, and I wonder whether you would print it again?

Thank You.

The best man is the "guide, philosopher and friend" of the groom. His entire day is dedicated to the service of his friend; and the groom usually needs all the attention!

He goes, on the morning of the wedding, to the home of the groom, helps him all day in last minute preparations, and stays with him until the bride and groom starts on their trip. He packs the groom's bag with the travelling clothes to be sent to the home of the bride.

When he has taken care of the luggage and valetted the groom and dressed himself in his formal clothes, he asks the groom for the two details that are his special care: the wedding ring and the fee for the clergyman.

Then, when it is time, he and the groom drive to the church. There they, with the clergyman, wait in the vestry until they have the signal that the wedding party has arrived, and is ready to come down the aisle. Then, at the first notes of the wedding march, they follow the clergyman from this room, advance to the chancel steps, and wait at the right of the steps. They turn and face the direction from which the bride is coming.

During the ceremony, the best man stands on the right of the groom, and a bit behind him. In the right time in the ceremony, he steps forward with the ring and hands it to the groom.

After the ceremony, the best man does not take part in the recessional, but instead goes to the vestry and hands the clergyman the envelope containing the clergyman's fee. He sees too that arrangements have been made for the transportation of the clergyman to the reception. Then he collects the groom's hat and coat and takes them quickly to the door of the vestibule or to the groom in the waiting car.

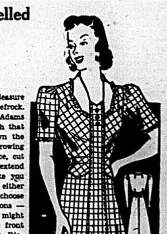
During the reception the best man stands within beckoning distance of the groom, so that he may be signalled to attend to any service that the groom wishes. During the wedding breakfast, he may briefly substitute for his executive and professional duties the social one of being the honored guest to sit on the right of the bride, and when the dancing begins he is again honored by being awarded the second dance with the bride — her first being with the groom. But soon his dancing may be interrupted by the call of "duty" and he goes with the groom to the room set apart for them, and helps the groom to dress and pack for the wedding journey.

The best man wears exactly the type of clothes that the groom wears, with perhaps the exception of the boutonniere, the groom's often being more elaborate.

Slimming, Panelled House-Dress

By ANNE ADAMS

Pattern 4606



Household duties are a pleasure in this crisp, clean-cut housefrock. It's Pattern 4606 by Anne Adams and most becoming, too, with that long, tapering panel all down the front to give tall and narrowing lines. The sides of the bodice, cut on the bias for ease of fit, extend down to low points to make you smartly long-waisted. Use either long or short sleeves. And choose between the two collar versions — both nice in contrast. You might omit the belt, and have the front panel in contrast if you wish. Ric-rac or ruffling down the panel seams or edging the collar and sleeves is very gay. Use the accompanying Sewing Instructor for haste without waste!

Pattern 4606 is available in misses' and women's sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 32, 34, 36, 40, 42 and 44. Size 16 takes 3 3-4 yards 35 inch fabric, 3-8 yard contrast and 1 3-4 yards ruffling.

CIANO MAY MEET WITH MOLOTOFF AT BERLIN PARLEY

It is Likely Turkish Question Will Come Within Scope of the Conference

PAPERS COMMENT

Berlin, Nov. 11 (AP)—Soviet Russia's Premier-Foreign Commissar, Vyacheslaff Molotoff, aped toward Berlin today for discussions which some sections of the German press suggested might centre on the problem of British-guaranteed Turkey, guardian of the Dardanelles.

Informed sources said Molotoff was expected to reach Berlin sometime tomorrow forenoon. Foreign Minister Ribbentrop will accompany the Soviet entourage on the main part of their train ride through the eastern Reich to the capital, these sources added.

The National Zeitung stated last night, a short time after Molotoff left Moscow by rail amid considerable ceremony, that the Turkish question lay within the scope of conference, scheduled to open early this week, perhaps tomorrow.

Because of the controlled nature of the German press this assertion took on the aspects either of a deliberate untruth or an authoritative declaration of what was to come up in the discussions. Dienst Aus Deutschland commented that Molotoff's visit, made on Germany's invitation, indicated that the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo alliance "had found a welcome reception" in Moscow.

Ciano Might Attend

(From Rome came word that Italy's Foreign Minister Ciano might attend the Berlin conference, although there was no mention of this in Berlin or Moscow. Rome observers also mentioned the possibility of a discussion of the Turkish question, as did neutral sources.)

All press comments on the German-Russian discussions, however, were tempered with the caution that nothing too revolutionary should be expected.

(Molotoff, accompanied by a staff of 33 experts on Foreign Affairs, internal affairs, commerce, aviation and industry, left Moscow at 6:40 p.m. (11:40 a.m., EDT) yesterday. Also aboard the train were Count Friedrich Von Der Schulenberg, German Ambassador to Moscow, and Karl Schnurre, head of a German trade delegation which has been in Russia for a year.

Lots of Questions Up

(In the Russian capital, discussions on what would be considered at the conference centred about the inclusion of Japan in the Rome-Berlin Axis, Germany's position in Rumania next door to Russia, Italy's invasion of Greece and the status of the Balkans and the Near East.)

It was considered certain here that Hitler would receive the Russian Premier—making his first trip outside the Soviet Union—before Molotoff begins his discussions with Ribbentrop. Discussions between the two last year resulted in the non-aggression pact between Germany and Russia just before the outbreak of war.

The official announcement of Molotoff's acceptance of the German invitation Saturday night said the trip was designed to "continue and broaden the constant exchange of opinions" between the two countries.

5 LIVES TAKEN IN WEEKEND TOLL

Industrial Accidents Responsible for the Majority of the Deaths

(By The Canadian Press)

Industrial accidents took the main toll of life in Ontario during the week-end as the unusually low figure of five was set. According to reports reaching The Canadian Press only two persons died as a result of traffic accidents and three lost their lives in the course of their work.

At Belleville, Frank Collins, well-known Eastern Ontario athlete, was killed Saturday when an empty tank car exploded as he prepared to fill it with gasoline. He was alone at the time and cause of the explosion was not determined.

Arthur Ambeau, 38-year-old Canadian Dredge Company employee at Midland, was killed Sunday when he loosened a cable and the block which had been used for tightening it twirled around and shot out striking him on the head. He was killed instantly.

Buried in Dry Cement

The third industrial fatality was reported from Port Colborne where Kasmir Williams, 47-year-old employee of the Canada Cement Company, fell into a bin of dry cement, became wedged there with his head covered and suffocated before fellow workmen, working frantically could release him.

Samuel Wilson, 25, of the Maidstone district of Western Ontario died yesterday of injuries received Saturday when his car crashed into the side of a speeding Michigan Central Railway train at the level crossing in Essex, Ont.

The other traffic fatality occurred at Sudbury when Mike Yasnik 57, died Saturday of injuries received when he stepped into the path of a car operated by Leo Pierce of Sudbury.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c

Personnel of Trenton Airport Addressed by Deputy Minister Of Air at Armistice Day Service

Trenton, Nov. 11 — "It is up to you, the young men of today, to finish the job we undertook in 1914," said the Hon. Mr. J. S. Duncan, Deputy Minister for Air, addressing the officers and airmen of the Royal Canadian Air Force here this morning during the Armistice Day service.

The whole personnel of the Air Station took part in the service on the parade ground as activity at the station ceased for the first time in a year. Group Captain J. Sully was in charge of the parade, with Flight Lieutenant W. J. Province, the padre, conducting the service.

"Today, 22 years ago, the armistice was declared and we laid down our arms after bringing to a successful conclusion the Great War of 1914-1918, which was to end all wars," said the Deputy Minister. "But things have not worked out according to the pattern. The job which we undertook in 1914 was not completed and now we of the older generation are passing on our work to you, the young men of today, to finish the job which we thought we had completed, but hadn't."

"Was there ever a greater task or a nobler cause than the one to which you are dedicating yourselves," questioned the Hon. Mr. Duncan. "The cause of freedom and fair play of democracy and decent living, the rights of the weak and downtrodden, the preservation of our way of life, of our faith, of our belief and of our religion, this is the task before you and I know you, the young men of 1940, will be equal to the task."

Pin Faith on Men

"Here in the ranks of the Royal Canadian Air Force is democracy at its best. Free men, freely sacrificing their all for the sake of the cause they believe in. You and your comrades in arms throughout the Dominions and in the Old Land are the hope of our civilization; upon you we pin our faith."

"In your hands rests the responsibility for the salvation of this great Empire and the oppressed countries beyond the seas."

"There is something in the atmosphere of this station which speaks to me of efficiency, of orderliness, of enthusiasm, of eagerness to get on with the job and do it willingly," Hon. Mr. Duncan stated in his opening remark. "These qualities are the best traditions of the spirit and greatness of the Royal Canadian Air Force."

"I know from my own experience that an organization is no better than the man who heads it," he said. "I know something of the value of leadership. I see the effects and results all around me in this station and I wish to take this opportunity of congratulating you, Group Captain Sully, on the fine quality of your work and the great contribution which you have made during the tenure of your command."

"My good wishes to every man in this station will accompany you always," concluded the Deputy Minister. "More power to you men of the Royal Canadian Air Force and in the name of Canada God bless you all."

Following the service the personnel marched past with Group Captain J. Sully leading. The Hon. Mr. Duncan took the salute in front of the Administration Building.

Remembrance Day Service

Veterans, airmen and soldiers took part in the memorial service held at St. George's Anglican Church here yesterday, in commemoration of the Armistice Day. The small church was filled to the doors by the visitors.

The parade formed up on the market square with the Royal Canadian Air Force band leading. The veterans, soldiers of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment and the Airmen formed up behind the band in that order.

Col. A. E. Bywater and Major Angus Mowat were in charge of the soldiers and Flight Lieutenant Denton Massey was in charge of the Airmen.

"We are here to worship God and the secondary purposes all fit in", said Rev. Mr. Hutchinson, vicar of St. George's church, in his sermon. "The main secondary purpose to commemorate the memory of those who have fallen in the last Great War and those who have died as the result of this war. They struggled in the great cause of humanity".

"There are two forces that of creation and that of destruction", he said. "Man has to make his choice whether he will be a builder-up or a tearer-down. The British Empire is fighting against that destructive force".

"We are fighting against that viciousness of the enemy. The vicious sense of the enemy who destroyed that memorial at Vimy. Don't imagine that it wasn't done without a purpose. It was done to obliterate the memory of the deeds of the soldiers of the last war. They cannot destroy that as the real memorial is not to be found in stone or bronze but in the living thing, that has been handed down in our memories".

"We are occupied here this morning in building a memorial in our minds of those who fell in the last Great War."

Following the church service, the various units lined up in front of the Church and paraded down Dundas Street to the Market Square, where they were dismissed.

This morning, veterans, civilians and soldiers paid tribute to the fallen at Memorial Park, where wreaths were placed on the Memorial Arch by various civilian bodies, soldiers and veterans.

Peace Negotiations Between France and Germany Postponed Until End of War

Vichy, France, Nov. 11 (AP), — Peace negotiations between defeated France and victorious Germany will be postponed until the war is ended, Vice Premier Pierre Laval has announced to his nation.

Laval, in an official note issued last night after he returned from a conference in Paris with Goering, said there never was any question of negotiating peace to end the armistice which now prevails, so long as the war continues elsewhere.

The note also added a criticism of the actions of Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the Free French forces. Laval returned from the Paris conference in time to hear official reports that the de Gaulle forces are fighting a "full-fledged" war in Gabon, French Equatorial Africa.

(The British Broadcasting Corporation reported in a French language broadcast that the de Gaulle forces had landed at Libreville, French Equatorial Africa, taken over French Gabon. The broadcast quoted the Leopoldville radio in the Belgian Congo as saying that "all Gabon is united under the standard of Free Fanroe.")

Gen. Tenu, commander-in-chief of the French forces at Libreville, reported at Vichy, however, that "nothing" would make the besieged capital of Gabon surrender. The general claimed de Gaulle was being aided by British forces.

Britons' Spirit Shown in Film

"Britain at Bay," seventh in the series of films "Canada Carries On" shown at Canadian theatres was seen last week at the Belle and Capitol Theatres here. It is a picture of the British people rising to the emergency and guarding their native land and their heritage and civilization from the enemy. Here is the quiet British countryside which has known no invasion since William the Conqueror came in 1066, nearly nine hundred years ago. Here are shown the countryside and the cities and towns where has grown up British civilization and where the people of the British Isles have developed into that race which has played the leading part in the growth of democracy.

Suddenly in the peace of the countryside, as shown in the film, there is an explosion, symbolic of the air raider. The picture is impressive in its very lack of sentimentalism and in that it indicates the quiet British spirit which has demonstrated itself again and again so well in these recent raids which have been borne with an unrivalled courage and resolution. The quiet manner of the British people in the face of trial is beautifully expressed in the commentary written and delivered by Mr. J. B. Priestly, whose word picture seems the very embodiment of the spirit of quiet British resolution.

The film impressed one with something of the picture which was drawn by Prime Minister Churchill as some months ago he spoke of the British resolution to fight and fight and never yield to the enemy.

It is explained that the picture of the series which had been originally planned for the seventh showing on the list was lost at sea, the director going down also when the steamship the City of Benares was sunk with loss of life. The film "Britain at Bay" was thereupon substituted and it shows why Canada fights for the preservation of British liberty.

Marmora Legion Holds Remembrance Day Church Parade

Marmora (Special) — Marmora Branch No. 237 Canadian Legion and members of Marmora Section of "B" Company of Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment Non-Permanent Active Militia assembled at the Agricultural Grounds on Sunday morning for a special church parade, with St. Andrew's, United and Sacred Heart Churches being visited. The parade was in charge of Vice-President T. E. Pritchard of the local legion and was headed by the boys' bugle band with Past President Wilbert Bedore carrying the Union Jack. The number on parade was approximately one hundred and the march was impressive from the spectators' point of view. At the Sacred Heart Church, Rev. Father H. J. Farrell addressed the fine congregation, the soldiers occupying front seats, in remembrance. Prayers were offered for those soldiers who had given their lives and a tribute was paid to those who would yet sacrifice their lives in this conflict. At St. Andrew's, Rev. Dr. W. P. Fletcher was in charge of the service and preached to a large congregation. Two anthems were rendered by the choir. A parade through the main streets after these services ended with dismissal at the Memorial Hall.

Police Blotter

Today being Remembrance Day there was no session of Police Court, Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., announcing the city court proceedings would continue Tuesday.

Car is Recovered

Keen observance on the part of P.C. Thomson resulted in the recovery of an automobile, which police believe was stolen in Carleton Place. Constable Thomson while patrolling the outskirts of the city early yesterday, saw a motor car parked in a rather conspicuous place, being apparently abandoned in a vacant lot off Cannifton Road. Investigations proved to the officer, that the radiator was "steaming hot." Constable Thomson removed the ignition keys and later returned with assistance to find an owner's registration card in the vehicle. The card carried the name of Reginald Masters, Carleton Place, Ont. The authorities at that point were notified and the vehicle impounded here for safe keeping.

Car Reported Stolen

Picton police reported the theft of a Chrysler sedan over the weekend. The vehicle was equipped with Ontario licence plates number 64-N-96.

Bumper of Car Taken

Carl Wright, 40 North Front Street, complained that thieves had stolen the front bumper from off his automobile sometime over the weekend. The bolts holding the bumper had been unscrewed, he said.

A bicycle owned by Wilfred Rolland, 69 East Moira Street, was stolen Saturday night, but recovered by police yesterday.

Police Answer Call

Constables Wright and Ellis answered a call to 90 1-2 East Moira Street, late Saturday night where fistic disturbances were said to be in progress. Upon arrival Joseph Bourette, the tenant was found to be suffering from a fractured jaw. Bourette alleged he had been struck by Arthur Fechette, 160 Church Street, who was later detained for questioning at the police station.

Altercations over monetary matters were said to have been the cause of the argument.

Found Car Abandoned

Bernard LaMorre, local taxi proprietor, was surprised to see a motor car bearing the licence of one of his taxi cabs abandoned on a side road near the R.C.A.F. base at Trenton early yesterday. Investigations revealed the vehicle was Mr. LaMoore's property, the motor car having been taken from his Front Street taxi stand and not missed.

LaMorre told police the taxi had been parked about 3.00 a.m. Sunday, but as no subsequent calls made it necessary to take the vehicle out, he had not missed it. While driving to Trenton in another car LaMorre saw the taxi abandoned on a side road west of the Air Base.

Two inebriates and 17 transients shared the cell block at the police station over the week end.

$378 REALIZED FROM SALE OF POPPIES

Returned soldiers colorful in their berets and medals, and members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Canadian Legion here, assisted by young ladies, realized the sum of $378.28 on Saturday when they sold poppies on the occasion of the annual Poppy Day.

The committee in charge of the sale composed of Messrs. Fred Wiggins, Past-President of the Army and Navy Veterans of Canada, Cecil Fralick and Mrs. George Ellerby, President of the Canadian Legion Women's Auxiliary, voiced their appreciation today of the generous response of the public to the sale of poppies.

"The memory of the boys who died for civilization will never fade in the hearts of Belleville residents," President William J. Ford, Army and Navy Veterans, said, "and we are gratefully appreciative of the fine sum raised through the medium of the sale of the poppies."

Stricter Regulations To Be Enforced in Purchase of Licences

A more definite check on stolen motor cars is the objective of Department of Highways officials in introducing several new measures and regulations which must be observed by applicants before 1941 motor vehicle licences can be issued, it was learned at the office of Mr. E. Vermilyea, local issuer of motor licences.

In the future, renewal motor vehicle licences, motorcycle and trailer permits and plates may only be issued on presentation of previous registration permit and in the same name as is shown on such permit. It will also be necessary for an applicant who has lost or destroyed his previous registration permit to secure a duplicate by completing a form provided for the purpose and sending it to the head office in Toronto, together with a fee of fifty cents. In the case where the ownership of a vehicle has changed hands, the applicant must secure a transfer in the usual manner before applying for a registration permit for the current year.

The serial number and motor number of all vehicles is now required on all applications for permits and plates and the showing of National Registration Cards by all applicants may be demanded by the licence issuer before issuing licences.

The sale of 1941 licences will commence on Tuesday, November 12th, with the deadline of December 31st given as the last date for securing the new markers. In all probability, however, there will be the usual fifteen day grace allowed motorists, stated Mr. Vermilyea, this morning.

Argyll Chapt. I.O.D.E. Always Takes Leading Role in Humanitarian Causes; Celebrates Anniversary of Founding

Thirty years ago, on November 1st., 1910, a group of women met at the old drill shed on Church Street. At this meeting was born the Argyll Chapter of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire. From what memorable occasion, down through three decades, the influence and wide-spread endorsation of the chapter of many worthy and humanitarian causes has been both an inspiration and an ideal worthy of emulation.

Lieut. Colonel Charles Stewart, Commanding Officer of the Argyll Light Infantry, thirty years ago, and to whom the Argyll Chapter owes its inception ruled that the organization would be open only to wives, mothers, daughters and sisters of active officers of the regiment. He also ruled that the Regent would automatically be the wife of the commanding officer. Col. Stewart being a bachelor the wife of Colonel W. N. Ponton, was asked to be the first head of the organization.

The motto adopted by the Chapter was "Nulli Secundus", and the Princess Louise, wife of the Duke of Argyll, honorary colonel of the regiment, became the Honorary Regent of the Chapter.

From its inception the Chapter has worked in co-operation with the National Chapter in its many world-wide and nation-wide activities. During the last Great War it took an active part and gave generously of time and money. Hundreds of boxes were packed and sent overseas.

Present Colors to Cadets

Among its many activities has been the presentation of colors to local units, among them being the first cadet corps of the city organized at Queen Mary School by Colonel D. Baragar, one time O.C. of the Argyll Regiment. On July 26th., 1916, Battalion colors were presented to Colonel Adams for the 155th Overseas Battalion. These colors now repose in St. Thomas' Church.

But the cessation of hostilities in November 1918 did not mean the cessation of activities on the part of the Chapter. The enthusiasm and fine spirit of co-operation that marked its members during the dark days of war, was exemplified in many post-war activities that included the installation of a room in the Belleville General Hospital; a scholarship to the Belleville Collegiate Institute; and contributions to the Victorian Order of Nurses; the Army and Navy Veterans; the Grenfell Mission and the Children's Shelter.

When war again lifted its ugly head over the Empire, members of the chapter redoubled their efforts. Not only did they maintain their work along "civilian" channels, but they immediately laid down a program of military and other objectives arising from and pertaining to the war.

Furnish Hospital Room

The new wing of the Belleville General Hospital has a room which has been completely furnished by funds donated by the Chapter. Ten returned soldiers' families have been given Christmas cheer. Five cartons of evacuee essentials were bought and sent to headquarters by its members. Socks were sent to the Veterans' Guard, and socks and cigarettes to every Belleville soldier now with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. Hospital supplies were donated to the Royal Canadian Air Force base near Trenton, while socks were forwarded to the members of the Midland Regiment who recently did guard duty at the air base.

At present members of the Chapter are hard at work preparing Christmas boxes for the local officers and other ranks now overseas with the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. Insofar as this work is concerned the Regent, Mrs. A. B. Gribble, and members would appreciate clean newspapers and magazines from those people who have them. A call to 1912M will bring a delivery car.

Recently members of the Chapter, "took time out" from their strenuous war and other activities, and held a pot-luck supper in celebration of the Chapter's 30th birthday. It marked the 30th milestone in a continuous line of activities for the welfare of the community and a war-time record that has been and is marked with superb effort and sacrifice on the part of the Chapter's members.

A. A. Gunners Down 357 Planes in 13 Weeks

London, Nov. 11 (CP). — Anti-aircraft gunners have shot down 357 German bombers and fighters — a seventh of the total German losses over Great Britain—during the last thirteen weeks, the Air Ministry announced Saturday.

The Ministry said:

"These figures do not tell the full story of the damage inflicted on the German air force by anti-aircraft fire. There are "winged" bombers that may just manage to limp home but crash in landing, while others may be out of service for several weeks.

"The fate of these planes can never be known to our vigilant gunner crews."

Fast Messerschmitts as well as the slower Heinkels and Dorniers have been hit, the Ministry said.

In one week, it was added, anti-aircraft fire accounted for 64 planes —50 bombers and 14 fighters—or an average of nine a day.

Air officials declared that the number of German raiders who get through to central London at night is growing progressively smaller.

New York Rangers Held to Overtime Draw by Red Wings; Black Hawks Beat Canadiens

Toronto Maple Leafs Score Their First Shutout of Season Over Detroit

THRILLING GAMES

Rangers Disclose Latent Power and Will be Team to Beat This Season

(By Robert Clarke, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

One week of fighting along the National Hockey League battle-front has left the impression with even the most casual observer that it will be difficult for the other teams in the league to stop the drive of the New York Rangers' machine.

Only two games have been played by the unit led by Lester Patrick, but as both were in enemy territory they serve as a fair gauge on the capabilities of the team that finished second in the standing last season and then went on to win the Stanley Cup.

Patrick's warriors started off Nov. 2 with a 4-1 victory over the Maple Leafs at Toronto, then followed it up last night by playing a 2-2 overtime draw in Detroit with the Red Wings. As things stand now, the Rangers are one of two unbeaten teams in the league with Boston Bruins, who have played only a single game, being the other.

Black Hawks Score

In other games on the week-end, Chicago Black Hawks and the Maple Leafs scored their first victories of the season, with the Hawks winning 3-1 last night over Canadiens in Montreal and the Leafs blanking the Red Wings 3-0 Saturday night in Toronto.

The Rangers, who showed their ability to make lightning thrusts by scoring three goals in less than two minutes against Leafs in their first game, demonstrated a forceful counter-attack against the Wings. The Wings scored the first two goals, the Rangers the next two.

The first Detroit goal went to Sid Abel, a little more than a minute from the end of the first period. The Wings went two up when Kenny Kilrea scored shortly after the half-way mark in the second period but before the session was over Clint Smith and Neil Colville tallied for the Rangers to even the score.

Canadiens Fade

The Black Hawks, beaten 1-0 by New York Americans on Nov. 7, gained their victory over Canadiens with a pair of goals in the third period. The Hawks and Canadiens were matched in speed through the first two periods, but the Montrealers faded in the last session as Bill Carse and George Allen scored for the Hawks.

Before these goals, Tony Demers had blasted one of his bullet drives by Goalie Paul Goodman of the Hawks in the first period and Johnny Chad had tallied in the second period to even it up. Heavy bodying by Chicago defencemen in the first two periods slowed down the Habitant forwards for the third frame.

Score Goal a Period

The Maple Leafs scored a goal in each period against the Wings Saturday night, with Nick Metz filling in brilliantly at left wing with Syl Apps and Gordie Drillon in place of injured Bob Davidson. Each man on the new line fired home a goal, with Apps getting the one in the first period, Metz the one in the second and Drillon the one in the third.

In addition, Drillon and Metz figured in Apps' goal while Apps also picked up an assist on Metz's score. The only marker in which at least two of the men on the line did not figure was the one scored by Drillon, for Defenceman Wally Stanowski made the play for the goal.

The shutout was the second of the season and the first one for Goalie Turk Broda of the Leafs. Earl Robertson has the other from Americans' 1-0 victory over the Black Hawks.

PLAYOFF SYSTEM MAY BE OUSTED

Houston of Texas League Bringing Forward Resolution to Have System Scrapped

Atlanta, Nov. 11 (AP)—An effort to eliminate the Shaughnessy playoff as a means of determining minor league baseball championships will be made here Dec. 4 when the National Association of professional baseball leagues convenes.

Submitted by Houston of the Texas League, the amendment to the Major-Minor League rules would provide that:

"Except in cases where a split-season schedule is adopted with the championship being awarded to the winner of the post-season series between the winners of the respective halves of the split-season schedule, the club which has the highest percentage computed on a basis of games won and lost during the regularly adopted schedule must be declared champions of the league of which such club is a member."

Commenting on the proposal in his tentative agenda for the December meeting, W. G. Bramham, President-Treasurer of the Association, said it would eliminate award of the championship to the winner "of a so-called Shaughnessy series," and would recognize "the club which proves its superiority over the course of a full season."

OTTAWA DEVELOPS SCORING THREAT BY LITTLE MEN

Andy Tommy and Orville Burke Score Two Touchdowns on Forward Passes Saturday

A SMART PAIR

Riders Generally Use Power to Gain Ground but Aerial Route is Much Easier

(By Alan Harvey)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—(CP)— The eyes of the crowd will be on two mighty little footballers who run the bigger guys ragged when Ottawa Rough Riders meet Toronto Argonauts here next Saturday in the first playoff game of the big four football league.

The new scoring combine of little Andy Tommy and littler Orville Burke came out in the open with a vengeance Saturday as Riders fought their way to a tight 19-18 victory over Hamilton's Tigers. Tommy weighs only 160 pounds, Burke 153.

Twice Burke ghosted back, swung his arm and sent the ball sailing straight into Tommy's arms. All Tommy had to do each time was cross the Tiger goal-line.

The touchdowns gave Tommy 20 points and second place in the league scoring totals, one point behind Hamilton's Scotty Wright.

Riders usually are considered synonymous with heft and power, so it's something of a paradox for two such tackweights, smallest men on the team, to carry the ball for Ottawa. It becomes less confusing, though, after study of the records.

Through eight long seasons, Andy Tommy has been one of the arresting figures in the big four scene. In 1933—his first season with Riders—he set up an indvdual record by sprinting 115 yards for a touchdown against Toronto Argonauts.

Born in N.B.

Tommy was born in Hartland, N.B., but spent most of his early career at nearby Woodstock. In 1933, with nothing behind him but experience gained playing English rugger in his native New Brunswick, he travelled to Ottawa and became the freshman sensation of the Big Four.

Burke's role with Riders has been less conspicuous but just as important. Ever since 1938, when quarterbacking Ottawa became his steady job, the shifty forward passer has been the man who made Riders tick.

The 1939 Dominion finalists had plenty of power before Burke came on the scene but couldn't seem to hit their real stride. Then Orville started firing passes all over the lot and Coach Ross Trimble's team had the punch and diversity it needed.

Ever since, it's been a case of "as Burke goes, so go the Rider". He's good in every game they win and if they lose it's a pretty safe bet Orville was off-color.

No better illustration is needed than the Dominion final between Ottawa and Winnipeg Blue Bombers last fall. Burke's passing was less effective than usual that day and with minute to play he bobbled a catch that led to Winnipeg's winning point.

BOMBERS RETAIN WESTERN TITLE

Defeat Calgary Bronks for Second Time by 23-2 Count

Winnipeg, Nov. 11.—(CP) — Champions of the western interprovincial football union for the fourth successive year, Winnipeg Blue Bombers cast their eyes eastward today toward possible candidates for the proposed east-west football game in Toronto December 7.

Bombers routed Calgary Bronks 23-2 here Saturday afternoon to capture the western conference title in straight games. They won the first battle of the two-of-three series 7-0 in Calgary a week ago.

While nothing definite has been arranged, the Sports Service League has offered to sponsor an east-west game. Manager Joe Ryan, who received an offer for his bombers to participate in the battle if they won out in the western play-off, said the Winnipeg players will keep on their football togs at least until a decision has been reached regarding the eastern game.

Bombers made themselves ineligible for the Canadian finals when they refused to play their schedule games under Canadian Rugby Union rules.

It might have been an unleashing of hidden power or it might have been the freezing temperatures which made the players lose faith in the numbing fingers, but Bombers uncovered a wealth of razzle-dazzle play in overwhelming Bronks on a snow-smothered gridiron Saturday.

Three touchdowns, two field goals and a brace of converts made up the Winnipeg points. Bronks replied only with a two-point safety touch.

Rough Riders and Argonauts Meet For Big Four Title, Both Winning on Saturday

Ottawa Just Nosed Out Hamilton Tigers and Argos Came From Behind to Beat Montreal

BEACHES ARE IN

Balmy Boys Will Play 2-26th Battery of Sarnia for O.R.F.U. Crown

By SYDNEY GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The preliminaries have resulted exactly as had been forecast early in the season, though not with the same sureness, the East's fast-closing football season hits playoff time with the same old casts in the same old roles.

It is Ottawa Rough Riders, the champions, and Toronto Argonauts again in the Interprovincial union, as it has been since 1936, and Sarnia Battery and Toronto Balmy Beach in the Ontario Union. The only difference in the O.R.F.U. set-up is the name of the Sarnia Club—the battery for the old Imperials.

The big four leaders reeled in Saturday, groggy under the pounding of the bottom clubs and barely having escaped a second-place playoff between Argonauts and the gallant Hamilton Tigers. Ottawa just beat out the Tigers, 19-18, while Argos came from behind in the last quarter to snatch a 15-11 triumph from Montreal.

Beaches continued their unbeaten, untied streak though they had to get a touchdown in the last few minutes to whip Hamilton Alerts 9-3 at Hamilton. The battery, without some of their first-string stars, defeated the winless Camp Borden Soldiers at London.

Tigers Fumbled in Bad Spot

The Tigers had to win Saturday and Argus had to lose to bring about an added playoff—and it almost happened. Deep in their own territory and ahead 15-13 on touchdowns by Doug Turner and Bud Donald, Tigers fumbled a ball deep in their territory. Dave Sprague kicked it across the line and fell on it for a touchdown.

Bill Murmylyk kicked his second field goal of the game a little later to make it 19-18 but Tigers couldn't catch up. The scoring stars of the game were Orville Burke and Andy Tommy, who caught two of Burke's passes for touchdowns.

At Toronto, 10,000 fans watched with amazement as Montreal outplayed Lew Hayman's Argo machine and yielded only in the closing minutes when Bobby Coulter sprinted 53 yards to set up the winning touchdown. The little back won the game on a kick runback, bringing the ball to the Montreal five where he tossed a lateral that Jimmy Riddell knocked down.

Pay-Off On Points

The ball bounced over the line and Jack Wedley fell on it for Argos. That nullified a third-down score by Ed Burton who caught a 40-yard pass from Doug Smalll and ran 10 for a touchdown to give Montreal a 10-9 lead. Montreal passed, kicked and ran a little better than Argos but the pay-off was on the points and Argos had them.

Beaches built up a two-point lead against Alerts, then came from behind with a fourth-quarter touchdown after Walter Gibb's placement field goal wiped out their margin. Eddie Manson set up the touch with a 50-yard burst through the Alert line to the 15, from where Bill Drinkwater took it over on second down.

Jim Butler's fine kicking sent Borden down to defeat. Butler punted for singles and another of his kicks was dropped by Eddie Thompson, who fell on the ball to concede a safety touch. Sarnia's victory was costly, however, Gus Scheiers, a good halfback, broke a leg and will be lost for the playoffs.

Military Teams In Sask. Given Special Attention

Saskatoon, Nov. 11 (CP)—Military leagues and military hockey teams will be given special attention by the Saskatchewan Amateur Hockey Association if the plans made by the executive at its meeting here Saturday are carried out.

Military hockey teams will be admitted to the provincial intermediate hockey playdowns without the payment of the usual registration fees.

If after a survey, it is found that equipment is required all recommendations for purchase will be dealt with by a S.A.H.A. committee.

During the 1939-40 season, the S.A.H.A. made grants of $100 each to military hockey leagues at Regina and Weyburn, while in Saskatoon approximately $700 was raised for the auxiliary council for war services. This amount was used for the purchase of hockey equipment, which will be available again this season.

BARONS, INDIANS SHOWING WAY IN AMERICAN LOOP

Cleveland Runs Winning Streak to Four Straight Games

INDIANS UNDEFEATED

Three Games Played Sunday With Buffalo Bisons Yet to Win a Contest

(By The Canadian Press)

Bill Cook's Cleveland Barons and Eddie Shore's Springfield Indians are showing the way in their respective divisions in the American Hockey League.

The Barons ran their victory string to four straight games from the start of the season without defeat Saturday night by walloping Buffalo Bisons 5-0. At the same time the Indians trounced Pittsburgh Hornets 6-3 to remain undefeated in five games. The Indians have won three and played to two draws.

In other Saturday games Hershey Bears defeated Providence Reds 4-1 and Philadelphia Ramblers won 2-1 over New Haven Eagles. Last night three games were played with Indianapolis Capitals winning 5-3 over Ramblers, New Haven defeating Pittsburgh 3-2 and Providence topping Buffalo 5-3.

Scorers for Indianapolis were Jud McAtee, Heck Kilrea, Carl Liscombe with two, and Jack Keating. Philadelphia tallies went to Foster and McKay, with the former registering twice. Goals by Polly Drouin, Marcel Tremblay and George Patterson gave New Haven its first victory of the season in the game against Pittsburgh. The Hornet scorers were Lloyd Roubell and Lorne Duguid.

Rookie Leads Team

Rookie Max Bentley led the Reds to victory over Buffalo, scoring two goals, while Art Giroux, Bucko McDonald and Norm Mann got the others. Buffalo goals were scored by Morey Rimstad, Leroy Goldsworthy and Bob Gracie.

Fred Thurrier led Shore's Indians to their Saturday victory by scoring three of the six goals. Max Kaminsky scored twice while Glenn Brydson got the other. Larry Archambault, Art Lesieur and Mickey Blake tallied for the losing Pittsburgh club.

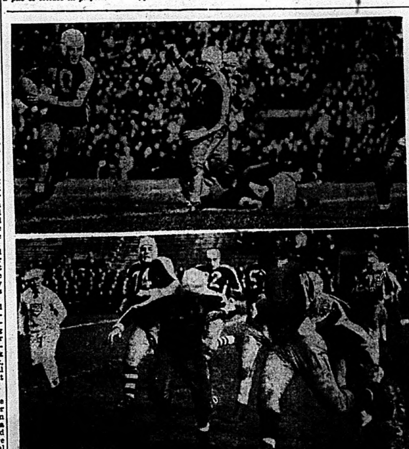
The scoring punch for Hershey against the Reds was provided by Wally Kilrea, who tallied twice in the middle period. Other Hershey goals were scored by Bobby Kirk and Gordon Bruce, while the lone Providence tally was scored by Windy Steele.

George Mantha, former Major leaguer with Montreal Canadiens, got the only New Haven goal against Philadelphia in the first period. The Ramblers tied it up early in the second when Lude Wareing scored and a few minutes later Stu Smith scored the winner.



Cameraman caught fast shots of Big Four backfield stars in action as Argonauts and Montreal met at Varsity stadium. The upper picture shows little Bobby Coulter, Argos' ace broken field runner, taking a fast start for the open. Below, Bertrand of Montreal edges around the end shoving tacklers away as he advances. Morris is about to grab the Montrealer with Moore coming up fast to cover the play.

As is their usual custom the Van Horne Memorial executive in Kingston gave the Belleville entry what's generally known as "the business". With several teams entered into the Kingston pre-season puck loop, all of whom have the opportunity to practice daily, the Belleville entry is always placed in the opening game, no doubt because the locals are not in a position to obtain practice and therefore should be easy prey for the more seasoned Kingston squads. The Van Horne Memorial schedule was released on Saturday and we find the Watt-St. Louis clan from our fair city drawn in against what heretofore has been known as the Queen's seniors. Six teams are entered in the Van Horne group, which pries off the lid next Wednesday. The clubs are 3-47th Battery, Vimy Signals, Perth-Smith's Falls "Combines", Queens, Kingston, and Belleville. As the 3-47th Battery squad includes several former Belleville boys, their meeting with the locals on the 22nd of the month should attract a large local following.

For the first time since they opened the season on October 9, Coach Morley Baker's B. C. I. senior Interscholastic gridders will be at full strength when they meet the strong Bowmanville squad here on Wednesday. During every game the "scarlet scourge" squad has been short-handed in one department or the other thus far this season, but all indications point to a full squad Wednesday. Early this afternoon Coach Baker had his team out on the Collegiate campus in a strenuous scrimmage practice. Light signals will be called tomorrow afternoon after school and then it's rest until the big moment. In Bill Brown the Bowmanville squad boast of a triple threat threat backfielder, Brown having beaten Peterborough Collegiate practically single-handed during the regular Lake Shore group. He is the Rubber Town's chief ground-gainer and will bear close watching all through the tussle. Brown pitches passes with unerring dexterity, but has been known to switch around and suddenly be on the receiving end. Incidentally this is one of Bowmanville's trick plays and will bear close scrutiny.

District sporting fans were shocked to hear of the untimely death of Frankie Collins, who lost his life in the pursuit of his duties when a gas tank car blew up on Saturday. A native of Peterboro, Frankie Collins was well-known in district sporting circles, having played hockey and baseball with the Petes. He played third base under the inimitable Jake Solomon and at hockey with the Petes and "Ace" Bailey when they won the senior O.H.A. title in 1926. Later he played centre for the Toronto Nationals, Allan Cup champs. In 1932 and the next year he toured Europe with the Sea Fleas. Last year Frankie Belleville Juvenile Hockey League. A hail fellow well met, Frankie made friends wherever he resided.

Do you remember when Regina Rough Riders, then the top team in Western Canada rugby, defeated Calgary Altomahs 30-2 at Calgary eight years ago today for their seventh consecutive western championship. Until 1935, Regina squads virtually dominated the prairie gridiron scene. They have won the western title twice since.

President Frank Cunningham, of the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association, has called the annual meeting of his group to be held at the Y.M.C.A. on Tuesday night of this week. Although a juvenile hockey team has been sponsored locally for three years, last season saw the initial attempt at fostering an entire league. The initial effort proved quite prolific and was followed by an all-star team that represented Belleville in the O.J.H.A. playdowns. The actual league will function, insofar as the players are concerned, but what is drastically needed are two or three business men to assist in the executive work of the organization. Here is an opportunity for some of our main stem moguls to really do a sport service. There is lots of talk, now lets see some action. The meeting is open to all for suggestions and assistance.

SPORT SLANTS — Argos rallied to beat Montreal 15 to 11 on Saturday and thereby gain a play-off berth with Ottawa. . . Incidentally the Rough Riders haven't been going any too well ever since their upset in Toronto. . . . The Ottawa squad was rather fortunate to win 19 to 18 over the Tigers Saturday. . . . Balmy Beach and Sarnia finished one-two in the Senior O.R.F.U. to gain play-off berths. The Big Four play-off opens in Ottawa next Saturday and back in Toronto a week hence and on the same day the B.C.I. "scarlet scourge" go to Bowmanville, Nov. 23. . . . Every team in the N.H.L. has amassed points in the league standing early this year. . . . Toronto and Chicago won over the week end, while the Rangers remained atop the heap by playing Detroit to a 1-1 tie. . . . Tracy Shaw's Oshawa Juniors played the Atlantic City Sea Gulls (seniors) to a 4-4 draw at Midland Saturday night which reminds us that with business dropping off in January, why wouldn't it be a good idea to play the odd Saturday night hockey match at the Hume Arena?

CANADIAN WINS N. Y. MARATHON

Yonkers, N.Y., Nov. 11 (AP).—Gerard Cote, Canadian snowshoe champion, who ran second in the last four United States Amateur Athletic Union marathons, finally came in first Saturday ahead of thirty-nine finishers.

Cote ran the twenty-six-mile, 385-yard course in 2 hours 34 minutes 6.2 seconds, just one minute off the record for the course set by the late Pat Dengis of Baltimore, who was killed some months ago in an airplane crash.

The race started with one lap around the Empire City race track, winding up through the highways of Yonkers and finally ending up with four laps around Empire again.

Until the twenty-fifth mile Cote ran stride for stride with Lou Gregory of New York, but in the final lap the Canadian stretched out with all he had left and won by several hundred yards. It was one of the closest finishes in years.

Losing interest—losing friends—she never went out any more—always too tired. "Nerves," she thought — but it was her kidneys, the filters of her blood, that needed attention. Delay meant danger. RIDER'S RIDER IS MAJOR YANEZ

Chilean Pilots Toqui Over 12 Difficult Jumps in Record Time

(By Sid Feder)
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Nov. 11.— (AP)—For the fellow who takes his horse show with the rest of the sports page headline, the neatest description of Major Eduardo Yanez, the Chilean, probably is that he's a rider's rider.

He's a little man, barely big enough to look over the backs of some of the husky hunters and jumpers in the 55th National Horse Show, and he's probably the quietest member of the team of happy-go-lucky Chileans. But when he climbs on one of the small South American-breds which he and his team brought up with them, you know you're looking at the real thing.

The gallery at Madison Square garden has been cheering him for three years. But where you really find out his worth is in talking to some of the riders he's beaten, the cavalrymen from Mexico, Cuba and the United States army who wound up behind him last night in the $1,000 International Military stake.

He rode in to the Garden's Tanbark last night on Toqui, a little old chestnut, standing only 14.3 hands high.

Major Yanez, who goes over a jump up on his horse's neck, looking like a part of the jumper, himself, piloted little Toqui over 12 of the toughest barriers in the show world—some of them five feet high and 12 feet across. At the end of the first round, he was tied with three U.S. army horses.

In a jump-off, with elapsed time to count as well as the leaping Toqui and the major did it again. The time of 54 secs. flat was just good enough to eat one of the surprise United States horses, eight-year old Smacko, owned and ridden by Capt. C. B. McClelland of Tennessee and Fort Myer, Va., who went over the 12 jumps the second time in 54 2-5 seconds.

AT THE BELLE

"Earthbound"

Hailed as a masterpiece of film magic, 20th Century-Fox's picture "Earthbound", which centres about a ghost who doesn't know he is dead, comes as the next attraction at the Belle Theatre.

Warner Baxter, who is starred with Andrea Leeds, has the role of the ghost in "Earthbound". Haunted by those he knew in life he is able, through the perfection of a new camera device, to walk through steel doors and stone walls while people pass right through him. He finds it hard to realize that he isn't seen or heard.

The surprising adventures of Baxter as the man who couldn't stay dead are claimed by previewers to make the role the most unusual as well as the strongest he ever has played. His part is doubly unique in as much as he has foreknowledge of what will happen but is unable to prevent it.

Andrea Leeds portrays Baxter's long-suffering widow. She senses his presence although he isn't visible or audible to her, and she strives throughout the picture to clear his memory so that his spirit may find peace.

Ann Sothern Comedy

The favorite blonde comedienne of the screen, Ann Sothern, is scheduled to create a furor as a new character when "Dulcy" comes as the companion feature attraction. As the erratic Dulcy, Miss Sothern portrays the role of a young woman whose heart of gold is somewhat offset by a capacity for attempting to direct the lives of both her family and her friends. The situations to which she steers them are packed with laughs. In direct contrast to her role of "Maisie" this new production gives Miss Sothern the advantage of smart Adrain-designed wardrobe and a series of ultra-chic coiffures. The dialogue is replete with wisecracks and the action with comic situations. Supporting the star in the role of leading man is Ian Hunter, seen as a young inventor who whips up an airplane motor capable of running in kerosene. Others in the excellent supporting cast are Roland Young, Reginald Gardiner, Billie Burke, Lynne Carver and Dan Dailey, Jr.

Two Comedies

Romance and uproarious fun abound in the two comedy features now at the Belle which include "The Great McGinty" featuring Brian Donlevy and Muriel Angelus and "Cross Country Romance", co-starring Gene Raymond and Wendy Barrie.

The Belle news will also be exhibited.

AT THE McCARTHY

"The Family of Nations"

Whenever our headline scanners are inclined to mumble disconsolate mutterings over the sad demise of Woodrow Wilson's once-famous League of Nations, it would be well for them to pause for a thought of another league of nations which has been extant for many, many years and which, in the opinion of millions of people, will remain so for many, many centuries.

That league, of course, is the British Commonwealth of Nations.

And just to make the matter more convincing—John Drinkwater wrote a film about it. What's more, three eminent British personages appear in it; George Bernard Shaw, Lady Astor and Sir Austen Chamberlain. The picture is entitled "A Family of Nations" and is now showing at the McCarthy Theatre.

It is a narrative record of the leading events in the recent history of the British Commonwealths and there are interesting appearances in it, of all the leading political, social and military figures since the Victorian era.

The fact that Brittania is now being subjected to one of the most brutish tests her strength and courage have ever faced makes this record of a great league of nations a very timely one. It points to the successes of the future, by examining the struggles of the past. It shows that growth, in the past, has been based upon formidable planning, upon democratic concepts and upon eternal vigilance—and it argues for a continuation of that growth.

No citizen of the realm can see it without feeling a tremendous pride in the development of the homeland and the dominions. To miss seeing Drinkwater's "The Family of Nations" is to miss a most extraordinary experience.

Now, more than ever, the implications of what we see and hear in this picture are matters of extreme importance to every subject of the realm.

Above all, the picture is a heartening, chins-up cavalcade of events, personages and ideals.

Aside from its value as first-rate entertainment, it has tremendous power as first-rate inspiration. According to government leaders who have previewed this unusual picture, seeing it is like performing a patriotic act.

Perhaps the best description of this picture is given by John Drinkwater himself in the early moments of the production when he is discussing the project with a newspaper reporter.

The dialogue is as follows:

Reporter: "What is the story about?"

Drinkwater: "It is the story of the British Empire, its inception, its history, its future. We are illustrating it with moving pictures covering a wide range of events from the early days of Queen Victoria down to our own George VI."

Reporter: "What is behind it?"

Reporter: "Would you say the dream has been realized?"

He: "Partially. Enough to make it worth while. You see it has given us a real League of Nations."

She: "You mean a British Commonwealth?"

He: "A dramatic pageant, a Commonwealth founded on good will."

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER ELEVEN.

"And who did you think she was?" inquired North blandly.

Hostility stamped Kanamura's wiry body, now held very erect in his stiffly starched suit.

"May I point out, honorable sir," he stressed with a glint of strong white teeth, "that that does not concern you."

North was already deciding that Kanamura did know who the dead girl was. Moreover, the Japanese seemed very much upset at what had befallen her.

But why, since his mention of Polk's name, had Kanamura been so definitely hostile? Kanamura and Polk were supposed to be friends. . . . If HE had seen that black smudge on the girl's arm—well, a great deal depended on what Tokyo really intended to do in this impending crisis.

North felt the Japanese's black eyes thrusting at his back like sword points as he turned to the Eurasian police captain and said:

"Thank you very much, Captain; that's all I wanted to see. I presume," he added, "that, until the autopsy, you have no theory as to what happened to this girl?"

Captain Amalu's blue-black hair glistened a little beneath the lights as he replied: "No, but I may say that Dr. Thaxter does not think it was a case of poison."

"When will you find out?"

"Around midnight," the keeper of the morgue replied, his breath showing in tiny silvery puffs. "Please come, Mr. Kanamura. You have failed of identification, and it is against the rules to allow anyone alone with the corpses."

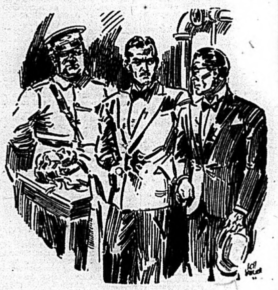
Though the Japanese started to protest, Captain Amalu imperturbably switched out the lights, leaving the six pale slabs shrouded in semi-darkness. Once on the sidewalk, North held out his hand in farewell.

"Good-night, Mr. Kanamura; a bit of luck that it wasn't a friend in there."

"One minute, please," the other begged. "There is something I would like to say to you, Mr. Nevins."

North turned and, towering above the alert, faintly menacing Oriental, remained silent.

"Yes?"



Hostility stamped Kanamura as he faced the American in the morgue after interrupting the latter's post-mortem . . .

"I somehow cannot believe," the ship chandler began, "that Mr. Polk really sent you to the morgue."

"He did," North returned imperturbably.

"Then." Kanamura's brown features hardened perceptibly, "please do not let your friendliness for Mr. Polk carry you too far. Please take a little warning and . . . do not try any more to find out who this girl was. It is USELESS."

"Why?" North demanded as he pulled out a cigarette and tapped it on the back of his hand. "You know my curiosity . . ."

The Japanese stiffened still further as he interrupted with, "That is a very dangerous weakness, Mr. Nevins."

"Dear me, are YOU actually threatening me?" North's voice became suddenly edged.

Kanamura made a mechanical little bow. "Threatening YOU, my dear sir? Oh, not at all. I simply advise that YOU had better drop the matter of the unknown girl at once. Otherwise . . ." By the starlight North saw the other's teeth glimmer almost wolfishly.

"Otherwise?"

"Who knows what the future holds?" the other murmured, turned sharply about, and strode away, his heels clicking on the cement.

On regaining his hotel quarters. Captain Hugh North, D.C.I., raised the window and for some time stared out over the harbor, where lights of shipping blinked. He stripped off his coat and re-read the telephone message he had found tucked under the door:

"Belknap will come at twelve.—Bruce."

Good old Kilgour! . . . North wished he could rid his mind of the ominous conversations overheard on Honolulu's restless streets.

"Yeah," a brawny sailor had said to his fellow, "let 'em come—let 'em start something. We're ready for the yellow monkeys."

A girl, swinging by on the arm of a soberly dressed young American, had gushed, "Oh, I hope they come—I might see a battle! I was too young to remember anything of the World War."

Then, too, in North's mind was stamped impressions of Honolulu's hordes of Japanese — some with heads bowed and eyes averted; others timidly pretending that there was no ground for uneasiness; and still others, evidently reservists, swaggering about.

Heaven help Hawaii, and the rest of the world, if the Four Grim Horsemen began riding!

1. Who is the murdered woman?
   - (a) Why did Phedre Renoire seem pleased to see her dead?
   - (b) What was she to Kanamura?
   - (c) Why was she murdered?
2. Why was Wang Tso Kin able so suddenly to resume his offensive in China at the end of April?
3. Why did Kanamura drop his glass at the mention of Nadia Stefan's name?
4. What was the cause and meaning of the scratch on the naked corpse's neck?
   - (a) Who had altered it?
5. For whom was the hairpin message originally intended?

What was its contents?

North eyed the list critically a minute, then stared off into the panel of stars visible from his window. He became very thoughtful as he picked up his pencil and wrote his next self-query in large black letters:

6. Who is Nadia Stefan?
   - (a) What is her relation to
     - (1) Kanamura?
     - (2) Von Rentner?
     - (3) Armand Dunant?
     - (4) To the murdered dancer?
   - (b) What is her part in this mystery?

"Just a few simple questions," he told himself bitterly, "all to be answered in less than thirty hours. And now for the credit side of the ledger."

1. Murdered woman probably a Russian and a present or ex-member of the O.G.P.U. (Russian Secret Police), as shown by the erased tattooing.
   - (a) Murdered by friends of Phedre Renoire.
   - (b) Deeply involved in plot underfoot.
   - (c) Probably a friend of Kanamura.
2. Von Rentner and Polk, former friends, are on strained relations.
3. Von Rentner and Phedre hate each other.
4. Kanamura knew of hairpin message, or suspected its existence.
5. Kanamura is working against me.

Briefly he studied the result of his efforts—somehow it was a help having things written out in order. Yet he was not one to leave his thoughts in a tangible form so, having memorized his queries, he reduced the notes to ashes and disposed of them in the bathroom.

Little Benny's Note Book

We were eating breakfist and ma said to pop, You better take your umbrella, Willyum, although of course it may not rain.

Then of course I may not take it, pop said, and ma said, But suppose it does rain?

Suppose I have my umbrella, pop said and sa said, Now Willyum dont be aggrevating. All I mean is, with a gray sky like today, not even the weather man knows whether it will rain or not, she said.

I wonder if he's got his umbrella pop said, and I said, Aw G. pop, I dont think it's going to rain.

Dont get into the habit of making snap judgments pop said. You dont know enough about it to be able to really think one way or the other. Somebody in Germany made the snap judgment that the Briddish would cave in like a baskit of eggs, and somebody somewhere elts made the snap judgment that Stolline might squeeze Hitler's neck but never his hand, and look at the result. If you want to make a guess, go ahead and amuse yourself, but for Peet sake dont claim you're thinking, he said, and I said, Well, then I guess it's not going to rain.

Your guess is as good as the next man's and maybe better than the weather man's, pop said, and I said, Anyways, pop, it might be more convenient if you decide you dont need your unberella, because the other afternoon it started to rain just when I was starting to go around to Cousin Artie's, so I grabbed up the first umberella in site, and it was yours, and it's still around at Artie's house, but I'll bring it back this afternoon for sure, pop.

Now I know it will rain, pop said. I dont think and I dont guess, I just know it, confound it. That's my snap judgment for the day, and if it comes true you'll hear from me further on the same subject, he said.

Wich it came true and I did.

Many Rotarian Past Presidents Shy From Making Addresses at Luncheon

Was to Have Been Feature of Luncheon Meeting—Postponed Indefinitely

NEW MEMBER JOINS

The consensus of opinion of members of the Belleville Rotary Club at Monday's weekly luncheon after the scheduled Past Presidents' addresses, a feature of the meeting, was postponed indefinitely, is that the ex-prexies of the club are "slipping" and as Past President Ed. Bernstein remarked, "need a little time before they can drop pearls of wisdom before the brethren."

However, the majority of the Rotarians who have controlled the destinies of the club during the past twenty years, did not put in an appearance due to pressure of business and other excuses, and the feature of the luncheon was put off until a later date.

Compliments of the club were extended through Past-President Howard Clarke who presided in the absence of President Percy McGuire to Rotarian Oswald Scott, manager of the Belleville Public Utilities, for his efforts in securing a rebate on water rates for the city.

Past-President Clarke, however, was strangely silent when a member sang out "Has the price of milk decreased accordingly?"

A highlight of the brief meeting was the fine rendition of "Rule Brittania" sung by Jack Deacon in his inimitable voice. Rotarians joined lustily in the chorus, and the soloist received well-merited acclaim for his offering.

Rotarian "Jimmy" Bone led the gathering with a Scottish "fighting" song, "Roamin' in the Gloamin' " and other numbers were led by "Sandy" Burrows. The meeting ended with the strains of "There'll Always Be An England" ringing through the dining hall.

Mr. Thomas Herity was a guest of the club while the "baby" member, Mr. Clarence Morgan, was given an unofficial welcome by Rotarian Howard Clarke and the club.

Unconfirmed Reports Say French Royalists Seeking Restoration

Rome, Nov. 11 (AP).—Unconfirmed reports circulated today in Italian court circles that French monarchists are working for restoration of the monarchy in France and seeking Hitler's support.

The reports had it that Marshal Philippe Petain had broached the matter of a restoration in his recent conversation with Hitler, but found him non-committal.

Some French monarchists were said to be supporting the Count of Paris, who has succeeded to the claims of his late father, the Duke of Guise, while others favored Prince Louis of Bourbon-Parma, who is married to Princess Maria of Italy.

Bomb Splinters From Battle of Britain

By D. E. BURRITT
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 11 —(CP)— T. Werner Laurie, London publisher, declined to leave his home when police roped off part of the street because of a time bomb but nobody would visit him. Milkman, baker and others declined to go near the place—all except the boy delivering the morning paper. He never missed.

The government issued free "earplugs" to protect the drums from explosive shock and now officials have received a letter from an old lady thanking them. She said her hearing had "improved beyond belief since wearing the plugs." ...

A sparrow caused the death of Alfred Robert Wilkinson, 43, a Victoria Cross winner in the first Great War. The bird became caught in a chimney leading to Wilkinson's laboratory, and a coroner's jury decided he died from carbon monoxide.

"Little Spitfire," a cub lion presented by the Earl of Dudley to the Dudley Zoo at Wores, has raised £9,500 ($43,275) in two weeks for a Spitfire fund. For days school children have lined up for a chance to stroke the coat of "Little Spitfire" and then drop a contribution in a box.

Enemy action has claimed the lives of 46 metropolitan policemen in the London district. More than 300 others suffered injuries but many of them have returned to duty.

Charged with defacing an A.R.P. poster, a man pleaded there had been a split infinitiye in the wording and that he had merely made the correction. He was dismissed under the Probationer's Act.

Butter Consumption Reaches New High

Toronto, Nov. 11.— An all-time high in Canadian domestic butter consumption during October indicated in the Dominion Bureau of Statistics stock and production figures caused butter prices to recover last week's losses during Saturday's session of the Toronto open produce market. Prices showed a firmer trend on revived buying interest prior to release of the Ottawa report, after which time first grade Ontario creamery solids sold as high as 30 cents a pound.

Analysis of the report shows domestic disappearance of butter last month of more than 29,000,000 pounds, an increase in excess of 5,000,000 pounds over a year ago, and it compares with the previous record consumption of 27,300,000 pounds established in September of last year, when hoarding was prompted on fears of sharply rising prices because of the outbreak of war. This war inspired buying of September, 1939, however, had a retarding effect on the distribution of butter in the following two months, and thus the domestic disappearance of butter in October and November of last year can not be considered normal. The report reveals a pronounced improvement of 6,000,000 pounds in the Canadian butter stock position during the month and a decrease of 1,000,000 pounds from a year ago in October production.

Cautious buying resulted in an easy undertone on the egg market. While receipts continued light, some sales of top grades were reported at price reductions of 1 cent a dozen. Lower grades were steady.

Montreal, Nov. 11.—(CP)—Produce market prices here Saturday, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter — First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 31c; first grade solids, jobbing price 30 1-2c. Receipts for the week 4,491 boxes, compared with 6,690 a year ago.

Eggs—Graded shipments in used free cases, selling price, A-large, 48c; A-medium, 44c-45c; A-pullets 35c; B-large 27 1-2c to 28c; C, 19 1-2c to 20c. Receipts for the week 15,702 cases, compared with 3,861 a year ago.

EMPRESS OF JAPAN IN U. K. PORT

Liner Suffers 'Some Damage' by Enemy Aircraft Says Admiralty

London, Nov. 11—(CP Cable)—The Empress of Japan has reached a United Kingdom port with only slight damage caused by a dive-bombing attack by an enemy plane in the Atlantic.

The crack Canadian Pacific liner bore insignificant damage to one deck and machine-gun bullet holes in lifeboats and deck works. Otherwise the ship was not marked. No casualties were suffered.

Returning the plane machine-gunned the decks but everyone had taken cover. Hot fire from the liner's anti-aircraft guns chased off the attacker. The remainder of the trip to port was undisturbed and uneventful.

An admiralty communique said: "The S.S. Empress of Japan, which, it has been reported, was attacked by enemy aircraft in the Atlantic, has reached the United Kingdom under her own steam. She sustained some damage from a near miss but there were no casualties."

SKUNK CAUSES RETREAT

Baltimore, Nov. 11 —(AP)— Answering a "burglar" alarm, patrolmen Edward Miller and Joseph Bullinger heard thuds and crashes behind the basement door at William T. Corroum's home. With guns cocked, and tear gas in reserve, they rushed in—and fled, along with a skunk that had a salad dressing jar firmly wedged over its head.

KNOWN DEATH

over which the German troops have been moving south and east and west through Rumania were twisted and split apart.

No one knew what had happened underground to the dark deposits of oil. In some places where oil never had been found before it oozed through fissures in the ground, indicating a widespread shifting in existing pools. In one area, near Ploesti, sulphur fumes spewed from giant cracks.

Tremors Felt Today.

More of Rumania was laid waste than would have been desolated in many months of war, and reports reaching here told of damage also in Turkey, Bulgaria and Italy and "catastrophic consequences" in Russia.

Again at mid-morning today, earth tremors shook this capital, toppling balconies and adding to the death lists which grew steadily as communications were re-established with provinces where village after village reported fatalities yesterday.

Explosions and fires in the ruins of an apartment house where nearly 200 were entombed killed an undetermined number of Iron Guard rescue workers. Bursting gasoline tanks spat flames through the wreckage, sealing the fate of those trapped beneath and it was not known how many searchers had gone to their deaths.

Experts Survey Damage.

While experts surveyed the damage to oil refineries and power plants caused principally by toppling chimneys, geologists said the earth tremors might have made unpredictable changes in the oil deposits which have made Rumania a bone of war contention.

The Bucharest Geological Institute said the earth shocks were "the most severe anywhere in years and the first in a long period to be registered on every instrument in the world." Government seismologists said they originated 100 miles deep in the earth and were more intense than the severe Turkish earthquakes last winter.

In Giurgiu, chief Rumanian Danube oil port, 65 per cent of the homes were demolished. There were many casualties.

At Focsani, near the Epicentre, 70 per cent of the houses were levelled. There were 35,000 homeless and at least 22 dead. Hundreds of others were injured, many gravely, and still others were buried.

Many Millions Damage

Tens of thousands of German soldiers quartered in the kingdom, pitched in swiftly to help Iron Guardists, firemen, police and Rumanian troops in the rescue work, which was hampered seriously by broken communications, including almost complete suspension of rail traffic because of collapsed bridges and buckled tracks.

(Some neutral military observers considered the damage might constitute a stiff blow to possible German plans to move large numbers of troops through Rumania for a Balkan campaign. They also pointed out the damage to oil fields might slow down the flow of Rumanian oil to the Nazi military machine.)

Epicentre at Focsani

The quake, whose epicentre was in Focsani, a city of 50,000 in the eastern Carpathian foothills, about 100 miles north of Bucharest, struck at 3.39 a.m. (9.39 p.m. Saturday, EDT).

Focsani and Galati, a city of 102,000 population on the Danube, were believed to have been the worst hit cities.

Bucharest's newest and most modern apartment building, a 10-storey structure, collapsed at the very beginning of the quake and officials estimated 300 men, women and children were trapped in the wreckage.

Thirty Bodies Recovered

Rescue workers shovelled frantically in an effort to reach groups trapped in an air raid shelter beneath the 20-foot high pile of rubble. By some freak, the telephone in the shelter worked long enough for a call to police headquarters for help.

Thirty bodies had been recovered last night from the wrecked building and 15 persons were brought out barely alive. Two others were found conscious.

"It took about two minutes for the building to fall", a newsboy who saw it related. 'All that time I heard the horrible sound of human screams. Then came sudden silence".

Campina, a thickly-populated town about 100 miles northwest of Bucharest, was reported to be "in ruins", with fierce fires raging in refinery plants, including those of Romana-Americana, a subsidiary of Standard Oil Company of New Jersey.

Oil Centre Hard Hit

Ploesti, an important oil centre nearer the capital, also was hard hit, while hundreds of roofs and large buildings collapsed in Brasov, historic German Transylvanian city, killing some and injuring a great many.

Nearly all theatres and public buildings were reported elvelled in the hard-hit cities of Galati and Focsani, and scores of bodies were said to have been located already at Galati, a Rumanian submarine base. The Cathedral, Greek Church, largest factory and railroad station were reported in ruins there.

The Royal Palace suffered in Bucharest some damage, but King Michael and Queen Mother Helen were outside the quake area, at the summer palace in Sinaia.

'Quake In Moscow.

Moscow, Nov. 11 (AP). — Earth tremors, the strongest ever recorded in Moscow, were reported today to have damaged some southern Russian cities yesterday, particularly Kiev and Odessa.

Striking at the same time as the temblors which devastated thousands of buildings in Rumania, the earthquake awakened many persons here and cracked the walls of some buildings, but did no serious damage, the Seismological Institute announced. No casualties were reported.

Stronger shocks were felt in the southern cities. Authorities said the disturbance was part of an earthquake centred in the Carpathian mountains, with a radius of 2,000 kilometres (1,250 miles).

The sixth recent earthquake in the Carpathians, it was registered in Moscow at 4:42 a.m., Sunday (9:42 a.m. E.D.T Saturday).

CENTAUR DIVISION

Greek Confidence Grew

Greek confidence grew apace as the first downpours of the four-month winter rainy season made slush or snow in the mountain passes, deepened the mud in the lowland roads and threatened to bog down mechanized war.

Principal gains announced today by the high command were in the Pindus Mountains, central section of the border battlefront, where the Italian Alpine Division was trapped in an attempted drive toward Metsovon, northeast of Ioannina.

Enemy Planned Quick Blow

"With this large unit," a communique declared, "the enemy planned to deal a quick, decisive blow at our forces in Epirus . . . We launched a series of counter attacks which we pressed with stubborness over hard terrain and through bad weather condition.

"After a fierce fight the enemy forces were overthrown, and, hastening to escape complete encirclement, retreated in disorder, hotly pursued. In their flight they carried away with them other enemy forces which were landed at Valona (Albania) and rushed by motor car to . . . support their retreat.

"Enemy losses in dead and wounded were very heavy. A large number of prisoners was taken and a great quantity of all sorts of war material not yet counted fell into our hands."

Two Italian Battalions Wiped Out

To the west, toward the coast, where the Italians started their wedge into Epirus almost two weeks ago, the Greeks were said to have stopped another Italian attack over the weekend, annihilated two battalions, and forced the invaders back under heavy artillery fire.

From heights overlookink the encircled Italian base at Karitza, at the opposite end of the battlefront, additional Greek guns hauled into position through ice and slush were reported to be continuing a steady bombardment, reducing Italian defences for a final assault.

Machine-Gun Retreating Albanians

The Athens radio alleged Italian prisoners reported that Albanian troops, fighting alongside Italian units, had been machine-gunned from the back when they retreated.

The radio gave this summary of the situation over the week-end:

"The Italians tried to invade Greece from three different points, from the Koritza-Phlorina Road, from the Pindus Road and from the west.

"The Pindus Road had been considered by the Italians as more suitable for a blow at the Greek army. The Greeks frustrated the Italian attempt and dispersed the Italian army of the centre. The advance along the coast line in the western sector — an advance whose object was to unite this column with the central army—was rendered problematical and the failure in the northern sector as a result of our occupation of important positions in front of Koritza bars this column's movement to Macedonia."

Unfavorable weather brought a let-up in Italian air raids. Two towns on the Greek island of Crete were reported bombed yesterday.

A Greek spokesman pointed to the change in Italian commanders in the campaign from Albania and said it indicated the view at Rome that the drive has been a failure. (Gen. Ubaldo Soddu, Italian Undersecretary of War, was sent to Albania Saturday to take charge of the campaign.)

The first American Red Cross contribution for war relief—$5,000—was received by the Greek Red Cross yesterday. Greece's premier, Gen. John Metaxas, replied with a letter of thanks.

Several vessels from Conception Bay ports joined in the search last night for possible survivors or bodies but choppy water and the snowstorm hampered the search.

BRITISH NATION

News of Death Withheld

At the wish of the family, his death was not announced until Sunday morning—after parishioners at the neighborhood church had prayed for his recovery.

At evening services, the Rev. H. R. P. Tringham said in eulogy:—

"Blessed are the peacemakers for they shall be called the children of God, and no one has worked harder for our peace. Although his work seemed a failure, it was a grand failure."

That and the press praise of Chamberlain as an "honest statesman" who did his best to save peace without attempting to sidestep criticism of the results of his policies were the first tributes paid publicly.

King and Queen Send Message

King George and Queen Elizabeth headed the list of many who sent private messages to the family. During his illness they recently spent an hour at his bedside.

Official tributes awaited the next session of Parliament when Chamberlain's staunch friend, Winston Churchill, who succeeded him as Prime Minister, will speak in his honor along with other senior statesmen.

Under a heading "He Served Britain," the Daily Mail said today, "Neville Chamberlain will be remembered as a sincere, high-minded, steadfast statesman. His successes and his failures all sprang from one abiding motive—to serve right in serving Britain."

The Times said of Chamberlain's efforts to reach a peace understanding with totalitarian leaders:

"We know now that what he attempted no man could have achieved, but against organized evil with which he was fated to contend the work which he did for his country will shine in its sincerity more and more strongly as the years pass."

Gov't Changes Contemplated

Chamberlain's death revived rumors, in political circles of new changes in the government.

It was suggested that his long-time associate, Lord Halifax, be shifted from the Foreign Office to the India office. There, The Daily Herald (Labor) said, he would be "probably better qualified than anyone to heal the present lamentable breach" with India..

These reports also mentioned War Secretary Anthony Eden, who broke with Chamberlain over the appeasement program, as the possible successor to Lord Halifax in the Foreign Office.

river, and to have captured Greek artillery and arms.

No Greek Reports.

(This was at variance with Greek reports which said the Italians were checked on all parts of the front and driven back in disorder at some points.)

A communique yesterday claimed that a British battleship and aircraft carrier were struck with heavy bombs in a fierce attack by Italian bombing formations in the central Mediterranean.

(There were no British reports of such an action.)

Strengthened anti-aircraft defences were claimed to have beaten off British bombers which tried to attack Naples early yesterday. Bombs were dropped, however, at Cremona, famed for its violin makers, in the vicinity of Mt. Vesuvius, between Naples and Pompeii, and near Torre Annunciata, Marconi centre.

(No details were available in London immediately of the Naples attack.)

No Official Service in Britain

The nation was too busy with the grim business of manufacturing war machinery to pause for even the customary two-minute silence so there was no official Armistice Day service.

Instead of prayers and the singing of hymns, the roar of traffic provided an accompaniment for the usual pilgrimage of the band of faithful widows and wives of crippled veterans who deposited floral offerings varying from single limp poppies to extravagant wreaths and then disappeared from the scene made grim by rolls of barbed wire and other means of defence which the city prepared after the Dunkirk evacuation.

The men of Dunkirk also were remembered by a woman who laid a sprig of flowers alongside the Princess Pats wreath, which was placed there by Jenny MacGregor Morris, known to Canadian soldiers of the last war as "Mother of the Princess Pats."

In Jenny's handwriting the card on the wreath gave a pledge that the new generation of Princess Pats "are holding high the torch you handed" and two of the youngest members of the unit came to London to lend personal assurance.

Cpl. W. J. Shaw, Chase, B.C., and Pte L. W. Swift, Victoria, were given special leave at the written request of Jenny to attend the informal ceremony. A late train arrival prevented them visiting the cenotaph with Jenny but they came along later, marched side by side to the shaft, saluted, and then, as a score of onlookers stepped out of the way, moved to the front of their regiment's wreath, saluted, clicked their heels, turned and walked away.

Reverting to the mass air attacks of the earlier stages of the siege, the raiders hit the coast in such big waves that many were able to streak inland past Britain's defending fighters.

On one occasion on raider, on another five and again twenty flew across the capital.

Air Battles Heard.

Air battles could be heard in many places while Britons stood with bared heads beneath misty skies to honor the dead of the last war on the 22nd anniversary of the broken peace of 1918.

Three times air raid sirens shrilled alarms but by 2 p.m. (9 a.m. E.D.T.) the third all clear had sounded.

The day raiders, although harassed by the capital's intermittent barrage, dropped heavy bomb loads on London.

One demolished two houses, injured a woman and three children. Another salvo fell opposite a school but caused no damage. A third wrecked a saloon and bowled over a bus. A bank and some stores also were hit.

Several persons were killed by a bomb which wrecked a group of houses in the night. Seven bodies were recovered and a woman and her child were among those still entombed.

Another bomb hit part of a trench shelter in the grounds of a London technical college. Several persons were killed, but more than a hundred others were unhurt.

Two drivers were killed and two automobiles wrecked when a bomb hit a London garage. Several firemen were hurt while fighting a factory fire and another fire engulfed a number of London offices.

More than one hundred planes, following up a fierce night attack, participated in the first assault, crossing the coast in two formations. In the second thrust, fifty fighter-bombers crossed the Kent coast.

Royal Air Force fighters swept into battle and while thousands of persons stood in silence to commemorate the 22nd anniversary of the first Great War armistice, a fierce sky battle of this war raged above. The usual official armistice observances in London were abandoned because of air raid dangers.

Only four invading planes got as far as the capital itself and they concentrated on the Thames Estuary area, where ground defenders sent up a heavy barrage of anti-aircraft fire to greet them.

Second Alert Sounded

The all-clear signal ending London's first daylight alarm sounded after a short time but a second alert came within a few minutes.

An all-clear signal heralded the end of the second raid of the day shortly before noon.

Roof - top observers estimated that German bombers roared over the city last night at one-a-minute clip, pounding away with high explosive bombs for five hours despite a furious anti-aircraft barrage, but a government communique said menace was not great and "casualties are not likely to prove heavy."

Direct Hit on Pub.

Most of the casualties, the government said occurred when a high explosive bomb plunged squarely on a crowded pub on the south bank of the Thames estuary. Patrons were trapped by falling glass and brickwork and an undisclosed number was killed and injured.

Rescue workers struggled throughout the night to release victims and doctors crawled around under the wreckage ministering to the injured.

In addition to the attacks on London, invading fliers struck at towns in various sections of the embattled island, including the industrial midlands. The government said activity as a whole was "not particularly heavy" but "somewhat greater than on the previous night." Most night raids stopped soon after midnight.

In the capital, four members of a stretcher party were killed when a bomb hit a maternity and child welfare clinic being used as an air raid protection depot. A hospital, a hotel, several houses and places of business also were damaged and casualties caused.

Family of Eight Killed

One bomb hit a home, killing an entire family of eight, including a three-months-old baby.

About one hundred and fifty persons, including many women and children, escaped from a flooded basement shelter beneath a London orphanage damaged when two bombs fell nearby. One of the bombs fell in a roadway and the other burst at the base of the building; smashing the water main which flooded the shelter.

After police and rescue workers swam around in the icy water for a considerable time they reported that all had been saved..

One of the rescued said:

"There was about one hundred and fifty of us down in the shelter. The first thing we knew was the crashing of masonry and then water rushing in. We immediately made for the back entrance and within a few seconds we were wading through water up to our waists."

DEEPEST THRUST

The great Krupp armament works in Germany, the Fokker airplane plant in German-held Holland, Nazi ports and air bases, docks, shipping and industrial centres were bombed in extensive operations, the statement said.

Targets named in it included oil plants at Gelsenkirchen, Bremen, Krupps works at Emden, Manheim, Dresden, the Fokker factory at Amsterdam, shipping at Kiel and at the Rhine river port of Duisberg; railroad junctions at Danzig, Dessau, Munster, Manheim and Dresden; the "invasion ports" of Lorient, Cherbourg, Le Havre, Dunkerque and Flushing, and fourteen air bases.

Shipping Bombed By Daylight.

The raids on the channel coast, it said, followed Sunday daylight bombardments of shipping in the German held French harbors of Calais and Boulogne.

Five British planes, it acknowledged, have not returned. The forays were carried out by the bomber command despite "severe electrical storms and icing conditions", the ministry said.

This was the first British raid on Danzig, in the one-time Polish Corridor and now one of Germany's easternmost cities.

Authoritative sources said the flight of more than 1,400 miles round trip was the longest yet undertaken by the R.A.F. across Germany and German-occupied territory.

That distance was measured by the shortest line from the east Anglian coast, the nearest British jumping off place. It meant twice crossing the North Sea and flying out and back over the Netherlands and northern Germany, crossing almost directly above such heavily fortified cities as Hamburg and Bremerhaven and the German North Sea naval bases of Wilhelmshaven and Emden.

BRITISH SOURCES

armament and defences.

The source said the biggest advantage held by allied forces in the near east was their knowledge of desert warfare. The force consists of troops from Britain, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, Palestine, France, Poland, and a big Arab legion from Trans-Jordan.

The collapse of France created formidable problems, including the loss of the French Mediterranean fleet and the French armies in Tunis, Syria and French Somaliland. British forces in that section were weak at that time and ill-equipped as compared with the British expeditionary force.

After the evacuation of the British army from France it had to be re-equipped, which meant that the British forces in the near east had to go begging. But that is all changed now, with large forces of men and equipment of all sorts being sent to the east.

"We may count ourselves fortunate that during our period of extreme weakness we were not attacked," the source declared.

The position of Syria was described as "fairly stable" under the present French regime.

The same source said defences in Malta have improved considerably.

He declared "our ability to defeat Italy depends on holding on in Egypt at all costs".

The job of holding Egypt was described as "an immensely tough task". While strategy in North Africa is simple, this source said, maintenance of a military force constitutes "one hell of a job".

Britain's duty, he said, is to turn out equipment, find ships to send it, and rush it to the Near East as speedily as possible.

Orville Richardson Of West Lake, Seriously Hurt in Accident

Picton, Ont., Nov. 11 — Orville Richardson, 61, of West Lake, is in critical condition in Prince Edward County Hospital as a result of a car accident Saturday night. He was pulled from his burning automobile by two truck drivers and taken to the hospital, where he was found to have suffered a punctured lung and several broken ribs.

IGNORES GREEK CAMPAIGN

Rome, Nov. 11 (CP)—The Italian High Command ignored the campaign against Greece in its communique today but claimed air successes against British naval formations in the Mediterranean and in the Far East.

The communique claimed that British artillery fired on Gallabat, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, without causing any damage.

(A Cairo communique received in London said that Gallabat remains in British hands.)

Solemn Rites Of Remembrance Across Dominion

National Service Held Before War Memorial In Ottawa

(By The Canadian Press)

Set against a background of tragic reality, Remembrance Day dawned in Canada to evoke a new solemnity of thought, a new grim realization of the horrors of war which had been lacking in large measure from observances during the carefree peacetime years which succeeded the 1918 Armistice.

The grave ceremonies of Remembrance were prefaced Sunday by church services throughout the nation when millions of Canadians gathered to offer prayers for the success of Britain's arms against the forces of atheism and evil.

Men and women of every denomination thronged their churches and synagogues to pray for the triumph of freedom of worship and thought and action. Church parades brought men of the Active Forces, the militia and the ex-service organizations out in full force.

This year the ceremonies for the most part took place out-of-doors at the war memorials in each city, town and village.

Typical of the observances outside the National Capital were the events in Toronto where so many groups have planned services at the Cenotaph that there was almost a continuous parade of organizations, civil as well as military.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—(CP)—Official Canada paid homage to the dead of the First Great War here today as young Canadians in uniform for the new and grimmer conflict of today stood by.

For the first time the ceremony of Remembrance Day was held at the National War Memorial in Confederation Square. In other years it took place at a temporary cenotaph on Parliament Hill.

Today, however, the giant stone arch with its bronze figures of fighting men which was dedicated by the King in May, 1939, was the scene. The ceremony of peacetime was somewhat shortened. It lasted just five minutes and that included the two minutes of silence.

2,000 Veterans Parade

Some 2,000 veterans of the last war paraded and the guard of honor for the Governor-General was a company of the veterans guard of Canada, men who again wear the uniform after twenty years of civilian life.

The Earl of Athlone, accompanied by Princess Alice and Prime Minister Mackenzie King took up a position in front of the monument just before the guns boomed out the signal for the start of the silence at eleven o'clock. When the second gun brought the silence to an end the "last post" was played by a young bugler of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The R.C.M.P. band then played a verse of "Abide with me" and the bugler sounded "Reveille". The Governor-General, tall and erect in his khaki uniform advanced to the foot of the monument, saluted, laid a wreath, saluted again and withdrew.

Mrs. Catherine Lewis, a frail, tiny, aged woman who gave several sons to the cause of Empire in the last war laid a wreath as the representative of the Mothers of Canada and the Prime Minister laid a wreath on behalf of the government.

The renewal of the fight for freedom was symbolized when three big training planes from a nearby flying school passed overhead.

Another link between the old and the new war was the presence of Canada's three war ministers, all veterans of the last conflict, Defence Minister Ralston, Air Minister Power and Naval Minister Macdonald.

Each was accompanied by the Chief of Staff of the Service he heads, Maj.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, chief of General Staff, Rear-Admiral Percy Nelles, chief of the Naval staff, and Air Vice-Marshal L. S. Breadner, chief of the Air Staff.

Other wreaths laid at the memorial was one from the Great Fighting Free Frenchman, Charles de Gaulle. It was placed on behalf of the General by G. L. Sauvant of Ottawa.

Rene Ristelhueber, French Minister, deposited a wreath on behalf of his government.

Appointments Announced by Defence Dep't

Ottawa, Nov. 11 (CP)—Col. E. L. M. Burns, 43-year-old special assistant to the Chief of the General Staff, has been appointed Assistant Deputy-Chief of the General Staff at National Defence Headquarters, it was announced today.

At Defence Headquarters it was said the appointment does not alter Col. Burns' duties. Rather it is merely a change in title.

Brig. Kenneth Stuart is Deputy Chief of Staff. Defence sources said the new title for Col. Burns was the first time the title of Assistant Deputy-Chief of the General Staff had been brought into use at Headquarters.

Other appointments announced at the same time included:

Maj. J. N. Medhurst of Toronto, formerly General Staff Officer (Grade 3) at Military District Headquarters No. 3 (Kingston, Ont.) is promoted from Captain to be General Staff Officer (Grade 2) at Atlantic Army Command Headquarters, Halifax.

In the Veterans Guard of Canada, Lt.-Col. W. P. Venn, Sault Ste. Marie and Sudbury Regiment, is appointed Major in command of No. 2 Company.

In connection with the appointment of Lt.-Col. Venn it was said he was following the practice of many veterans of the last war who hold the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel but have taken a lower rank, such as Major, in order to return to active service in whatever capacity they can.

24 Former Employees Of Chrysler Corp. Held in Custody

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 11 (CP). — Police made two raids on a picket line outside the Chrysler Corporation of Canada plant here today, arresting 24 men altogether and releasing ten later when they established that they had not been warned to leave the line.

Thirteen men were taken into custody the first time and eleven later. All the second group except James Napier, union organizer, were released.

The men were charged, under the Defence of Canada Regulations, with disobeying an order forbidding loitering in a prohibited area.

Local 195 of the United Auto Workers of America claims that 45 men were locked out of the plant when they protested alleged disregard of seniority in appointment of a foreman. Last night they wired a protest to Labor Minister Norman McLarty and sent copies to other political leaders.

Chrysler Corporation officials said today only 38 men were out and that they quit voluntarily, came back and got their pay. They denied that any men were locked out. Men were transferred from other departments to take the place of the 38 as "we are on war work for the British government and the wheels must be kept turning."

Later eleven more men were taken into custody and after these arrests, a stoppage of work in the engine block department was reported but this was not confirmed immediately by corporation officials.

RUMOR IS DENIED

London, Nov. 11—(CP Cable)—A high political source today denied that Lord Halifax, Foreign Secretary, is resigning from the government. Rumors circulating during the week-end had suggested the possibility that Anthony Eden, former Foreign Secretary, would replace Lord Halifax.

North Bay Couple Reported Missing Since October 4

Sudbury, Ont., Nov. 11 (CP)—Search for Mr. and Mrs. Earl D. Kirk of North Bay, last seen when they left here on Oct. 4 by automobile for Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., was intensified during the week-end.

Provincial police and officials of the oil company with which Mr. Kirk was employed travelled the full highway stretch between here and Sault Ste. Marie, checking service stations, restaurants and other places where the couple may have stopped.

Bound for Winnipeg on a vacation trip, Mr. and Mrs. Kirk left the home of J. E. Newstead, Sudbury Manager for the oil company, on the evening of Oct. 4. Newstead apparently was the last person to see them. The mothers of both Mr. and Mrs. Kirk reside in Winnipeg and Mr. Kirk was planning to bring his mother back east.

Since the couple's disappearance there have been no withdrawals from their bank account in North Bay. They left four children, ranging in ages from four months to nine years, in the care of a housekeeper and a trained nurse.

That he planned to return to Sault Ste. Marie on Oct. 21 was indicated by the fact that Mr. Kirk arranged to meet Mr. Newstead there on that date. While in Sudbury on Oct. 4, he sent a telegram to North Bay, arranging hotel reservations for a sales meeting there Oct. 28.

Checks soon after the Kirks were first reported missing revealed they had not been seen at the company's Sault Ste. Marie service station and that they had not crossed the border at that point. And so far, the highway check has failed to reveal any trace of them.

Thomas Conroy, New York janitor, is alleged to have confessed to the murder of Genevieve Connolly, 10, who has been missing from her home since Nov. 6. Conroy is reported to have told police he choked the child to death and stuffed her body in a furnace.

PEOPLE UNDER 'IRON HEEL' WILL REBEL-ROOSEVELT

U. S. President Predicts Democracy Will Survive Attacks by Modern Dictators

ARMISTICE DAY SPEECH

Washington, Nov. 11—(AP)—President Roosevelt voiced faith in an Armistice Day speech today that democracy will survive and predicted that the people under the "iron heels" of "modern dictators or modern oligarchs" will "rebel."

"I, for one," Mr. Roosevelt said, in a speech broadcast from Arlington National Cemetery, "do not believe that the era of democracy in human affairs can or will be snuffed out in our lifetime. I, for one, do not believe that mere force will be successful in sterilizing the seeds which had taken such firm root as a harbinger of better lives for mankind. I, for one, do not believe that the world will revert either to a modern form of ancient slavery or to controls vested in modern feudalism or modern emperors or modern dictators or modern oligarchs in these days. The very people under their iron heels will, themselves, rebel."

Standing in an amphitheatre near the tomb of the Unknown Soldier, the President denounced "unpatriotic efforts" which he said had been made by some Americans since the First Great War "to make us believe that the sacrifices made by our own nation were wholly in vain."

British Freighter Bombed by Plane Is N. Y. Report

New York, Nov. 11 (AP)—A distress call from the British freighter Balmore, 1,925 tons, saying she had been bombed by German planes some 300 miles west of Ireland and was in danger of sinking, was reported today in a message received in New York from the Japanese liner Fushimi Maru.

(There was no confirmation from any other sources.)

The Balmore's call gave her position as 52 north latitude, 17 west longitude, the message said. It was in this area that the 26,032-ton Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Japan was bombed Saturday, suffering slight damage.

The Fushimi Maru, carrying homeward-bound Japanese refugees from Britain, also heard the Empress of Japan's wireless report of Saturday's attack.

Flying School At Brantford Is Opened

Officials of the R.C.A.F. and from the Department of National Defence attended the opening.

CAPT. J. TREACY NOW IN TURKEY

Released by Rumanian Officials Who Held Him on Suspicion of Espionage

London, Nov. 11.—(CP Cable)—Capt. John Treacy, formerly of Chatham, Ont., who was held by Rumanian authorities on suspicion of espionage, has been released and, with his wife, is now believed to be in Istanbul, Turkey.

No charge ever was laid against Capt. and Mrs. Treacy and the actual details of their maltreatment by the Rumanian Iron Guard are not known here.

Capt. Treacy's release was effected by Sir Reginald Hoare, British Minister in Bucharest. Mrs. Treacy had been released several weeks earlier.

Capt. Treacy had been engaged as an engineer in the Rumanian oil industry for many years. He was one of a group of British subjects arrested in September following the finding of alleged secret documents and time bombs on British premises at the oil fields.

ROBBERS FAIL TO ENTER VAULT

London, Ont., Nov. 11.—(CP) — Robbers smashed into a small rock vault in St. Paul's Anglican Cathedral during the night, but failed in efforts to enter a larger strong room in adjacent Cronyn Hall, where Synod of Huron funds are kept.

Police said they had not learned whether the Cathedral vault contained anything of monetary value, outside of sacred vessels. Contents of the room were being checked this morning by Synod of Huron officials.

Detective Inspector W. J. McCullough theorized that one or more men hid themselves in the Cathedral after the evening service and later made their way to Diocesan offices. There was no evidence of entry being gained outside the building.

A large sledge hammer used to break a hole in the wall was found at the scene.

Vichy, France, Nov. 11—(AP)—In the only ceremony in German-occupied France marking the 1918 armistice anniversary, Chief of State Philippe Petain attended religious services for the dead today in Clermont-Ferrand Cathedral.

For the first time since the end of the first Great War, Armistice Day was not a holiday in France, now living under another armistice imposed by its foe of 1914-18.

Freighter Abandoned On L. Superior Reef

Munising, Mich., Nov. 11 (AP)—The Great Lakes freighter Sparta, aground on a reef in Lake Superior since Tuesday night, was abandoned Sunday after two days of pumping failed to free its water-logged hull.

The crew of 31 was taken off the 385-foot vessel and all the navigating equipment and values were removed.

The Sparta, owned by the National Steamship Company of Cleveland, went aground 14 miles east of here in a 60-mile-an-hour gale after her rudder had been swept away. The 3,832-ton vessel was upbound to Duluth without cargo.

Twin Babies Born, One in Covered Wagon Other in Snow Bank

Rimbey, Alta., Nov. 11 (CP)—Mrs. Thomas Edson Newton has twin babies born Friday, one in a covered wagon conveying the mother to hospital and the other 10 minutes later on a snowbank after the wagon upset, were reported "doing well" in hospital today.

The temperature was below zero and the snow a foot deep early Friday in this district, 80 miles southwest of Edmonton, when Newton and his 21-year-old wife started by automobile for Rimbey Hospital, 12 miles from their farm. Car trouble forced Newton to obtain a wagon and a team of horses and they were still eight miles from Rimbey when the first baby, a boy weighing three pounds, 11 ounces, was born.

Newton was giving his wife all his attention and the horses went off the road into a ditch and upset the wagon. Before the farmer could get his wife and infant back into the wagon, the second baby, a daughter, weighing five pounds, was born.

Another farmer, F. Selenisky, came to Newton's aid and they carried the mother and twins to Selenisky's home nearby.

Report U.K. Decides Against Protest Over Nickel Deposits

London, Nov. 11.—(CP Cable) The British government is understood to have decided against a protest to Moscow over the reported transfer of Finland's nickel deposits to Soviet Russia.

The attitude of the British Government, it is understood, was that it reserved the right to demand indemnity for the properties at some future date and it took no exception to the transfer momentarily, providing no metal is sent to Germany.

(At the time of the Finnish-Russian war last winter International Nickel Company of Canada had a concession to develop the nickel deposits in the Petsamo region of Northern Finland and had established some properties and staff there for the purpose.)

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES

Canadian Press Staff Writer

This 22nd anniversary of the end of the "war to end war" found Britain again under the furious German mass air attack as the Nazis retaliated for British air blows which included a raid on far-off Danzig.

Because of air raid danger armistice observances were not held in Britain but individuals stopped beside the cenotaph in London's Whitehall to deposit wreaths and stand bare-headed for the traditional two minutes silent homage to the first Great War dead. As they did so the sounds of this war came banging and snarling from the sky.

Far from the capital in a little Hampshire town lay the body of Neville Chamberlain, who died Saturday just a little more than a year after he spoke the fateful words that proclaimed Britain at war with Germany.

Chamberlain who humbled himself by making two flights to see Hitler in his efforts to preserve peace died with his last hope unfulfilled, a hope that "I may live to see the day when Hitlerism has been destroyed and a liberated Europe has been re-established."

The old man—he was 69 when he brought back from Munich what he predicted would be "peace in our time"—failed until Germany invaded Poland to realize that the man with whom he sought to bargain did not understand the first essential of a bargain, honesty.

When he did grasp that fact Chamberlain ceased to be an appeaser and acquired a bitterness that showed in his speeches before the House of Commons and in such utterances as his famous declaration shortly before the fall of France that "Hitler has missed the bus."

He was subjected to bitter criticism for his part at Munich, but many of his critics, recalling the frantic and inadequate preparations before Munich to withstand attack, realize that Munich gave an added year for preparation. Some contend insufficient use was made of that year, but if it did not produce the greatest possible amount of arms and aircraft, it did produce sufficient planning so that Britain was able to slip into a war economy with the least possible upset.

The succeeding year which has seen the fall of Denmark, Belgium, Holland, Norway, France and Poland, has shown an improvement in planning against new shocks. It seems pretty clear, for instance, that British authorities expected Italy's attemp to invade Greece, as they rushed help to the little kingdom with astonishing speed.

What part British soldiers have played in Greece has not been mentioned but the Greeks themselves, along the Albanian frontier, seem to have made a thorough job of routing the Italians and making a colossal fiasco out of their assault.

Italy shuffled its command in an attempt to halt the debacle and axis diplomacy got busy again, apparently in an effort to win Russian pressure against Turkey whose friendliness toward Britain and Greece irks Rome and Berlin.

The axis is believed extremely anxious to press eastward, through the Dardanelles, through Turkey, to the rich oil fields of Asia Minor which could supplement the inadequate supplies of the precious fuel which the axis now is able to obtain from Rumania. The anxiety may be heightened by yesterday's earthquake damage to Rumania's fields.

To give the United States public a glimpse of Canada's aerial progress, a corps of American newsreel cameramen arrived at Camp Borden where the R.C.A.F. put on a sham battle for their benefit. Flt.-Lieut. Rod MacInnis, department of information, R.C.A.F., points at the darting fighter planes while five U.S. cameramen start grinding.

Far from their harrowing experience, these survivors of the sinking of the Canadian destroyer Margaree are pictured as they recuperated beneath the sunny skies of Bermuda before going back to war. Only 34 men were saved when the Margaree was sliced in half by a merchantman which she was convoying. After the collision the after half of the destroyer remained afloat and it was from the half of the ill-fated warship that the survivors were rescued.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Trade winds! Many believe that these winds are so-called because they benefit trade or commerce; but no, the term "trade" once meant "step" or "track", and "trade wind" is shortened from the sea phrase "to blow trade", meaning to blow in a steady track or direction. These winds in the northern hemisphere blow from the northeast toward the equator, and in the southern hemisphere from the southeast toward the equator, or at least toward the heat equator. The climate of the ocean area of trade winds is remarkably equable, with clear skies. They are stronger in winter than in summer, and in the southern hemisphere because of the greater water expanse there, with consequently less friction.

Several Shopgirls Killed When Three Bombs Hit Building

(By William W. White)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 12.—(AP)—Four storeys up, stirred occasionally by the rain-laden wind, two women's coats still hung on their pegs today on what was once the wall of a blueprint shop.

Below a squad of workers dug through a huge pile of bricks, charred wood and tangled steel trying to find their owners.

Early last night Axis bombing planes struck the building with three bombs, killing many of the shopgirls who huddled there.

Fifteen persons— seven of them girls—escaped from the wrecked building alive. But the workers who toiled through the long night hours had little hope of finding alive any of the undetermined number still buried.

"We haven't heard a sound for hours", said one worker.

At dawn today, a cluster of drenched onlookers still watched the men digging.

"Horrible, horrible", a charwoman kept mumbling.

Once the workers shouted for a stretcher, but it was half an hour before they were able to extricate the crushed body of a woman. A crane was needed to drag a metal cabinet from her body.

Acetylene torches lent the only touch of brightness to the drab scene as Londoners passed, this morning, on their way to work. A dishevelled shop manager indicated the approximate location of the building's shelter so the diggers could concentrate there.

BOY OF 12 YEARS FLIES PLANE SOLO

Bobby Martin of Toronto Has Been Taking Instruction for Three Years

Toronto, Nov. 12 (CP)—Only 12 years old, Bobby Martin of Toronto has flown an airplane solo after taking instructions for three years.

Bobby took over the controls of a light plane at Barker Field yesterday, made a perfect take-off and landing after circling over the field. He had seven hours dual instruction with Fred Gillies before yesterday's flight.

Veteran airmen here said Bobby was one of the youngest, if not the youngest, person to fly solo. Civil aviation regulations will prevent him from obtaining his private pilot's licence until he is 17, but there is nothing to stop him from flying solo within three miles of the airport—and that's what Bobby intends to do.

MAIN NAVAL BASE OF TARANTO IS REPORTED RAIDED

British Circles Make No Reference to Raid on Gulf of Taranto by Airplanes

IDENTITY NOT GIVEN

Big Taranto Base is in Gulf Between 'Heel' and 'Toe' of Italian 'Boot'

Rome, Nov. 12 (AP)—Severe damage to an Italian warship by bombs dropped in an early morning air raid on Italy's main naval base at Taranto was acknowledged by the Italian high command today.

The raid presumably was made by British fliers.

In the war with Greece, which was ignored in yesterday's communique, the Italians reported they had smashed Greek attacks on Kalibaki, in Epirus.

(This was tantamount to an admission that the Italians have been at a standstill for 11 days on the Epirus front. Fascist reports Nov. 1 announced that an armored spearhead of Italian forces had broken through to the highway junction at Kalibaki.)

The high command claimed six planes which took part in the early morning raid were shot down, and some of their crews captured. In addition, it asserted, three other planes were believed to have been downed.

Situation of Taranto Base

The big Taranto base is in the large Gulf of Taranto, between the "heel" and the "toe" of the Italian "boot."

(There was no immediate report of such a raid in British circles, but it appeared likely that aircraft participating in such an action would be British or Greek planes based, perhaps, on Corfu or launched from the deck of the aircraft carrier Ark Royal which has been operating recently in the Mediterranean.)

EXPLOSIONS TAKE NUMBER OF LIVES

(By The Associated Press)

Explosions in the industrial north east of the United States today rocked two powder plants—one engaged in filling defence orders—and a factory manufacturing railway torpedo signals. From 11 to 21 persons were reported killed. An undetermined number were injured.

First of the blasts razed the plant of the United Railway and Signal Company at Woodbridge, N.J., about 15 miles from Manhattan, N.Y.—at least five were killed and more than a score injured," some critically, among the 100 employees, mostly girls. Communities in these populous area were shaken by the explosion.

Rumanian Quake Interrupts Farming, Peasants Called for Reconstruction

Bucharest, Rumania, Nov. 12.—(AP)—The German Army's preparation of military bases in Rumania was abandoned temporarily today as Nazi troops did rescue work among the ruins of homes, shops and factories razed by Sunday's devastating earthquake.

Reports from the quake-wrenched oil fields indicated damage to refineries was widespread, but enough oil remained in undamaged reservoirs to assure shipments for the Nazi war machine which can transport only one-third the amount it ordered.

Some observers, however, pointed out another handicap to the German program in the earthquake's partial disruption of agriculture. Much Fall ploughing is not yet completed, and thousands of peasants will be called from the land to aid in reconstruction, putting a drain on the nation's labor supply.

German soldiers and Rumanian Iron Guardists have recovered 260 more bodies from wrecked cities where the total death toll was estimated at 1,000 to 2,000 with untold others injured and homeless.

Once-beautiful Bucharest was scarred with charred ruins where fire followed the building-cracking shocks.

Fires broke out, too, in the tinder-box oil fields, but most of the blazes were small and brought under control quickly.

Chamberlain Died Confident 'We Had Turned the Corner'

Prime Minister Churchill Says Mr. Chamberlain's 'Only Grief Was That He Would Not Be a Spectator of Our Final Victory' Although 'Long, Hard and Hazardous Years Are Ahead'—Mr. Chamberlain's Strenuous Efforts for Peace Established That Britain Was 'Guiltless of the Blood and Terror and Misery That Have Engulfed So Many Lands'—Leaders Pay Tribute to Noble Statesman

London, Nov. 12 (CP)—Prime Minister Churchill told the House of Commons today that Neville Chamberlain died "with confidence that we had turned the corner, his only grief that he would not be a spectator at our final victory," although "long hard and hazardous years are ahead."

In tribute to his predecessor as Prime Minister, who died Saturday, Mr. Churchill said his strenuous efforts for peace had established that Britain was "guiltless of the blood and terror and misery which have engulfed so many lands and peoples and yet seek new victims still."

"Herr Hitler protests with frantic words and gestures that he only desired peace," the Prime Minister declared.

"What do these ravings and outpourings count before the silence of Neville Chamberlain's tomb?"

"United and With Clean Hearts"

The House responded with subdued approval when Mr. Churchill declared that "though long and hazardous years lie before us, at least we enter upon them united and with clean hearts."

"The only guide to a man is his conscience," Mr. Churchill said, "the only shield to his memory is the rectitude and sincerity of his actions . . . With his shield, however the fates may play, we march always in the ranks of honor.

"It fell to Neville Chamberlain, in one of the supreme crisis of the world, to be contradicted by events. To be disappointed in his hopes and to be deceived and cheated by a wicked man . . . We can be sure

London, Nov. 12—(CP)—The Admiralty said today a "substantial majority" of the ships in a British convoy attacked by a German surface raider last week had escaped.

A communique said:

"It can now be stated that a substantial majority of the ships forming the convoy attacked by an enemy raider last week eluded the raider. Further details are not yet available. It will be recollected that the German High Command claimed that the whole of this convoy has been completely destroyed."

WEYGAND REFUSES TO LEAVE AFRICA: NAZIS ANNOYED

ARMIES ARE STRONG

Berne, Nov. 12 (CP)—A speech and his failure to return to France have led foreign observers here to speculate on the activities in North Africa of Gen. Maxime Weygand, former Commander-in-chief of the Allied forces in France.

Weygand, it was hinted declined to return when Rear-Admiral Rene Platon Colonial Minister to the Vichy regime, flew to Africa to get him. Platon returned alone.

That action and a speech in which he declared France would not yield an inch of her African colonies was reported to have annoyed the Germans and embarrassed the Vichy administration which is trying to lay the basis for cooperation with the Germans in es-

Cartersville, Ga., Nov. 12.—(AP)—Body of Murray Upshaw, Jr., two-year-old child missing since Friday, was found in the woods near his North Georgia mountain home today.

Troops hurried to the scene to continue the investigation, and Major Sullivan said he had no further information and did not know the cause of the child's death.

Press Rejoices Over R.A.F.'s Victory Over Italian Planes on Monday

London, Nov. 12 —(CP)— The German air force, turned back from London in a brief morning raid, smashed at northeast coast towns early this afternoon.

The daylight attacks which seemed widespread over England followed a night of comparative calm in which the capital was undisturbed after 9 p.m.

Rescue squads, meanwhile, still were digging in ruins of buildings wrecked by bombs in yesterday's raids, notably in the debris of a blue print shop which housed a public shelter in which an undetermined number of persons had taken refuge.

A Channel gale kept Axis aircraft grounded most of last night and early today and Britons enjoyed a night of rest unbroken by air raid alarms.

The King Braves Air Raid to Award D.F.C. to Canadian

Guelph, Ont., Nov. 12 (CP)—Flt.-Lt. Herbert (Tubby) Robertson of the Royal Air Force, a veteran of five years with the R.A.F. at 22, said today the King braved an air raid to present him with the Distinguished Flying Cross, but he wouldn't say why he won the award.

Flt.-Lt. Robertson worked his way to England on a cattle boat to join the R.A.F. after graduating from Guelph Collegiate. He is back in Canada to take up a position as an instructor.

Ordinary Seaman Lloyd G. McKinnon Is Reported Missing

Ottawa, Nov. 12 (CP).—The Royal Canadian Navy issued its seventeenth casualty list today reporting Os. Lloyd G. McKinnon of Port Arthur, Ont., as "missing, believed killed in action". His widow survives.

The navy statement noted that McKinnon, member of the Royal Canadian Volunteer Reserve, "is missing, believed killed in action while serving as an anti-aircraft gunner in a vessel that was sunk by enemy action on Nov. 5, 1940."

The navy did not give the name of the vessel.

Today's list brought the number of dead and missing reported by the navy since the war began to 248.

Law and Order Must Be Observed Striking Drivers Are Warned

Toronto, Nov. 12 (CP)—Law and order must be observed in the dispute involving striking transport drivers in Ontario, Attorney-General Gordon Conant warned today after receiving reports of interference with working drivers in the Hamilton district.

One driver reported that he had been stopped by another truck during the night and another driver early today reported that he had been forced to stop five times by a truck which was trying to run him in the ditch near Burlington.

A sergeant and three officers of the Ontario Provincial Police are keeping an eye on the situation from Toronto headquarters, Mr. Conant said. "If they break the law they will have to take the consequences."

D. M. Fraser, General Manager of Martin Transports Ltd., claimed last night that 43 drivers and dockmen in Toronto, Hamilton, St. Catharines and Windsor had stopped work in a dispute between the company and the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs, American Federation of Labor. Fraser said the men had been replaced and the service was being maintained although there was "some difficulty" in pickup and delivery at Toronto.

Michael Nichols, Union organizer, said at Hamilton that the walkout involved 600 men employed by Martin Transport and Direct Winters Transport.

Wreckage of Ship Is Washed Ashore Near Muskegon

Lighthouse Keeper Reports Seeing Lights And Then Ship Disappeared

Muskegon, Mich., Nov. 12 (AP)—Wreckage from the 253-foot pulpwood carrier Novadoc, last sighted off Little Point Sauble during yesterday's Lake Michigan gale, washed ashore today at Juniper Beach near Pentwater, Mich. Shipping circles here said the vessel ordinarily would carry a crew of 16 to 20 men.

The Little Point Sauble lighthouse keeper reported he saw the Novadoc's lights at 8.30 p.m. EDT Monday, but that the ship disappeared.

Wreckage Includes Lifebelt

The vessel, built in 1928, has a gross tonnage of 1,934. It was enroute from South Chicago to Fort William, Ont., its home port.

The Novadoc is owned by the Paterson Steamship Lines, Fort William.

Fears for the safety of other lake vessels and their crews also rose in the wake of the lake's worst blow in years.

In southern Lake Michigan two fishing tugs, the Indian with a crew of five men and the Richard H. with a crew of three, were unreported, as was a coast guard power lifeboat with crew of four which set out late yesterday to search for them.

Winds that registered velocities as great as 78 miles an hour lashed shipping all over the Great Lakes. The lightship at Port Huron, on Lake Huron, was blown two miles from its position during the night, but was returned this morning.

Fort William, Ont., Nov. 12 (CP).—Paterson Steamship Lines officials here today said they had no confirmation of reports their 253-foot pulpwood carrier Novadoc had been wrecked in Lake Michigan.

Carries Crew of Nineteen.

They added that according to their schedule the Novadoc should not have been off Little Point Sauble at 8:30 p.m. E.D.T., Monday as reported by the lighthouse keeper there. The vessel was en route from Chicago to Fort William, its home port.

Montreal, Nov. 12 (CP). — The Montreal office of the Paterson Steamship Lines, owners of the pulp wood carrier Novadoc whose wreckage washed ashore today in Lake Michigan, said the vessel carried a crew of 19. A list of crewmen was not immediately available.

London, Nov. 12 (CP)—Britain lost 13 merchant ships totalling 65,609 tons in the week ending Nov. 3-4, the Admiralty announced today. Other shipping losses that week were reported as four allied ships totalling 5,403 tons and one neutral ship of 1,583 tons.

The total of 62,595 tons included the Empress of Britain, the Admiralty said, adding that excluding that large liner British losses amounted to 23,261 tons—"Whereas the enemy, with their usual exaggeration, claimed to have sunk in the week under review 134,900 tons of our merchant shipping."

(The average weekly loss of British, allied and neutral shipping since the start of the war has been 56,932 tons.)

Today's figure of 72,595 tons for the week, reduced to 23,261 tons when the Empress of Britain is excluded, is a modest figure in view of the extravagant claims made daily by the German High Command. In the previous week only 16,860 tons of shipping was sunk.

These figures suggest that the German U-boat campaign has lost a great deal of its effectiveness since the third week in October, when losses for the seven-day period were 198,030 tons.

Chinese Reports Say Chinese Take Yamchow

Hong Kong, Nov. 12 (CP)—Unconfirmed Chinese reports said today that Chinese forces had captured Yamchow, port on the Southern Kwangtung Province coast which has been used to supply the Japanese forces in Kwangsi Province. The Japanese have withdrawn from Kwangsi Province, insisting this move was voluntary.

BRITISH ARTILLERY POUNDS CAMP OF ITALIAN FORCES

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 12 (AP).—British troops have extended their successes in the region of Gallabat, frontier post in the eastern Anglo-Sudan recently recaptured from the Italians, a British communique declared today.

"Yesterday our troops operating from Gallabat inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy at little loss to ourselves," it said. It also told of heavy punishment inflicted by British artillery on an Italian camp, where gasoline and food stores were fired.

Yesterday's communique, denying Italian claims of its recapture, said Gallabat still was in British hands.

MONTHLY MEETING OF H. N. SOCIETY

The regular monthly meeting of the Holy Name Society was held in St. Michael's Academy at 2.30 on Sunday afternoon.

The business conducted was brief. Arrangements were completed for the Communion breakfast to be held in December. A motion was also passed for the purchase of a number of Requiem Mass books for the use of the congregation at funerals.

With the completion of other minor details the meeting was brought to a close.

FIRE DEPARTMENT SPENDS BUSY NIGHT

High gales fanning kitchen fires and furnaces into a blaze caused Belleville firemen one of the busiest nights in the history of the department as no less than six alarms were answered within the city between late afternoon on Monday until shortly after midnight last night. All were for chimney fires however, with little or no damage being reported in any of the cases, although it was necessary for firemen to return to the scene of one alarm an hour or so after their first visit as the chimney serving two stoves suddenly flared up again.

SERMON PREACHED BY MSGR. NICHOLSON

Rt. Rev. J. P. Nicholson, V.G., M.C., gave the sermon at the Mass in St. Michael's Cathedral, Toronto, celebrated by His Grace, Archbishop McGuigan, on the Day of Remembrance. This event was under the auspices of the Catholic Legionnaires, the Knights of Columbus and the Holy Name Society. A large congregation was present of returned veterans and members of the Canadian Active Service Force. The Cathedral Boys' choir rendered suitable hymns and at the Consecration the trumpeters sounded the salute.

At the conclusion of the Mass a procession led by the De La Salle Band, was formed and proceeded to the Cenotaph where prayers were recited and a short address given by Monsignor Nicholson. This was followed by the Last Post.

MRS. J. B. ROSS PLACES WREATH AT CENOTAPH

District war veterans and members of the local Army and Navy Veterans Association honored their comrades who sacrificed their lives during the war of 1914-18, as they gathered at the Belleville Cenotaph on Memorial Day to place wreaths. There was no official program on Memorial Day this year owing to the fact that the veterans marched with the Argylls to the Cenotaph on Sunday but quite a number of local veterans braved inclement weather to gather at the war memorial to say prayers and place wreaths in memory of their comrades of the last Great War.

The Provincial wreath, donated annually by the Province of Ontario, was placed at the Belleville Cenotaph yesterday by Mrs. J. B. Ross.

CALL FOR SKILLED HELP IS URGENT

All was quiet at the local Employment Service this morning with a call for experienced cooks for the Trenton Airport being the only new inquiries for help of any nature. The standing call for skilled help for vital war industries still continues to be as insistent as ever, however, stated officials.

Relief Costs Decrease 29% in Belleville In Past Nine Months

Among the twenty-seven cities of Ontario, Belleville stands 25th in the group in the matter of reducing relief expenditures according to an announcement made, today by the Hon. Eric Cross, Minister of Municipal Affairs and Public Welfare.

For the first nine months of the present year, relief expenditures in this city amounted to $31,786, a reduction of 29.0 per cent from the same period in 1939. Kingston was seventh in the group with a reduction of 48.5 per cent; Peterborough was 12th with 45 per cent; Oshawa 14th with 42.7 per cent, Toronto was 26th with 27.9 per cent.

Relief expenditures here for the first nine months last year amounted to $44,788. The expenditure this year took care of the 1.5 per cent of the population on relief.

As a group, the 27 cities reduced costs from $11,497,739 in 1939 to $7,421,222 this year, a saving of 35.5 per cent. This compares with a reduction of 34.6 per cent in the 44 towns and villages which spend more than $10,000 annually for relief and of this number 98 have shown decreased costs for the nine-month period. The entire group of 101 have compiled a reduction of 35.9 per cent with expenditures down from $15,669,124 in 1939 to $10,042,370 in 1940.

Italy Reverses Decision on Request Of United States

Rome, Nov. 12 (AP).—An authoritative source said today the Italian government could not guarantee the United States government safe passage of a ship repatriating American citizens from any European port.

The statement revised the version given out here by the same source yesterday of Rome's reply to an American request for such a safe conduct. The statement yesterday said safe conduct would be granted a ship leaving from an Italian port, but not from Atlantic ports.

In view of the revision, it was explained, the Italian and German attitudes toward the request are the same.

$2,500,000 Fire Loss At Athlone in Eire

Belfast, Northern Ireland, Nov. 12.—(CP)—Fire causing an estimated $2,500,000 damage destroyed the business district of Athlone, in Eire, today.

Buildings were dynamited to check the spread of the flames.

Athlone is a railway town about midway between Dublin and Galway.

HYDRO SERVICE IS INTERRUPTED

Trees and Branches Falling on Hydro Wires Cause Many Shorts

Hydro service throughout sections of the city and in many rural districts surrounding Belleville was interrupted on Monday evening as the worst wind and rain storms of the season brought trees and branches crashing down onto roadways and streets to bring down complete wire systems in some cases. On Bridge Street East a large tree crashed to the pavement, completely blocking traffic on that thoroughfare and bringing hydro and telephone service wires to the ground. Hydro service to residences east of Charles Street, on Bridge, was disrupted temporarily as was the street lighting system for the entire city. Public Utilities workers were out practically all night repairing the damage so that services would not be disrupted for any length of time.

In the rural areas, hydro service was disrupted around Read and Melrose, while the line serving Wallbridge district was also out. Employees of the Hydro Department were still out at noon today, working to repair these lines, and officials could not state as to the extent of the damage in these areas. No reports of other serious damage to buildings as the result of the gale had reached the city at noon, however.

City employees were busy yesterday in an effort to keep sewers open with no less than seven drains being reported clogged at one time or another. Other than plugged sewers, however, damage to city property was negligible, with the roofing paper being torn off buildings and small branches of trees being wrenched off by the force of the gale being the extent of the damage.

Remembrance Day Service is Held At Albert College

A solemn Remembrance Day Service held Monday morning at eleven o'clock in Albert College called to mind not only those former students who had paid the supreme sacrifice in the Great War, but particularly the three pupils who have already given their lives in the present conflict. They are Pilot Officer Lloyd George Bishop of the 73rd Fighter Squadron, R.A.F. who had attended Albert College 1936-37, and was killed in action in France, March 12, 1940; Flying Officer Robert L. Edwards, R.C.A.F., a pupil at the college during the school terms of 1929, 1930, and 1931 who was killed in England, August 26th, 1940 and Pilot Officer Alex. A. G. Trueman, Albert student of 1932-33, a member of the Royal Air Force who was killed in action in England in August 1940.

Dr. Bert Howard, principal of the College, conducted the service which was held most fittingly in Memorial Chapel. Members of the staff and student body were present. Mention was made of the thirty other students, staff members and graduates of Albert College who are now serving in His Majesty's Forces.

Miss Helen Glover sang in beautiful style "Land of Hope and Glory". The Last Post was given by one of the students, Carson Elliott.

POLICE COURT

"For such an offence this court could sentence you to two years in the penitentiary", Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., told T. E. Murray of the R.C.A.F. as he sentenced him to three months in the common jail. Murray appeared in today's local police court this morning for sentence after being convicted of assaulting P. C. Evans with intent to resist arrest and also as the result of being convicted of intoxication in a previous court.

"The man was admittedly drunk and did not know what he was doing. If he goes to jail he will lose his position with the Air Force", pleaded Robert McCulloch, local barrister appearing on Murray's behalf. His Worship stated the offence was too grave to consider a suspended sentence.

William Cameron, Herchimer Ave., youth, appeared on a charge of the theft of canned goods and other grocery sundries stolen from the Belleville General Hospital at various intervals. The goods stolen were valued at over $100.00. Cameron pleaded guilty but sentence was deferred one week in the absence of Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson. Richard D. Arnott, K.C., appeared on behalf of the accused and agreed upon the postponing of sentence when he learned his client would be admitted to bail during the period of enlargement.

An old offender appeared on a charge of drunkenness and pleaded guilty as charged. "I'll take the pledge right here if you'll let me off," pleaded the victim. "He might better take the cure, as he is a good mechanic when sober", interrupted Chief Kidd. His Worship remanded the accused for consideration.

Car Owners Warned Against Leaving Ignition Key in Car

In Toronto the City Council has passed a bylaw that makes it unlawful to leave the ignition keys in a parked automobile. The bylaw was brought forward following the increased number of automobiles being stolen in Toronto each succeeding year.

Some months ago Constable William T. Evans of the Belleville Police Department, removed the ignition keys of an automobile left parked on Front St., and watched for developments. Later the owner appeared on the scene and in no way appreciated the officer's effort at teaching lessons. However, the owner later admitted he had been negligible, when the officer proved how easy it would have been for a car thief to have driven away with his automobile.

Monday evening William Cook, well-known Belleville retail and wholesale tobacconist, parked his new Chrysler on East Bridge St. directly in front of his store, but alas he left the ignition keys in place. When he returned the automobile was gone and has not been recovered, despite a thorough check of all communities in Eastern Ontario. The vehicle carried licence plates number 52-N-31.

Oddly enough, Joe Legault, proprietor of a nearby confectionery store, saw two well-dressed men enter the car and drive away. "They both wore bowler hats and I thought one was Mr. Cook himself," Mr. Legault told police after the robbery had been reported.

In Guelph and other cities in Western Ontario the municipal police have been ordered to remove ignition keys left in parked automobiles and take the same to the police station. There has been a marked decrease in the theft of automobiles in communities putting this practice into reality, it was learned locally. "To leave the ignition keys in a parked automobile today is merely inviting trouble," Chief Kidd stated when commenting upon the question today.

In the meantime no reports of Mr. Cook's automobile having been recovered have been received by local authorities, despite the fact police authorities for one hundred miles around were notified of the theft less than thirty minutes after the vehicle was stolen. It was fully insured.

'Two-Toed' Pete Pays With His Life For Rashness in Embarrassing Hunter

"Two-toed" Pete, the grandpappy of all the wolves, which roam the woods near Bel's Lake north of Peterborough, and Charley Smith, veteran Apsley hunter, have something in common. They both like liver, and thereby hangs this tale.

"Pete" derives his name from the fact that during his roamings through his native habitat he has run foul of several man-made traps and on various occasions has left a toe behind as a souvenir for the trappers. The peculiar tracks made by the animal earned for him the soubriquet of "Two-toes."

Smith likes his liver so well that when in this particular hunting trip with a group of friends, he carried a package of his favorite food, garnished with onions in a bandana handkerchief which he attached to his braces where they met his trousers at the rear.

Hunting alone, Smith brought down a handsome buck deer, cleaned it and carefully removed the liver. His lunch eaten, he decided to carry the prized part of the deer in the bandana used to carry his lunch. He wrapped it up and carefully attached the bundle to his braces. He hung up the deer and started for the camp.

Going up a slight incline he suddenly felt a sharp tug at his braces. He felt the buttons of his trousers give way, and only prompt action on his part saved him from embarrassment. The sudden jolt upset the hunter and he sprawled his length on the ground. He thought at first he had become entangled with the branch of a tree, but his eyes nearly popped out of his head, when he gazed around him and saw "Two-toed" Pete grinning wolfish derision at him. In "Pete's" mouth was Smith's prized liver.

Smith cut loose with his .44 rifle and layed Pete low. In Smith's words he was "opened up like a department store catalogue."

Blood from the deer-liver had seeped through the bandana to the ground, and this trail was followed by "Pete" who selected what he thought was the proper time and place for the "hold-up."

"I didn't mind so much when he stole the liver" Smith said, "but when he took two buttons off my pants, that made me mad. I had to get two nails and attach the braces to my trousers otherwise I would have walked home like one of those Greek soldiers you see in the pictures."

Smith recovered the bandana and its contents. That night he had deer liver and onions for his supper.

Hagerman's Cheese Box Factory Destroyed by Fire; Cause Unknown

Home and Nearby Barn Saved After Heroic Work by Firefighters

PARTIALLY COVERED

Fire of an undetermined origin completely destroyed a cheese box factory, garage and store house owned by Mr. J. O. Hagerman, two miles west of Belleville, on the Trent Road, shortly after 2.00 o'clock on Tuesday morning.

The Belleville Fire Department was called to the scene of the blaze and with the help of volunteers were successful in saving the residence and the barn proper, but only after a determined fight in which the city pumper and numerous hand pumps were brought into play. During the height of the conflagration when it seemed as though both the residence and barn would fall prey to the flames, the fire-fighting force of the Trenton R.C.A.F. station stood by, ready to rush to the scene of the fire should their assistance have been deemed necessary.

Mr. Hagerman stated to Assistant Fire Chief Gerald Vance, that he had been away from home during the early part of the evening and had returned shortly after midnight. He said that there was no evidence of fire at that time, but shortly before two o'clock the lights had gone out and he noticed a reflection of fire in the window, and rushing out discovered his buildings to be ablaze.

Wood stock for making cheese boxes, which was stored in the factory and storehouse threw out a terrific heat as the flames leaped high into the air lighting up the sky for miles around. The reflection attracted the attention of motorists and traffic on No. 2 highway was congested near the proximity of the fire as transports and buses were stopped to permit their occupants to view the flames.

The stock in the factory and storehouse was almost a complete loss and the loss to Mr Hagerman will be considerable as it is understood the buildings and contents were only partially covered by insurance.

Crippled Children's Fund Benefits by Rotarian's Good Luck

A handsome contribution to the Crippled Children's Fund of the Belleville Rotary Club was made recently by Rotarian Harry Ackerman. Mr. Ackerman had purchased tickets on an electric refrigerator while attending a recent Shrine Convention in Toronto. To his surprise he was notified that he had won the prize. Not needing the appliance, he asked the officials in charge to dispose of it. With the resulting funds, Mr. Ackerman made equal contributions to the Shrine charities and the Belleville Rotary Club.

Britain Now Ready To Deal a Few Blows Against the Enemy

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Nov. 12 (AP)—Thousands of young men of this generation have joined the First Great War dead sleeping in Flanders' Fields, where the guns rumbled into silence just twenty-two years ago.

Amid the carnage of a new and more terrible war, memories of the hopes of perpetual peace which thrilled all mankind that first Armistice Day came back as mocking echoes. Yet for Britain there are glimpses of silver lining among the war clouds.

Unquestionably, the German-Italian allies, having loosed their war juggernauts against Britain east and west, are further from complete victory than when France fell only a few months ago. Britain has survived the first shock of attack and is striking back. Her little ally, Greece, has turned the edge of an Italian flanking thrust in the Balkans, against all odds. That alone revises the war picture imponderably in Britain's favor.

To cap it, nature has taken a double hand in the conflict. Earthquakes in Rumania have wrought grave damage, according to first accounts, to the vital Nazi-Fascist oil resources there, and to the railroad facilities for transporting the fuel to the battlefronts. The onset of winter storms in the Greek-Albanian border terrain makes Italian efforts to subdue the Greeks doubly difficult.

It will take time to reorganize and renew the Italian attack, time that Italy can ill afford as winter closes down on the battle area to limit mechanized warfare and air operations. And if the earthquake causes any interruption in the flow of Rumanian oil to Germany it will be a serious matter for Berlin. The Danube water route of transportation soon will be closed by ice. Rumanian rail facilities are inadequate at best and may have been crippled by the earth tremors.

The recent announcement that the United States would increase its material assistance to Britain was another item in the war balance that help strip this Armistice Day of some of its gloom for the bomb-blasted British people.

The natural disaster in Rumanian oil fields could prove the most important of these developments. The Greek stand, however, has more than a local significance. It dims Italian military prestige and renders the possibility of a native uprising against Britain in Africa remote. Instead, Britain is obviously preparing to take the offensive soon against the Italian invaders in Egypt.

By German invitation, Premier Molotoff of Russia has gone to Berlin to talk over Russian-Axis relations. It is notable, however, that predictions of great developments favorable to the Axis come from Berlin and Rome, not Moscow. That Molotoff intends to play the game in Russia's interest only cannot be doubted; and the happenings in Greece and Rumania put new trump cards in his hands before he even reached Berlin.

Russia is the great enigma in the war picture. German failure to draw her great eastern neighbor closer into the Axis orbit would be a critical diplomatic defeat at this stage. Hitler must have positive, not negative, results to show to offset developments unfavorable for the Axis elsewhere.

WILL NEVER SEE BABY

Halifax, Nov. 12—(CP) — A boy born in Halifax will never see his father, Gilbert Gordon, one of the ten Halifax men lost with the minesweeper Bras D'or. The baby was born Nov. 1, three days after the mother, the former Cecelia McNeil of Iona, a Cape Breton village, received the news that her husband was missing and believed drowned.

GARAGEMEN MEET TO DISCUSS TRADE

Members Discuss Feasibility of Adopting Flat Rate for Repairs

Increased attendance and a greater enthusiasm than has been displayed by the members in some time marked the November meeting of the Garage Operators' Association of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties as they held their regular dinner meeting at the Quinte Hotel on Monday evening.

In the absence of President Jack Trudeau, Mr. Bert Boyce, Vice-President of the local division occupied the chair and with his witty remarks and sense of humour kept the spirits of those present at high pitch throughout. A distinguished visitor at the meeting was Mr. Pat McPherson, General Manager of the Garage Operators' Association.

During the business meeting considerable discussion was heard relative to the cutting of prices by certain district garages when selling Prestone. The Canadian National Carbon Company were spending a great deal of effort in maintaining the regular price rates for Prestone, said Mr. McPherson, stating, that he was surprised at the elaborate system used by the company for controlling the price and for checking back through their dealers on every sale. "There was a gentleman's agreement between the Garage Operators' Association and the Prestone Company to uphold the price of this product, but unfortunately some garagemen do cut prices," said Mr. McPherson.

Discuss Labor Charges

There was also considerable discussion on the feasibility of adopting flat rate labor charges in this vicinity with several local men showing disapproval of the move, as it was held such rates as were listed in many of the labor manuals proved unprofitable to garagemen. It was pointed out by Mr. McPherson that the rates listed in many of the labor manuals had been adjusted to shop conditions in Toronto where every conceivable type of machinery was at the hand of the mechanic to help speed up his work, and admitted such rates may prove unprofitable if work was done without the use of such machinery.

The reports of the various committeemen, including a report of the last Directors' meeting held in London, was read by Bill Davies. The resignation of Mr. Davies as Secretary Treasurer was accepted and Mr. Orliff "Boiler" Lloyd was welcomed by Mr. Boyce as the new Secretary.

Mr. Ivan Scott introduced Mr. Frank Mills of the Willard Storage Battery Company who screened three movie reels giving construction and operating details of the storage battery, and showing the care necessary to assure long life and satisfaction from this essential part of the motor car. Reels showing the latest methods of salesmanship completed Mr. Mills' part of the program.

The appreciation of the meeting toward Mr. Mills for the showing of the educational reels was voiced by Mr. Boyce. Musical entertainment on the piano, with violin accompaniment was provided by Ray and Leslie Lennox.

Police Blotter

Sneak thieves entered the basement at the Belleville Yacht Club last night and stole a quantity of gum, chocolate bars and soft drinks from the canteen, which is situated in the lower part of the building. The robbery was discovered by James Cook, janitor of the club, who also operates the canteen concession. Today Detective Fred [illegible] investigated and found entrance had been gained by forcing a basement door, adjacent to the club canteen.

Car Sustains Fender Damage

G. L. Reid, Thomasburg, complained to police a motor car had backed out of a parking space on the west side of Front Street yesterday causing some damage to the fender of his automobile during a collision between the two vehicles. Mr. Reid was proceeding south. "I asked the other driver his name, but he merely drove away without comment," complained Mr. Reid as he provided local police with the licence plate number of the vehicle driven by the other person.

Duties of Police Varied

The duties of a small city police department are varied and interesting at times. For instance during the height of last night's terrific hurricane, that blew out of the south, Sergeant Arthur Booth answered the telephone at the police station. "My husband is away and the garage door is open. It's making a terrible racket being blown about by the wind and I'm scared," came the pleading voice of a woman in distress. Constables Arnott and Thomson drove to an Albert Street address and remedied the trouble. "All in the course of duty," remarked P.C. Arnott upon returning to report all was well on Albert Street.

Nine transients sought warm dry sleeping quarters, free from the season's worst rain and blow, at the police station last night.

Stirling and District

Oldest Orangeman in County, W.S. Martin, Stirling, Honored

Brief Religious Service and Presentation Feature Affair

Stirling, Nov. 12.—A fitting tribute was paid to Mr. W. S. Martin, well-known Stirling resident, when on Sunday last the County Executive Committee of the Loyal Orange Order gathered for a brief religious service and presentation in recognition of more than half a century of splendid service given by this prominent citizen to the organization for which in all those years he acted as County Treasurer. Now in his 93rd year, Mr. Martin is one of the County's oldest and most respected citizens having served in many official capacities. He was Reeve of Stirling village for fourteen consecutive years and County Warden in 1896. Born in Picton the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Martin, he came to Stirling at an early age where he spent all his useful life. Prominent in church and Sunday School work he attended St. Paul's United Church regularly until his present illness would no longer permit it.

In 1909 Mr. Martin entered the Stirling branch of the Union Bank of Canada, which later became a branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, serving both organizations faithfully and well as manager until his superannuation in 1927. Among those present to honor him on Sunday were County Master Townsend; Francis Jeffrey, County Director; Arthur Wilson, County Secretary, L. Hagerman, Clayton Tummon, S. Tweedie, H. C. Martin and County Chaplain Rev. James E. Beckel.

A brief service was conducted by County Chaplain Rev. Beckel and when presented with a large box of fruit on behalf of the County governing body of the Lodge, Mr. Martin expressed his gratitude for the kindly gesture and expressed the wish that their fine work would continue in the days to come.

Personal Items

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Conley, formerly of Picton, have taken up residence in Stirling and will occupy the home recently vacated by Mr. and Mrs. Beatty of the Frankford Rd.

Miss Laura Mason of Springbrook spent the week-end visiting her brother, Mr. George Mason.

Visitors at the home of Rev. James E. Beckel during the week-end included Miss Jean Clarke, Mr. F. Hambly of Napanee, Mr. H. Burgess of Queen's University, Kingston; Mr. Boyd Beckel, St. Ola; Miss Gwendolyn Beckel, Campbellford, and Miss Winona Beckel of Peterboro Normal School.

Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Kerr of Hamilton, Ont., spent the week-end visiting at the home of Mrs. Martin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Martin.

Successful Bazaar Held

Living up to the enviable reputation established several years ago the ladies of St. James Roman Catholic Church, Stirling, and St. Francis Church, Frankford, combined efforts to provide a large crowd with a splendid supper at their annual chicken supper and bazaar held in the community service building on Wednesday and Thursday of last week. The two day event eclipsed all previous records and was recorded as one of the most successful in the history of the two churches.

On Wednesday evening the cooking ability of the ladies was placed on display as hundreds of people gathered for the supper. The artistically decorated tables were laden down with all sorts of tasty dishes and each guest provided with everything eatable they desired. A capable staff of committee workers were responsible for the preparation of the fine meal and the needs of the guests cattered to in remarkable fashion by some of the younger ladies well instructed in the art of serving. At the conclusion of the dinner a series of games of chance including wheels of fortune, bingo and others were well patronized by the guests who represented all parts of the district.

The management of the games was under the direction of several men thoroughly acquainted with their task and each carried out their duty in faultless fashion. All workers are to be congratulated for the apparent success of the event. A carefully planned program featuring visiting artists of outstanding ability from Belleville completed the entertainment on the first evening.

Contributions offered on the programme by Mr. Bruce Sills of Belleville playing musical saw selections and accordian solos were greatly appreciated as were the vocal selections by George Shepherd brilliant young singer and Harold Barrett. A touch of humour was given the evening by the elocutionary efforts of George Cornish, Edward Barrett and Bobby Moyer members of St. Michael's Band were also favourites with the crowd. Tap dance numbers and vocal selections by Barbara Bolti and Ronald Donovan were also enjoyed. Miss Margaret Saunders, Mrs. Grant and Mrs. Harold Barrett were the accompanists for the evening.

Lucky Draw Exciting

In the customary draw for prizes great interest was shown as each of the lucky names were drawn from the box with the following winners being acclaimed heartily. First prize $25.00 in War Savings Certificates, Mary Byrnes, Brockville, Ontario; 2nd prize an occasional chair, Miss Kay Molloy, Frankford; 3rd prize $5.00 in War Savings Certificates, Richard McAvoy; 4th prize, Gerald Morrison; Mystery prize, B Halton; Hamper of apples, Miss Mary Farrell; Cushion, Jack Sheridan; Pair of socks, M. O'Brien.

On the second evening the festivities continued with the hall filled to capacity as merrimakers danced until the small hours of the morning to the fine music supplied by one of the districts leading dance orchestras.

Remembrance Day Observed

In dreary, dismal, rainy weather fittingly characterizing the emotions of those in attendance, Stirling residents gathered in large numbers to honour those who paid the supreme sacrifice in the first battle for freedom and democracy. The assembly was held at Stirling High School and the service conducted in the Community Theatre under the direction of Mr. C. I. Hatton, President of the Stirling Businessmen's Association, who acted as master of ceremonies.

Miss G. E. Poynter presided at the piano throughout the service.

Veterans of the Great War, recruits for military service in the present conflict, members of the non-permanent forces, Boy Scouts and Girl Guides all took their place in the parade to Memorial Park where wreaths were laid at the foot of the cenotaph. Lieut. Fred Houchin marshalled the parade from school to the hall where service took place and later to the Memorial Park for the laying of the wreaths. The Boy Scout division of the parade was directed by Scoutmaster Walter Savage. Misses Marie Luery and Irene Bronson, leaders in local Girl Guide work, were in charge of the girls assembled.

Message from Clergy

At the hall the service opened with the singing of "O God Our Help In Ages Past." Rev. A. M. Laverty, B.A., B.D., of St. Paul's United Church read the Scripture lesson and led in prayer. The address was given by Rev. Leslie Harding, rector of St. John's Church of England.

Basing his thoughts on the text "Blessed are the Peacemakers, for They Shall be Called the Children of God," Rev. Harding stated: "Today we observe the sacrifice made by those who gave their all for a world-wide lasting peace, yet even now we are in the midst of another great struggle for its defence. Peace shall not come through strength in armaments and manpower alone. But by a steadfast hold on things Christian and righteous. The power of God is on the side of right and miracles will again give the righteous cause triumph over evil. Canada should give with all her strength of manpower and material in this great struggle, but individually we must cleave unto the right; pray earnestly and live that those prayers may be answered by God to a people striving to defend His way of life. Then shall come peace to a war-torn and weary world."

Dr. Walt then read the list bearing the names of those fallen in the war of 1914-18 and following another hymn and the singing of the National Anthem those taking part re-assembled for parade to the park and cenotaph. The customary two-minute silence was observed with Trumpeter James Ward of the 2nd H. & P. E. Regiment sounding Reveille and Last Post.

At the cenotaph a wreath from the mothers of veterans was laid by Mrs. McConnell and one from the local veterans of the district placed at the cenotaph by Mr. George Heasman. The flag was raised from halfmast at the climax of the impressive ceremony which was largely attended.

WILLIAM RANKIN IS OLDEST COURT CRIER IN CANADA

86 Years of Age and for 25 Years Has Attended as Supreme Court Official

SAW MANY CASES

"Oyez, Oyez, Oyez", the first lines of the familiar court cry rang through the Court house here recently. The high-pitched voice of the crier hesitated, then stopped. A whispered prompting, and the "cry" carried through to a successful conclusion.

Two fingers suspended in the air momentarily, William Rankin, revered court crier for the City of Belleville uttered the closing words "God Save the King" and sat down.

William is eighty-six years of age, the oldest crier in the Dominion and exceedingly proud of the fact. He is as essential to the opening of court as is the judge himself or the jury. Without his familiar intonation, the legal picture would not be complete.

What if he does forget an occasional word or phrase. It matters little to court officials who smile, and wait until the end of the cry. Recently in Supreme Court, William's momentary lapses of a memory that has stood him exceedingly well for over four score years, drew a smile from the Bench.

"Twenty-five years, I have been the court crier here". William shakes a grey-thatched head and smiles in defiance of contradiction. "Tell me where there is another in Canada, who is 86 years old, and does the job like I do?" he will ask.

Many Murder Cases

William has witnessed all kinds of criminal and civil cases since he first learned the famous "cry" 25 years ago. He has heard six murder trials, the famous Point Anne hammer murder, the Barry case, Vermilyea, Moon, Thain and McFarland.

But the voice that now opens His Majesty's courts of justice here, was well-known years ago in the north woods where lumbermen felled the monarchs of the forest. There in the timberlands of Mayo County, William and three stalwart sons, brought the majestic pines and other woods crashing to earth. For thirty-three years, he was in the employ of the S. J. Booth, famous Ottawa lumber magnate.

He was born in Lanark County, and when a young man moved to the North Hastings community. Twenty-five years ago he came to Belleville where he now resides at 20 Forin Street.

Asked how he received his appointment of court crier, he will shake his head and laugh. "Darned if I'll tell you the answer to that one", he will smile, "but I'll say this I got the job before the darned Tories knew what it was all about".

Liked By All

William is as punctual as a stenographer going to a new job. Every morning he takes his seat in the courtroom well ahead of the scheduled time. He is friendly, amiable and a general favorite with all court and jail officials. Counsel for defendants and plaintiffs in the various cases know William well. There is little chance of them forgetting to pay the owner of a remarkably retentive memory, his fees.

First Bottle Convinced Him Syntona Was Great Medicine

Brought Relief From Dizzy Spells, Rheumatic Pains in Legs and Ankles. Conditions Often Due to Faulty Action of Stomach, Liver, Kidneys or Bowels.

All around us are grateful men and women who have used Syntona and found it to be just what they needed to put new energy in their rundown systems and to relieve conditions that are due to faulty assimilation of food and poisonous waste matter in the system. Today, we quote the experience of Mr. Edward Coker, Ancaster, Ontario, as reported only a few days ago:

"In the last few years I was subject to dizzy, bilious spells. Often when I got up in the mornings everything seemed to spin around and I felt sick and light-headed. I had rheumatic pains all through my legs. My ankles got sore and swollen and often they were so bad I could hardly walk.

"I am a great believer in natural herbs, so when I read about all the herbal ingredients in Syntona, I decided to try it. Well, before one week passed I began to feel better. The dizzy spells left me completely and that rheumatic condition in my legs and feet began to clear up. Now I am feeling fine once more. I sleep better and I awake mornings feeling rested and ready for the day's work."

If you who read this suffer with disorders of the stomach, liver, kidneys or bowels, or any of their long train of distressing symptoms, such as headaches, backache, nervousness or tired, irritable feelings, make up your mind to begin taking Syntona today. It is fine for the whole family at this season.

In Those Days They "Took Chances"

WHAT a thrill it was in the old days to watch a skilful telephone lineman spur his way to the top of a "big stick". Sometimes he put on quite a show—regardless of his own safety... accidents each year ran as high as 60 per 1000 plant workers.

But those days are gone forever. Carefully planned accident prevention methods have been adopted, "safety first" preached. Today accidents per 1000 have fallen to one-sixth their former figure. Telephone men realize that accidents are costly—to themselves, and to telephone service.

What's more, over 90% of all Bell outside plant workers are skilled in First Aid. Working along our highways, they have been on the spot when many accidents have occurred; their expert ministrations have resulted in saving precious lives.

Records over past years illustrate what can be achieved when workmen are conscious of the need for avoiding unnecessary risk, and of being competent to act wisely when accidents do occur.

Now They "Take Care"!

GREEKS LIKE ANCIENT HERO ROUND UP CENTAURS

Old Greek mythology comes to life in earnest. The Fascist Centaur Division, which uses a name out of the Grecian folklore, is smashed up at the foot of the Pindus Mountains just as the Greek-hero Herakles killed the ancient mythical centaurs or drove them to the foot of these very hills. The old centaurs then faded from folklore and were no more.

Mussolini made a mistake when he let that division of Fascists call themselves the Centaurs. For Centaurs is a Greek name for creatures half man and half beast, supposed to have lived in early Greece long before the dawn of history. They were believed to have dwelt in the wilds of Thessaly in Northern Greece. Now the ancient Greeks were fond of portraying in their matchless works of art a legendary battle of the centaurs and the retainers of a king whose bride the centaurs tried to capture. The legendary Greek hero and strong man, Herakles, who put an end to centaurism was known as Hercules to the Romans, whom Mussolini likes to quote. It was Herakles who gave his name to the great rocks at the Straits at Gibraltar, known to the ancients as the Pillars of Herakles or Hercules.

Mussolini cannot blame the Centaur division for choosing a high sounding name but he should have changed their name when he decided to fight the Greeks. But perhaps he thought he could frighten them by this name of legendary monsters but his Centaurs have proven that they did not cause any more concern to the Greeks than the mythical centaurs did to their oldtime hero, Herakles, who killed them off or hustled them into lives of no usefulness in the Pindus hills.

The 15,000 men in the Fascist Centaur division have been broken up, whole units of the division having been annihilated according to word from Athens. The name has not helped the Italians. It may even have impelled the Greeks to settle the would-be invaders and the aggressors who called themselves Centaurs. No doubt the Greeks love nothing better than to catch the Fascist division carrying the old Greek fable into the modern world war. To the Greeks centaurs are myths, that is all, and the Italian 'Centaurs' a crushed army division.

The word centaur sounded ferocious but a mere title cannot win a battle. The highsounding word and the bombast of Mussolini never won a battle. It has probably lost him battles, it has lowered Fascist prestige.

The Greeks of old developed one of the most marvellous folklores so fertile was their imagination and so keen the Greek spirit of inquiry into all the manifestations of life. The myth of the Centaurs probably arose from some herdsman on horseback, who being seen by individuals unacquainted with the use of the horse, was supposed to form together with the steed one integral body. In time ancient Rome adopted a great deal of the Greek mythology for the Romans did not possess the fine imagination of the Greeks and so the legend has come down to the modern Italians and then Mussolini found the word centaur. Before choosing that name for one of his crack divisions he ought to have assured himself that there would be no war with the Greeks who really had what might be called a copyright in the ancient world on this fable of the half-man-and-half-horse creature. But as it happened he went to war against Greece and he sent his Centaurs against the Greeks in the very district where the fabled centaurs were slain or driven away.

Mythology has played a strange prank with Mussolini. But the fate of the modern Fascist Centaurs is no myth, no prank. It is a stern military reality, a triumph for the Greeks and a crushing blow at Fascist prestige and power.

STORKS TELL ON NAZIS

Everyone has heard of the storks which visit in their northern migrations many parts of the continent of Europe including the Netherlands and very rarely Britain, though once they were frequent visitors.

The stork is well known because of its size and its nest, which is often built in church spires or on housetops and helps to mould the roof outlines of some towns and villages. And the stork is a friend of man for it destroys reptiles, small mammals and insects and devours offal. It is famous because of its red beak and legs.

Now these storks migrate from such countries as Holland 7,000 miles a year. Many go to South Africa where dwell members of a race whose homeland was the Netherlands, namely the Boers, whose ancestors came out in the seventeenth century to found the South African colonies. Though hundreds of years separate the Boers from their ancestral country, they have racial memories of the old land from which their fathers came. And especially so in the case of the migration of storks, which visit both the Netherlands and South Africa.

Now some storks migrate between these two countries. A week or more dispatch told of Boer farmers finding some of the storks visiting Africa hail from Holland and some are winged messengers from the people of distant Holland. One message said that the German occupation of the Netherlands is "just hell," while another bird's message read "the Dutch people are dying under injustice."

The crime of the Nazis in Holland will out. Nazi tyranny cannot be locked from the world which is free because the Nazis put the Dutch people under a merciless regime. The Dutch find a way to tell the truth, despite the Nazi Gestapo. The Boers of South Africa and people in other parts of the world will take the storks' messages as one hundred per cent truth every time.

Legend and fairy stories tell of birds and animals bringing to light crimes and exposing criminals. These storks have helped to expose the Nazis' leaders and their crew.

Ancient System Passes

From the Huntingdon (Que.) Gleaner.

It was undoubtedly a welcome announcement to many tax-payers in the district of Beauharnois that seigniorial dues in Quebec are to be discontinued. This system has been existent in this Province for 300 years. While we know of no one who pays these dues around Huntingdon there are quite a number about Ormstown and from there on to Montreal, the district being part of the old Seignory of Beauharnois. The provincial government will pay an indemnity of $2,000,000 to the few remaining seigniors or landlords in lieu of the yearly rent.

Seigniorial tenure was introduced into Canada during the French regime and was an outgrowth of the feudalism of the Middle Ages. The idea of it was that the weak man placed himself under the protection of the strong man and rendered certain services in return for the protection he received.

In France this system had given rise to grave abuses, since the seignior had already, when Canada began to be settled, laid greater stress on his privileges than on his obligations; so the seigniorial system in France was destined to become one of the chief causes of the French Revolution. Curiously enough, however, because of the primitive conditions prevailing in the New World, it had a new lease of life in Canada.

One of the most interesting seigniories in this country was that of Louis Joseph Papineau, the rebel of 1837, on the Quebec side of the Ottawa River, some 40 miles below the Dominion Capital, whose manor house is preserved intact.

The abuses which made the system so unpopular in France did not arise in Canada. But after the British conquest the English law of free and common socage came into effect in those districts which had not been granted under seigniorial tenure, and the French system gradually became an anachronism. Moreover, with the advent of the British forces the seigniorial system lost its value as a defence measure and it was abolished by the Canadian Legislature in 1854 under an arrangement whereby the seigniors were to be compensated for the loss of their rights.

Full advantage was not taken of this Act, with the result that the remnant of the old system which still exists in Quebec now yields to the new order.

Why All Drugs or Extracts Are Not Taken by Mouth

Some may find it hard to understand why so many remedies such as drugs and extracts have to be injected into the skin or into a vein, while other drugs taken by mouth are quite effective.

There may be some who think that physicians advise the hypodermic use of drugs or extracts so that the patient will have to come to the physician's office or the physician visit the patient. What these individuals forget is that once the effect of a certain dose of a drug or extract is known to the physician, he is quite willing to allow the patient to use the hypodermic needle himself. For instance, there is hardly one case of diabetes in a hundred who does not give himself injections of insulin one to three times a day.

A number of articles have appeared in the medical journals about the use of pollen extract for hay fever taken by mouth instead of by injection. While here and there a physician reports some success, the great bulk of evidence, keeping in mind the amount of pollen in the air each year, shows that ragweed pollen by mouth is far from being as effectve as by hypodermic injection.

For the past few years, investigators have been trying to produce an insulin that can be taken by mouth, thus doing away with injections. Among these investigators is Dr. J. C. Collip, McGill University, who had much to do with getting insulin into a safe condition for human use. From reports to hand, the use of insulin by mouth may be available at some future time.

For those who cannot or will not undergo the hypodermic method of taking insulin, Dr. B. Brahn, in The Lancet, London, outlines a method of getting insulin into the blood by placing suppositories containing insulin into the rectum or lower end of the large intestine. Tests were carried out on 150 rabbits and on 150 healthy human beings. The action of the insulin sets in soon after the suppositories are placed in the rectum and reaches its full power or strength after thirty or forty minutes, at the end of which time the power of its action drops rapidly. Larger doses of the insulin increase the intensity of the reaction and also prolong it.

The insulin does not have to pass the digestive juices by this method. It is because the digestive juices destroy or lessen the effects that some drugs must be taken by injection.

In Good Health

Friends in the Dominion will be glad to learn that the health of Canadian troops in England is good, their surroundings comfortable, and the men themselves physically fit from their intensive training and ready to weather the winter months.

Officers of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps have expressed the belief that there should be less sickness among the troops in England this winter than there was last winter, which was unusually severe there. Health records reveal that the rate of sickness among the men is slightly lower than even what is recognized as normal, and the army medical men hope that this happy state will prevail.

One favourable circumstance is that the Canadian troops are not concentrated in such a small area as they were last winter. Their living quarters are better, spread out more, and their new billets are carefully supervised. Much attention has been given to spacing and ventilation. All these factors should help to ensure continued good health, even during the coldest weather.

Men of the First Canadian Division found it difficult to cope with the English weather last winter, as they were not used to its vagaries, especially the dampness, which many of them found trying. But they gradually became acclimatized and learned how to dress for warmth and dryness. Thus having found a way to protect their health, these men passed on this knowledge to their "buddies" of the Second Canadian Division, with beneficial results. Their medical officers therefore look for a lower incidence of respiratory maladies, such as the common cold.

An important element that has contributed to the well-being of the men is the improvement in their billeting; most of them are living in houses of small towns and count themselves fortunate to share in such a cheerful environment during war-time. Apart from the sanitary facilities, which are reported to be good, this contact with home life makes for a pleasant interlude in the rigours of military training and has an effect on the mental attitude of the troops that keeps them happy and contented. They are able to go to the movies and enjoy the many entertainments provided for them by kind civilians. Taking everything into consideration, the Canadian men in England appear to be well taken care of, treatment for which both they and their friends in Canada are grateful.—Hamilton Spectator.

Birth of the Spitfire

By ARTHUR LAMSLEY

Britain's "Spitfire" fighter was really born 15 years ago! It began its amazing career in 1925 as Supermarine S4 monoplane, designed and built to take part in the Schneider Trophy race off Baltimore, U. S. A., and piloted by H. C. Baird. The 'plane, after setting up a record of 226 m. p. h., crashed in a test flight before the contest.

Two years later the Air Ministry took up the Schneider Trophy challenge through the Royal Air Force. In the contest off Venice Flight-Lieutenant Webster won the Trophy for Britain in Supermarine S5 with a speed of 281.65 m. p. h.

Flying Officer Waghorn, R.A.F., won the Trophy again in 1929 in an improved Supermarine S6 at a speed of 328.63 m. p. h. During the same year I watched Squadron Leader Orlebar, now Director-General of Training at the Air Ministry, create a world record of 357.7 m. p. h. with the same machine.

Came 1931 — the last of the Schneider contests when Britain won the Trophy outright, with three successive wins.

The day of the great race arrived, September 12. But what a day! Visibility was reduced to about a mile with blinding rain and mist, and the wind howled half a gale. A more unfriendly day for high speed racing could not be imagined. The rules provided for unfavourable weather, and the international racing officials abandoned the race till next day.

Sunday, September 13 — unlucky number to the superstitious, but the luckiest day in British aviation — dawned a magnificent day, sun-flooded and with a visibility of over 15 miles. Huge crowds of spectators lined the shores of South Hampshire and the northern coast of the Isle of Wight.

In the testing area off Calshot Castle in Southampton Water a small silver seaplane waited near the starting line, rising and falling uneasily on the short, choppy waves. One o'clock came. A gun boomed! A dull roar followed immediately, and a great splash of spray told that Flight Lieutenant Boothman, R. A. F., England's first choice of pilot, had taken the air in Supermarine S-6B.

His mighty engine, sensitive to the touch of his fingers, roared as the seaplane took off, circling at about 150 ft., then landing gracefully, skimming the shimmering blue water like a great gull. It was a magic moment. The crowds within sight gasped as they watched the seaplane again rise suddenly when Lieutenant Boothman opened his engine full throttle and flashed the starting-line into the speed course of seven rounds totalling 217 miles.

What appeared to be a silver bird dancing in the sunlight was the seaplane banking round the first pylon off Bembridge. Across the open sea it dashed to West Wittering, off Chichester Harbour, rose higher, swooped down round the next pylon and on along the 14 miles' leg of the course fringing Southsea and Portsmouth towards the pylon in the Solent.

Lieutenant Boothman flew superbly. His machine was steady as it hurtled through the air at 343 miles an hour! He shattered the world's lap record in this first round.

Round after round he flashed by the spectators, flying so low that his figure could be seen crouching in the cockpit. The crowd could never have realized a fraction of the colossal strain on the pilot in this dash through the air, faster than any man had ever flown in a distance flight.

In exactly 38 minutes 22 seconds, at an average speed of 340 m. p. h. Flight Lieutenant Boothman won the Schneider Trophy for Great Britain, and presaged the "Spitfire" fighter.

A few days later Flight Lieutenant George Stainforth in the same winning monoplane created the world's record of 407.5 m. p. h., in a series of dive tests from a height of 15,000 ft. into a measured mile in Spithead.

The "Spitfire" had arrived! All the experience gained in these Schneider Trophy contests was embodied in the production of the single-seater fighter which was to become the wartime terror of the air. It was powered with Rolls-Royce engines designed by the late Sir Henry Royce, who at the age of 11 sold newspapers on the streets of his home town.

Only 30 years old when he designed the first Supermarine S4, he laboured unceasingly, with undaunted courage against failing health, for a dozen years during which he successfully re-designed his first creation and made it possible for a British machine to attain a world record with a speed of 407 m. p. h.

It was a great blow to British aviation when he died suddenly at the early age of 42, a few months before the delivery of the first fighter Squadron of Spitfires to the Air Ministry in July 1938.

Designer Mitchell, although born at Stoke, Staffordshire, made his home in Hampshire, and the "Spitfire" is a Hampshire machine, created, perfected and produced in the works on the northern shores of Southampton Water.

Over 1,000 years ago King Alfred founded and built the first British Navy on this same bit of Hampshire coast. Alfred's ships cleaned up the invading Danes in a West Solent battle in 897 A. D. and established the beginning of British sea power. "Spitfire" fighters, arriving 1,043 years after, are to-day shooting down invading German bombers in the skies over these same historic English waters.

Recently over Spithead and the Solent it might almost have been a repetition of the Schneider Trophy races when squadrons of "Spitfires" were hurtling through the air after German bombers, sinking one every minute with the fire from eight machine guns.

History repeats itself to those who invade Britain's shores.

Life in Modern Buenos Aires

By TEMPLE MANNING

LIFE in Buenos Aires is gay and varied. Up to a few years ago, one could travel far without meeting anyone who had visited B. A. But now, a trip down to the Argentine is a mere nothing and there are countless repeaters who are as familiar with the Avenida de Mayo, the Calle Florida and Hippodromo Palermo as they are with Fifth Avenue, Park, Belmont or Santa Anita. Visitors to Buenos Aires soon get the tempo of life in this charming city, and become part of life of the town.

Everyone goes to the races there. Hippodromo Palermo is like Longchamps used to be when Paris was Paris. The centre of social life is the carved marble pavilion of the Jockey Club, but those who don't enter the sacrosanct club headquarters have just as good a time. If you are a polo fan, then the good people of B. A. will take you to their heart—and out to Hurlingham, the great polo club. Named for the great club just outside London, Hurlingham with its ivy-covered clubhouse and tea served on the lawn, is forever England.

Polo Tops in Sports

At Hurlingham you'll see incredibly fast and exciting games, for the Argentinians are amazing riders, and polo is the real sport of the country. Come summer and everyone is in the swim! There are big doings at the Yacht Club and Mar del Plata gets the resort crowd. There's also fine swimming across the river, in Uruguay. Friends will want to take you to Rio if you are there in August or September. Distance is nothing, for virtually everyone flies.

Tigre is a delightful resort, a short run out of Buenos Aires. The Parana Delta is broken into thousands of little islands separated by small rivers and it is marvelous for water sports, especially sailing and rowing. People live in cottages and bungalows and life is pleasantly informal. The scenery is marvelous, and somehow the whole picture is reminiscent of the Thames at Maidenhead or Henley in the good old days. That's the charm of Argentina though—it is forever reminding the visitor of some other part of the world.

Verdant parks abound.

Great Rancheros

There are districts that look for all the world like Switzerland, while in the Cordillera, one thinks of the Norwegian fjords. Everywhere, though there are great rancheros and the relative merits of the Shorthorn or Angus are gravely discussed. For cattle is one of the great sources of wealth in Argentina.

The real life of the country is lived not in Buenos Aires but on the estates. One drives across treeless plain for mile on mile with only glimpses of grazing cattle and galloping ponies. Then suddenly, after thousand and thousands of acres of cattle grasslands and wheat fields, one comes upon a great wooded park and an avenue of superb trees leading to a house that may be a French chateau, a baronial castle or a Tudor manor house. The hospitality is overwhelming with marvelous riding, swimming, polo, wild goose and duck shooting. As for the life on the estancias, it is feudal in its best conception; something that one must experience, for any description of it would be colorless.

Stewart Says—

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Canadian Columnist

Washington diplomacy's unmistakable impression is that Herr Hitler's and Signor Mussolini's tremendous effort to consolidate all continental Europe against Britain hints strongly that they're dissatisfield with the conquests they have scored thus far at the expense of their neighboring countries on the old world mainland.

That is to say, they've overrun France, Holland, Belgium, Denmark, Norway and most of the Balkans, besides extinguishing Poland, but they haven't assimilated their inhabitants. The beaten peoples are as anti-Axis now as ever they were; or probably more so, from rage at having been beaten. At least, that's the state department's opinion, based on reports it receives from over the Atlantic.

If they'd converted, to their side, the dwellers on the soil they've occupied, of course these folk would be an Axis asset. But if they have to be rigorously policed all the time, to keep them under subjection, naturally they're a liability and a worry. This latter is the case, according to accounts from the war-torn continent.

It's realized that the lands the Axis partners have seized possession of undoubtedly provide them with excellent bases for operations in the direction of John Bull's island. They also are sources of supplies, available for the Axis' confiscation. However, it takes force, or the threat of it, to do the confiscating, and that's a distraction from the Axis' other efforts.

Wide Discontent

In short, Adolf and Benito are assessed as having a certain amount of disaffection in their own respective countries and close to 100 per cent. of it in the democracies they've vanquished—temporarily, anyway. Such an underlying mass of violent discontent, if it exists, as competent observers believe it does, is seen from Washington as an insecure foundation for the dictators to build on.

The Vichy government of France, to be sure, seems to be fairly effectively dominated by the Axis, but official Washington's judgment is that the French generally don't acquiesce in it — that they'll go anti-Axis again the minute they think there's a ghost of a show for them. It's assumed that the Fuehrer and the Duce know this as well as anybody.

Spain isn't regarded as a dependable pro-Axis bet, either. General Franco, indeed, is under deep obligations to Adolf and Benito for helping him to demolish the Spanish republic, but if he gets into another war, to help them in return, the republicans are more than likely to grab the chance to break out once more. Should they do so, they still are strong enough to occupy all his attention.

Japan's of no use to the European Axis except indirectly. If the Japs were to get into a muss with the United States, it would keep the U.S. busy in the Pacific, doubtless to the Axis' advantage. They likewise must have a tendency to prevent Russia from turning anti-Axis and creating trouble for the Nazis and Fascists in the Balkans.

Russia's a deal of a problem. Nobody can have a bit of confidence in any deal the Soviets may frame up with anybody. They have their reasons for preferring Britain to the Axis, because their interests conflict with the Axis' in the Balkans. They have their reasons for liking the U. S. because they're traditional enemies of the Japs, and the U. S. is on strained relations with the Mikado.

Russia's Hopes

Comrade Stalin has a loose compact with Fuehrer Hitler and Duce Mussolini, but it's agreed that he'd scrap it readily for a good tie-up with Britain. There's talk of a deal between himself and Tokyo, but there's no question that he'd unload it in favor of a U.S. dicker to keep the Japs from bothering him. And some say it might pay the U.S., little as they like the Communists.

Southeastern Europe is so mixed up that it's hard to evaluate. It assuredly isn't solidly pro-Axis, anyhow. Turkey and Greece emphatically are not. All in all, the Axis has a lot of territory to cover that it can't but be extremely uncertain of. Which explains, as the U. S. state department reckons, its frantic attempt to get some unity into it, in the Axis' favor.

The Berlin and Rome press call it a "peace move", with a view to a "new world order". The U. S. state department's very sceptical that Berlin and Rome would be undertaking a peace move at present if they weren't suspicious that they're about at the end of their string—that they'd better hang on to what they've got already and be satisfied with it—for the present.

Another German Claim Of Many Ships Sunk Proves False as Usual

Lisbon, Nov. 12 (AP)—Five British ships, part of a convoy attacked by German bombers Friday, arrived safely in the Tagus River here yesterday, and some British crewmen said "not a single ship was hit this time."

(Nazi sources in Berlin claimeded Saturday that six British ships totalling 34,000 tons were destroyed in an attack off "the East Coast" and that two others totalling 9,000 tons also were sunk in the Atlantic.)

One captain said British warships escorting the convoy ordered the ships to disperse and because of that order and heavy fog he did not think any of the other ships bound for other destinations was struck.

CHRISTMAS LEAVE FOR THE TROOPS WILL BE GIVEN

Extra Leave Will be for Six Days but Not More Than 40 Per Cent Can Go At One Time

ONE-WAY FARE

Ottawa, Nov. 12 (CP)—National Defence Headquarters announced Monday that "as far as possible, consistently with the necessities of the wartime situation," Christmas or New Year's leave will be given to members of the Canadian Active Service Force serving in Canada.

Such extra leave will amount to six days, the Department's statement said, and not more than 40 per cent. of the strength of any unit, in any rank, will be granted leave at one time.

District officers commanding have been notified of their authority to grant leave on the basis of these directions, in conference where necessary with general officers commanding the Atlantic and Pacific army commands.

"It is expressly stipulated that whether leave can be granted will depend, in all cases, on the nature of the service being undertaken by the man concerned, the necessity of having certain types of training completed speedily, and the importance of the service from the point of view of the defence of Canada and of war conditions generally," the statement said.

"Undoubtedly parents and relatives are eager to see their soldier sons and friends at Christmas time and it is equally certain that soldiers are eager to get home at that season, but the exigencies of war have to be considered.

Cannot Interfere With Routine

"To allow every Canadian serving in the armed forces in Canada to go home at Christmas or for the New Year's holiday would involve the absence from their units of some men for as many as 14 days. Leaves of this length would result in a major disruption of training and unduly interfere with their important duty in the service of the state.

"The length of the period of leave has been given most careful attention with all the conditions in mind, and it is considered that six days for as many of the personnel of Active Service units who can be granted the privielge in the view of the responsible officers is the maximum permissible length of furlough. It should be borne in mind that troops which have been moved out of their home areas to more remote points were all granted embarkaiion leave before their departure and in addition annual leave is granted to all members of the armed forces."

The statement said all ranks on leave during Christmas and New Year's will be able to secure return trip tickets to their destination at the cost of a one-way fare.

HANSON TO OPEN DEBATE ON SPEECH

Parliament Convenes After a Long Weekend Adjournment

Ottawa, Nov. 12.—(CP)— After a long week-end adjournment Parliament meets again today to get on with the work of its new session.

In the House of Commons during the afternoon, the Conservative House Leader, Hon. R. B. Hanson, opens the debate on the address in reply to the speech from the Throne. He will be followed, probably in the evening, by Prime Minister Mackenzie King, who is expected to review development of the last six months in war and international affairs.

The House adjourned last Friday afternoon, after the address in reply was moved and seconded. The Senate adjourned almost as soon as the second session of Canada's 19th Parliament was opened by the Governor-General Thursday.

Day Behind Commons

As a result, when Senators assemble at 8 p.m. they will be a day behind the Commons. Senator L. A. David of Quebec, will move the address in reply in the Upper Chamber, and Senator Salter Hayden of Ontario will second the motion.

Yesterday Parliament and government departments observed Remembrance Day and there was little activity on Parliament Hill although most key officials were on the job.

It has been forecast in some quarters here that the debate to be started in the House today by Mr. Hanson and Mr. King will be a long one. It is thought likely all members of the Cabinet War Committee will take part, reviewing their departmental activities. Leaders of the three opposition groups also will be heard.

Mr. King has been suffering from a throat cold for the past few days, but expects to be in good voice by tonight.

Among those who were engaged in canvassing were Mrs. Thomas Beasley, Mrs. Thomas Forbes, Mrs. G. Wright, Miss Mazie Wright, Mrs. G. Taylor, Mrs. Henry Rawlins, Mrs. W. Dunlop. Poppies were also sold Monday morning previous to the public Remembrance Day service.

An auction sale was held at Consecon on Saturday with the entire proceeds going to the British War Victims' Fund. Residents of the village and district donated a large quantity of miscellaneous articles and these were sold by public auction by W. V. Zufelt. A nice sum was realized.

Members of Picton L.O.B.A. and L.O.L. paraded to St. Andrew's Presbyterian church Sunday evening for a special Remembrance Day Service conducted by the minister, Rev. S. R. Foreman. A cross on the altar was illuminated by a spotlight and during the service several poppy wreaths were placed at the base by the church and lodges. During the period of silence a picture of the National War Memorial was shown. The Last Post and Reveille were sounded by Woodrow Blakely. The choir gave Kipling's Recessional and Mrs. Foreman sang "There is no Death". The church was filled to capacity.

Members of Picton Post Canadian Legion and Ladies' Auxiliary paraded to Picton United Church on Sunday morning. A feature of the service was the dedication of a flag by Capt. the Rev. J. P. Reycraft.

Rev. J. T. E. Blanchard of Bloomfield, President of Bay of Quinte Conference of the United Church, conducted anniversary services at Northport United Church on Sunday.

Mr. Browne has been in business in the county most of his life and both are very widely known.

Remembrance Day Observed

Picton, Nov. 12.—Remembrance Day was fittingly observed in Picton with a public service being held at the monument. There was a large crowd in attendance and the parade was one of the biggest in years. Included were members of the R.C.A.F. who are stationed at the local Gunnery and Bombing School here, members of Hastings and Prince Edward regiment, C Company, Second Battalion N.P.A.M. and their bugle band, members of Boulter L.O.L. and L.O.B.A., the Canadian Legion and Legion Ladies Auxiliary, Boy Scouts, Girl Guides, members of town and county councils and officials, many war veterans wearing berets and medals.

The ceremony at the cenotaph was impressive in its very simplicity. There was no address. Two hymns were sung, led by Picton band, Rev. S. R. Foreman, Rev. G. H. Tranter, Capt. S. Rankin and Rev. J. B. Creeggan read Scripture or gave prayers. Capt. the Rev. J. P. Reycraft presided. Two minutes of silence were observed and the Last Post and Reveille sounded by members of the Bugle band.

Many wreaths were deposited. The Ontario Government wreath was placed by Mrs. S. P. Dodds, the Legion wreath by John Guest, Ladies' Auxiliary wreath by Mrs. James Hedges, Town wreath by Mayor Nesbitt McKibbon, Regimental wreath by Capt. W. G. Grothier, also many others including one in memory of Pte. William Campbell of Hastings and Prince Edward regiment who was recently killed overseas.

Khaki Closeups

(By Ross Munro, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the C.A.S.F. Somewhere in England, (CP)—Canadian troops are enjoying the finest Fall weather England has known in recent years. . . . Touches of frost have made groves of trees in the camp area vivid with color — almost as bright and variable as in the Dominion—which is considered unusual in England. You can walk for miles over gently rolling countryside where Autumn shades bring nostalgic memories to the men in khaki. The air is brisk and invigorating. The tempo of army life peps up.

Mud is going to be a pedestrian problem this winter. . . . Already it is heavy on some country lanes and ditches are spots to avoid. Four young officers, including Lord Tweedsmuir, a captain at Corps Headquarters, took to a ditch one dark night when a bomb whistled nearby. It was a sartorial disaster.

Those official Canadian military pictures of the troops you see are taken by Lieut. Laurence (Laurie) Audrain of Winnipeg. In peacetime he built up an international reputation as a photographer in England. Pre-Royal tour pictures of the King and Queen at Windsor were his. Now he shoots up the Canadian camp with his camera.

Lieut. D. G. MacDonald, of Toronto, a medical officer at Corps Headquarters, makes his calls in a fifteen hundredweight army lorry, the kind they call "jeeps" in army camps in Canada. Graduate of the University of Toronto Medical School in 1937, he is the most itinerant medico in the camp, hustles about in his truck from unit to unit ministering to his sick and keeping them in good spirits.

Romantic men these overseas Canucks. A number of soldiers are married or engaged to English girls. Cpl. William E. Nicholas of Victoria is one of the latest. He will marry Anne Grace Weeks on New Year's Day. H. Champman of Regina, ace Royal Canadian Army Service Corps driver, will be best man.

A Prairie infantry battalion has a new angle for its war diary. Lt. LaVergne Marr of Saskatoon writes it and also takes movie pictures of parades and the battalion's activities generally. The film is sent home after its premiere in camp here.

VICHY DISSOLVES ORGANIZATIONS

Industrial Syndical Corporations' Possessions Held at Government Disposition

Vichy, France, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Vichy Government dissolved today by special decree a group of industrial syndical organizations including the powerful Comite Des Forges Steel Trust and the General Confederation of Labor.

Also among the organizations dissolved was the Great Coal Trust (Comite Centrale Des Houilleres De France), which almost completely controlled the French coal industry.

To replace private corporations in the steel and coal fields, the Government created a series of committees.

The organizations' possessions were ordered held at the Government's disposition for a future decree.

Other syndical organizations dissolved were the powerful Employers' Association, the "Confederation Generalle Du Patronat Francais," the Labor Syndicate, the "Confederation Francaise Des Travailleurs Chretiennes" and the "Confederation Des Syndicats Professioneles Francais."

Committees Control Coal Industry

Two committees were appointed to control the coal industry in France under Government supervision.

The decisions were taken in line with the Government's announced policy of suppressing private organizations which controlled France's industrial life under "the old regime."

Turks Believe Nazis Preparing to Provide Help for Italians

Istanbul, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Turkish official radio and press indicated last night that they believe a German military move in the Balkans to aid Italy is imminent, and that this might be the essential reason for the Berlin visit of the Russian Premier, Molotoff.

The Turkish radio said Yugoslavia's position is "very important and it is probable that this is one of the questions to be considered between Molotoff and the German leaders."

Although Istanbul was filled with rumors of German demands upon Yugoslavia for the free passage of troops through that country, neither the radio nor the newspapers hinted that Turkey would act if German forces did enter Yugoslavia.

Most foreign observers in Turkey held the belief that Turkey would move only if Bulgaria acted. They also interpreted Molotoff's visit to Germany as for the purpose of discussing Balkan and Near-Eastern questions, and thus as something of a diplomatic setback for Turkey.

GARDINER FEELS FIT AND RESTED AFTER HIS RETURN

Believes No War Would Ever be Won From the Air Without Land Army

LONDON STRONG

(By Gladys Arnold, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 1—(CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner, just back from a trip to the United Kingdom has a box of the wax pellets sold in Britain for use as ear plugs to keep out the scream of air raid sirens the blast of bombs and the general hubbub of war.

But Mr. Gardiner didn't use them on the other side of the Atlantic.

"I brought them home to put in my ears in the House of Commons when I want to get some work done" he said today with a broad smile.

The minister said he feels "fit and rested" after his four weeks in London. He got more sleep there than he usually gets in Ottawa since there is "no rule against cabinet ministers working at night."

Turn in Early

In London people turned in early. Despite nightly raids Mr. Gardiner didn't spend a single night in his hotel's air raid shelter although people from the upper floors came down to lower levels to sleep on cots set up for them.

Mr. Gardiner said he slept soundly every night and the anti-aircraft fire from a nearby park was the "only annoyance."

Damage done to London by the German Air Force was much less important than he had imagined it would be. The most extensively damaged section was in the east end and that area on a map of London "looks like a postage stamp on a table cloth."

Nothing Hidden

When he visited the east end, Mr. Gardiner said, everything was done to facilitate his investigation and nothing was hidden. He visited police stations and asked as many questions as he liked. He learned that only 1.400 of the 2,000,000 residents of the area had been killed. While he was in London he did not meet anyone who had lost a relative or friend in bombing attacks.

From his stay in London, the minister said, it was his firm belief no war would ever be won from the air, without the backing of a mechanized land army.

"Indiscriminate bombing can only bring misery to civilians and be a war of nerves," he said, "but they can take it in England."

LUMP WAS ROLL OF BILLS

Ogdensburg, N.Y., Nov. 12—(AP) —Wilbur Wells lost a lot of sleep for three nights, then complained to his wife a "hard lump" in his pillow was the cause of it all. The lump, Mrs. Wells discovered, was $94 in bills placed there by her mother 38 years ago.

BRITISH AIRMEN REACH GODERICH

Large Contingent to be Trained by Their Own Staff Independently of Commonwealth Plan

Goderich, Ont., Nov. 12—(CP)—A large contingent of British airmen who are to be trained by their own staff independently of Commonwealth Air Training Scheme have arrived here.

Transported to the Port Albert Air Navigators School yesterday, the group required fifteen coaches on a special train. They arrived in Eastern Canada on Sunday and came directly here. It is understood they are advanced fliers and will complete their training in night flying and navigation here and then return for active service in Britain.

The party was in charge of Wing Cmdr. H. M. Groves. With him in addition to the large class of students were instructors, engineers and mechanics. Equipment for navigation study was also brought from England by the group.

MARRIED IN SEDAN

Los Angeles, Nov. 12 — (AP)— James H. Newton and bride just bumped into the minister who married them. They dented his automobile fender, then left Newton's daughter-in-law to discuss the settlement while they want for a license. When they returned the traffic victim was introduced as Rev. W. I. Deboard. "What's a dented fender at a time like this?" he asked, invited them into his sedan and married them.

WEBB—PICKERING

The home of Dr. and Mrs. Curtis Pickering, Durham, was the setting for a pretty wedding when their daughter, Miss Mary Curtis, was married to Mr. William Spencer Webb of Gravenhurst, son of Mrs. C. E. Wolfe of Durham, and the late Hiram T. Webb of Brighton. Rev. S. W. Hirtle officiated, and Mrs. Harry Kress played the wedding music. The soloist was Mrs. L. E. Miller of Beamsville.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a graceful gown of cream slipper satin, with bowknots on sleeves and skirt, which formed a circular train. Her fingertip veil of tulle was held with a heart-shaped halo, and she carried ivory roses. Her two sisters Mrs. Stewart Bolton, of Toronto, and Miss Marjorie Pickering, were her attendants, wearing rose clover velvet with Juliet caps of the velvet, edged with flowers to match their heart bouquets of rose chrysanthemums. Mr. Thomas Webb was groomsman for his brother, and Mr. Stuart Bolton of Toronto, was usher.

After the reception the couple left on a wedding trip, the bride travelling in a gold wool frock with beaver jacket, matching hat and brown accessories. They will live in Gravenhurst.

MACPHERSON—MILLIGAN

The home of the bride's parents at Newburgh, was the scene of a pretty wedding, Saturday afternoon, when Eleanor Florence, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Milligan, became the bride of Mr. Donald Lawrence MacPherson, only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. David H. MacPherson, Gananoque. Rev. E. F. Swayne officiated and Mrs. C. Dorman, Seeley's Bay, played the wedding music. The drawing room was decorated with pink and white chrysanthemums and the ceremony was conducted against a background of white roses and ferns.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a graceful street length gown of dusky rose crepe and corsage of pink Dream roses with touches of white bouvardia. She was attended by her sister, Miss Muriel Milligan in a frock of soldier blue crepe. Her corsage was Johanna Hill roses. Mr. Ivan Dorman of Seeley's Bay, cousin of the groom, was groomsman.

A dainty luncheon was held for the guests. The dining room was prettily decorated with chrysanthemums and ferns. The table centred with the wedding cake was attractive with vases of Sweetheart roses and tall pink tapers. The mother of the bride received the guests in a gown of flowered chiffon, her corsage being Premier Supreme roses.

Later the couple left on a trip to Montreal, the bride travelling in a Classic tailored frock of black wool, accented with touches of turquoise, over which she wore a Hudson seal coat. Parent Can Aid Child in Home Study

By GARRY CLEVELAND MEYERS

By Garry Cleveland Meyers, Ph.D.

Many teachers say they wish parents would never try to help the child at home with his school work. Some of these teachers believe that the parents will use different methods, causing the child to learn things wrong or be confused. Other teachers of this group object to having children hand in written work done by the father and mother.

But wise teachers rarely or never have children do written work at home to be graded at school, nor do they assign much, if any, home work below the fifth or sixth grade. However, in the lower grades they will often motivate the child to read at home, especially from books not read in school, or to practice on some such skills as learning by heart the basic addition and subtraction facts.

Keep Calm

Some parents who are calm are able to help the child of the third, fourth or fifth grade, to master these number facts in such a way that the child will know them perfectly for a lifetime. A few parents have helped their child to gain skill in spelling, and still more have contributed to his gain in ability to read.

While it is true that an occasional parent trying to help the elementary school child will use methods so different from the teacher's as to hamper the child's learning, I have a notion this alleged harm has been greatly exaggerated.

No, I think the harm parents may do while helping their school children at home is not so much from from wrong methods as from wrong emotions. Even parents who use exactly the same methods as the teacher might prove exceedingly harmful if they are impatient with the child, scold or yell at him when he makes an error or lags.

Learn at Home

In the home where ideal relationships between child and parent prevail the possibilities for the child to learn are tremendous. See moreover, the family comradeship which can be cultivated over comfortable and happy learning at home.

In such a home the child learns in an atmosphere of serenity. There is no hurry, no one is angry at another nor does the child fear rebuke if he makes a mistake. He enjoys learning whether it be making things with his hands, spelling a short list of words, mastering those addition and substraction facts he used to count out, reading to himself or others, or finding, with the aid of his parents, facts and illustrations that relate to some large project his class have been busy at for days—he enjoys success.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

The Stern and Unfair Parents

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm 24 years of age and have been living on a farm most of my life. My father won't allow me to go out with young men, for fear I will get married. I have gone out with some of them, but after they've been over a few times, my father insults them for no reason at all and orders them off the place.

A young neighbor of ours seems interested in me, and I think a great deal of him, but I'm so afraid my father will insult him and drive him away that I don't ask him over any more. This young man is a good worker, but is in no hurry to marry.

I've been thinking of leaving home, as my father and I never can agree. My mother doesn't dare say anything.

Farm Girl.

I could never advise a girl to leave home with everything as unsettled as it is. If this young neighbor should suggest marriage, I'd advise you to accept him. It's very unfair for parents to prevent a girl of 24 from making friends and causing her to lose all chance of marriage and having the things that count in a woman's life.

Doesn't Want Son's Affection Divided

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I've been engaged to a young man for almost two years now. He's 24 and I'm 22, so I think we're old enough to know our minds. We plan to be married around Christmas, but since my fiance told his mother we had set the date, everything seems to have changed. He's an only child, and his mother has always worshipped him. She says unkind and even untrue things about me, and tries in every way to discourage him about getting married.

He says he will be able to talk her into agreeing, as he doesn't believe the gossip about me, and thinks we'd better postpone our marriage. I will say his mother has made sacrifices for him. She was in love with a man, but gave him up because her son didn't want a stepfather, and she has worked day and night to get him through college.

Would you advise breaking our engagement?

Sara

Certainly not. I should not advise you to break your engagement. A great many mothers, confronted with the thought of dividing a son's affection, act this way when they first hear of an adored son's intention to marry. Bide your time. I feel sure your fiance will be able to talk her over.

Utterly Discouraged at Thirty

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm so discouraged. I haven't been able to get a steady position or a steady boy friend. I am 30 years old, and although I've had a number of chances to get married, it just doesn't seem to work out.

My girl friends are all married now, and wonder why I don't get married. My home life hasn't been so good. All my life my mother has nagged, and if it weren't for my brother, who is supporting the three of us, I'd starve. I'm just recovering from a nervous breakdown, and although I have a married sister and several wealthy aunts, they are all selfish and won't do a thing for me.

Some people have all the luck — wonderful families, good jobs. I've thought of going to another city to work. If I don't find a job there, would the State help me: My family wouldn't. I've even wanted to commit suicide at times, but always reconsidered. I go to public dances to see if I can't meet a man there.

I've read your articles and I want your advice. I am a typist and am willing to go out as a mother's helper, just to get a job, but I hear this class of workers are badly treated.

Loretta.

At 30, one is still young. And with all the aids to beauty to be had today, every woman can be attractive. What wouldn't the old dowagers with their double mezzanine figures, their mink coats and diamonds, give to be only thirty? The world is before you if you'd only cast off the feeling of discouragement which is keeping you down.

If it's possible and you've enough funds ahead to keep you for four or five months, why not go to another city, seek a new environment? Try to get a job in which you are genuinely interested. Try all the social agencies. Be cheerful, don't look defeated and frustrated when you're out looking for a job.

Bogeyman

A few minutes before sitting down to write this, I underwent a very annoying experience. It made me so hot under the collar, that I was impelled to sit down immediately to express a protest on paper.

A father and mother brought a boy of six into the office to have his nose and throat examined. I had met the mother on the street the other day and she had told me she thought her child had tonsils and adenoids because he was always getting colds and sore throats. I suggested, naturally enough, that she bring the boy into see me.

They must have alarmed the whole neighborhood when they arrived. The boy was kicking and screaming as they brought him in the door; I thought it must be an accident case or something really serious. But when he got in my office, he stopped kicking, and just sat there and cried quietly.

"What on earth has happened to him?" I asked. The mother replied that they just wanted his tonsils examined.

The moment I tried to go near the little fellow to examine him, his performance started all over again. What a fight there was! The father held his feet, his mother held his head, while I reluctantly attempted to open his mouth and give him a proper examination. In the fracas, the father got a kick in the stomach, and when I heard the story back of all this uproar, I wasn't a bit sorry for him.

When we were finished, and the poor youngster was sitting exhausted and sobbing, I found out the truth from him. It seems that for a couple of years, "I'll take you to the doctor's" was a threat held over the child's head. When he did something his parents didn't like, a visit to the doctor's was held up to him as the worst punishment that could happen to him. Consequently, when it actually became necessary to bring the child to see a doctor, he was frightened and he protested with all the force he could.

What was even more surprising, the parents couldn't understand at first why the child acted up so. The mother kept saying over and over: "I don't know what can be the matter with him. He never acted like this before," until the boy blurted out the truth. Then, of course, they were very embarrassed. Nevertheless, I couldn't refrain from being plain-spoken with the parents. I probably won't see them again. But I also surmise they won't use a threatened visit to the doctor to scare their child anymore.

I have found that the practise of holding someone up as a bugbear to a child, threatening him with the doctor or dentist or the policeman as the bogeyman, is quite common in homes in this country. It is a terrible thing for any parent to—deliberately frighten a child in this way, or any way. There is always a day of reckoning. It never serves any good purpose, for scaring a child this way never makes him behave. Not for long anyway.

Young People's Union Conducts Service at Foxboro United Church

Foxboro, Nov. 12—The Young People's Union of the United Church had complete charge of the Sunday evening service in the United Church on Nov. 10. The theme of the service was a blending of the ideas of Remembrance, Peace and the Missionary Motive. The order was partly liturgical and choral, the congregation and the young people's choir giving the responses respectively. Eighteen members were in the choir under the leadership of Mrs. E. M. Cook. They sang the convention hymn, "Living for Jesus" and the anthem, "Onward Christian Soldiers." Miss Marion Daniels gave a reading entitled, "The Invincible Leader" during the opening worship. Miss Muriel Milligan, president, prepared the order of service but she was unable to be present. Leon Wilson, past-president, ably presided in her absence.

The address of the evening was given by Mr. Robert Kitchen, Peterborough, conference convener for Christian missions. His theme was "A Vision Worthwhile and a Light that Shines" in which he projected a world vision and an active Christian witness.

Mr. Kitchen is a worthy representative of Young People and invests heavily in Christian service and in missionary literature. The offering was for the Y. P.'s missionary objective. Over one hundred were present at the service.

On Monday, Nov. 11, the Union joined with others to attend the rally in Tabernacle Church, Belleville. Next Monday the Union will meet with the quaternions at Belleville.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kitchen, Miss MacDonald and Mr. Leslie Casey of Peterborough were guests at the parsonage on Sunday.

The Stars Say

For Tuesday, November 12

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

UNDER THE urge of the predominant astral influences there may be an irresistible impulse to do strange, untried and extraordinary things. This may be in the direction of launching experimental projects of bold or unusual scope, or there may be an indomitable urge to do old things in original, novel or perhaps revolutionary ways. Such efforts may prove to be workable, practical and constructive, providing such impulse be not carried to extremes, or the attempts be not reckless, wayward or tempestuous.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of surprising progress and achievement through the application of fresh or novel projects or new, original or even radical ways of speeding up old or static situations. But use practical common sense for productive results and not fantastic, erratic or spectacular methods.

A child born on this day may be willful erratic, obstinate and impulsive, although having fine initiative and creative talent. Its desire for novelty and fresh adventure may carry it to extremes.

For Wednesday, November 13

JUDGING BY the lunar transits of this day it may prove more lucrative and happy to "go it alone" rather than to cast your lot with any sort of groups, organizations or "collective bargaining" ideas. Such are under rule of a destructive rather than productive vibration, and in this disruptive direction there may be some rather ruthsels, drastic and uncomfortable activities. Nevertheless, joining with the "upper brackets" may advance the financial status as well as enhance position, prestige and pleasure.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a year in which their best interests may be promoted by working in cooperation with "higher ups" with those of financial, business and social standing, rather than joining forces with groups, whether political, diplomatic, fraternal, or for collective ideas of social service. These latter are under a disruptive ray, while the others are under expansive, productive, generous and pleasant auspices — ambitious, fruitful and promising for business as well as personal objectives.

A child born on this day may be expected to be easy-going, pleasure-loving, generous and kindly, making its happiest success in connection with kindred souls rather than uniting with others for uplift and social progress.

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Say What is in Your Heart

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My son and his fiancee are announcing their engagement, and my husband and I have been invited to her home for this important occasion. My son's fiancee lives in another state, some distance from where we live. My husband and I have never met the parents of our son's fiancee.

Mrs. Beeckman, I am puzzled to know what my husband and I should say when the engagement is announced. I just can't think of any appropriate words. Will you help us out? Mother.

I'm delighted to try to suggest to you and your husband what you may say when your son's engagement is announced at this party. First, however, I'd like to have you remember that there aren't any "special" words to use; say what is in your heart on this significant occasion—it's the way you say the words that counts!

For example, it would be natural for you both to tell your daughter-in-law-to-be how happy you are at this "great news"; how delightful you are to know your son's 'Mary' and to see that all the charming things that he has told you about her and her devoted mother and father are beautifully true; how happy and proud you and your husband are to welcome her into your family.

If the announcement party is a dinner, or any other occasion where there are toasts, your husband might propose one "To our son's Mary and to our son." Then he might add. "My wife and I have always looked forward to having our son choose 'the ideal girl' —now he has done it! Our hearts are full of happiness and pride, and our arms are wide open to welcome our new daughter. Our prayer is that we will, even in small measure, follow the ideal of Mary's mother and father. To them, for my wife and myself. I would also like to propose a toast, on this so important occasion."

Puzzling Card

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Please tell me what is meant when one receives a card (double folder) in blue and white, with the names and date, Thus:

Mary Ethel Brown
John William Jones
November Twenty

The couple are to be married on that date. The girl lives with her parents. I do not know if this is an invitation to the wedding, to the reception, or what. What do you think? S. A.

I don't blame you for being at sea about what such a form means. Apparently what they meant to indicate by such a form of card is their secret!

However, figuring it out as best I can, I judge that the couple considered this a way to tell their friends that they were to be married on that date, and that they were issuing no invitations of any kind.

Certainly this card could not be interpreted as an invitation to either the ceremony or to any kind of reception, for there is no mention of place or time.

RUSSEL WRIGHT'S CREATIONS
FASHIONS FOR FALL WEAR
NEWEST COOKERY RECIPES

Is One Of America's Most Versatile Designers

Among designers, Russel Wright occupies a unique place, a specialist in design for the American home. From smallwares to furniture, his contributions have re-colored the home furnishings field. Responsible for many definite trends, he has been called a "one-man school of design". His ideas have time and time again become in conceptions, fundamentally timely and naturally logical.

Russel Wright comes from Lebanon, Ohio, where his father was county judge. Among his forebears are both Whipple and Morris, signers of the Declaration of Independence.

Showing an early talent for art, Saturday afternoons were spent at the Cincinnati Art Academy. After a year at the Art Students' League in New York, he won both the first and second Tiffany prizes in a students' ware memorial competition.

Because Princeton was a family tradition, at 17 Russel Wright found himself a freshman there, thus cutting short a promising career in the fine arts. At Princeton Mr. Wright will long be remembered for his outstanding work as director of the campus playhouse—the "Intime" —and for his Triangle Show sets, especially Drake's Drum, all of which led to work in the theatre—thus ending prematurely a college career which was eventually to have ended in legal work, another famly tradition.

At this period Mr. Wright started a workshop in which theatrical properties were produced. Later on custom-made furniture and decorative accessories were added. Local decorators spread the word, and eventually many of New York's department stores became customers.

As an outgrowth of this business, Mr. Wright is now forming "American Way". This is a comprehensive group effort among industrial designers, artists, manufacturers and craftsmen—founded to stimulate a program of contemporary design of inherently American character, planned primarily for our present-day American homes.

With his solid Maple "American Modern" furniture, brought out in 1935, Mr. Wright gave the furniture field a new direction. Considered an authentic contribution to American furniture design, "American Modern" he was the first to use light and bleached maple finishes, calling it "Blonde," now a familiar term in our furniture vocabulary.

On the market for a little over a year, Mr. Wright's dinnerware is already exerting an influence upon the American Pottery market. Breaking away completely from the prevalent flat paint-like colors, Mr. Wright has used soft-toned textural glazes. Forms are plastic and flowing in many cases new shapes have been found which break away completely from the traditional.

Wood for informal serving accessories was one of Mr. Wright's ideas. He "lifted" wood from the kitchen to bring it to the dining room in the form of salad bowls, cheese boards, etc. With this new group of woodenware called "Oceona," Russell Wright proves himself an industrial designer who is really a sculptor.

Russel Wright is really happy in his chosen profession of industrial design, which he has actually helped to build.

Exotic Haiti

IT'S a thrilling spectacle when a giant ocean liner enters her home port for the first time. Flags and banners wave their welcome, whistles and sirens shrill. But when the great liner is American, the largest ever built at an American yard, then it is a happening of the greatest importance! And so we greet the great "America", built for the European luxury trade but now on a run to American and friendly neutral ports, a run that is a cruise plus.

All our genius, skill, artistry and science have been fused in our new great liner. She is 26,454 tons gross with a displacement of 35,440 tons. There are accommodations for 1,203 with eight of the ten decks on which to enjoy life. She's a distinctive beauty with her slightly-curved, raking bow and modern streamlined bridgehead and superstructure.

Funnels are shaped to deflect soot from sports decks. A boon in bad weather is the 514-feet promenade deck all glass enclosed with windows from deck to ceiling.

Safety devices are predominant and more than 90 per cent of the vessel is non-inflammable. She is the first ship designed with magnetically-controlled fire doors, made to shut off any portion of the ship instantly.

American Style

The ship's interior decorations follow contemporary American style. Bleached woods are used wherever possible, supplemented by trimmings of aluminum, nickel bronze and gold bronze. Off-white and light beige offset by blues, reds and clear greens predominate. The ballroom is all delight with its round silver-leaf dome, its mirrors and semi-circular banquettes in the corners and around the perimeter of the dance floor.

There are going to be gala times in the two-decks-high lounge with its mezzanine gallery on either side. The largest room is the smoking room, 86 feet long. The main dining room on A deck extends upwards for two decks. We like especially the carved linoleum murals by Pierre Bourdelle, representing the scenery and life in various sections of the country. But we suppose that hungry cruisites will admire the menu card the most!

Splendid Itinerary

This lovely new sea beauty has a fine itinerary, safe one and proper at this time. The twelve-day cruise will take in the Virgin Islands, Puerto Rico, Haiti and Cuba.

St. Thomas, Virgin Islands, will delight cruise passengers. It is lush and tropical with much to see and to do. Under the American flag, the Virgin Islands have gone forward to a new and bright future. San Juan, the Puerto Rican port, has been described in these columns many times. It offers tropical scenery and splendor at its best. Port au Prince, Haiti, is exotic and strange in the tropics of tall tales and maritice mysteries.

Havana is star of all cruise ports. No visas of passports are required.

Russel Wright DESIGNS "FUNCTIONAL" WARE FOR AMERICAN HOMES

In design, this pottery is plastic and flowing. It is by no means angular nor hard...Mr. Wright has found new forms for many of these pieces. For instance, the salad bowl breaks away completely from the traditional round shape for salad bowls. Its curved-in sides not only help make this piece unusual in design, but also serve a practical purpose in keeping the leaves from being tossed out of the bowl as the salad is mixed. The celery dish is an abstract Leaf form. He has found a new shape for a chop plate— a square with rounded corners which become convenient handles. The one handled sugar is a new idea, and the subtle shape of the creamer suggests an Aladdin's lamp. The "relish rosette," Mr. Wright's original invention in metal, is now being used in this pottery group.

Feeling that the surfaces for so much of the colcred dinner ware now on the market look more like a smooth paint job rather than glaze, Mr. Wright has worked out softly mottled, variegated tones of the same color which gives a handcraft look...the colors offered are "Granite Grey," a stonelike grey in an eggshell finish; "Curry"—a new chartreuse color for pottery, suggesting also the color of seedless grapes; "Bean Brown"— this brown is really composed of three shades of brown ranging from burnt umber to a dark tete de negre; and "Sea Blue"—a refreshing color and a new one for pottery, it is slightly darker and bluer than the usual pale turquoise tint. These last three colors are worked out in high-jeweled-like transparent glazes. All four colors ensemble well toegther in working out the varous combinations. In addition to these four colors, the pottery is also available in a rich ivory "white."

This line includes dinner, salad, bread and butter plate, lug oatmeal, lug fruit, tea cup and saucer, a tea set consisting of tea pot, creamer and sugar; a chop plate upon which the tea set may be used; a carafe which may be used for water, wine or hot liquids; a celery dish; a relish dish; a "relish rosette"; a vegetable bowl, a meat platter; a salad bowl—which may be used for fruit or flowers; a casserole; stacking ice box set—the individual pieces of which may be used for individual vegetable dishes, and a full sized water pitcher. All pieces used for cooking are ovenproof.

The salad bowl, relish dish, casserole, carafe, water pitcher, etc, are so interesting in themselves, when purchasec separately make desirable gifts when purchased independently of the group.

This line conforms to Mr. Wright's idea of "informal modern",—in contra-distinction to the more sleek and cold modern design of European origin. A type of modern that has found acceptance in the typical American home because it harmonizes so well with traditional as well as contemporary

Stew For Keen Appetites

By BETSY NEWMAN

For that snappy fall day when appetites are keen, serve a good beef stew. I don't know anything that is more tasty and satisfying.

Today's Menu

Beefe Stew with Vegetables
Boiled Potatoes
Mixed Vegetable Salad
Date Torte Coffee

Beef Stew

2 lbs. diced beef, 3 tbsp. lard, 1 cup water, 1 lb. green beans; 7 carrots; 6 small white onions; 6 whole cabbage leaves; Salt, pepper.

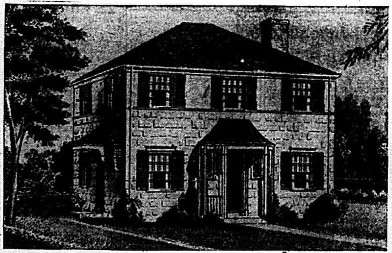
Brown meat in hot lard. Add water. Cover and simmer for 45 minutes. Add fresh beans, carrots and onions and continue to simmer. Season. Fifteen minutes before meat is done add separated cabbage leaves and continue cooking. Thicken liquid left in kettle and serve with stew.

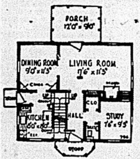
Date Torte

8 eggs, 1 rounded tsp. baking powder, 1 cup chopped dates, 1 cup sugar, 1 cup chopped nut meats, 12 tbsps. crumbled rusks.

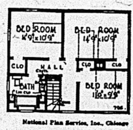
Beat eggs well, beat in sugar. Sift baking owder with rusk crumbs. Add other ingredients and bake in moderate oven 350 F. and serve either hot or cold with whipped cream.

CORNERING THE HOUSE





All families aren't bent on owning a single story house; here is a handsome residence with two floors. The ground floor has a study which could be pressed into guest room service easily. (Plenty of furniture for double duty like this in the shops.) The rooms—seven of them —have good proportions which inspire the decorator; French Provincial interior arrangement is suggested. This style is much in step with the present fondness for having colorful homes definitely cheerful.



National Plan Service, Inc., Chicago

By PATRICIA MONTCLAIR

If you are planning a new home, or preparing to revamp an old one, you might do some corner studying. Refreshing the corners which flank a fireplace can make a whole room perk up.

The day is fortunately past when it was considered quite the thing to have a table spang in the center of every formal room. But as an alternative too many people simply ranged their furniture along the four walls, leaving little paths clear to the doors.

A clever corner arrangement defeats this lining up of pieces, and the device of setting love seats or small flat desks endwise to a wall also breaks up militarism of household goods. Brightening the corner is still a fine idea

Appendix Fallacies

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Does the appendix ever cause pain by having a spasm?

Long ago when appendicitis was a new word the theory was widely held that the symptoms were due to a grape seed that had entered the appendix. When eating grapes we were admonished not to swallow the seeds—an extremely unpopular piece of advice, because if you extract the seeds of a grape while the grape is in your mouth the result is a bitter taste which entirely spoils the pleasure of grape-eating. A more enlightened opinion later absolved grape seeds of the responsibility of causing appendicitis and pointed out that what the surgeons had been finding inside the appendices were not grape seeds but tiny intestinal stones. So grape-eating was resumed in the more civilized and only proper method of swallowing the grape entire.

A Beautiful Theory

This ancient theory has now raised its head again under a new name —appendiclausis. It means, so we are told, a pain or spasms, simulating acute appendicitis, but caused not by appendicitis but by an obstruction to the appendix. The muscular layer of the appendix attempts to overcome this obstruction and causes the cramping. The only trouble with this beautiful theory, which is certainly destined to be a great boon to amateur surgeons, is that the appendix has practically no muscles at all. True the textbooks show a muscular layer in the wall of the appendix, but this inclusion is due more to haste and habit than to real study. Maxinow, in his text-book on histology, says, "The muscular ring of the appendix is poorly developed." Appendiclausis, in our opinion, is rather like the conception of chronic appendicitis—there's money in it for surgeons, but only trouble for everybody else.

In our discussion of the advisability of extracting dead teeth in the column recently, we took the conservative point of view that such teeth should be removed only when there is definite proof that they are causing trouble — that they harbor actual infection. We are glad this week to see an article by Dr. Louis I. Grossman, of Philadelphia, which supports this point of view. Referring to pulpless teeth, Dr. Grossman says that the danger of the pulpless tooth as a source of infection can no longer be held valid. "Fifteen or twenty years ago," he writes, "in the heyday of the theory of focal infection, physicians were ordering patients to have their teeth removed for almost every kind of obscure complaint." Pulpless teeth were almost routinely removed. A pulpless tooth is not a dead tooth. It still has vital relationships with surrounding tissues. Clinical evidence show that many people with pulpless teeth have no apparent systemic involvement."

I like two definitions I saw in an article in a medical magazine lately. "Depression divides the personality: cheerfulness unites it." And—"Manic patients think of conquest the depressed think of inquest." That seems to me to sum uv the object of modern psychotherapy and also, incidentally it explains the war.

Questions and Answers

M. E. R.:—"I would like to know what the blood pressure of a woman 39 years old should be. I suffer with severe headache and wondered if it could be coming from high blood pressure."

Answer—Blood pressure is systolic, which means when the heart is in contraction, and diastolic when the heart is relaxed. So there is a variation in blood pressure seventy-two times a minute. Normally at 39-years of age the systolic should be from 110 to 140 and the diastolic 60 to 90. These variations occur in different perfectly normal individuals. High blood pressure undoubtedly cause a quite characteristic form of headache.

Do prunes cause acidity?

Some weeks ago I wrote in this column in answer to a question asking for a list of acid-producing foods, that the only vegetables that are acid-producing are prunes and cranberries. I have received a protest from the California Prune Growers' Association, giving me specific data on the subject, and I am glad to make a correction here. Various food experts have analyzed prunes and their effect in the body and found that they affect the acid-base balance very little, and if at all they tend to produce slight alkalinity, not acidity, as was once thought.

This universal breakfast dish also has energy value, mineral and vitamin content. The laxative effect has long been recognized. Research has discovered that the laxative effect of prunes is not due entirely to bulk or roughage, but that prunes have a chemical incorporated in them which has cathartic properties similar to many drugs

Beauty at Home

By ALICE ALDEN

MAKE LEISURE more delightful with the aid of beautiful negligees. What was once a garment favored only by the wealthy and leisured woman has become an important item in the wardrobe of every woman. The business girl comes home, takes a shower and slips into a soft, comfortable, pretty negligee or hostess gown and is ready for an evening at home.

Screen stars who have so little leisure, pamper themselves with magnificent gowns such as this beauty worn by pretty Joan Blondell. It is of crepe in three shades of aquamarine blue, with a vestee of pleated blue georgette. A diamond and pearl clip marks one side of the flattering neckline.

Stripes Are Starred

By ALICE ALDEN

THE RUSTLE of taffeta whispers through the sartorial symphony again this autumn. In fact, taffeta is getting to be a hardy perennial for it appears each year if not each season. Stripes are smart too, and some of the newest evening models are of taffeta striped in delightful color combinations.

Just right for festive nights is this exquisite frock modeled by Dana Dale. The fabric is a rich taffeta in a delicate shade of watermelon pink, striped in black and ombre. It is styled with an intricate use of stripes in the bodice which is long waisted and which meets the skirt at two points. The skirt is very full.

Some Household Hints

Playing cards will last longer and look better if well cared for. As soon as any spots or stains appear, wipe them gently with a cloth dipped in warm water. Pat dry with a clean cloth and lay on a flat surface until the cards are perfectly dry.

To restore a nice polish to an old marble table top, get some putty powder at a monument yard. Dampen this with water. Use a piece of soft leather and apply to marble surface.

To remove fresh mildew from awnings, rub with laundry soap, cover with starch which has been mixed with a little salt, and expose to the sun.

Sweet potato covering for ham pie is a splendid way to use up lefaovers. Mix in cubed or chopped ham with any leftover gravy or savory sauce. Pour it into a buttered, shallow pan and cover with mashed sweet potatoes, thinned a little with milk or cream. Bake 20 minutes and serve.

Boston Bruins Open Season At Home With Black Hawks; Leafs Play Canadiens Thurs.

Art Ross Claims He Has the Best Team in Loop and Expects to Finish First

RANGERS CONFIDENT

Dick Irvin Will Likely Use Tony Graboski Against His Old Club

(By The Canadian Press)

The Bruin team that Manager Art Ross has called the best ever to represent Boston in the National Hockey League takes up the fight again tonight after a nine-day lay-off.

Bruins last were in action on Nov. 3 when they played a 1-1 overtime draw in Montreal against Canadiens. They make their home-town debut tonight against Chicago Black Hawks, who lost 1-0 to New York Americans in their opening encounter but defeated Canadiens 3-1 last Sunday night.

So far this has been one of the N.H.L.'s best seasons in the matter of predictions by coaches and managers, who seldom are reticent anyhow about the possibilities of their clubs.

Ross doesn't mind saying that Bruins look like a good bet to finish at the top of the standing, and the same goes for Manager Lester Patrick of New York Rangers. Most observers rate the Hawks as likely to finish in fourth place, but not Manager Paul Thompson. He thinks they'll finish third.

Even the usually silent Dick Irvin the coach of Canadiens, figures that his charges will finish in fourth position despite the fact that the team is heavily stocked with rookies.

Irvin is particularly intent right now, however, in grooming his charges for their game Thursday night in Montreal against Toronto Maple Leafs the team he left last season after coaching for a good many years.

Defenceman Alex Singbush may be missing when Canadiens go up against the Leafs, because of a shoulder injury suffered in the game against the Hawks. It was reported last night that Irvin is likely to use Tony Graboski, who starred last season with Sydney Millionaires, in place of Singbush. Graboski did not see action in the first two Montreal games.

Clever Infighting by Cleveland Scrapper Earns Him a Chance to Tie

Toronto, Nov. 12.—(CP)—Jackie Callura, hard-hitting young fighter from Hamilton, Ontario, is feeling justly proud of himself today after holding Georgie Pace of Cleveland, former world bantam champion to a 10-round draw. He thinks he could beat Pace in another go.

The Pace-Callura battle was featured attraction at a boxing show here last night.

Callura had his opponent down twice in the first round, for counts of three and nine, and Pace, never before knocked off his feet, was wobbly when the round ended. He came back strong during the rest of the fight, however, and earned the draw with his clever infighting.

Angelo Calluro of Hamilton, 126 3-4, won a six-round decision over Dusty Brown of New York, 134. Scotty Ramage of Toronto, 120, won another six-round decision over Danny Webb of Montreal, 124. Joey Bagnato of Toronto, 137, won the six-round decision in the semi-final over Mickey La Marr of New York 135 1-2.

GOLDEN GOPHERS HEADING POLL

Experts Put Minnesota Team at Top of List Ousting Cornell From That Spot

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)—Minnesota's Golden Gophers, who don't win by much but don't let that stop them from winning, gained another close decision today when they added Cornell to a list of victims that already included Washington, Nebraska, Northwestern and Michigan.

The Gophers ousted Cornell from the lead in the fast-closing race to determine the No. 1 college football team of United States. After Cornell had been on top for four successive weeks in The Associated Press ranking poll, the tide swung Minnesota's way this week as 55 out of 148 experts from coast to coast put Minnesota at the head of the list and one other split the honors among Minnesota, Cornell and 1939's top team, Texas A. and M.

These three placed in that order—Minnesota first with 1,314 points; Cornell second with 1,260; the Aggies third with 1,202. Fourth place went to Stanford, only other team to poll more than 1,000 points with 1,066.

The standing (points figured on 10-9-8-7-6, etc. basis)—1. Minnesota 1,314; 2. Cornell 1,260; 3. Texas A. and M. 1,202; 4. Stanford 1,066; 5. Tennessee 698.5; 6. Michigan 585; 7. Notre Dame 581; 8. Boston College 548.5; 9. Georgetown 352.5; 10. Northwestern 276.

MICMACS TO OPERATE

Smiths Falls, Ont., Nov. 12—(CP) Club officials of the Smiths Falls Micmacs, 1939-40 senior "B" champions of the Ottawa district hockey association, decided Monday night the team would operate again this year in the Upper Ottawa Valley League.

It also was announced the team would play in the George Van Horne memorial series in Kingston, Ont., opening next week.

JOHNNY MOWERS HOLDING DOWN NET-MINDING CHORES FOR RED WINGS

Johnny Mowers is faced with the task of making Detroit Red Wings forget the name of "Tiny" Thompson as he holds down the net for the Red Wings. Johnny played with Niagara Falls Cataracts, and when he was shifted to Detroit in the M. O. league, was quickly drafted to Omaha where he went over with a loud bang. This season he got his big chance in the N.H.L. when Thompson left the Red Wings to go to Buffalo as manager.

TITLE WILL BRING FRITZIE ZIVIC INTO BIG DOUGH

Will Meet Al Davis in Gardens Friday Night in Defence of Welterweight Crown

A SMART BOY

New York, Nov. 12—(AP) — It looks as though the coffee-and-cake days are just about over for Fritzie Zivic. From here on in, provided some fellow doesn't come along and knock his ears off, the youngest of the five flying Zivics figures to mix a little steak and possibly even a spot or two of caviar in his fistic diet, particularly in his Friday night party with Al Davis, cut off Brooklyn's Brownsville section, in Madison Square Garden.

For ten years, Fritzie has been knocking around the game, even making the whistle stops. But the pay days were strictly nothing to call an armored car about. Even when he whipped gallant Henry Armstrong some weeks back to take the world welterweight championship, it didn't do much to cure the anemia with which his bank account has been suffering, because he took the challenger's end that night.

But in his first New York showing since putting the crown on his slicker-down blonde hair, Pittsburgh Fritzie is rolling a seven in the matter of an opponent. Al Davis has been one of the strongest gate attractions in Pa Knickerbocker's bailiwick for a year now, simply because the cash customers are willing to pay to see "Bummy" get his block knocked off.

He is probably the most cordially disliked fellow in this business of bashing beaks today. Win or lose, the boos he gets, if placed end to end, would still be a lot of noise. And the fact that the fans climb all over themselves to pile into the Garden hoping to see him collect cauliflowers, doesn't peeve him or Promoter Mike Jacobs or in this case, Fritzie Civic.

INJURY NOT SERIOUS

Ottawa, Nov. 12—(CP)—Injury suffered in a football game here Monday by John Fortier, 18, of Smith's Falls, Ont., pupil at Montreal Catholic High School was described at General Hospital here last night as "not serious."

Fortier, playing halfback for the Montreal High School team in an exhibition game against Ottawa University, suffered a neck injury just as the teams went into the second half and was rushed to hospital.

Ottawa University won the game 10-5.

PECK TO MANAGE TRIBE AGAIN?

Local Juvenile Hockey Loop To Meet; Executive Help Urged

Organized for the purpose of providing clean, healthful sport for the teen-aged boys of Belleville and environs a Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association, composed of four clubs taking names from the National Hockey League, flourished and proved most successful in its first year of venture last season. This evening at the Y.M.C.A. the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association will hold its annual meeting and election of officers to which the general public is cordially invited and urged to attend in the interest of hockey to be sponsored among the teen-aged of the city.

Need Your Help

"In our first year of operation several splendid young hockey prospects were brought to light through the efforts of our juvenile loop. At least five of last year's juveniles are expected to catch berths with the Belleville juniors this coming season which is a splendid average for the first year venture. However, the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association is in dire need of executive help. There are dozens of ambitious boys in Belleville, all of whom are looking forward with eagerness to be given an opportunity to play in the City Juvenile Association. These ambitious lads cannot be deprived of the opportunity to learn Canada's national pastime, but they need supervision and the assistance of adults in executive positions," revealed President Frank Cunningham today as he urged the business and industrial men of Belleville to attend this evening's annual meeting and election of officers of the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association at the "Y" tonight.

Curtail Delinquency

Uniforms and sticks for four teams, all the property of the association, are in the hands of Secretary Homer Townsend, duplications of such N.H.L. uniforms as worn by Les Canadiens, Black Hawks, Maple Leafs and New York Americans being used in the associations. In other large centres throughout Ontario juvenile hockey is being sponsored, not only for the purpose of teaching the youth of the community the elementary points of the game, but as a medium to curtail juvenile delinquency in the provision of clean, healthful recreation for Canadian boys.

Tonight's conclave is open to all interested in the sport or the youth movement of Canada. To fathers of growing boys especially this invitation is extended.

Little Benny's Note Book

This afternoon I wasn't allowed out for different reasons, so I called up my cousin Artie to see if he would come around, and he said, Good night I'm not allowed out either, G wizzickers I was just going to call you up to see if you'd come around here.

Holey smokes what do you know about that, that's enough to make a guy feel like running away from home, and go to bed every night without brushing my teeth.

Me too, only I'd do worse than that, I said. I'd crack nuts with my teeth, and when they got good and loose I wouldn't chew anything but mollasses candy, and if they wanted to come all a ways out, leave them come And what's more I'd eat all kinds of other candy just before meals, I said, and Artie said, Sure I wouldn't give a darn about my health either. I'd never drink any milk or eat any vegetables, and I'd swallow my meat without hardly chewing it, and I'd drink coffee 3 times a day, he said.

Believe me I know one thing, I'd never wash my neck or part of my hair or shine my shoes, I said, and Artie said, And believe me I'd stop being polite. I'd stop for good, I'd wear my cap in the house all day, and I'd sop up my gravey with my fingers, and I'd hit any girls that got fresh with me, he said.

I'd do worse than that, I'd kick them, I said. And what's more I'd be the most reckless guy in the world I'd talk to any strange man that wanted to talk to me, and I'd pat strange dogs no matter how fierce looking they were, and always make a special point to go out in the rain without my rubber, I said.

Being the end of the conversation and making me feel a little better on account of sounding so much worse.

PORT COLBORNE SAILORS LEADING OHA SENIOR RACE

OSHAWA LOSES

Marlboros Spoil Home Opening of Oshawa Squad by 5-3 Victory

(By The Canadian Press)

The two-team Senior Ontario Hockey Association leadership was broken last night when Port Colborne Sailors, victorious 3-1 over St. Catharines, vaulted over the idle Hamilton club. It was the Sailors' third in four starts.

Toronto Marlboros also took advantage of Hamilton's open date to take over the second spot, one point up on Dofascos. Marlboros spoiled Oshawa's home opening with a 5-3 decision.

At Port Colborne the Sailors struck victory blows in the second period after a scoreless opening 20 minutes. Thompson, on a neat combination play with Shuttleworth and McKelvie scored at the 13:30 mark and four minutes later McLeod stole the puck inside the Saints' defence zone and tallied the second goal.

Roy Heximer reduced the count 10 minutes after the third period opened after a steady offensive. Shuttleworth clinched the game with Port Colborne's third goal two minutes from time.

Eddie Powers' Marlboros ran up a 3-0 first-period lead and from that point on held their own against the bottom-placed club although Mortimer in the Toronto nets had many close calls. Ezeard opened the scoring on a pass from Davidson, Kerr flipped a pass to Dunbar for the second counter and King scored the final first-period goal with assists going to Davidson and Imlach.

Covert netted on a pass from Cooper to make it 3-1 on the first Oshawa rush of the second session and Peters made it 3-2 five minutes later on a pass from Edmison. Toronto erased this pair when Shamlock and Imlach scored before the period ended.

Thompson ended scoring at 18:59 of the third period.

It is hoped that a rousing reception will be accorded last year's executive of the Belleville Hockey Association when they meet at the "Y" for their annual conclave and election of officers this evening. Incidentally a new president will have to be elected as Prexy Frank Cunningham is leaving our fair city to take up residence in Montreal soon. Last year the Juvenile loop was organized with four teams and the movement was a howling success as at least five of last year's juvenile crop will doubtless set up into the junior O.H.A. ranks this year. However, such an organization needs the supervision of adults, especially business men who are sport-minded. It is to these men, who talk of helping in the summertime but forget their promises in the winter, to whom the invitation to attend tonight's meeting at eight is extended.

Reviewing the activities of the Juvenile loop's initial season we find such players as Dick Barrett, who promised to be of good junior timber another year, Ross Row, Bill McBride, Glen Robertson, Harry Ingram, Gord Burkholder, Gene Rosebush, Ted Clarke and a couple of others, all of whom should be splendid material for Coach Holway's juniors this season. If the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association can produce four good junior prospects every year they operate the group is paying exceedingly good dividends. A major league baseball club may have six or seven farm teams and if they produce two stars in a year they consider their efforts well repaid and declare a dividend. Another 50 teen-aged boys will be given an opportunity to learn the rudiments of hockey in the Juvenile Association this season, but it is executive and coaching assistance the heads are now fervently seeking. Here's your chance to be of service, so drop around to the "Y" tonight and put your shoulder to the wheel.

Out in Peterborough the hockey moguls of the Liftlock City met last night to discuss plans for the O.H.A. campaign, but strangely enough the heads of the Peterboro' team swung around to juvenile hockey during their conclave and the intermediate Petes, realizing the value of minor sponsorship, voted to foster a juvenile loop and finance it. Just another example of how the movement among younger players is spreading rapidly, so is it not time we in Belleville took stock and accepted the foundation now available? Max Jackson, of Kingston, was named an executive member with the O.J.H.A. this year and the teen-age game will doubtless flourish in the Limestone City with the energetic Max pushing the juvenile cart down Princess St. A few interested business men in Belleville would add considerable to the prestige of the local minor league sponsors, so how about it men?

We understand Coach Toots Holway was counting on the services of Don Armstrong, the clever rightwinger who played for the Belleville juniors last season. Unfortunately we hear Armstrong has changed his affiliations and will line-up with a strong junior team to be sponsored in Campbellford this season. The Trent Valley League will not operate in 1941, thus prompting the Hydro town moguls to return to the O.H.A. with a strong junior sextette. Art Black, Trenton's champion of minor league hockey, tells us Trenton's "C" entry is no longer desirous of being kicked around by the Belleville "Bees" and will seek a berth in the Lake Shore group along with Cobourg, Port Hope, Peterboro', etc. This might be a tip to Bill Cook and Jack Yanever, as Peterboro' plays in that group with a "B" entry. Whether or not a six-teamed junior O.H.A. grouping would prove a successful financial venture locally or not is the big question, but it would be better than a bye.

Do you remember when—The third member of the colorful DiMaggio family moved into the spotlight of sport a year ago today when San Francisco Seals sold Dominic DiMaggio's contract to Boston Red Sox. Young Dominic, whose contract cost the Sox an estimated $50,000, was one of Boston's leading outfielders last season.

All through yesterday's driving rain Coach Baker's B.C.I. senior gridders went through their paces at the Collegiate campus in preparation for Wednesday's senior C.O.S.S.A. play-off here versus the Bowmanville High. Ross Clare, Jack Zufelt and 'Goldie' Mulholland all returned to the squad giving Coach Baker his first full practice since the season opened. The "scarlet scourge" is not selling the strong Bowmanville squad short and are in there punching. In Slemin and Brown, the Rubber Town's two forward passers, Bowmanville pin their hopes, but McIlveen, their plunging halfback will have to be carefully watched also. The Bowmanville squad comes to town boasting of a strong, sturdy line, but we have faith in our own front line of defence. The winner of this series moves into the C.O.S.S.A. finals versus the winner between Niagara District and Barrie.

We understand the Belleville hockey team, now entered in the Van Horne Memorial series, is still angling for a goal-keeper, as the rest of the squad seems to be strong enough. Harry McCreary joined the team over the week-end and will team with St. Louis and Donohue on the defence. However, if a goaltender is needed, what's the matter with using Sergt. Laurie Gibson of the R.C.A.F.?

Remember Ken Doraty, the mighty little fellow who broke up one of the longest N.H.L. games on record in 1933 when he scored for Toronto over Boston? Well Kennie is seeking an amateur card to play hockey in his native Regina.

We all welcome back Squadron Leader Wilbur Van Vliet from overseas. "Van" took the first squadron of Canadian airmen "over there." He's back home again and the same old "Van" who managed the R.C.A.F. "Flyers" here during the winter of 1938-39. Incidentally it is rumoured about that Squadron Leader Tommy Laurence may be back at the Trenton Airport soon, if so look for a smart team of puck-chasers once again. Squadron Leader Laurence led the Airmen into the Allan Cup playdowns in 1937.

Sport Spice:—Don't be surprised if the sale of the New York Yankees is announced this week . . . Jim Farley's option runs out on Friday, Nov. 15th., you know . . . Ex-pro. pucksters are heading a movement to revive hockey in the schools at Niagara Falls . . . Brooklyn paid one hundred G's and three players for pitcher Walter Higbe, of the Phillies, but before this week's major league conclave is over more big news will be coming out of the major ball leagues.

AT THE McCARTHY

"A Family of Nations"

The current attraction at the McCarthy Theatre, "A Family of Nations," is an exciting cavalcade of historical events of the British Empire, depicting one hundred years of glory dating from the coronation of Queen Victoria, down through the years to the happiness of today. All of England's greats, her leading politicians, social and military figures, with their staying power, their stamina and their tolerance, are mirrored on the silver screen in a narrative record of a great Empire. It is the stirring story of the British Empire, its inception, its history and its future.

Between the scenes, such eminent personages as George Bernard Shaw, Lady Astor and Sir Austin Chamberlain, in interviews with John Drinkwater, the picture's creator, discuss outstanding periods of Britain's history, including the treaty with Ireland and the value of a woman's judgment in directing the affairs of the state.

The return of the world to normalcy after the Great War is shown with its attendant financial boom and the inevitable depression beginning in 1929. It shows the political greats who were called to parliament by King George V and who were responsible for the British Empire being the first into recovery from the world's greatest depression.

And then bringing events up to the present day, it shows the rise to power of the dictatorial leaders; the pall of sorrow overshadowing the Empire at the death of King George V; the reign of King Edward VIII which lasted less than one year and which was climaxed by his memorable radio speech turning the crown over to his brother, our present King George VI.

The final scenes depict Hitler on the war rampage, Chamberlain's visit to Munich in a vain effort of appeasement; the visit of Their Majesties to Canada and the more recent events such as sandbagged London and evacuation scenes; the French desperately reinforcing the Maginot Line, and as a climax, the 46 separate colonies of the Empire banded together in a valiant stand for the British Commonwealth of Nations.

HOW TO OVERCOME ITCHING PILES

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed This formula, which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

AT THE CAPITOL

"It's In the Air"

"It's in the Air" is in the bag.

Here is an English picture which came to Canada with no advance publicity at all, and with no names that mean a thing on this side of the ocean, and it turns out to be the funniest thing Great Britain has exported since Gracie Fields.

George Formby, the leading man is the No. 1 movie star in England and this picture "It's in the Air" coming next to the Capitol, will put him high on the list of Canada's favorite comics, too. Mr. Formby is a kind of masculine Gracie Fields. He has a broad accent that has never been within reach of Oxford, he has a face with no pretensions to being handsome but he has a merry eye, he sings a breezy song with a flourish, he plays an expert ukelele, and he puts his heart into his work.

"It's in the Air" goes back to the days just before the war for its theme. According to the story every one in England was getting into some form of war service, and hero George wants to join up also. But George is a complete misfit. Everything he tries he bungles and no one will have him at all. Eventually, just to see how he'll look in it, he tries on his brother-in-law-to-be's R.A.F. uniform, which leads to untold complications.

In almost no time George finds himself at an R.A.F. station, supposed to know the ropes and being horribly ignorant about everything. He goes through all the sufferings of a raw recruit, he has the inevitable misunderstandings with the sergeant-major, he is made the butt of all the jokes, and for a climax, he, who knows nothing at all about planes, is piloting a loaded bomber through a special test.

Mr. Formby provides most of the fun himself, but the rest of the cast is an excellent foil for him. The theme song, "It's in the Air", has a grand swing—we'll be hearing it often—and two other ditties contributed by the star have you hanging on every one of their clever, breezy words. Oh, by the way, is just slightly naughty, but it does not seem offensive done with a British accent.

Don't miss this chance to get acquainted with Mr Formby. He is a riot, and "It's in the Air" is one long laugh.

Canadian Forests Supply Almost All Britain's Needs

Purchases in Canada Will Amount to $45,000,000 This Year

REGULATE PURCHASES

Ottawa, Nov. 12 (CP).—Canadian forests now supply almost all of Britain's timber requirements, Munitions Minister Howe said today.

In a statement, Mr. Howe said purchases in Canada by the British timber controller will amount to about $45,000,000 this year. The British orders include airplane spruce, birch logs for making aircraft plywood, box shooks, pit props, and lumber for general repair and building purposes.

About 75 per cent of Great Britain's pre-war requirements were supplied from the Baltic countries, France and the Danube valley. With these sources cut off by war and with purchases from the United States limited by need for conserving foreign exchange, Britain now was largely dependent on Canada.

H. R. MacMillan of Vancouver, timber controller for the department of munitions and supply, had taken extensive measures to assist the British controller in obtaining supplies, and also to conserve and regulate wood products needed in Canada's own war effort. For instance, the controller purchased the 200,000,000 feet of dry lumber required for the entire Canadian government building program, before the program was announced, thus avoiding competitive purchasing by the contractors and consequent increased prices.

Motor manufacturers had been shipping trucks to England, each encased in 1,500 feet of Alberta and Manitoba spruce, readily saleable in the United States. A new type of crate was developed which would save $1,135,000 in the cost of crates required during the next few months and would also release 37,500,000 feet of spruce for sale in the United States for about $1,250,000 in American funds.

Mr. Howe said the timber controller also had taken steps to reduce importation of lumber for purposes which could be served economically and acceptably by Canadian lumber, and there had been many instances in which wood had been substituted for steel in construction, with a consequent saving of U.S. funds.

A scene from "Blondie Plays Cupid" newest laugh hit of the Bumstead Family, coming to the McCarthy Theatre next.

FRANCE'S FOOD SITUATION SAID TO BE SERIOUS

Two-Thirds of Country's Agricultural Production in Nazi Hands

LIVESTOCK REMOVED

By LOUIS V. HUNTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 12 (CP)—The food situation in France is becoming "increasingly serious," according to information reaching the British Ministry of economic warfare.

A Ministry official said the German-occupied territory in France represents about two-thirds of the country's total agricultural production. This is reported to have placed the unoccupied portion also in a difficult situation, made more serious because of the breakdown of transportation.

Trucks and locomotives have been sent by the Nazis into Germany and lorry transport is at a standstill because of gasoline shortage, resulting in further dislocation in the distribution of available food supplies.

Bread Is Rationed

Bread is rationed in France at 87 ounces a week. The situation with regard to grain stocks is said to be unsatisfactory because the army of occupation as well as refugees have to be fed.

The Ministry has received reports that before the harvest was gathered in France, a large number of actual fields of wheat were reserved for the Germans with Swastika signs and at least 800,000 tons of wheat were removed to Germany from occupied France.

Foodstuffs are being taken up by the Army of Occupation and sent home.

Meat Supply Low

Meat supplies also are low. The ration in France is 12 1-2 ounces a week and in Germany 17 1-2 ounces. In addition, a large amount of livestock has been transported into Germany. Pigs have been requisitioned in large quantities. One million are believed to have been removed in a fortnight in September alone as well as thousands of cattle.

France originally was self-sufficient in sugar, with a large sugar beet crop. This year about 80 per cent of the crop was lost because of the fighting in the north.

Wines have been requisitioned in a big way by the Germans. The whole grape harvest at Bordeaux has been taken over. Instead of paying for it the Germans are calling it a legitimate prize of war. One firm alone delivered 12,000,000 bottles of champagne to Germany but it is not known whether it was paid for.

The War Today

(By Guy Rhoades, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Germany today appeared ready to invite Russia into the axis, but what the Russian reply would be was far less apparent.

Russia's Premier Molotoff, doffing his hat every time he passed a German officer, detrained at Berlin today and went into almost immediate conference with Germany's Foreign Minister Ribbentrop.

Molotoff's reception was accomplished with little show and no cheers. There may have been some inclination on the part of older Germans to smile a bit on recalling some of the things Hitler used to say about Russia.

Japanese Attitude

On the other side of the world Japan, third of the troubled axis partners, called loudly for Russia's entry into the league of aggressors. Japanese who previously had been interested mainly in a "new order in Asia" today referred expansively to "new world order" which they believe the axis could bring about with Russia's help.

The diplomatic move looked like preparation for a German march to the Mediterranean. It was assumed in some quarters that Germany would seek to buy Russia's connivance or possible co-operation in that effort.

In South East Europe

If Germany decides to help her ailing Italian friends in their so-far futile effort to invade Greece she must get troops to Greece. Already she has thousands mustered in Rumania and at present occupied in cleaning up earthquake damage. The easiest way to get them to Greece would be to move them through Bulgaria which is in no position to refuse transit permission.

However, Turkey has said that in the event of Bulgaria acting against Greece she will fight. A movement of troops through Bulgaria might readily be interpreted as a hostile act by Bulgaria.

Turkey

Germany could hardly afford now to risk a war with Turkey, and that may be where Russia fits in. If Russia agrees to help the axis her function may be to take care of Turkey, either insure her non-belligerence or fight her.

On the other hand many observers believe Russia is not at all anxious to have Germany around the Dardanelles in a position where she could block the exit from the Black Sea. Russia's relations with Turkey have been cordial for years and while Turkey controls the Dardanelles Russian Black Sea shipping is in little danger of strangulation.

Should Germany be forced, either by Russia's lack of co-operation or for some other reason, to get help to Italy by another route the easiest alternative would be to send her soldiers down through Italy and ship them across the Ionian Sea to Albania.

Mussolini's Position

That would bring embarrassment to Mussolini whose people definitely do not like German soldiers and are reported none too enthusiastic over the war. It would also place Mussolini in the position of wondering if he would ever get the Germans to leave again.

It is possible that it was the prospect of having Hitler's troops on the shores of "mare nostrum" that prompted the Italian dictator to launch his attack on Greece. He may have wanted to show Hitler that he could do the job in the Mediterranean himself.

"Dulcy"

Laughs are the order of the day for audiences attending the new comedy "Dulcy" starring Ann Sothern, which is now on the Belle Theatre screen. Ann Sothern's "Maisie" fans will find their favorite in a new characterization as the beautiful but dumb Dulcy who has a heart of gold and a faculty for getting everyone she meets into trouble. The story deals with her efforts to sell an airplane motor to the father of her brother's fiancee, but in so doing she almost wrecks three romances, including her own.

An excellent cast of supporting players has been gathered for the featured roles. Miss Sothern's leading man is Ian Hunter. Roland Young appears as the airplane magnate, and Billie Burke as his wife. Dan Dailey, Jr., and Lynne Carver are the youthful romantic team. Reginald Gardiner is the slightly demented gentleman with illusions of grandeur. One of the high spots of comedy is contributed by Donald Huie, five-year-old Chinese lad, who makes his screen debut as "Sneezy". Guinn Williams appears as the reformed crook turned butler.

"Earthbound"

Exciting drama, with surprising adventures of a ghost, abounds in "Earthbound", the 20th Century-Fox film starring Warner Baxter and Andrea Leeds, which is the second excellent comedy-drama.

Baxter is murdered early in the film and continues on the screen in the form of a wraith-like ghost who walks through doors and stone walls. His behavior as a ghost provides many smiles. He finds it hard to realize that he isn't alive until people walk through him—and a mirror fails to reveal his image.

His usual masterful self, Baxter turns in a grand job of acting while Andrea Leeds performs as only she can, registering successfully in a difficult role that brings out her remarkable dramatic ability. Lynn Bari, Charley Grapewin, Patterson round out one of the strongest supporting casts ever to appear on the screen of the Belle Theatre.

The Belle news of the hour will also be exhibited.

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER TWELVE.

"That message seems the best bet," North decided as he removed the strip of paper from the cap of his fountain pen and stared at its enigmatic three rows of letters. Yes—on IT, and on the woman called Nadia Stefan, he would have to concentrate his efforts.

Nadia Stefan. A musical name as Russian as a balalaika. Of course it must have been she who had called him on the telephone. What fools she'd made of two clever intelligence officers! Poor Cross and poor Clark, both had paid dearly for her smiles. It would be pleasant if he could square their account.

He wondered whether Kilgour was making any progress with the cipher. Probably! Kilgour was nobody's fool. His constructive reverie was abruptly terminated by a slight knock at the door.

In silence North sprang up, crossed to the washstand at the far end of the room and, with a wrench, lifted off the cap of a talcum powder box. In the aperture he thrust that strip of paper he had removed from the dead girl's hair. This operation consumed less than ten seconds.

Ruffling his hair a trifle, he tucked an automatic pistol between the cushions of his armchair.

"Hello, that you, Clark?" he called drowsily. "Come in."

Someone tried the door knob, then a woman's voice, speaking with a strong English accent, said, "Sorry, but I can't, the door is locked."

Mumbling sleepy apologies, North strode to the door and opened it.

Standing outside, a tall young woman in an evening gown smiled at North. She was handsome, in spite of unbecoming glasses and hair, which though skinned back much too tight, was of a coppery hue that could not seem to make up its mind whether it wanted to be gold or auburn.

"I am sorry, Mr. Nevins. I seem to have waked you — Bruce said twelve, but they said at the desk that you'd come in, so I've dropped in earlier."

"Quite all right," North said, then apologized, "Sorry, I must have fallen asleep. Wait, I'll put on my coat. And do sit down, Miss Belknap, it's awfully good of you to risk coming here."

"Oh, I'm not a prude, and Bruce is an old, old friend," she replied, flashing him a quick, reassuring smile. "What a perfectly ripping view!" She paused by the window, gazing out at the same scene which had so fascinated him.

"The harbor is lovely," she said, and turned to face him. "I say, I'm perishing for a fag. Do you mind?" And she pulled a small case from her bag.

"Of course not," said North as she vigorously plumped herself down in a chair. "I say, before we begin talking, could I have a spot of that whiskey?—I'm a bit weary," she smiled.

"Oh, Lord, I'm a wretched host," North cried aloud; then groaned inwardly to himself: "Lord help us, she's going to be one of those 'companionable' English women!"

He got up, shook a few pieces of ice from a thermos jug, and poured out a couple of drinks while Miss Belknap crossed her silk-clad legs with all the delicacy of a steam shovel in operation.

"I hear you're a stranger," she began. "Think you're going to like it here in Honolulu?"

The intelligence captain cast an amused glance over his shoulder.

"Shouldn't wonder," said he. "It's such a lovely place: and I hear the ulua and tuna fishing is something men write books about. Fizzy or ginger ale?"

"Ginger ale," she said promptly.

He smiled over his shoulder. "This IS an occasion. Do you know you're the first English girl I've ever met who preferred ginger ale to seltzer or plain water?"

In high good humor she threw her small head back and uttered a brief laugh. "Well, I may be . . . becoming Americanized!"

"Then you've been here long?"

"Oh, yes," she said, her eyes following his deft motions over the highball glasses, "I'm a real old-timer and fairly familiar with all of the islands. Why don't you finish up the ginger ale?" she sugested when he reached for the seltzer.

"Right," he said and decided that hers was really a very charming smile. He raised his glass. "Well here's how!"

"Pip-pip," she replied gravely, the rhinestones on one heel of her narrow slippers glinting as she began to swing a leg.

"Bruce didn't tell me anything about what you wanted. He was exasperatingly mysterious — just enough to make me want to come up here."

"I'm afraid he's been misleading you, then," North crossed the room to stand before her, idly tinkling the ice in his glass.

Miss Belknap heaved a little sigh; then said, "Please tell me, what do you want me to do?"

"You see it is this way," he confessed. "There is, in Honolulu, a man who is called a king of steel kings."

"Do you mean Abner Polk?"

He did not fail to note the faint flush which tinged his caller's cheek. What had prompted that, he wondered? Was this amusing Belknap girl perhaps ambitious of becoming Mrs. Polk the second? No, he hardly thought so.

"I do," North said.

She put down her glass and reached for her handbag. "Please go on," she invited.

"Well, you see some of the kinglets are very anxious to know just what Polk plans to do about this crisis with Japan. As one of them is my best friend, I asked Bruce to suggest someone who would be welcome at Polk's house."

"Really." On her seat the girl stiffened a little, and her manner became coolly vague. "I—I hardly know what to say, it sounds very much like spying."

"Oh, no," North hastened to reassure his guest, "it really is as much for Mr. Polk's protection as it is for my friend's. Some of Polk's competitors in other countries are—well—"

Mercurially, Miss Belknap's attitude changed, and she straightened on her seat, clapping her hands with carefully restrained enthusiasm.

"Oh, I see! I'm to be a sort of—well, what would you call it? A 'lookout'?"

North nodded and donned his most winning smile. "Yes, something along that line. All I want you to do is to notice who goes to Kalua, and to keep an eye on the Polk household. Do you think you could get yourself invited up there?"

The young woman, he was deciding, was quicker than he had deemed her. She might prove useful in still another capacity—and he needed every bit of help he could find! Her eyes behind those lenses were never at rest, never fixing him with that blank, uncompromising English stare which charms some people and infuriates others.

"The idea appeals to me," murmured Miss Belknap.

"Then you'll do it?"

"Why, yes," she said. "I think it could be managed. Besides, I'm glad to do anything I can for Bruce—he's a darling."

North made a little face. "Bruce Kilgour is fortunate." Then he noticed that she seemed to be a bit chilled.

"Cold?" he asked.

"Just a bit," she admitted. "Hate to be a bother."

He put his highball on the table beside which they stood before crossing to the window. There he paused an instant to peer out into the night.

"Moon's rising—never've seen it such a gorgeous color," he announced, and then turned to recapture his highball. "Then you'll arrange to go up to Abner Polk's tomorrow?"

"I'll ring him up first thing in the morning," she assured him and raised her glass. "Cheerio! And here's to MY debut in the world of ESPIONAGE!"

"How!" North replied and took a deep gulp. Hardly had he swallowed than his white-clad body stiffened, then it bent forward in a series of spasmodic jerks. Wildly he stared about, his glass fell from his stiffening fingers and shattered on the bedroom floor.

"You—you—!" He gasped and, despite a fearful effort to recover himself, went limp to lie sprawled at the feet of the girl in white like a figure cut out of paper.

A long instant the red-haired girl remained motionless as she peered down at the unconscious intelligence captain.

"Sot!" she murmured contemptuously. "So this is the famous Captain Hugh North! Bah! Like all the rest of these childish Americans."

With the toe of her slipper, the so-distant Miss Belknap turned her victim's lax head over so that the room's lights beat full upon the face . . .

Momentarily, her expression softened, but went hard again as, putting down her glass, she became very busy indeed. . . .

WALL STREET

New York, Nov. 12. — (AP) — Steels stumbled in today's stock market but buying of aircrafts generally aided the list in regaining a portion of its equilibrium.

Sizable offerings appeared at the start and declines ran to two or more points. A little improvement then came in and losses were reduced for early sufferers when the plane division took on rising fuel.

Prominent on the forenoon backslide were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown Sheet, Crucible, Chrysler, Westinghouse, American Telephone, Anaconda, J. I. Case, Standard Oil of N.J. and Great Northern.

Plus signs were tacked on Douglas Aircraft, Boeing, Glenn Martin, United Aircraft, Curtiss-Wright, Sears Roebuck, Celanese, Phelps Dodge and U.S. Rubber.

Canadian stocks improved generally. Distillers Seagram, Canadian Pacific and Hiram Walker advanced fractions. Dome Mines and Lake Shore lost as much. Canada 4s, in the Bond Market, gained 1-4 point

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Nov. 12 —(CP)— Gold and Western Oil stocks maintained an upward slant through the early session on Toronto Exchange today while the Industrials and the Base Metals dropped about a half point in the index. Volume was sizeable at 265,000 shares for the first three hours.

Reduction of dividends, announced by Imperial Oil and International Petroleum weakened sentiment in the Industrial group and around mid-day the market developed sluggishness, presumably because of the outlook for closer Russian co-operation with Germany. Imperial oil dropped 3-4 to 10 5-8 and Pete 3-4 to 15 1-4. C.P.R. was in demand at a moderate advance.

Kerr-Addison and Preston touched new highs, up 10 to 15 cents but all the gains were not held. Wright-Hargreaves was strong on dividend news. In the Base Metals, Nickel, Steep Rock and Jack Waite were lower.

Minor gains were netted by Home Oil, Calgary and Edmonton, Anglo-Canadian and Pacalta.

Butter Prices Reach Current Year's High

Butter prices advanced to the highest level of the current year on the Toronto open produce market yesterday as generally light offerings kept well cleared. Some points reported slackening of trading in the afternoon session because buyers had taken on considerable quantities of butter during Saturday and Monday morning. First grade Ontario creamery solids to the wholesale trade closed at 30½ cents a pound. Early sales of the Ontario product were made at 30 cents.

Reviewing the dairy situation for October, the Dominion Department of Agriculture says in part:

"The most outstanding occurrence in October was the advance of approximately 55 cents a pound in the price of butter with corresponding increases in butter-fat quotations. When this price movement was partly of a seasonal character it is recognized that the decline in production during September and October and sizable transfers from storages to unrecorded channels to meet military requirements were two responsible factors in this development. The latter would seem to be indicated in the unusual advance of 13.4 per cent in the butter disappearance during the month of October as compared with the same month of the preceding year. The present price advance, of course, can only be regarded as a temporary development; yet, its effect is already apparent in the early closing of some cheese factories. The price situation, however is one that should eventually right itself, for after allowing 2.1 per cent increase in the disappearance during the next six months (based on the January to September disappearance figures) it seems obvious that a substantial butter surplus still exists. Besides, indications now point to a normal milk production and a diversion of milk from cheese factories to creameries; so that in the course of the next month it is quite possible that the butter output may approximate that of the same month of the preceding year."

It was difficult to establish a market on fresh eggs yesterday owing to the small amount of business transacted, but most dealers reported an earlier trend. Receipts continued light. Undergrades held steady to firm.

LIVESTOCK

Montreal, Nov. 12—(CP)—Prices ruled firm in early trade on Montreal Livestock Markets today, according to the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

"MOTHER" McAVOY DIES

New York, Nov. 12 (AP)— "Mother" McAvoy, counsellor and "banker" for sailors of the seven seas on their stay ashore in New York, is dead. She died yesterday at 64.

One of the few women proprietors of a drug store in the city, she catered to trade from the teeming Chelsea waterfront on the western edge of Greenwich Village.

Her own special vegetable tonic was known to seamen the world over for its excellent effects upon a hangover. For some, she held their pay for safekeeping during boisterous shore leaves. She was a native of Rome, N.Y.

EXPLOSIONS

the Burton Powder Works of the American Cyanamid Corporation, in the village of Edinburg, Pa., two miles east of New Castle in western Pennsylvania, killing three men, deputy coroner reported.

Three other persons died in the third explosion, at the Trojan Powder Company plant in the outskirts of Allentown, Pa. There were no injured.

Allentown, Pa., Nov. 12—(AP)— Three men were killed today in an explosion at the Trojan Powder Company plant at Tozell's crossing, six miles northwest of here.

A company spokesman said the victims were in a small building where percussion caps were manufactured. The company is an independent concern.

The building was destroyed by a blast heard for miles around.

The company held at least one national defence contract. It was awarded an army order for $81,400 worth of explosives Nov. 5.

The dead were identified as Fred Weller of Scheresville, Pa., Hugh Fisher, Allentown and William Schoenfelder, Brienigsville.

John Bronstein, company treasurer, estimated property damage at between $3,000 and $4,000. The company "feels certain," he said, that not more than three men were killed. No one was injured.

After an investigation, Coroner Alexander M. Peters reported that the blast "was just an unfortunate accident."

New Castle, Pa., Nov. 12—(AP)— Deputy Coroner T. A. McKay reported three men were killed today in an explosion at the Burton Powder Works of the American Cynanamid Corporation in the village of Edinburg, two miles from this western Pennsylvania City.

McKay said he understood one of several small buildings comprising the plant was "blown up" but had no further details. The blast shook this industrial community.

Explosion at Woodbridge

Woodbridge N.J., Nov. 12 (AP) —At least five persons were killed today in an explosion which razed the plant of the United Railway and Signal Corporation near here. More than a score were injured, some critically.

State Police Headquarters at Trenton received a report that there were 15 known dead, 10 missing and 35 injured.

Many of the injured were in a critical condition. The Perth Amboy General Hospital admitted seven and the Rahway Hospital, eight. Each treated a number of others.

Preliminary estimates of the death toll varied from six to 25 but Police Captain John Egan of Woodbridge Township, in which the plant was situated, expressed belief that no more than 20 persons were employed there. It manufactured railway track torpedoes, flares and similar equipment.

No Defence Orders

In Washington army and navy officials said a preliminary check of records of defence orders did not show that any contracts had been awarded to the company.

Police said there were 15 buildings at the plant, but only half of one building remained standing after the blast.

WEYGAND REFUSES

tablishment of a "new European order."

It was even suggested Weygand's attitude might indicate a showdown between himself and his North African army on the one hand and the Axis, partners on the other.

It was noted also that Gen. Charles De Gaulle, leader of the Free French forces still fighting with Britain, has scored recent successes in French equatorial Africa and some suggested the possibility that eventually his forces and Weygand's might be linked.

French Equatorial Africa and French North Africa remain as strong as before the war, or perhaps stronger, as their forces took no part in the fighting in which European France was vanquished.

Weygand's attitude was seen as a possible bar to any Axis attempt to establish bases in French African territory.

Fascist Forces Retreating Along Fighting Front

Greek Forces Following Closely Behind 'Continue To Take Many Prisoners' in Centaur Division

Athens, Nov. 12—(AP)—Greek troops who advanced under heavy bombing attacks crowded today on the heels of shattered Fascist forces reported retreating in disorder along the whole fighting front of Italy's reversed invasion.

The Greek High Command said its mountain troops and cavalry mopped up behind the routed Italians and speedily consolidated the positions regained at the start of the third week of fighting, despite "intense activity" of Italian aircraft along the front.

The Government spokesman declared that Greek forces following up the remnant of the crack Centaur Alpine Division in the Pindus mountains "continue to take prisoners."

Most of the division was reported killed or captured the rest in headlong flight.

The spokesman said this retreat and that of three battalions which "fled in disorder" along the coastal sector had "created panic behind the Italian lines."

At the opposite end of the battlefront, Greek highland troops were reported still in command of "strong and strategically important" positions won in a counter thrust into Albania to block the Italian drive into Macedonia.

"It's a good start," the spokesman commented. "We're satisfied."

New Italian Drive Reported

Belgrade, Yugoslavia, Nov. 12— (AP)— A new Italian drive was reported today to have pushed Greek troops back from the heights which they occupied last week dominating the town of Koritza, 10 miles inside Albania.

Advices from the Yugoslav frontier said the Italians had made two fierce infantry attacks on the heights, forcing the Greeks to withdraw to their side of the frontier.

(Athens reports on the contrary said Greek highland troops were still in command of "strong and strategically important" positions in the Koritza sector.)

Artillery fire in the Koritza-Phlorina sector was intense as the Greeks were reported to have inflicted heavy casualties on the advancing Italians.

CHAMBERLAIN

that Neville Chamberlain acted with perfect sincerity, according to his lights, and strove to the utmost of his capacity and authority, which were powerful, to serve the world from the awful devastating struggle in which we are now engaged."

When War Came it Came to the Country United

In the House of Lords, Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax said his former chief never relaxed his efforts to prepare Britain for war, even while doing his utmost to avoid war.

"One great fact he was able to accomplish," Lord Halifax said, "was that, when war came, it came to a country united."

Political leaders of other parties joined in paying tribute to Chamberlain.

Clement Attlee, Lord Privy Seal, said that though Labor opposed, "often bitterly," Chamberlain's policies, "we never doubted his deep devotion to the cause of peace." He added that as a colleague of the late Prime Minister, "I recognized his abhorrence to the evil which is seeking to destroy civilization."

Tribute to His Humanity

Sir Archibald Sinclair, Secretary for Air, on behalf of the Liberals declared that "even in the heat of our most controversial debts we have been forced to pay tribute to his humanity as a social performer, to his courage and his high sense of public duty, and to his unsparing devotion to the cause of peace."

George Lambert, National Liberal, one of the oldest members of the House, who served with three Chamberlains, said "Neville Chamberlain's name remains for ever as one who fought for peace."

GERMANY

for himself.

Molotoff, making his first visit to Germany, arrived at 11.05 a.m. (5.05 a.m. E.D.T.), accompanied by a staff of thirty-three.

Fanfare was absent from the greeting which the Russian received as he left his special train at Anhalter Station, but Germans regarded Molotoff's visit as of great consequence.

Some informed Nazis indicated an invitation might be extended to Russia to become the partner of Germany, Italy and Japan in planning their "new world order."

Molotoff was welcomed by Foreign Minister Ribbentrop and a number of Nazi Government and military officials as he stepped from his train.

Viewed Guard of Honor

After a formal greeting, Ribbentrop conducted Molotoff downstairs to review an honor guard in a downpour and then the party left by automobile for Bellevue Castle, where the Russian will stay while he is in Berlin. Less than an hour after his arrival he went into conference with Ribbentrop.

It was announced that Hitler would receive Molotoff this afternoon in the Chancellery.

Except for two big Russian and Nazi flags and a screen of green laurel trees, adorned with strips of gold, which partly walled off the platform, the station was almost bare of decoration.

Simplicity appeared to be the keynote, in contrast to the welcomes accorded Italian, Hungarian and Yugoslav statesmen on the occasion of their recent visits here.

Moved Forward to Greet Visitor

Molotoff's special train halted several hundred feet from the spot on the platform where it had been expected to stop, and a large assembly of German dignitaries, augmented by the Japanese, Turkish and Chinese ambassadors, and the Italian Charge D'Affaires (Ambassador Dino Alfieri has been ill for some time), had to move hurriedly forward to greet the visitor.

Molotoff, smiling and talking animatedly in Russian, gesticulated approvingly toward the flags hanging side by side in the room. He was dressed somberly in a black sack suit, a white shirt and black tie, a pepper and salt overcoat, and a light grey slouch hat.

(As Molotoff emerged into the square outside the station, where the honor guard flanked by S. S. men in field gray had taken up their positions, a military band played the "Present Arms" March.

No Flags on Street

Molotoff took off his hat every time he passed an officer. Unlike other state receptions, when bands have played the National Anthems of visiting diplomats, the band lapsed into silence as soon as Molotoff had finished taking the salute.

There were no flags decorating the streets along which Molotoff was driven to Bellevue Castle.

Men and women watched curiously from windows of buildings opposite the station, but there were no shouts.

A crowd was gathered in the square before the Reich's Chancellery, but no cardboard flags were distributed as was the case when the pact between Germany, Italy and Japan was signed here Sept. 27.

Informed sources said the ceremonies today were patterned closely upon those attending Ribbontrop's state visit to Moscow.

33 Experts With Molotoff

The Russian statesman was accompanied here from Moscow by a staff of 33 experts on foreign affairs, commerce, aviation and industry. Also with him was the German Ambassador to Moscow, Count Friederich Von Der Schulenberg.

The possibility of far-reaching decisions affecting Russia's relations with the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo partners was indicated by the Diplomatisch-Politische Korrespondenz, frequently the mouthpiece of the German Foreign Office.

This commentary declared close ties between Germany and Russia have "promoted relations between the U.S.S.R. and the friends and Allies of Germany."

"All four major eurasian powers" it said, "are ready today to respect each other's vital interests."

Newspapers Comment

(The Tokyo newspaper Asahhi, commenting upon Molotoff's trip, said it was necessary for Germany and Italy to "obtain full Soviet support for the establishment of a new world order." Asahi suggested that "it would be most advisable for Germany and Italy to come to a full political understanding with the Soviet Union, so the latter could not to be won to the side of Britain and the United States.)

The Hamburger Fremdenblatt stressed German efforts to isolate Britain diplomatically and said Molotoff's visit to Berlin could be viewed as "a heavy blow to the Anglo-Saxon nations."

It suggested that in view of developments the United States should ask herself "whether it isn't a historical necessity to recognize the changing times and act accordingly."

CHANNEL GALES

Undisturbed Night

The last of a few lone raiders headed homeward at 9 p.m. last night, a joint communique issued by the Air Ministry and Minister of Home Security reported, and the storm-swept sky over England still was clear of invading planes when daylight came.

Such attacks as were made up to 9 p.m., the communique said, caused a "very small" number of casualties and "slight" damage.

Places raided included the London area, southeastern and eastern England and the southwest.

The press, meanwhile, rejoiced over the Royal Air Force's victory yesterday over Italian planes which attacked shipping in the English Channel.

The bannerline in the Daily Express read:—

"Thirteen Italian raiders (made of wood) hurricaned. Ancient Rome's ancient planes."

British Rams Italian Machine

One British fighter pilot reported he shot down an Italian bomber, then attacked an Italian fighter. His guns jammed at this point, he said, so he rammed into the Italian's wing, sending the latter down. The R.A.F. pilot landed unhurt.

The Air Ministry's score in yesterday's air fighting was 26 Axis planes—13 Italian and 13 German —against the loss of only two British, both lost in combat with Germans.

During last night's attacks on the London area, doctors and nurses crawled through debris of a printing plant, bombed during the day, to aid trapped men and women.

An official source said the Admiralty was expected to issue a communique on an attack last week by a German raider on a convoy in the Atlantic as soon as surviving ships reached port.

The raider's identity has not been established definitely, this source said.

Might Be Pocket Battleship

(Reports at the time of the attack indicated the raider might have been either of the German pocket battleships Admiral Scheer or Luetzow.)

Recalling the recent arrival of Italian submarine crew members as prisoners taken by British forces in the Atlantic, naval circles said it was impossible to prevent some undersea craft from slipping past Gibraltar because the Strait is 10 miles wide and more than 300 fathoms deep in its deepest part.

Mines cannot be laid deep enough to block the passage completely, it was pointed out.

Naval circles recalled that in the last war British submarines got through the strongly-guarded Dardanelles and into the Sea of Marmora—through a passage only a mile wide.

Reports from Muskegon, Mich., told of the disappearance of the lights of the freighter Novadoc of the Paterson Steamship Lines, earlier sighted off shore as she was bound for her home port, Fort William. Wreckage from the Novadoc was said to have drifted on the beach. At the same time reports from Sault Ste. Marie said the freighter Maritana was in trouble between Manitoulin Island and Cockburn Island with a U.S. coastguard vessel on its way to the scene.

Making Shelter

Later advices however were that the Maritana was making shelter after encountering difficulty with the barge that she was towing.

The official weather forecast said the gales would decrease later today in Quebec and Ontario but the temperature would drop lower. Strong northwest winds and gales however were promised for the Lake Superior, Rainy River and Manitoba areas tonight, decreasing in strength tomorrow.

Snow was forecast for all localities in Ontario and for parts of Manitoba.

The storm started in the United States and lashed at Eastern Canada Monday. No casualties were reported but damage, chiefly caused by fallen trees and smashed signboards, was reckoned in tens of thousands of dollars.

Canada did not feel the full force of the storms which lashed the United States but wind at velocities as high as 60 and 70 miles an hour disrupted power and communication lines, tore trees from the ground and caused widespread damage to buildings and shipping.

The high winds came after the nation had observed Remembrance Day in a wide variety of weather conditions. Fair weather and relatively cool weather prevailed on the Pacific Coast and in the mountains. Alberta had clear, crisp sub-zero weather and the thermometers in Saskatchewan ranged around zero with softly-falling snow in some sections and little wind.

Highways Clogged

Manitoba early in the day shared some of the high winds and snow which swept the northern States and a blinding blizzard clogged highways and damaged lines in southern areas of the province.

Temperatures in northwestern Ontario generally remained above the freezing point but rain and snow turned to sleet over a large area. Ice-coated communication lines proved easy victims to high winds and with the snapping of wires communicatons between Central and Western Canada were disrupted for several hours.

Earlier in the day heavy rains and overcast skies completed the weather map from Ontario through Quebec to the Maritime Provinces.

Later, when the fury of the southern storm struck, gales raged over the entire Great Lakes area as far east as the Upper St. Lawrence Valley but no severe storms were reported in the Maritimes and Quebec.

Storm Centres in London Area

Western Ontario received the main storm blasts with damage centred in the London district. Trees were blown down, store fronts crashed in, tree branches snapped off and went ripping through power and telegraph lines.

On the Great Lakes only the largest vessels put out from port in the face of the storm. For the most part shipping was storm-bound and little damage was reported. In Port Stanley, near St. Thomas, Ont., a scow broke loose and damaged three fishing tugs before it was safely tethered again.

Police were called out in Kitchener, Ont., to form a cordon about a danger point when steel sheets torn by the gale from buildings of an industrial plant cut high tension power wires. At the new Port Albert Air Navigators' School at Goderich, Ont., roofing was torn from newly-constructed hangars but damage was not high according to reports.

Freezing Weather Felt

New York, Nov. 12 —(AP)— Freezing weather overspread the middle-west today in the wake of furious gales that battered the mid-continent, causing death or injury to scores of persons and extensive property damage.

The mercury sank below zero in the Dakotas, Montana, and Wyoming while sub-freezing temperatures were general from the Rockies to beyond the Mississippi.

The violent winds uprooted trees, smashed windows, tore cornices from buildings, levelled frame buildings, broke radio towers, crumbled huge steel electric signs, and ripped away power and communication lines.

Tornadic winds struck Louisiana, Arkansas and Tennessee. Twenty families were left homeless when the storm struck Crocker Mills., Tenn., causing damage expected to exceed $150,000.

Snow blanketed much of the western half of the continent, piling into drifts that crippled transportation in Minnesota, Nebraska, Iowa, South Dakota, and Utah.

Three persons were killed in Wisconsin and fears were expressed for the safety of eight duck hunters on a barren, treeless island in the Wisconsin river near Portage.

Thousands of Turkeys Frozen

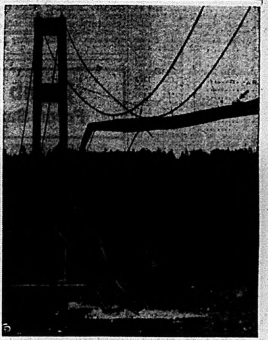
The Nebraska State Agricultural officials reported that one-fourth of the turkey crop was believed lost. Thousands of the birds froze to death while huddled together for protection against the biting winds.

Strong winds churned the Great Lakes, sending ships scurrying for shelter and driving a carferry aground near Ludington, Mich. Ludington was without telephone service for several hours and many power lines were down. The Port Huron lightship was blown far from its anchorage in Lake Erie.

There were eight storm deaths in Illinois, which suffered extensive property damage in both urban and rural sections. An electric sign in Chicago was blown down although built to resist a wind of 100 miles an hour. The steel sign was 10 stories high and valued by its owners at $150,000.

Windows of many fashionable shops in Chicago were shattered. The three-ton belfry tower of the Olivet Baptist Church crashed to the ground as did a seven-foot statute of Christ from atop the five-storey Columbus Hospital. Cornices were hurled to the ground in many sections of the city.

Shown here are Lois, LEFT, and William, 21, RIGHT, children of Dr. E. H. Rebhorn, health director of Scranton, Pennsylvania. They were both killed when mysterious blast wrecked the car in which they were driving.



This photograph was snapped at the actual instant the central span of the new $6,000,000 steel and concrete Narrows suspension bridge at Tacoma hit the waters of Puget Sound. The bridge crumpled under the impact of a southwest gale. And the central section fell more than 300 feet into the sound. Just a few minutes before the bridge collapsed all travel had been halted by state patrolmen as the span swayed more than 30 feet in the wind. One motorist abandoned his car and crawled to safety on his hands and knees, being unable to walk erect against the wind—his car can been seen on the bridge.

CITY HALL BEACON FLICKERS LIKE CANDLE

Pedestrians who braved last night's stormy blasts along Front St, about 11.30 p.m. took a second glance at the city hall clock, as the light in the belfrey flickered on and off for some minutes, before it finally went out completely.

"Gosh, that's the first time I knew they were burning candles in the town clock tower," remarked one local wise-cracking lad, while still another suggested the flashing might be the result of secret signalling.

Actually the city electric wiring had been dislodged when the limb of a tree dislodged the wiring that lighted the bulbs on the lower bridge and the city hall tower. When the broken wiring was replaced the lights came up again and citizens gazed upon the illuminated faces of the town clock once again.

Bomb Splinters From Battle of Britain

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer.

London, Nov. 12 (CP)—If all bomb explosions were as considerate as the one that blew the laundryman 30 feet into the air and dropped him uninjured on the roof of a pub, this air warfare business wouldn't be so bad. The publican stood his unexpected visitor a drink.

A hit-and-run raider dropped a bomb on Mrs. F. Taylor's house. She held a sale of bomb-soiled furniture and raised 4 pounds (about $17) for the Red Cross.

Members of a Hove club have turned the air raid sirens into a money-making proposition. Every time they hear the wail they each put a halfpenny into the kitty. They raised 40 pounds (about $188) in seven weeks.

There's such keen competition among members of the Bournemouth auxiliary fire service to go to London under an exchange system between the cities that some have offered to pay 1 pound for the privilege. Their weekly wage is only 5 pounds 5 shillings (about $14.35.)

British evacuee children in Canada don't like to be called "refugees," a Barrie, Ont., woman wrote her sister in London. "We called them 'refugees' at first," she wrote, "but now we never refer to them except as war guests'."

A husband and a home await some "working class female about 50" who has been bombed out. This offer, made by a man living in the country, accompanied a contribution to the "save-the-children fund." It hasn't been taken up yet.

Teletype printer errors sometimes have their point. This one turned up on the British Press Association machine:-

"The medical officer of health of Westminster city council . . . is completing experiments which it is believed will enable an antiseptic non-irritating solution to be projected into shelters in a fine mist so that any German likely to cause infection such as colds, influenza, scarlet fever and shelter throat can be rendered harmless."

HEAVY WIND BLOWS MOTOR CARS SIDEWAYS

Motorists who were forced to drive their automobiles during the height of last night's torrential hurricane reported driving conditions being the worst ever experienced in this area. "With the pavement wet and slippery the heavy winds would actually skid my car sideways and it was only by the most careful driving that I was able to make Belleville tonight", one commercial traveller told city police as he drove into the police station seeking downtown parking facilities late last night. Large transports drove into sheltered areas or remained at their depots fearing to face the strong sidewind that blew with hurricane power across Highway No. 2 practically all night.

PREPS AND JUNIORS STAGE 'INDOOR' HIKE

Inclement weather was responsible for a hike scheduled by the Prep and Junior classes of the Y.M.C.A. to be called off on Monday and instead the boys staged an "indoor" hike on the gym floor and in the swimming pool. After dividing the boys into classes, an athletical contest was won by the team captained by Garfield Little, while George Wonnacott's team won the swimming test. The non-swimming race was won by Gerald McKinnon.

Last week-end the Prep girls staged a very successful hike to the north of the city, up the east bank of the river to Corbyville and beyond. After gathering late moss in the adjoining woods, the girls enjoyed lunch on the rocks by the river and played "duck on the rock" before arriving home early in the afternoon.

First year nurses of the Belleville General Hospital were enjoying the swimming facilities at the local "Y" this morning. The probationers and first year nurses meet regularly on Tuesday mornings at the "Y," this being an example of the public services offered by the Y.M.C.A.

SOLDIERS' TEETH NOT NEGLECTED

Canadian Dental Corps in England Has Sixty Dentists Working Among C.A.S.F. Units

With the C.A.S.F. Somewhere in England, Nov. 12 (CP)—After months of work, dentists with Canada's troops believe they are making real headway putting the soldiers' teeth in healthy condition.

The dental problem is an endless one but Capt. E. T. Bourke of Montreal, oldest dentist in point of service with the Canadians in this country, says they are getting the majority of bad teeth attended to.

"In action we could not give such dental service to the men and this past summer we have had a fine chance to cope with the tooth question," he said. "It will contribute to making them better soldiers for dental trouble is one thing that will reduce efficiency quickly."

Capt. Bourke was formerly on the staff of McGill University and came over almost a year ago as the first dentist with the troops. At present he has set up shop at Corps Headquarters and in a garret room that serves as an office he looks over the teeth of corps officers—from generals to subalterns.

The Royal Canadian Dental Corps specially-built equipment for field service now has been thoroughly tested and has proven satisfactory, he said. Equipment for every dental purpose is in two compact trunks which can be packed ready for a move in 20 minutes.

This equipment even includes a steel dental chair which can be set up anywhere, and a gasoline stove and lamp for use in places where electricity is not available.

Two companies of the R.C.D.C., totalling about 60 dentists, now are working among units of the C.A.S.F. here.

DR. R. ANDERSON GIVES EVIDENCE

Explains by X-Ray Plates Injuries Sustained in Accident, Now Basis of Court Action

Dr. Reginald Anderson, Belleville physician, was the only witness called today when the case of the Canadian National Railway versus Montgomery, was resumed in Supreme Court under Mr. Justice Keiller MacKay.

The suit in which the railway is asking $25,000 damages of George Montgomery, Frankford, is the outcome of an accident at the Glen Ross railway crossing in 1939 when an automobile said to have been driven by Montgomery crashed into a gasoline "jigger", causing severe injuries to James Risk, and Frederick Todd, railway employees who were riding on the car at the time.

According to the evidence of Dr. G. H. Stobie who testified at the opening of the hearing here on Friday, Risk received a permanent disability resulting from fractured legs, chest and other injuries, while the condition of Todd would get "progressively worse". Todd suffered a fractured leg which resulted in a shortage of one inch to the limb, and other injuries.

Explained by X-Ray Plates

Dr. Anderson called to the stand today explained to the jury the injuries incurred by both men, throught the medium of X-ray plates. Under examination by R. E. Laidlaw, K.C., counsel for the plaintiffs, he pointed out the history and progress of the various fractures also the effects resulting upon the men involved. Todd, beside a limb shortage of one inch, had also suffered a 45 degree loss of function to a knee. A grating sound in the joint was attributed to an arthritic condition. Todd had to wear an orthopedic shoe, the witness stated. Risk had a decided limp and had suffered a 20 degree loss in movement of the ankle of the fractured leg.

"Do you think all these "horrible details" are necessary in court?" asked B. M. Balfour, defendant's counsel referring to the X-ray plates. "I do", replied Dr. Anderson. In his opinion Risk's ankle would never be 100 per cent normal.

Objection Raised

Strenuous objection was raised by Mr. Laidlaw, when the defendant's counsel asked Dr. Anderson his opinion of another doctor, who might differ with him in regard to the condition of the injured men. "Would you consder his opinion a dishonest one?" Mr. Balfour asked.

"I would not, but I would not believe him," retorted the witness.

Mr. Laidlaw immediately voiced his objections on the ground, that counsel was asking a professional man's opinion of another professional man. He appealed to the Bench and Mr. Justice MacKay remarked that "a professional man is usually able to take care of himself on the witness stand".

Cross courtroom fire resulted between counsel and the sitting adjourned with Justice MacKay asking Dr. Anderson if a breaking and re-setting of the bowed fracture in Todd's leg would have any success.

"I feel that I am not qualified to answer that question", the witness replied.

Polish pilots are credited with having the best eyesight in the R.A.F. "They can see a Hun miles away," a British pilot said. "I have good eyesight but these Poles are surprising."

Mr. Churchill's Tribute To Late Neville Chamberlain

London, Nov 12—The text of Prime Minister Churchill's tribute to the late Rt. Hon. Neville Chamberlain follows:

Since we last met the House has suffered a very grievous loss in the death of one of its most distinguished members and of a statesman and public servant who during the best part of three memorable years was the first Minister of the Crown.

Fierce and bitter controversies which hung around him in recent times were hushed by news of his illness and are silenced by his death.

In paying a tribute of respect and regard to so eminent a man who has been taken from us no one is obliged to alter the opinions which he has formed or expressed upon issues which have become a part of history but at the Lych Gate we may pass our own conduct and our own judgments under searching review.

It is not given to human beings—happily for them for otherwise life would be intolerable—to foresee or predict to any large extent the unfolding course of events.

In one phase men seem to have been right, in another they seem to have been wrong; then again a few years later when the perspective of time has lengthened all stands in a different setting.

There is a new proportion and another scale of values. History with its flickering lamp stumbles along the trail of the past, trying to reconstruct its scenes, to revive echoes and to kindle with the pale gleam of passion former days.

But what is worth all this? The only guide to man is his conscience. The only shield the rectitude and sincerity of his own actions. It is very imprudent to walk through life without this shield because we are so often mocked by the failure of our hopes and deceived by our calculation.

With this shield, however, the fates may play, we march always in the ranks of honor.

It fell to Neville Chamberlain in one of the supreme crises of the world, to be contradicted by events, to be disappointed in his hopes and be deceived and cheated by a wicked man.

But what were these hopes in which he was disappointed? What were these wishes in which he was frustrated? They were surely among the noblest benevolent instincts of the human heart, love of peace, toil for peace, strife for peace, pursuit of peace even at great peril and certainly to the utter disdain of popularity or clamor.

Whatever else history may or may not say about these tremendous terrible years we can be sure that Neville Chamberlain acted with perfect sincerity according to his rights. He strove to the utmost of his capacity and authority—which were powerful—to save the world from the awful devastating struggle in which we are now engaged.

This alone will stand him in good stead as far as what is called the verdict of history is concerned.

But it is also a help to our country, our whole empire, and our decent faithful way of life, and, however dark may be the clouds which overhang our path, no future generation of English-speaking folk—for that is the tribunal to which we appeal—no such generation will doubt that, even at great cost to ourselves in technical preparation, we are guiltless of the blood, terror and misery which have engulfed so many lands and people and yet seek new victims still.

Herr Hitler protests with frantic words and gestures that he only desired peace. What do these ravings and outpourings count before the silence of Neville Chamberlain's tomb?

Though long and hazardous years lie before us, at least we enter upon them united and with clean hearts.

I should not propose to give an appreciation of Chamberlain's life and character, but there are certain qualities always admired in this island which he possessed in altogether exceptional degree. He had physical and moral toughness of fibre which enabled him, throughout his varied career, to endure misfortune and disappointment without being unduly discouraged or wearied.

He had precision of mind and aptitude for business which raised him far above the ordinary levels of our generation. He had firmness of spirit, which, though not often elated by success, was seldom downcast by failure and never swayed by panic. When, contrary to all his hopes and all his beliefs and exertions, war came upon him, and, as he himself said, all he had worked for was shattered, there was no man more resolved to pursue the unsought quarrel to death.

The same qualities which made him one of the last to enter the war made him one of the last who would quit it until victory for our righteous cause was won. I have had the singular experience of passing in a day from being one of his most prominent opponents and critics to being one of his lieutenants and on another day of passing from serving under him to become head of a government of which, with perfect loyalty he was content to be a member.

Such relationships are unusual in our public life.

I have before told the House how on the morrow of the debate which in the early days of May challenged his position he declared to me and a few other friends that only a National government could face the storm about to break upon us and that if he were an obstacle to the formation of such a government he would instantly retire.

Thereafter he acted with a singleness of purpose and simplicity of conduct which at all times, and especially in great times, ought to be a model for us all.

When he returned to duty a few weeks after a most severe operation the bombardment of London and the seat of government had begun. I was a witness of his fortitude under the most painful and grievous bodily affliction and I can testify that, although only a physical wreck of a man, his nerve was unshaken and his remarkable mental faculties unimpaired.

After he left the government he refused all honors; he would die, like his father, plain Mr. Chamberlain. I sought permission from the King, however, to have him supplied with cabinet papers and, until within a few days of his death, he followed our affairs with the keenest interest and tenacity.

He met the approach of death with a steady eye. If he grieved at all, it was that he could not be a spectator of our victory, but I think he died with the comfort of knowing that his country had at last turned the corner.

At this time our thoughts must pass to the gracious and charming lady who shared his days of triumph and adversity with courage and quality the equal of his own.

Neville Chamberlain, like his father and brother, Austen, before him, was a famous member of the House of Commons, and we here assembled members of all parties without a single exception feel that we do ourselves and our country honor in saluting the memory of one whom Disrael would have called an English worthy.

FREIGHTERS BUCK HEAVY SEAS IN REACHING PORTS

Car Ferry, City of Grand Rapids, Docked Twelve Hours Behind Schedule

NONE IN DANGER

Milwaukee, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Grand Trunk car ferry City of Grand Rapids docked here at 7 a.m. EDT today, 12 hours behind schedule, after bucking huge waves on storm-tossed Lake Michigan during a regular run from Muskegon, Mich.

The Pere Marquette Line's car ferry, City of Saginaw, arrived from Ludgington, Michigan. It was six hours behind schedule.

Chicago, Nov. 12 (AP)—The Coast Guard said today that the motor ship, Justin C. Allen, a tanker, which reported that she was in trouble in Lake Michigan off South Haven, Mich., had repaired a broken rudder cable and was proceeding under her own power.

The craft reported late yesterday afternoon that she was drifting toward the beach between South Haven and St. Joseph, Mich., on the lake's eastern shore.

The vessel is owned by the Lake Tankers Corporations of New York.

Cleveland, Nov. 12 (AP)—Operators of the Frank Billings, 8,400-ton bulk freighter, reported by the United States Coast Guard at Chicago to have sent an S.O.S. today, said their information indicated the vessel is not in danger.

Hutchinson and Company, which operates the 444-foot freighter for Pioneer Steamship Company, said a message from the Billings indicated the S.O.S. probably was sent because a helmsman was seriously injured. The company said it was able to receive messages from the boat but unable to send to it.

The freighter's master is Capt. Harold Murphy, of Toledo, O. The Billings usually carries a crew of about 33.

Cleveland Steamship Company, meanwhile, reported the self-unloading freighter Conneaut, owned by the Wyandotte Transportation Company, of Detroit, had encountered trouble in the same vicinity as the Billings and had asked that her crew be removed.

KENNEDY CLAIMS NEWS REPORTER BROKECONFIDENCE

Was Quoted as Saying "Democracy is Finished in England"

STORY "INACCURATE"

New York, Nov. 12 —(CP)— Joseph P. Kennedy, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, commenting on a newspaper story which quoted him as saying "democracy is finished in England," said Monday that the conversation on which the article was based was "an off-the-record discussion."

The story, which appeared in the Boston Globe Saturday night, further quoted the Ambassador as saying that "National Socialism would be the result."

"Many statements in the article create a different impression entirely than I would want to set forth," Kennedy said.

"Many of them were inaccurate . . . I assumed the entire conversation had been conducted on the basis of my original statement—that it was an off-the-record discussion."

In Boston, the Globe replied that it "regrets that Ambassador Kennedy takes exception to publication of the interview in question," and said further:—

"It was Mr. Lyons' (Louis M. Lyons, Globe reporter) understanding that he was at liberty to use any of the remarks in their long interview in Boston, except for those which Mr. Kennedy specified as 'off the record,' and these, of course, were not touched upon in the published interview."

His Statement

Kennedy's statement follows:

I have read the interview that I am supposed to have given to Louis M. Lyons of The Boston Globe.

When Mr. Lyons came to see me in Boston, I made it clear to him in the presence of Mr. Coglan and Md. Edmonson of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch that I should be very happy to give them my thoughts off the record, but I would make no statements that should be printed at this time.

In the week that I have been home I have turned down all the many other newspapers and leading magazines which have sought interviews and articles. It was on this basis that our conversation proceeded.

Mr. Lyons made no notes during the visit. Whatever he wrote was entirely from memory. Many statements in the article show this to be true because they create a different impression entirely than I would want to set forth. Many of them were inaccurate.

He admits I said to him, "Well, I am afraid you didn't get much of a story." Of course, the reason I said that was that I assumed the entire conversation had been conducted on the basis of my original statement—that it was an off-the-record discussion.

I consider this interview, regardless of the handling of the material, as the first serious violation of the newspaper code on an off-the-record interview that I have ever experienced. I may be guilty of errors of judgment, but I hope never guilty of errors of good taste.

If I ever give out material touching such important questions I would certainly insist on checking it so that mistakes and inacurracies might not be made.

Says Statement "Unsatisfactory"

New York, Nov. 12.— (CP)— The New York Herald Tribune said editorially today that a statement issued by Joseph P. Kennedy. United States Ambassador to Great Britain, concerning an interview he gave in Boston, is "unsatisfactory, considering the gravity of the situation".

The interview, published in the Boston Globe Saturday, quoted Kennedy as saying "democracy is finished in England" and that "National Socialism" would be the result. Kennedy in his statement said the article created "a different impression entirely than I would want to set forth" and added that it contained many "inaccurate" statements.

The Herald Tribune said:

"Ambassador Kennedy has been quoted as expressing ideas which would make it appear that even if Mr. Kennedy is not an out-and-out advocate of appeasement, he is nevertheless a defeatist of the first order. He has denied authorising the alleged interview; has characterized it as full of inaccuracies, but lays greatest stress on the fact it was a breach of confidence. . .

"Unfortunately, his statement, in view of this newspaper, is unsatisfactory, considering the gravity of the situation.

" . . . If he or any other American starts from the assumption—and it is nothing more than an unproved postulate or guess — that democracy in England is finished and may be in this country, he is directly contributing to the destruction of democracy . . . "

Novadoc Aground Near Muskegon

Muskegon, Mich., Nov. 12—(AP)—A gale that whipped the length of Lake Michigan endangered shipping today and sent at least two vessels aground including the 253-foot pulpwood carrier Novadoc, fears for whose safety had been felt throughout the night.

The Novadoc, with a crew of 19, was aground off Juniper Beach between Pentwater and Little Point Sauble. Coast guardsmen stood by on the beach prepared to launch a breeches buoy as soon as the wind subsided. Two broken lifeboats and several lifebelts had drifted ashore. At least two members of the crew were visible on the vessel.

Previously the Little Point Sauble lighthouse keeper reported he saw the Novadoc's lights at 8.30 p.m. EDT last night and that soon afterwards they disappeared.

RUSSIA'S PACTS WITH MANY LANDS

By ROBERT MAGIDOFF
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Moscow, Nov. 12 (AP)—Russia's complicated game in foreign affairs has been accompanied by a series of economic agreements with nearly a dozen countries.

These agreements have been negotiated by one of Stalin's closest associates, the Foreign Trade Commissar, Anastas Ivanovitch Mikoyan, who has complemented Premier Molotoff's efforts in pursuing the "Stalinist peace policy" by throwing into play Russia's economic weight.

The most important of the agreements signed by Mikoyan has been the Trade Pact with the Germans, who pressed hard for a maximum of oil and grain and other vital items.

The bargaining ended—in the opinion of most foreign observers—in Mikoyan's signing away a minimum of these products, badly needed by Russia herself. They include, according to unofficial estimates, 1,000,000 tons of oil, and are being paid for by "ersatz" formulas, models of latest German bombers and other items of importance to the Russians.

British Fighter Planes Given Credit For Slowing Up Nazi Aerial Offensive

Ottawa, Nov. 12—(CP)—British fighter defences have noticeably slowed up the German aerial offensive on Great Britain, according to Air Commodore G. V. Walsh recently Air Officer Commanding Royal Canadian Air Force Headquarters in Great Britain. "They are certainly not getting the results they were because they are now getting some real snappy opposition," he said in an interview today. "The Germans now are using fighters as bombers. The fighters can't carry much of a bomb load. The idea is to come in quickly and get away fast. Their value is primarily as a nuisance."

Accompanied by Wing Cmdr. Wilbur Van Vliet of Winnipeg, formerly Officer Commanding No. 110 Army Co-peration Squadron Overseas and Sqdn. Ldr. C. C. T. Graham, on the staff of Canadian Air Force Headquarters Overseas, Air Commodore Walsh answered questions from a group of newspaper reporters at Air Force Headquarters here.

All three officers have returned to Canada to take posts in which their overseas experience will be of value in developing Canada's air program. They have not yet been assigned to positions.

Canadians Have Fine Record

The Canadian fighter squadron taking part in the defence of Britain has a fine record in stopping the German attacks. Wing Cmdr. Van Vliet said at the last report he heard before leaving England the Canadian squadron was credited with the destruction of 71 1-2 enemy aircraft.

By half a plane is meant a case where half the credit is officially alloted to the Canadian squadron and half to another squadron.

The major developments in fighting aircraft since the start of the war were the steady introduction of heavier armoring and heavier armament. Both sides were putting more armor on their planes and as more armor was put on heavier guns were required to penetrate it.

More Manoeuvrable

British fighter aircraft were more manoeuvrable than the German fighters. The Germans did not like facing British fighters and for this reason small numbers of British fighters were able to disperse and defeat much superior numbers of enemy bombers and fighters.

From seeing confidential reports and comparing them with figures of air casualties officially announced Air Commodore Walsh said he was certain newspaper accounts of German aircraft shot down over Great Britain and British losses on continental raids were accurate.

"How do you account for the fact that German losses in bombing Britain have been heavy and British losses in bombing Germany have been comparatively light?" he was asked.

"I think the British fighter defences have a lot to do with it," Walsh said. "Most of the enemy planes shot down have been brought down by fighters."

ITALIAN FLEET CRIPPLED

TWENTY-NINE SHIPS SAVED BY LINER'S SACRIFICE

Second Blow Delivered by Royal Navy on Italy

Three Battleships, Two Cruisers Damaged by Bombs

Half Effective Strength of Battleship Fleet Out of Commission—Blow Will Have Profound Result on Balance of Mediterranean Naval Power

By J. F. SANDERSON

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 13 (CP Cable).—Bombing planes of the Fleet Air Arm have struck a crippling blow at the Italian fleet in the Mediterranean, seriously damaging at least two and probably three battleships in Taranto harbor.

Two cruisers and two auxiliary vessels also were badly damaged.

The Admiralty announcement said this exploit meant that the effective battleship strength of the Italian fleet was cut in half and informed sources said it would have a profound result on naval power not only in the Mediterranean but throughout the world.

Since the raid was staged on the night of November 11-12, reconnaissance planes have again flown over the strongly-guarded Italian naval base situated at Italy's heel and established by aerial photography the extent of the damage to Mussolini's fleet.

A 35,000-ton battleship of the Littorio class, either the Littorio or Vittoria Veneto, is so badly down by the bow that her forecastle is under water and the big warship has a heavy list to starboard.

ONE OF WORLD'S MOST POWERFUL SHIPS.

These two ships, only recently commissioned, are among the most powerful battleships in the world.

A battleship of 23,622 tons of the reconstructed Cavour class has been beached with her stern under water up to and including the after gun turret. She has a heavy list to starboard.

Another battleship of the Cavour class, of which Italy has four, probably was damaged and appears to be beached.

Three cruisers in the inner harbor were struck by bombs and have a heavy starboard list. Two fleet auxiliary vessels lie with their sterns submerged.

The raid will affect decisively the balance of naval power in the Mediterranean and carries with it profound reactions upon the naval situation in every part of the world.

DUCE'S TROUBLES INCREASE.

Loss of three of her biggest warships will make it even more difficult for Mussolini to break Britain's mastery of the Mediterranean, particularly in the eastern basin, which is vital to the British interests in the Near East.

The communique denied Italian claims that six raiding planes were shot down in the attack on Taranto, and said all but two of the bombers had returned.

SIDI BARRANI BOMBARDED.

The Admiralty also said the British fleet was continuing to harass Italian communications in Africa, and had successfully bombarded Sidi Barrani, advanced Italian base in Egypt, on the night of November 9-10 and exchanged fire with Italian shore batteries. The fleet received no damage or casualties, it was said.

ITALIAN CONVOY DAMAGED.

In a submarine attack on an Italian convoy escorted by a destroyer, one 3,000-ton ship was sunk, and a second ship damaged and probably sunk, the Admiralty said.

The two cruisers damaged brought to three the Italian warships of this type put out of action by Britain since the start of the war.

The fast 5,069-ton cruiser Bartolomeo Colleoni was sunk in an early naval engagement in the Mediterranean.

The Taranto naval base is strongly guarded and fortified, but the Admiralty said the damage done had been verified by aerial photography.

British Smash Italian Convoy

London, Nov. 13—(CP)—British warships sank one Italian supply ship, set two others on fire and damaged a fourth supply ship and an Italian destroyer in an attack on a convoy off the Port of Valona, Albania, Monday night, the Admiralty announced today.

A communique said that the attack occurred on the night of Nov. 11-12 when a squadron patrolling the main line of Italian communications across the Straits of Otranto, between Italy and Albania, intercepted the convoy of four supply ships escorted by two destroyers.

AXIS AIRCRAFT RETURN IN FORCE TO RAID BRITAIN

Direct Hit During Night on Crowded London Theatre Adds to Capital's Toll of Dead

ONE RAIDER DOWNED

Liverpool Dock Area Along Mersey River One of the Targets of the Raiders

London, Nov. 13 (CP).—German and Italian planes failed in two attempts to bomb London today, but broke through the defences of the capital's outskirts on the third try. Other axis planes moved with greater success against towns in Wales and the Midlands.

Roof-top watchers in the centre of the city heard gunfire and exploding bombs during the third warning, but the all clear was soon sounded, indicating the raiders had been driven off again.

At least three of the attacking planes, one of them Italian, were shot down in air battles. The Italian plane, reports said, burst into flames over Sussex and its cargo of bombs exploded in the air.

Sirens wailed in the capital this morning as rescue workers doggedly burrowed into the debris of buildings, including a crowded theatre, hit during the series of long raids Tuesday night.

The Government today permitted publication of the fact that the Church of St. Martin-in-the-Fields—the King's Parish off Trafalgar Square—has been damaged in a recent raid. The Royal College of Surgeons and the Swedish Church in Rotherhithe also were hit.

(St. Martin-in-the-Fields was erected in the early 18th century on the site of an earlier structure. The register of the old church, still preserved, contains an entry on the baptism of Francis Bacon. Nell Gwynne, mistress of King Charles II, and Farquhar, the restoration comedy writer, are buried there. All Royal children are registered in the church at birth.)

"Hundreds" of raiders were reported by observers on the southeast coast to be heading toward London only a few hours after the all clear signal had sounded the end of an all-night alarm.

Sirens screamed the first daylight alarm in the London area in midmorning.

Balance of Naval Power In Mediterranean 'Decisively Affected'

Victory of British Fleet Air Arm Over Italian Warships at Taranto Carries Reactions to Every Quarter of Globe—Mr. Churchill Calls it 'Glorious Action'

London, Nov. 13 (CP). — Prime Minister Churchill, all smiles, read the Admiralty communique on the successful Birtish attack against the Italian navy in the House of Commons today and commented that "the result of the action affects decisively the balance of power in the Mediterranean."

"I feel it my duty to bring this glorious episode to the immediate notice of the House," Mr. Churchill said, adding: "As a result of a determined and highly successful attack which reflects the greatest honor on the Fleet Air Arm, only three of the Italian battleships now remain effective."

"This result," he said, "while affecting decisively the balance of power in the Mediterranean, also carries with it reactions upon the naval situation in every quarter of the globe.

"The spirit of the Royal Navy, shown in this daring attack, is also exemplified in the forlorn and heroic action fought by the captain, officers and ship's company of his Majesty's ship Jervis Bay in giving battle against overwhelming odds in order to protect the merchant convoy which they were escorting and thus secure the escape of by far the greater part of the convoy."

(Survivors of the Jervis Bay, an armed merchant cruiser, arrived in a Canadian port yesterday after battling a German warship which attacked a British convoy Nov. 5 in mid-Atlantic.)

'Road to Victory Will be Longer Harder and More Terrible Than Any of Us Realize' Says King

House Listens With Intense Gravity as Prime Minister Unfolds War Effort

LEADERS SPEAK

By C. R. BLACKBURN

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 13 (CP)—Though British arms ultimately will triumph, the road to victory will be longer, harder and more terrible than any of us realize," Prime Minister King told the House of Commons last night.

The House listened with intense gravity as Mr. King declared the Dominion's war effort will be limited only by her material and human resources and her capacity for sacrifice and described the Canada-United States Defence Agreement of last August as "part of the enduring foundation of a new world order, based on friendship and goodwill."

The Prime Minister spoke in the debate on the address in reply to the Throne Speech, after Conservative House Leader Hanson had concluded the opening speech with an amendment to the address declaring the Government had "soothed" Canadians into a "false sense of security."

Mr. King said the Imperial Conference of 1923 suggested this, as one of its guiding principles: "Primary responsibility of each portion of the Empire represented at the Conference for its own local defence."

Every Imperial Conference since then had followed that policy—"That the first duty of each part of the Empire was its own local defence—and having secured the matter of its own local defence, then it should play what part it could by way of more effective cooperation with the other parts of the Empire in an effort against the common foe."

HUNTER FOUND DEAD

Peterborough, Ont., Nov. 13 (CP)—Body of E. Hillis, Bobcaygeon farm manager, was found in the woods near Squaw River in a remote part of Harvey Township late yesterday by two hunters. They said it appeared he had shot himself accidentally while deer hunting. The hunters said they were attracted to the scene of the shooting by the howling of their dogs. Following the dogs they found the body with a rifle lying nearby.

Italians May be Re-organizing Troops After Disastrous Campaign

FIRST PHASE ENDS

Abandoned Italian 75-Millimetre Guns, Howitzers, Other Equipment and Flags of Units Found by Greeks

Athens, Nov. 13 (AP)—Military observers here today said a lull along the entire Greek-Italian front indicates the first phase of the campaign is at an end.

It was believed here that Gen. Ubaldo Soddu, Under-Secretary of War and newly-appointed Commander-in-Chief of the Italian forces in Albania, was reorganizing his troops and devising a new plan of campaign. Supporting this view was the fact that there had been no Italian attack of any consequence in the past few days.

Provincial Police Escort Convoy Of Motor Transports

St. Catharines, Ont., Nov. 13.—(CP)—Escorted by Provincial Police, two convoys of heavily loaded trucks of the Direct Winters and Martin Transport Companies left here late yesterday over Queen Elizabeth Way for Toronto.

The convoys, accompanied by police on motorcycles and in police cars, number 15 trucks.

Police said they were assigned to convoy the trucks after earlier reports that striking truckmen of the two companies had blocked highways in the Hamilton area and ordered drivers back to St. Catharines.

Crew of Novadoc Cling to Wreckage For 24 Hours Before Being Rescued

Ludington, Mich., Nov. 13 (AP).—Fifteen sailors who clung to the broken hulk of the Canadian pulpwood carrier Novadoc for more than twenty-four hours on the beach off Pentwater, Mich., were rescued today as fears rose that another vessel might be added to the list of those which foundered in Monday's Lake Michigan storm.

Already two big freighters and two fishing tugs were counted among the victims of the lake's worst storm in recent years, with a probable loss of at least 65 lives.

The 251-foot gasoline tanker New Haven Socony, with a crew of sixteen men, was nearly 36 hours overdue at Muskegon today.

An oar stamped with the name of the boat was picked up by beach patrols near Grand Haven, along with a quantity of other wreckage part of which was identified as being from the two lost fishing tugs. The New Haven Socony left East Chicago for Muskegon Monday, before the storm broke.

Pentwater coast guards reported the crew of the Novadoc was removed at 10:30 a.m. E.D.T. today by the fishing tug Three Brothers of Pentwater. Subsiding seas made the rescue possible. As the men were being taken off the stricken vessel, the hulk settled deeper into the sand, leaving all decks and part of the superstructure awash. The Novadoc is owned by the Paterson Steamship Lines, Fort William, Ont.

Only Nine Ships Unaccounted for Since the Attack

The Jervis Bay, Hopelessly Outgunned, Held Off Nazi Battleship

By JOHN LEBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

An East Coast Canadian Port, Nov. 13 (CP)—A band of men who helped inscribe a bright new page in Britain's naval story rested at this port today, survivors of a ship sunk in battle against fearful odds as she fought for the safety of a convoy attacked by a powerful enemy.

The 65 men of the British armed merchant cruiser Jervis Bay were the remnants of a gallant crew that dared to match gunfire with a big Nazi warship; that kept the foe's hands full long enough to save most of the convoy, and that, finally, paid with the ship and many lives for the salvation of the helpless merchantmen.

Attacked November 5th

The cruiser—a merchant ship fitted with comparatively light guns at the outbreak of war—tackled the heavily-armed raider Nov. 5th to give her Atlantic convoy time to disperse while she made the suicide attempt. And so well

Swedish Captain Turns His Ship into Threat of Gunfire to Pick Up Survivors of Jervis Bay

By JOHN LEBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

An East Coast Canadian Port, Nov. 13 (CP)—"Bang," said Capt. Sven Olander, "the first shot of the battle exploded right over us."

The stout skipper, who looks less like a hero than like some figure out of a Hans Anderson tale, was telling the newspaper boys what he saw of the fight between the British armed merchant cruiser Jervis Bay and a big enemy warship. He was there, and he stayed around long enough to pick up 65 survivors after the British craft met her glorious end defending her convoy.

That made Capt. Olander of Gothenburg a hero, but he was inclined to shrug off the suggestion. "I think," he said in halting, broken English, "that everyone would take the same risk."

Takes Aboard Survivors

The chance Capt. Olander took was that of returning to the spot where the Jervis Bay had been sunk five hours before and taking aboard her survivors, whom he brought

Germany, Italy to Pool Sub Forces To Attack Shipping Says Gayda

Rome, Nov. 13 —(AP)— Virginio Gayda, editor of the Fascist newspaper Il Giornale D'Italia, asserted today that Germany and Italy have decided to pool their submarine forces for a concentrated attack on British shipping in the North Atlantic.

Gayda said that the submarine forces of the Axis powers have hitherto operated in different zones of action, the Italians occupying themselves generally with the central Atlantic. Now, he said, they would be grouped together to attack the lanes over which the heaviest British shipping moves.

British sources say that some Italian sumbarines have succeeded in slipping through the Strait of Gibraltar out into the Atlantic. But several have been destroyed in the attempt and others have found it necessary to take refuge in Tangier.

It is estimated that Italy has lost 29 of her submarines since she entered the war in June, or one fourth of her under-water strength.

No recent figures have been issued on the number of German submarines destroyed, but their destruction is believed to be proceeding at a steady rate. To make up for her losses, Germany is believed to have a big U-boat building program in progress.

GERMAN PLANTS HEAVILY BOMBED

Railway Centres in Ruhr and Cologne Areas Also Attacked

London, Nov. 13.—(CP)—German oil plants, factories and railway centres, the submarine base at Lorient on the French coast and other German invasion bases were heavily bombed by the Royal Air Force Tuesday night, the Air Ministry announced today.

The British fliers, covering familiar territory, roared over the oil plants at Gelsenkirchen and Cologne, the Ministry's communique said; and also struck at the inland port of Duisburg-Ruhrort and railway centres and factories in the Ruhr and the Cologne neighborhood.

BURGLARS ENTER HOME OF FARMER

Burglars entered the home of James D. Nelson, 2nd concession of Sidney Township, early last evening and stole a quantity of honey. Provincial Police authorities were informed today The Nelson family had retired early, but along about ten o'clock Mr. Nelson heard disturbances at the rear of the home. Arising to investigate the cause of the noise, Mr Nelson later discovered that six pails of honey were missing from a back woodshed. Provincial Constable Patterson investigated and found foot prints in the wet soft earth outside of the home.

DUCKS CONFISCATED BY GAME WARDEN

Snaring wild ducks in the mesh of a gill net resulted in the confiscation of 67 ducks from two Brighton residents on Monday. Game Warden McCabe visited two homes south of Brighton and found the ducks hanging in outhouses. "The ducks had undoubtedly been drowned, after being snared in gill nets," stated Game Warden McCabe today as he added that no charges had been preferred in the cases as yet. "Charges will definitely be preferred later, however," added Inspector McCabe.

Commenting upon the cases Mr. McCabe stated that gill nets had been placed in feeding grounds for wild ducks and when the ducks dove for feed they became entangled in the mesh of the nets and drowned The wholesale slaughter of wild ducks in this manner is a serious offence in the eyes of the Fish and Game Department of the province.

Members of the Belleville Municipal Band were guest artists at the Chapel of the Trenton air station on Sunday evening, staging a program of musical numbers, under the auspices of the Belleville Y.M.C.A. for the entertainment of the Trenton R.C.A.F. personnel. A goodly number were in attendance at the concert which was enjoyed by everyone present. Jimmy Corradi acted as piano accompanist for the program, while Harry Moorman acted as master of ceremonies.

DEER REPORTED PLENTIFUL IN NORTH

That deer are plentiful in the woods of North Hastings and other hunting grounds in the district, is the report of members of hunting parties returning to the city, already having obtained their quota. With the hunting season still one week to go, and little more than one week old, several parties have broken camp with the erstwhile nimrods returning to their regular occupations apparently well satisfied with their annual fall excursion into the woods.

Juveniles Reported To Police Dep't

Delinquent juveniles, who have been causing their parents anxiety, were reported to local police for investigation today. In both cases teen-aged boys failed to return home last night, remaining at large until their parents reported their offsprings missing.

Shortly after six o'clock this morning P. C. William Evans apprehended ten-year-old Johnnie Switzer, Belleville, loitering in a Front Street hallway. Questioned by the constable the lad admitted he had not been home all night and had slept in the rear of a motor car parked on a city parking lot. The lad was detained at the police station until his parents were notified.

Another anxious mother told police her eleven-year-old son had been in the habit of staying out late at nights and she desired the police send him home, when he was found loitering upon city streets. However, last night the lad did not return home at all and today police were seeking his whereabouts also. In this case the family resides on Charlotte Street, Chief Kidd revealed this morning.

"The introduction of a city curfew may ultimately be the only means of keeping juveniles off the streets at night," admitted another police official this morning.

In addition to the wreath donated by the Province of Ontario which was placed at the Cenotaph on Monday in honor of Belleville's war dead were twelve to fourteen other wreaths placed by the various service organizations throughout the city, including one placed by the City of Belleville. The wreaths were placed at the Cenotaph at different times of the day, without ceremony, the wreath from the city being placed at eleven o'clock.

33 SETS OF MARKERS SOLD ON FIRST DAY

Motor vehicle markers and drivers' permits for 1941 went on sale on Tuesday by the Ontario Department of Highways, giving motorists forty-three shopping days in which to replace their 1940 markers with those for next season.

Notification of sale was given Oct. 18 by J. P. Bickell, Registrar of Motor Vehicles. The sale was ordered a month and a half before the 1940 permits expire, not only for the convenience for the ordinary motorists but also for that of firms using large fleets of trucks in the transportation of war materials.

The local office of Mr. E. Vermilyea, issuer of licences for Belleville district, was quite busy on the first day the licences were offered for sale. Thirty-three sets of markers were issued up to five o'clock last evening, it was stated.

Moderator of United Church Addresses Belleville Presbytery

Rt. Rev. Tuttle in Address at Stirling Says Secularism Church's Deadliest Foe

150 ATTEND

Stirling, Nov. 13 — (Special) — Singular honor was given St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, and the members of Belleville Presbytery of the United Church of Canada Tuesday when the Rt. Rev. A. S. Tuttle, M.A., D.D., addressed the Fall session of the local church court in an official capacity as nearly one hundred and fifty ministers and laymen assembled in St. Paul's Church. It was the first time that the Stirling church had been so honored and many citizens gathered for the meeting opened to the public so that all may hear this distinguished church leader.

The opening session began with a brief and impressive devotional period directed by Rev. J. G. McKee, Chairman of the Belleville presbytery, assisted by Rev. James E. Beckel, Secretary and Mr. Percy Holland, President of Belleville Presbytery Laymen's Association. During the opening business portion of the meeting Secretary Rev. James E. Beckel gave the Secretary's report of the last meeting and also a report of the more recent presbytery executive meeting and presented the communications. Mr. G. L. Clute, organist and choirleader of St. Paul's Church, Stirling, presided at the organ. The honor of introducing Rt. Rev. A. S. Tuttle, M.A., D.D., Moderator of the United Church of Canada fell to the shoulders of Mr. E. L. Fraser, prominent layman of the presbytery who performed the duties in an impressive fashion. The church leader was officially welcomed to the community by G. H. Luery, town clerk, and graciously acknowledged the welcome and introduction prior to his inspiring address.

"Secularism," Church's Deadliest Foe

Expressing genuine pleasure at being present at the session, the moderator stated "That the rural setting of the event added to the pleasure. It's the setting in which I began my life, next to hard rock and soil. The church is passing through difficult days, it is facing criticism on every hand, which is perfectly natural, any movement or organzation sharing the lasting qualities that carry it on through centuries must give reasons for its being. In this the church can point to its apparent reasons for existence seen in every phase of life. Critics have come and gone down through all those years and still the church remains. Secularism is the church's greatest foe today, a trend in thought toward temporal things that can be seen and measured and an attempt by false science to shut out the eternal things. Real true science in its search for truth leaves the way open to the ultimate. Its false science that professes to exact all in reality and give a complete picture ruling out ultimate and eternal things.

"Three essential qualities of our forward movement from the primitive days to the present are a being God the power of which is manifest in the great solar system and in the tiniest flower of the valley, the incarnation of that power and a goal big enough to draw out the very best from within the human soul."

"Communism as inspired by Lenin, the being, gripped the youth of the land with its thought of dialected materialism set up as goal a classless society. In Hitler we see the incarnation of the spirit of Nazism with God, the state and superior humanity in racial development as the mystic goal to which the movement surges forth. But because these movements are distinctly secular, they lure youth forward in only a mechanical sense toward an abyss of nothingness. The church with its eternal goal has within it all the desired qualities and substance to more than match these destructive forces that threaten it. The incarnation in Jesus Christ of ultimate God is the activity of God finding a form visible to man in Jesus. Within that life man witnesses creative and redemptive power of God. The suffering of His death on the cross for the redemption of man, and the goal, the kingdom of God, the great and only internationale, the universal brotherhood, this is the task and the goal to which the church strives," stated the moderator in closing.

Expressions of gratitude to the leader of the United Church of Canada and a deep sense of loyalty in the effort by all present was capably set forth by the presiding chairman prior to the departure of the moderator for Kingston to address another gathering.

Continuing the session excellent reports of the meeting of general council of the United Church of Canada were presented by Rev. James Semple of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville and Rev. A. J. Wilson. Greetings were extended from presbytery to the official boards and congregation of Bridge St. United Church, Belleville, on the occasion of their 125th anniversary. Secretary James E. Beckel was instructed to extend the sympathy of the members to the bereaved family of the late Dr. Laird.

Also during the period set aside for the reports of the committees it was made known that Boyd J. Beckel, now engaged in supply work at St. Ola, was received by presbytery as a candidate for the ministry of the United Church in Canada.

Rev. A. W. Harding accepted a call o Bethany pastoral charge in the Peterboro presbytery and will leave Springbrook before December 8th. Rev. E. D. Snelgrove of Queensboro requested a change in pastoral relations. Rev. D. T. McClintock of Belleville, was granted permission by presbytery to retire from active ministry in the United Church after July 1941.

New Ministers Address Court

In the hour set by special order to deal with social service and evangelism under the direction of Rev. D. T. McClintock, chairman of the committee, four brilliant addresses dealing with the "Statement of Faith" were given with each of the following ministers dealing with sections alloted to them: Rev. W. L. Morrison, Tweed; Rev. G. M. Chidley, Napanee; Rev. P. C. McLennan, Trenton and Rev. A. M. Laverty, Stirling.

A splendid chicken dinner was served to the visiting clergy and laymen at noon by the ladies of St. Paul's.

According to secretarial information it was a record attendance for the Belleville Presbytery. The next meeting will take place in Belleville.

MAYOR TO WEAR SPECIAL GOWN AT COUNCIL MEETINGS

On Special Occasions He Will Also be Robed Befitting His High Office

OTHER BUSINESS

Nomination Day for Municipal Elections Set for Friday, November 22nd.

During sessions of the City Council and on special occasions, the Mayor of Belleville will henceforth wear a special gown befitting his High Office. By a motion passed at the regular session on Tuesday night by Aldermen Rollins and Pringle, the Comptroller was given authority to purchase a special gown for the use of the Mayor. Alderman Rollins in speaking to the motion stated that there should be some way to distinguish the Mayor from the remainder of the council on all occasions. "To be Mayor of this city is a great honor and carries a great amount of dignity and I think we should have the Mayor fitted with a special gown befitting that office", said Ald. Rollins. The members were in unanimous agreement with the suggestion, Ald. Clarke stating that the Warden of the County wore a special gown at all sessions of the County Council.

Before the session of the Council opened on Tuesday evening a minute's silence was observed in memory of the late Neville Chamberlain, former Prime Minister of Britain. The business of the meeting was quickly transacted, it being one of the slimmest sessions of the term. A by-law was passed preparing for the municipal election to be held in this city for the ensuing year. Nomination Day will be on November 22nd and the election on Monday, December 2nd. The Deputy Returning Officers and Poll Clerks for the various polling subdivisions were named and accepted by the council. A grant of $100 was given the Santa Claus parade sponsored by the Belleville Retail Merchants' Association, the motion being introduced by Alderman Eddie Logan.

Accept Invitation

Mayor Thompson and members of the Council accepted an invitation extended by the Official Board of Bridge Street United Church to attend a social evening in commemoration of the 125th anniversary of the founding of the congregation. A street light will be placed in the laneway by the Y.M.C.A. and purchasers of property from the city will have to pay for cost of connection to street sewers. In answer to a question, Mayor Thompson explained that the Public Works Department was responsible for cleaning the streets after a storm and Ald. Rollins stated that the department had been very busy all day Tuesday straightening out the tangle and debris scattered by the storm and high winds of the past two days. An agreement between the Hastings Motors and the Corporation and between B. S. Welsh and the City of Belleville was ratified by by-law and an agreement for purchase of the Walton property on Station Street was completed.

Report of Committee

The special committee to report on the signs on Highland Avenue and McDonald Avenue submitted their findings and recommendations and were adopted by the council. The report of the committee was as follows.

Recommendations

Special Committee Re Street Signs,
November 12th, 1940.
Your Worship and Members of the City Council:

Your special committee appointed to inspect and make recommendations re signs at the Easterly and Westerly entrances to the City on Highway No. 2, beg to report as follows:—

(1) We have carefully inspected these signs and our conclusions and recommendations are as follows:—

(a) The sign near "The Devil's Elbow" at the Westerly entrance to the city is so placed that the end nearest to the driven road is approximately two feet nearer to the driven road than are the telephone polls and thereby increase the danger at that turn in the highway. We recommend that the sign be pivoted about its opposite end so as to bring the middle of the sign as close as is feasible to the shade tree behind the sign. The supports of this sign are bedded in cement, and we are of the opinion that by loosening the earth around the footings, that the sign can be pivoted into the desired place without breaking up the concrete bases. This will bring the outer end of the sign approximately 4 feet farther from the roadway.

(b) The sign on the S. W. corner of MacDonald Avenue and No. 2 Highway blocks the view of the Highway for a considerable distance making it very dangerous for cars entering the Highway from MacDonald Avenue. We recommend that this sign be moved to the west approximately twenty feet and just beyond the first shade tree, and placed parallel to the Hedgerow and as near to the street line as possible. This will materially improve the view of drivers.

(c) The sign on the N.W. corner at this intersection, while somewhat dangerous is not so dangerous as the one on the S.W. corner. We are not prepared to recommend its immediate removal, as similar conditions exist in other parts of the City, but we do consider that no such signs should be permitted on boulevards in the City, and recommend that the whole matter be referred to the Council of 1941 for consideration.

(d) We further recommend to next year's Council, for consideration the matter of removing entirely the boulevard on the north side of Dundas Street East from MacDonald Avenue to Dufferin Avenue at least. This being a Provincial Highway, in our judgment requires all the width possible, as the West bound traffic on No. 2 Highway is coming off of a four lane road.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

H. J. CLARKE,
H. J. ARMSTRONG,
W. H. ROLLINS,
Committee.

Physicians Give Evidence in Damage Suit

Mr. Justice MacKay, presiding judge at the Supreme Court sessions now hearing the damage suit for $25,000 being brought by the C.N.R. against George Montgomery, Frankford, following a collision between an automobile and a railway track car, in which two C. N.R. employees were injured, adjourned proceedings for fifteen minutes at Wednesday morning's proceedings while three Belleville physicians conducted an examination of one of the injuries of the accident victims.

The three physicians, Drs. G. H. Stobie, Reg. Anderson and J. J. Robertson, witnesses called in the case and who had a slight difference in opinions regarding the condition of the left foot of James Risk, C.N.R. section superintendent injured in the accident, concurred after the examination, that the flexion of Risk's ankle was limited from 10 to 15 degrees.

Dr. Robertson, called by B. M. Balfour, counsel for the defendant, corroborated in the main part, the evidence given by his fellow physicians previously. He disagreed, however, with their opinions regarding the limitation of flexion of the Risk ankle with the result that an examination by the three doctors concerned was suggested by the bench.

Lengthy examination and cross-examination of Clifford Matthews, assistant to the Belleville City Engineer, first witness called by the defendant's counsel, featured the main part of the morning sitting. The witness had taken measurements of many important points in and about the crossing near Glen Miller where the accident occurred on July 5th and this was subjected to rigid questioning by R. E. Laidlaw, K.C., plaintiffs' counsel.

Shortly after the opening of the sitting when it was announced that the plaintiffs had closed their case, a motion by defendant's counsel to have a star witness for the plaintiffs recalled to the stand due to unexpected information received by defence was dismissed by Mr. Justice MacKay after lengthy argument and consultation of legal tones.

The suit which entered the third day today was resumed at two-thirty and is expected to continue until Thursday.

FAMILIES OF MEN AWAIT NEWS

Men From Midland Among Members of Crews on Ships in Storm

Midland, Ont., Nov. 13 (CP)—The families of men on the two Canadian ships battered in Monday night's storm on Lake Michigan gathered in little groups here today, waiting for more definite news on the fate of fathers, husbands and sons.

The 21-man crew of the grain carrier Anna C. Minch, believed to have foundered with all hands, were mostly from this district. Five of the crew of the Novadoc, including the Captain, were known also to be residents of the district. The Novadoc is aground near Ludington, Mich., and her crew was reported to have been removed this morning.

Toronto, Nov. 13 (CP)—Following is a list of crew members of the Anna C. Minch, believed to have foundered with all hands in Lake Michigan:-

Vohick, Midland, Wheelsman; Lawrence Thompson, Midland; H. Kirton, Owen Sound, Steward; M. Kirton, Assistant Steward; G. A. Sovey, Midland, Seaman; S. McMath, Goderich, Seaman; C. Nearly 150 Tons Salvage Material Now Collected

Between 125 and 150 tons of scrap metal and waste materials have been collected by the local Kiwanis Club since their scrap metal campaign opened little more than one week ago, according to Mr. Ross Stiver, campaign chairman. Already approximately three car loads of scrap meal have been turned in, this representing almost one-half of their 300-ton objective. "We are hoping however, that a number of citizens who may have such material will either phone in for a truck to pick up their scrap metal or deliver it to the collection depot at the old Turnbull St. arena before next Tuesday when the campaign closes," stated Mr. Stiver.

Scrap metals are especially desired, as it has been learned that such material as tin cans, etc., is cumbersome, costing more to handle than is actually realized from their sale. As a suggestion Mr. Stiver brings to mind the aluminum campaign which was staged in the City of London, England, during the summer, when a call for this metal resulted in housewives turning in more than 300 tons aluminium kitchenware. It is such gestures as this that are proof of loyalty. In Belleville, however, the Kiwanis Club is not asking that housewives give up their kitchenware, but any utensils made of aluminum that have served their usefulness, or any scrap metal of this nature will be greatly appreciated and will go a long way toward making the Belleville campaign a success.

FORGE OF GERMAN MARS BATTERED

German war arms production suffered a heavy blow at the Krupp armament factory in Essen, Germany, as British planes bombed it in a series of raids for four hours recently and made hits on every part of this gigantic forge of war weapons, so that the fires which resulted blazed a mile long and a quarter of a mile wide. Chimney after chimney was knocked down by the R.A.F. bombers.

Krupp's was the greatest of armament plants of the Germans in the last war. Retribution has caught up with it and havoc has fallen on the works just about the time the British bombers were shutting Adolf Hitler off the air. Aviators describe the scene as an inferno as it ought to be for it is one of the great plants the Nazis use for the purpose of trying to crush a continent and a world.

While the Germans bomb great historic structures, churches, public buildings and homes of rich and poor in London and strafe civilians in streets with machine-guns when they can, British bombers are blasting at the very roots of the German war industry. To have wrought havoc at Essen is one of the achievements of the war. It was the greatest of the attacks on the Krupp plant.

Today the Royal Air Force is covering a vast area efficiently, defending the Motherland, guarding the Mediterranean and its approaches, blasting at Sardinia and Taranto and keeping guard over North Africa and the Near East, as well as pounding Germany and going as far east as Danzig, the former "free city."

NOVEMBER WEATHER

November, the eleventh month of the year, and the month that generally brings the first snow and bitter northern winds, is here. But in this province November is not so dreaded a month as the name may indicate, for it is the period of Indian Summer, that spell of fair, warm weather which is the gift of the temperate climes.

But November is often the month of violent storms and causes havoc to lake shipping and lamentable loss of brave lives as it did in Lake Michigan on Monday night. The men who go upon the lakes are always watchful of weather changes.

The season of Indian Summer continues from one to three weeks and at times its identity is not very clear and it would almost seem as if there had been no Indian Summer in some years. That time of year is marked by the lovely haze of late autumn. This season corresponds with the period in Europe which has been called "St. Martin's Summer," "Old Woman's Summer" and "All-Hallow Summer."

In Canada the people always look for this period of the year which seems a pale reflex of summer, the leaves gone from the trees and the grass turning to brown. Clouds linger in the skies.

November, when Indian Summer is past, may take its usually rugged form. In the words of one writer:

"The wild November comes at last
Beneath a veil of rain;
The night wind blows its folds aside,
Her face is full of pain."

"In rattling showers dark November's rain,
From every stormy cloud, descends amain."

One of the finest American pictures of late November is that by Bayard Taylor who pictures the month as:

"Wrapped in his sad-colored cloak, the day, like a Puritan, standeth
Stern in the joyless fields, rebuking the lingering color,—
Dying hectic of leaves and the chilly blue of the asters,— Hearing, perchance, the croak of a crow on the desolate tree-top."

November is usually the month of snow flurries and the cool or cold north wind blowing through the bared branches of the trees and the evergreens which alone remain with the full signs of vital green. But winter not often sets in with intensity from the beginning and severe Novembers are rather rare. Often this month is the month most people love to be in the woods as the hunters do, even if snow comes. A Canadian poet, William Wildred Campbell, has caught the picture of the Canadian November:

The woods are haggard and lonely,
The skies are hooded for snow,
The moon is cold in Heaven,
And the grasses are sere below.

The bearded swamps are breathing
A mist from meres afar,
And grimly the Great Bear circles
Under the pale Polar Star.

November brings into full view the constellations which adorn the winter skies. One of the most beautiful is that string of celestial diamonds, the Pleiades. The Great Dipper stands revealed low above the earth in the north as it swings below the North Star early in the evenings.

This month, too, sees the earth take a more solid form, the crust of frost which holds the earth tight against the winter and does that great act of Nature which means so much to the crops. Without the frost which nips the fingers and the ears, there would be missing so much in the season that makes for abundance of crops for the frost treats the soil.

In Canada November is not so rugged as to prevent the tardy worker arranging all his household, his barns and fields against the coming winter of rest in nature when the snow descends and blankets the earth. If perchance November should be hard and cold, it but builds more firmly the rugged character of the people. Without November and the other cold months of the year the northern race would not be as vigorous and rugged in mind and body as it is. Nature does not mollycoddle the Canadian and make him a weakling. Our ancestors who came into the great spaces of this country where immense labors awaited them, rejoiced in the climate and the change of the seasons for if ever a year is rounded out, the pioneers believed it was in Canada. Their descendants hold the same belief and the youngsters delight in prospects of winter's sway bringing winds and snow and ice.

Five Miles Above A Surrey Hedge

Letter to the New York Herald Tribune

Sir:—I've just seen something marvelous—a sight for which every true American in his own country would, I'll swear, willingly take ship across the ocean if his country's laws permitted him any such bold excursion. I feel as if I had to tell everybody about it, or at least everybody who's thrust off there behind the Atlantic, starving for one glimpse, one audible "earful" of what I saw and heard five miles over a blackberry hedge in Surrey yesterday.

Gosh! There was I, gobbling blackberries and listening rather absently to the drone of bombers and fighters somewhere. Of course, I'd been glancing up now and then, for there's always the chance that they'll fly low enough to be visible, and the zenith glare turns them into exquisite, tiny things just the color of the moon by daylight.

The rooks, who begin to wheel and counterwheel before human ears can catch the double-beat of a bomber's engine, came shouting across the hedgerow, and I looked up again. Not a speck of a 'plane visible; but right across one quarter of the sky went five parallel chalk marks, as neatly drawn as if some music teacher had been preparing that sapphire blackboard for the notation of a melody.

Well, I'd seen that before. The exhaust from a 'plane often condenses, at that cold, thin height, into a dazzling chalk mark. But then something happened. Out of sight, mind you, as far as the actors themselves were concerned. There were the five smooth chalk marks still hanging arrogantly in the blue air, but......they were tracing five separate pothooks at the end. Shallow ones, too, so they weren't dive bombing. They had seen something, those Jerries—something they didn't like. Their chalk marks had been lining the stave for a snatch of that old song, "Den wir fahrengegen Engeland", but somebody had called a better tune; for, as I watched, the chalkers wheeled as raggedly as the hysterical rooks five miles below.

And one of them bent horribly and finally earthward; and the other four were scribbling backward skywriting for all Surrey to read, the story of a sudden change of mind. I could hear certain purposive sounds which, until you hear them over Long Island, you can supply quite accurately by trying to say "EEelooum" with with your lips closed. And then it was all over, except for the crick in my neck.

All over. London's sirens hadn't even mentioned it. The rooks flopped sulkily into an oak tree to talk it over. They shifted and settled again as one haughty little Spitfire coasted by, so near that I could wave to the pilot—so near that one of the red-white-and-blue bullseyes on its wings, flicked by a shadow, seemed to have given me a solemn wink.

Now, I don't think I'd better tell you whether or not I nearly waved my arm off and cheered out loud. I'd better not say whether I winked back. Because you know as well as I do that there aren't any free seats in the cheering section when a hero rides by. It's all a very delicate matter, but let me put it this way: A person who stands, even in imagination, by a blackberry hedge in Surrey and sees—even at pallid second hand, as you're now seeing, a Spitfire returning from a dogfight is not in any something-for-nothing mood. If that person happens to have cut down on lunch a bit for the sake of the local Spitfire Fund, that person has the right to wink back. If he or she happens to have forked out the price of a good hat for the R.A.F. Benevolent Fund, he or she doesn't feel a bit diffident about waving to the pilot.

I've tried my best to lend you my eyes and ears for ten minutes of a week-end in Surrey; but don't say I ever did anything so immoral—well, anyway, illegal—as to write from a foreign country appealing for funds for a belligerent cause. It wouldn't be proper for me to do so. I mean, the Johnson Act is still in force. Still keeping us out of temptation. Yeah.

Finding The Food Causing Upset Stomach and Intestine

A patient told his physician that he could not eat eggs because they disagreed with him, causing stomach upsets and gas pressure. The physician asked him if he could eat cake and the patient said he was very fond of cake and at it two or three times a week. When he described the kind of cakes he ate, the physician told him that these cakes all contained from one to two eggs each.

The underlying trouble was that he had once opened an egg that was not fresh and the memory of that stale egg so upset his mind that the nerves of appetite and digestion were in turn upset and even a fresh egg could not be eaten.

However, an individual who is really sensitive to eggs or any other food is upset in his digestion or has hives, head colds or other symptoms of sensitiveness or allergy, even when these substances are in soups, bread, stews or other combinations of food.

Sometimes the individual knows what foods cause his symptoms and sometimes he does not.

Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Mayo Clinic, states that in true sensitiveness, the trouble is not imagined since the patient may have this sensitiveness even before he believes it due to food and frequently may be poisoned by unknowingly eating the offending substance concealed in other foods.

Most physicians try to find the offending food by having the patient eat a small number of foods and gradually narrow the list down until the offending food is found.

When it is difficult to find the offending food, Dr. Alvarez suggests that the patient take only water for two days. If the patient, after doing without food for two whole days, still has the symptoms, it will be readily seen that they are not due to food.

Sometimes a common drug can cause the upset stomach and intestine, the hives or a skin irritation which may be mistaken for scarlet fever especially as the patient may have a "running" nose due to the same drug.

Kent Is a Graveyard Of German Bombers

I have just returned from a visit to a Nazi airfield—in England. At least, it was easy to imagine I was on a Nazi airdrome, because there were more Nazi aircraft in sight than our own. And they all weren't in pieces either.

Apart from more modern types, there were Junkers 87's and 88's, and Dornier 17's a little the worse for wear after coming up against R.A.F. fighters but mostly whole.

Finally, there was a large scrap-heap where Nazi machines of all types were lying about in tangled piles. None of these would ever fly again in its original entity, but damaged pieces of the 'planes were being skilfully assembled by R.A.F. mechanics into the less-damaged hulks of Nazi machines.

This particular airdrome is a graveyard of blasted Nazi hopes. Here the "mighty" German Air Force is represented by six of its foremost types of warplanes, but none of them will ever fly for the Reich again. All had met their masters in the R.A.F. Hurricanes and Spitfires that had shot them down.

With these types of aircraft, Goering was going to blast a way for Hitler's invasion of Britain. Admittedly, some of them were good—but not good enough for the combination of British workmanship and R.A.F. pilots.

Some of the gadgets in them were new to us, but they didn't avail the Nazis anything. Down came the machines, gadgets and all, once our eight-gun fighters got them lined up.

In one of the hangars I visited were a number of Goering's "terror bombers", the Ju. 87's and 88's. The only terrible thing about them now is the mess our fighters made of them.

These machines—the first a single-engined aircraft and the other twin-engined—caused havoc in Poland and Holland, and smashed the way for hordes of Nazi troops that poured into France. That was before they met up with the R.A.F. in a big way. As an R.A.F. official told me the other day, "Kent is practically knee deep in them."

One of the R.A.F. mechanics working on them said to me: "Aye, they don't send many of these over now."

One Ju. 88 in another hangar had a plate on it showing that it was only delivered from the factory on September 7, 1940. It was shot down in Kent on September 15, the day the R.A.F. got 185 enemy machines. It was a brand new machine, well made, of the very best materials, and hardly damaged.

A number of poor old Messerschmitt 109's stood, dejected-looking, in a corner of a hangar.

When the war started these were the cannon-firing machines that were going to "rule the skies on the Western Front," as Uncle Hermann put it.

The Hurricane fighter squadrons attached to the Advanced Air Striking Force in France shot them down like clay pigeons. They were such a flop that early this year the Messerschmitt 110 appeared on the scene. Now here was a good fighter, with its twin engines and increased armament.

The R.A.F. commander in France offered a dinner to the Hurricane pilot who brought down the first Me. 110. It was won by Flight Lieut. Walker, of No. 1 Squadron stationed at Vassincourt, who was leading a patrol with two sergeant-pilots when the first Hurricane versus Me. 110 clash took place near Metz. Because of the team work of his sergeants, Flight Lieut. Walker was able to get on the tail of one of these new Nazi fighters, and—wham!—down it came. The gallant young R.A.F. officer refused to accept the C.-in-C.'s dinner unless the two sergeants were included. They were and Air Marshal Sir A. S. Barratt sent a special plane to fly them to Paris.

Since then, hundreds of Me. 110's have fallen to the R.A.F. Those I saw were improved types from the first batch tried out on the Western Front, and a young R.A.F. pilot who has been flying them told me that they were "very, very good machines."

But again, I say, they aren't good enough for the combination of British workmanship and R.A.F. pilots.

On one Me. 110 I saw 11 miniature R.A.F. distinguishing cirles and two French Air Force circles painted on the rudder. Thirteen had been an unlucky number for that Nazi!

I also saw on the rudder of an Me. 109 sixteen strokes with the letter P after them (presumably Poles) and eight strokes with F (for French) at the end. The letter B wasn't there.

The prize Nazi aircraft at this R.A.F. aerodrome is a big twin-engined Heinkel III bomber, intact to the last rivet—Goering's new "pride". I was told about this: "Quite a decent ship. Made of the very best materials. Easy to fly, but with certain disadvantages that our bombers haven't got."

It has more instrument dials than our bombers, and before it could be flown an interpreter wrote English labels for them. Some very interesting gadgets indeed were found in this bomber, particularly in the navigation line.

A further interesting piece of equipment salvaged from another Heinkel III was a portable radio set complete with a kite for taking up an aerial. When operated it flashes an automatic SOS on certain wavelengths.

The set was part of a portable dinghy equipment, and as it is the only one of its kind found in any German aircraft shot down over Britain, the R.A.F. presume that some "big shot" must have been in the crashed 'plane. As the radio engineer said to me: "Pity it wasn't Goering."

The total value of the Nazi 'planes I saw, not including the bits and pieces of 'planes on the scrap-heap, was well over £1,000,000. Yet they totalled only one squadron of the 140 Nazi squadrons shot down over Britain since August 11.

This choice exhibition of Nazi aircraft than can still fly is in the care of the Ministry of Aircraft Production. It must gladden Lord Beaverbrook's heart to see it.—London Mail.

14-Year-Old Scout Reunited With Dog After Plane Journey

New York, Nov. 13—(AP)—From out of the west an airplane swooped down upon La Guardia Field Tuesday and there, in all the rain and fog, was enacted the old story of a boy and his dog.

Dimly through the murk a waiting audience saw a small dog rush head-long into the arms of a small boy who had stepped from the plane. Larry Windsor and Trixie were together again.

The reunion ended a 34-day separation between the 14-year-old Republic, Wash., Boy Scout and his Fox Terrier.

On Oct. 8 Trixie chased a chipmunk into a railway freight car in Republic and incidentally was locked inside, not to be discovered until the car was unsealed in New York, 3,000 miles and 16 days later. The Terrier survived without food or water.

Meanwhile, Larry, who had a "hunch" his pet had boarded a freight train in the yards, checked up and found that freight trains had left his town that day destined for two lumber companies. He wrote letters to both asking them to watch out for Trixie and offering to pay all expenses involved in sending her home.

He also enclosed return postcards, an ace of thoughtfulness which won the heart of A. C. Crombie, New York lumberman to whose company the car containing Trixie was bound.

Crombie first offered to pay plane fare for the dog's return but later invited Larry to come here and take the Terrier home himself. Larry jumped at the chance.

When Trixie finished licking her master's face today, the boy and his dog went off with Mr. and Mrs. Crombie to stay at their home a few days before returning to Republic.

A waterproof zinc box with a wooden base has been invented by a Texas news photographer to contain and protect his camera when it is used in rain.

Stewart Says—

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Canadian Columnist

"Beware the enemy who offers to bury the hatchet. He most likely has an axe to grind."

This little editorial squib appeared the other day in one of a considerable number of newspapers I read habitually. I don't know who its author was or whether or not he had the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo Axis in mind. However, it did seem to me particularly apropos some of the hints we've been receiving from German and Italian press sources recently. I showed it to several friends at the Army and Navy club in Washington and they thought so, too.

These publications have been predicting what they call a "peace offensive" by Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini in the near future.

Nazi and Fascist editors don't print that kind of stuff unless they're authorized to do so by Adolf and Benito. If they do broadcast anything that the two dictators don't like, they're well aware that they won't continue as editors long enough to get out their respective next day's issues. So it's fair to assume that the "peace offensive" idea has Der Fuehrer's and Il Duce's official o.k.

Now, if that pair is satisfied with the progress of its present joint military campaign, why is it covertly intimating that it would not be altogether averse to a peace talk?

Seeks Breathing Spell

The Army and Navy club crowd surmises that the Axis isn't entirely satisfied with the outlook. It's done tolerably well, from its own standpoint, up to date, but the Army and Navy gang's judgment is it would be glad of a chance now to pause until it has had time to consolidate the conquests it has already made.

Otherwise isn't it liable to overextend itself?

Our experts, looking at the situation from afar, guess that that's the Axis complex.

Semi-overtures in peace's direction are not entirely a new thing, at least from Berlin. Shortly after the Nazis had overrun Denmark and Norway, it was intimated from Sweden that an armistice wasn't an impossibility. It was easy to understand why the Swedes hoped so, but the diplomatic impression was that the rumors really were feelers from Germany itself. Later there were reports that Dictator Franco, in Spain, might take the peace initiative. Today's hints, nominally unofficial, are passed out by such journals as Herr Goebbels' in Germany and Virginio Gayda's in Italy. They might as well come from Herr Hitler and Signor Mussolini themselves.

No American observer whom I've talked with has any notion that either of the two has permanent peace in mind. The dope is that they sense the need of an interval to masticate and digest their meal of thus far.

It's mixing metaphors to speak of mastication and digestion in connection "an axe to grind," but that's the theory.

Mussolini Must Agree

That Benito's as anxious for a let-up in hostilities as Adolf is, is considered improbable. Adolf, if he can make temporary terms with Britain now, will be in a position to tell his people that he's won. Benito can't do it until he's acquired the whole eastern end of the Mediterranean, as a minimum. Nevertheless, he's got to agree to whatever Adolf dictates. Italy, alone, couldn't go on fighting for a week. Accordingly, if it suits Adolf's purpose to try for a resting spell, Benito will acquiesce without an argument.

And there isn't the slightest suspicion that Adolf will adapt his policy to Benito's convenience. There's plenty of suspicion though to the effect that John Bull will give the horse laugh to Adolf's peace offensive. Much to the contrary, it's the Washington Army and Navy club's overwhelming consensus that Mr. Bull would be tickled half to death to get some sort of a peace offer from the Fuehrer—and turn it down.

But the forecast is that Adolf will realize this in advance and not make any such definite proposition.

He's simply angling for a bite, to employ another metaphor.

1,745 PLANES SENT TO ENGLAND FROM LOS ANGELES

In This Number Are Included 945 Bombers to Britain and 100 to Australia

HUNDREDS TO COME

Los Angeles, Nov. 13 (AP)— Los Angeles County airplane factories have sent 1,745 military planes, including 945 bombers, to Britain and 100 bombers to Australia, a survey showed Tuesday.

Hundreds more are in production, along with work on multi-million dollar defence orders for the United States.

Lockheed Aircraft Corporation has delivered 389 Hudson bombers to Great Britain and 100 others to Australia. The plant is still turning out these long range bombers but the rate of production and total orders on hand are secret.

Britain also is reported to have orders for the new superspeed Lockheed P-38 Interceptor plane.

Douglas Aircraft Company has sent 286 two-engined DB7A bombers to Britain. It also has delivered 70 other such craft of an original French order of 100.

Douglas has "a large number" of bombers at the factory for delivery as soon as minor adjustments are made. Two hundred seventy-five more are to be delivered from the Boeing factory at Seattle, where they were built under sub-contract with Douglas.

Eight hundred training planes have been delivered from the North American Aviation Company plant, which is still turning out four a day for delivery to training centres in Canada.

At the Cultee Factory there are under construction 144 pursuit ships originally ordered by Sweden and then taken over by Britain after the Norwegian invasion. First deliveries will be made next month on 24 patrol bombers ordered by Norway and taken over by Great Britain.

16 Bodies Washed Ashore From Two Great Freighters

Wreckage of Freighters Davock And Minch Strewn For Miles Along Beach by Disastrous Storm

Ludington, Mich., Nov. 13 —(AP) —The grim tale of Lake Michigan's most disastrous storm in recent years unfolded slowly today as coast guardsmen, aided by subsiding seas, renewed efforts to reach stricken vessels being dashed to pieces on the rocks.

Fears were expressed that at least 65 persons had lost their lives, and from the mounting evidence of wreckage and bodies it appeared that four ships, including two huge lake freighters and two fishing tugs, had foundered in Monday night's gale.

Bodies From Freighters

Sixteen bodies washed ashore along the beach here and at Pentwater, 15 miles to the south, bore life-jacket identifications showing they had been crew members aboard the freighters William B. Davock and Anna C. Minch.

The 7,200-ton Davock, owned by Pickands, Mather and Co., of Cleveland, carried a crew of 43, and the 4,200-ton grain carrier Minch, operated by Sarnia Steamships, Ltd., a crew of 24. Both ships were believed to have been lost with all hands aboard.

Also given up for lost were the tugs Richard H and the Indian, carrying eight men out of South Haven, Mich. Wreckage of the Indian was washed up on the beach near its home port.

Another vessel—the tanker Crude Oil, owned by Cleveland Tankers, Inc.—was reported missing with a crew of 23.

S.A. Headquarters Becomes Morgue

Salvation Army headquarters here was turned into a morgue as dungaree-clad bodies of the seamen lay side by side. Eight were identified as crew members of the Davock and four were identified with the Minch.

Wreckage of the two freighters were strewn for miles along the beach.

Near the spot where the Davock was believed to have split in two and gone down off Juniper Beach, the Canadian pulpwood carrier Navadoc was breaking up on a reef with an undetermined number of men aboard.

Flares From Stricken Vessel

Flares went up from the stricken vessel during the night, but the coast guard, hampered by snow and clinging ice, was unable to reach the ship which lay approximately 1,000 feet offshore.

Chief boatswain's mate Alfred M. Anderson, commanding the Pentwater Station, said the ship had broken in two and the men had been seen huddling in the fore part of the vessel.

Also aground, in the sand of Ludington Beach, was the Pere Marquette Railway carferry, City of Flint, with four passengers and a crew of 43 aboard. Two members of the crew were removed yesterday by a breeches buoy. The all-steel vessel was not believed to be in danger, however, as the wind and waves were subsiding.

Gravel Carrier Aground

Far to the north the gravel carrier Sinaola was aground in Sac Bay. Fishermen removed 22 of the crew of 41 before their own craft capsized and forced them to turn the job over to the Coast Guard. Occupants of the capsized craft saved themselves by grasping a line rigged from ship to shore and pulling themselves hand-over-hand to safety.

Rescue efforts were speeded for fear that the ship would slip off the reef and go down in deep water with the remaining crewmen aboard.

The 415-foot freighter Conneaut was reported aground near Lansing Shoal, at the north end of the lake and the steamship Frank J. Peterson was aground off Hog Island in that area. Coast Guard ships speeded to their rescue.

Four guardsmen sent out to the Peterson last night returned to their base after fear had been expressed for their safety. They reported the Peterson appeared to be in no immediate danger.

DIVERS PREPARE

preparing to enter the lock when the wind drove her off her course and sent her crashing into the abutment. She sank in 27 feet of water, in a section of the canal a short distance from the spot where she had been engaged in dredging operations.

A swift current runs through the canal at the lock, and it was believed the bodies of the victims had been sucked through the gate and down to a lower level. Dam gates on the canal were ordered closed so that divers could work in safety without having their lines fouled by the current.

Some Survivors

Capt. Philemon Larose, Dredging Superintendent George Wrightman of St. Catharines, Ont., Engineer Patrick Joly, Second Engineer Albert Peloquin and Deckhand Napoleon Rajotte were the survivors of the crash. The dead are Co-Captain Albert Mondor, Fernand Fortier, Oscar Vinet, Leo Lemoine, Anatole Sigman, Gerard Cournoyer, Marc Pontbriand, Roland Sylvestre and Jerome Laperriere. All were from Quebec points.

Most of the crew members of the Aberdeen were on deck as the tug struck, Second Engineer Peloquin related, although he himself was below-decks. So quickly did the Aberdeen tilt and sink that the water was swirling around his waist before he could gain the deck.

Grasped a Rope

Peloquin and Capt. Larose grasped the same fender as the vessel went down, and were pushed through the lock gates on it by the current. Below the locks they managed to grasp a rope thrown from a barge, and were pulled to safety.

Rajotte could remember little of what had happened. He attempted to run to the side still above water as the Aberdeen tilted, but found himself dragged from the tug by the water. He saved himself by clinging to the side of a floating derrick until help arrived.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

The liver should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily. If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Harmful poisons go into the body, and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

A mere bowel movement doesn't always get at the cause. You need something that works on the liver as well. It takes those good, old Carter's Little Liver Pills to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up". Harmless and gentle, they make the bile flow freely. They do the work of calomel but have no calomel or mercury in them. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills by name! Stubbornly refuse anything else. 25c.

CANADA IS CALM

Que., and two duck-hunters were found dead in their boat near Windsor. An 81-year-old Indian was reported missing from his home at Biscotasing in northern Ontario and is believed dead.

Two ships were believed lost on Lake Michigan with a possible loss of life of more than 60.

From the Maritimes today came reports of warmer temperatures while winds lessened after considerable property damage in Ontario. Prairie forecasts were for clearer weather after blizzards had grounded Trans Canada Airways airplanes, blocked highways, and broken telephone and telegraphic communications in some sections.

Many Ships Founder

When the marine industries tug Aberdeen foundered in the Beauharnois Canal, the dead were: Albert Mondor, 44, Lanorale, Que.; Fernand Fortier, 23, Valleyfield, Que.; Oscar Vinet, 25, Valleyfield; Leo Lemoine, 27, St. Hyacinthe, Que.; Anatole Sigman, 48, Sorel, Que.; Gerard Cournoyer, Sorel; Marc Edouard Pontbriad, 17, St. Joseph De Sorel, Que.; Roland Sylvestre 34 St. Barthelemi Que.; Jerome Laperrier Piereville, Que.

Len Brodeur and Henry Para of La Salle, Ont., were found dead, believed from exposure, in their boat near fighting island in the Detroit River. Joseph Buckshot, Bicotasing Indian, did not return to his home which he left early Monday morning.

Ships lost, damaged or reported missing during the storms which swept the Great Lakes were: William B. Davock, foundered; Anna C. Minch, foundered; Crude Oil, foundered; Richard H., foundered; The Indian, foundered; Wilbur E. Smith, missing; Hanna, missing; Bethlehem, missing, Dornbos feared missing; Frank Billings, in distress; The Conneaut, disabled; Novadoc, aground; Ralph K. Peterson, aground; City of Flint, aground.

Buildings in rural Ontario districts were blown down or otherwise wrecked by the gale. Some root crop damage by heavy rains was reported.

Bus Schedules Interrupted

Train and bus schedules were interrupted by Prairie blizzards that were accompanied by gale-like winds and dropping temperatures. Trans Canada Airlines officials reported resumption last night of western trips but did not expect eastward flights from Winnipeg would be resumed until today.

Although property damage was reported from many parts of Canada due to the storms, Ontario took the most thorough buffeting and several injuries were reported.

At Glencoe, Ont., James Quick, 40-year-old Hydro lineman, suffered a fractured leg, fractured pelvis, and fractured arm when he fell while making repairs to a cable. Near Tillsonburg, Ont., an automobile driven by Carl Priester, R.R.3, Delhi, was blown out of control and crashed into a Hydro pole. Priester and a passenger were injured, neither seriously.

Timmins, Ont., was cut off from the outside world for several hours when a 45-mile-an-hour gale rendered all communication lines useless.

Unfinished buildings at Port Albert Airport near Goderich in western Ontario were damaged by the wind, and British airmen who arrived prior to the storm spent a night of blackout when power service lines snapped in the gale.

AXIS AIRCRAFT

Royal Air Force fighters went up to engage the Germans, and the all-clear sounded in the capital shortly before noon. One of the raiders was reported downed in a dogfight over the southeast coast.

The number of casulties resulting from the theatre bombing remained uncertain as rescue workers dug in the wreckage in search of dead and injured.

Two Other Theatres Hit

At least two other London motion picture theatres were damaged by bombs during the night, but the results were not serious.

A subway station and an air raid shelter were among the other places in the capital struck by bombs. The hit on the subway tied up service temporarily, and buses were placed in operation to shuttle passengers around the damaged section.

The Nazi night attacks, which the government said were "on a fairly heavy scale," were concentrated on London and the industrial Midlands, but bombs also fell in isolated areas elsewhere.

The Liverpool dock area along the Mersey River was one of the targets of the raiders.

The Ministeries of Air and Home Security said damage was widespread, but not severe in view of the scale of the assaults, and that casualties were few outside London.

About 1,000 Londoners sitting in one movie theatre narrowly escaped death when a bomb plunged through the roof of the orchestra pit, exploding below the floor level.

Three trolley bus passengers were killed and eight injured when a bomb exploded in a street.

Liner Bremen Sunk Off Danish Coast Say Private Reports

San Francisco, Nov. 13—(AP)— Unconfirmed private reports, one a telegram received by the Danish-Norwegian newspaper Bien, said Tuesday the Bremen, Germany's great liner, had been sunk several weeks ago off the Danish coast.

A Danish family received a letter from relatives in Denmark saying the 49,864-on Bremen was sunk in the Kattegat, four miles north of Sjaelland, one of Denmark's larger islands on which Copenhagen is situated.

The letter said the Bremen had been lying there several weeks and that Danes along the coast thought it had been struck by a British torpedo. It added that many German troops on the ship had been drowned.

The writer said the Bremen's superstructure was above water, and that excursion trips to the ship were available for the equivalent of 25 cents, Canadian money.

Senders of the telegram to Bien, and of the letter, were not identified by name.

The letter writer, an inhabitant of the Sjaelland coast, said that "hundreds of bodies" of German soldiers were being washed ashore in the area of the lower end of the Kattegat.

(The Bremen slipped out of New York just before the outbreak of war and managed to make her way to Germany. Various reports since have had her sunk or damaged in sea warfare.)

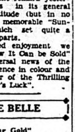
AT THE CAPITOL

"It's in the Air"

"It's in the Air"— A Basil Dean production, directed by Anthony Kimmins.

The players: George Formby, Polly Ward, Garry Marsh, Julien Mitchell, Jack Hobbs, G. Denier Warren, Michael Shepley, Hal Gordon, Ilena Syla, Frank Leighton, Joe Cunningham, Jack Melford, Eliot Makeham and Scruffy.

Coming next to the Capitol.



Lancashirian George Formby is a new face to this movie-goer as he probably will be to most fans on this side of the ocean. In England, however, he is one of the most popular comedians of the day, averaging, it is said, some $5,000 a week from motion picture, stage and radio work. He's the son, as you might guess, of the well-known music hall comedian of a few years ago, who used to panic 'em plenty. In type, you might class him as a British Harold Lloyd, particularly so if his present picture is typical of the kind of work he does. It presents him as a simple guy who doesn't know his right hand from his left—and is quite happy about the whole thing. Although excluded from the army because of his dumbness, he manages to get mixed up with the Air Force, turns the place into a shambles and —you guessed it—takes a plane up without preliminary lessons for a final exciting sequence. The story is developed in routine style and while you can almost always anticipate what is coming next you'll find it a highly diverting piece of business. In some respects, as we heard one gent remark yesterday, it resembles in its general light-hearted attitude (but in no other way), the memorable "Sunshine Susie"—which set quite a record in these parts.

For your added enjoyment we present also "Now It Can be Sold" a comedy; Universal news of the day; Popular Science in colour and the 6th Chapter of the Thrilling serial "Tim Tyler's Luck".

AT THE BELLE

"Flowing Gold"

The Belle Theatre will continue its new season parade of film hits with "Flowing Gold" starring John Garfield, Frances Farmer, and Pat O'Brien. The screen transcription of Rex Beach's widely read novel is to have its local opening as the next feature attraction.

The locale of the dynamic action-drama is Texas' great oil fields, the sprawling strip of land where men ruthlessly fight to capture flowing gold—the rich black oil that has lain in waiting since prehistoric time to gush geyser-like into the air.

Against this vivid background of love, greed and high adventure, John Garfield and Pat O'Brien are seen as itinerant oil workers who meet and fall in love with Frances Farmer, beautiful daughter of their eccentric prospecting employer. In a series of swiftly-paced scenes the pair saves the girl's wells from conniving rivals, and again come to her rescue when the wells are set aflame. The likeable trio are well suited to their parts, Garfield and O'Brien having had a great deal of experience in rugged, virile, roles, while Miss Farmer will be remembered by many filmgoers as the lovely outdoor heroine of Edna Ferber's "Come and Get it" a hit of several years ago.

The eagerly-awaited film includes such names as Raymond Walburn, Cliff Edwards, the late Granville Bates, Jody Gilbert, Tom Kennedy, and William Marshall in its supporting cast.

"Money and the Women"

There's a new kind of movie mystery in store for Belle Theatre patrons when "Money and the Woman" starring Jeffrey Lynn and Brenda Marshall opens as the companion feature. The Warner Bros. picture has been adapted from the novel by James M. Cain, author of that popular thriller, "The Postman Always Rings Twice", and advance reports credit it with being the most exciting screen fare seen in a long time.

The title itself, is the tipoff to movie-goers as to what to expect in this picture. "Money and the Woman" is always a dangerous combination that's bound to spell excitement and danger, thrills and romance. There are very few men who wouldn't do anything for money and the woman. In this case, the man is Jeffrey Lynn and Brenda Marshall is the woman.

"On Foreign News Fronts"

"On Foreign News Fronts" is the title of the latest issue of the March of Time to be exhibited on the same program. Now you can see how the great newspapers and Press Associations—proud of their heritage of freedom are today fighting censorship to give citizens the true facts about what is happening abroad.

See all of the most dramatic scenes of the first year of World War Number Two.

Tip-Top Entertainment

Tip-Top entertainment is now being presented at the Belle where mystery, fun and romance abound in the Warner Baxter, Andrea Leeds vehicle "Earthbound", Ann Sothern, Ian Hunter and Roland Young are featured in the added laugh feature "Dulcy". The Belle news of the hour is announced for exhibition on the same program.

Delhi (CP)—Present plans for an Indian army of 100,000 men may be expanded to allow a force of 1,000,000 men, Lord Linlithgow, the viceroy, said in a summation of India's war effort.

The newest Bumstead bombshell of fun-packed merriment will drive you into hyterics! Blondie decides to play Cupid...Baby Dumpling plays with dynamite and Dagwood just plays dumb! The Bumsteads go to the country...and the country goes nuts. "Family of Nations"

Receiving splendid praise from McCarthy theatre patrons who have already seen it "A Family of Nations," the exciting cavalcade of the British Empire mirroring a hundred years of glory from the Coronation of Queen Victoria until the present time, is now playing, in addition to the comedy mystery-drama "Honeymoon Deferred" co-starring Edmund Lowe and Margaret Lindsay, plus latest European Fox News events, a program that has our recommendation that you should see.

HUNTERINSTANTLY KILLED IN WOODS

William Paul, Perth, and Companion Fired at Deer Simultaneously

Perth, Ont., Nov. 13 — (CP) — William Paul, 50, of nearby Poland, Ont., was killed instantly Tuesday in a hunting accident a few miles north of here when struck by a bullet after he and a companion, Robert Closs, also of Poland, fired at a deer simultaneously.

Provincial Police investigated. Dr. C. H. Lewis, Coroner, opened an inquest and adjourned it until next Tuesday.

Closs and Paul, who had hunted together for 17 years, went on the hunting trip with two other men, Frank Madden and David McInnes. Madden and McInnes were some distance away when the accident occurred.

WEDDINGS

DOYLE—ROBINSON

A pretty wedding took place at the Church of St. Michael the Archangel, on Monday morning at nine o'clock, when Ileen Helen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Robinson, became the bride of Leonard John Doyle, R.C.A.F., Toronto, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard John Doyle, Vancouver, B.C. Rev. C. E. Baker officiated.

Autumn flowers were used in the decoration of the church. Wedding music was played by Mrs. James Grant and Mr. Edward Buckley was soloist, singing "O Promise Me".

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in her gown of white net with touches of white satin. Her veil was caught to her hair with orange blossoms, and she carried pink Delight roses with bouvardia.

Miss Helen Ciceri was bridesmaid, and wore powder blue net with pink trimming, matching hat and carried a nosegay of Johanna Hill roses.

Mr. Donald McDonald, R.C.A.F., Toronto, was groomsman and the ushers were Mr. Edward Buckley and Mr. Harry McDougall.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Flowers, white bells and streamers adorned the rooms. Mrs. Robinson received her guests in black crepe with corsage of sweet peas and lilies of the valley.

The bride and groom left for a short visit in Montreal and will reside in Toronto. The bride travelled in navy blue, with matching coat, trimmed with gray fur and navy hat.

Out of town guests were present from Toronto and Kingston.

MERAW—FEELEY

Sacred Heart Church, Peterborough, was the setting for the wedding on Saturday morning of Miss Georgina Feeley, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fred Feeley to John Patrick Meraw, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Meraw, of Tweed, Ont. Rev. J. J. O'Brien performed the ceremony. Carnations decked the church, and wedding music was played by Mr. Armstrong. During the signing of the register an "Ave Maria" was sung by Mrs. W. Prindible.

Given in marriage by her brother, Geoffrey Feeley, the bride wore a graceful gown of turquoise embroidered net over taffeta. Her matching veil was caught with a halo of forget-me-nots, and she carried Sweetheart roses. Miss Bellesmere Feeley was her sister's bridesmaid, wearing orchid embroidered net over taffeta, and a tiny hat fashioned of purple violets. Her flowers were yellow chrysanthemums.

Mr. Simon Meraw, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and the ushers were Mr. Vincent Hotts, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Hosanna Feeley, brother of the bride.

A reception was held at the home of the bride, where her sister received, wearing black satin crepe with corsage of roses. The groom's mother, who received with her, also wore a black ensemble, and corsage of roses.

After a short wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Meraw will live in Peterborough. The bride wore a smart black travelling frock under a topcoat of green tweed.

KELSON—WILSON

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wilson, Picton, was the scene of a pretty wedding, when their daughter, Mary Josephine, became the bride of Harold William Kelson son of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Kelson, all of Picton. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. B. Creeggan, and ferns, pale pink and blue 'mums and snapdragons were used in decoration.

The bride, given in marriage by her brother, Clifford Wilson, wore a street length dress of heaven blue Swiss crepe, with draped turban and shoes of the same shade. Her corsage was of shell pink snapdragons and bouvardia and she wore the gift of the groom, gold locket. There were no attendants. Wedding music was played by Miss Ruth Kelson, sister of the groom, who also sang "Because" during the signing of the register.

A reception followed the ceremony, the bride's mother wearing black embroidered crepe with corsage of pink roses, and the groom's mother in brown crepe with gold lace trim and corsage of pink roses. In the dining room, yellow snapdragons and tall yellow tapers in silver holders were arranged on a lace covered table, the bride's cake centring the table. The cake was later cut by the bride. Mrs. Gerald Gibson and Mrs. Clifford Wilson poured tea. For the trip to Toronto and points west the bride wore a dress of Indian summer wool, Clifton grey coat with squirrel trim, black hat and shoes. Upon their return they will reside at Brockville, where the groom is a member of a bank staff.

The wedding ceremony was held in the living room which was attractively decorated with bronze and yellow chrysanthemums, while the dining room in which the wedding breakfast was served was decorated with yellow and white chrysanthemums.

Refugee Children

I know a couple who have taken two typical refugee children from England into their home, and judging by their experience so far, I'm inclined to believe that this mixing of youngsters from the Old World with ours, will do a lot for both countries. I'm sure the British children are going to return home after the war better off as a result of their contact with New World ideas and ideals. And I know we are going to learn a great deal we should know about our children from these visitors.

In the meantime, any home that has accepted the responsibility for one or more evacuees has just about the most interesting task in the world—assisting children torn from their homes, to readjust themselves to an entirely new way of life in what is virtually another world.

We are being given a very interesting opportunity for comparisons between the younger generations of the two countries. An observation confirmed by teachers in schools refugees are attending is that in the classics, in literature and in languages, the children from overseas are more advanced. They have a wider knowledge of current events and are more at ease in conversation about them with adults. One man told me he was astounded by a 10-year-old English lad's well-rounded understanding of world affairs. On the other hand, our children are more proficient in hand work and have more knowledge of the social sciences and mechanics. Also our children show many physical advantages over the new arrivals.

A child study group in Toronto which has been studying the effect on both the evacuees and ourselves of this mass movement, notes a wide new interest in child care and training. Even couples who have children of their own, have found that with little refugees in their homes, they have problems requiring new knowledge. The Institute of Child Care in Toronto is being called on for assistance by many parents and foster parents affected by the evacuee scheme.

Dr. Karl Bernhardt, a leading child psychologist of Canada, thinks that parents on this side will learn a great deal to their advantage on how not to keep children tied too closely to their apron strings, as too many of them do now. English children spend far less time at home in the growing up years and it doesn't appear to have worked to their disadvantage. They are more self-reliant and responsible. Being away from their homes, among strangers, is not as great a trial to them as it probably would be to our own children.

However, a self-assured feeling of superiority some of the evacuees have toward our children has made them trials to their foster-parents. Dr. Bernhardt believes that if foster-parents are able to adjust themselves and their refugee charges within the first five or six months they are here, the problem stage will be past. In any homes where friction continues, he believes crises in relationships will arise about February or March.

You Can't Learn for The Child

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph. D.

Often a parents will write: "I have trouble with my child in arithmetic." It may, however, be in reading or spelling.

No doubt this parent does suppose she has most of the trouble. But her trouble is nothing in comparison with the child's. He not only has trouble over his arithmetic but over his parent as well. Indeed, his trouble over arithmetic might wane or disappear but for his parent.

Let us remember that the child does the learning. We don't and can't do it for him. In our efforts at helping him learn we often hinder him unawares. Always we hamper him when we reveal annoyance or anger over his errors or learning troubles. He doesn't make mistakes in learning in order to be "orney". He makes them in spite of his efforts not to make them. Already he is vexed at himself for having made them or for his failure to remember the right answer or arrive at the right conclusion. Then for him to be scolded or abused is just too much.

Advice to Parents

You are hearing your child spell his words say his nine-times table, or read from his lesson for tomorrow. He spells a word wrong, names a combination incorrectly or says was for saw. How do you act then? Are you wholly calm? Is your voice subdued, your breathing normal? Or do you yell at him, "What did you say?" yelling the same louder in case he repeats the error. What is the sense in having him repeat the error? The least sense is in your yelling. A maniac would do as well. Maybe you are one when you act so.

The longer you go on presuming to help your child in such a relationship the more confused he grows and the more mistakes he makes. You began to be a hindrance to your child's learning the moment your breathing grew irregular. You felt it at the pit of your stomach. That should have been the sign for you to walk away and keep out of your child's presence until you had wholly regained composure. It may be that you will never wholly manage your emotions when you try to help your child with his lessons. Until you feel sure you should not try to help him at all.

Don't Give Up

I still believe it possible for any parent reading this column to attain self-mastery in this relationship. You need to work out a sensible philosophy. First of all, you need to be able to put yourself in your imagination in your child's place. Once you do that you are on the way to success.

Believing that many parents can calmly and efficiently help their child at home, and knowing that many will try to do so regardless, I have prepared a series of home helps for children in reading and spelling. In writing these helps I have had in mind the best suggestions I could think of by which the parent might try to help without being a stumbling block unawares to the child's learning; that, moreover, these helps might make the child happier and foster a happier parent-child relationship.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

By Their Manners You Shall Know Them

Every girl or woman I've ever known has at least two or three ideas about her escort's manners, ideas to which she is particularly attached. By these personal yardsticks she judges a man's manners, for better or worse. To some men these details of manners may seem trivial "notions", but to the girl or woman they are tremendously important, a source of special pride to her.

Sometimes a girl or women is particularly sensitive to the way her escort acknowledges an introduction. Tom's gracious "How do you do" makes her proud; Bill's "Pleasedtermeetcher" makes her cringe. The right way Bob lifts his hat pleases her; Jim's half-hearted touch of the brim of his hat is a source of chagrin.

Phil signals his arrival at her house by blantantly honking the horn, Peter is the gentleman who knows that the doorbell, not the horn of his car, should announce him. Frank feebly lags behind to let her find the seats at the movies; John is the masterly gentleman who goes down the aisle first and finds the best available seats. And so on—with the Big Little Things that make a girl ashamed or very proud of her escort.

Here's a letter from a worried escort about a girl who believes—and it's one of my pet enthusiasms too—that her escort in a restaurant and not the headwaiter and not the waiter, is the one who should courteously stand behind her chair and "do the honors" of helping her take her seat:

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

One evening recently a girl friend and I dropped in to a tavern in our neighborhood. We were met at the table by a waiter with a menu-card. I stood until my friend took her seat and then I sat down.

Shortly afterward my friend told me, in a very nice way, that I had overlooked something that meant a lot to her. I had failed to help her into her chair. I have never seen this done in small places of this type, and I really don't think it was a breach of form or manners.

Please tell me, Mrs. Beeckman, was the waiter or I supposed to help her with her chair, or is my girl friend going high-hat on me?

George

Well, dear sir, most authorities tell us that it's perfectly proper for a man to let a headwaiter or a waiter assume this privilege of helping a woman with her chair. But this girl friend of yours doesn't agree with this—and neither do I. It may be a "notion" but I too like to see a man in a restaurant do what he would do at a dinner in a home—take his place behind his dinner partner's chair and help her take her seat.

This isn't "high hat", no matter where the man and girl are dining, even if they are just having a snack in a neighborhood tavern. It's just a reasonable and pleasant bow to gallantry.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Married or Single, Modern Girl Needs Independence

Three or four weeks ago this column published a "Primer for Girls Entering College". The question discussed which course was better—to study hard, achieve something in the way of a career with the possibility of earning a big salary and become what the world calls a success, or just to be pretty, popular and attractive, and have plenty of dates?

The response has been very interesting. With hardly a dissenting note, parents were in favor of girls studying hard with success and a good salary as the goal. Many girls fell back on "We're only young once, why not have a good time?"

The trouble with that formula is that it's blown up, and that women without educational equipment or some profession or trade are in a pretty sad way when it comes to meeting the responsibilities of life.

More than a generation ago, those magnificent old high priestesses of suffrage who worked endlessly to have women enfranchised, admitted to the professions, and to see that they worked under decent living conditions, announced that marriage no longer furnished economic security for women. Today the majority of wives have to work. There's no getting around that, even if they work at home, doing cooking, washing, ironing and a hundred other household tasks.

When the census was taken twenty years ago there was a tremendous rumpus in the part of women who worked endlessly at household drudgery because they were classed by census-takers as "having no occupation". Infuriated housewives wrote to this column, asking why they should be classed with park-bench sitters when they worked sometimes fourteen hours a day, long after the husbands, whose occupation was given, were snoring comfortably in bed? I believe the present census-takers list women who work around the house as "homemakers".

You may probably remind me that someone always has to do this kind of work. The answer is that housework grows easier for the housewife every year. Consider what housework entailed in the Colonial days when the women actually had to dip the candles, weave the cloth and linen from which the garments were made, and then sew these garments by hand. In addition to doing the washing in the old-fashioned way by hand-rubbing on the washboard, they did all the cooking and butter and cheese-making, for there were no convenient chain stores at the corner. There was no can-opener with which to get a meal in thirty minutes or less.

Electricity has taken the burden of housekeeping off the house-mother's shoulders. Washing, ironing, sweeping, cooking and cleaning are done by electricity. Housework will never be the drudgery it was in the past. Year by year, it grows simpler. It's only the sensible thing for every girl in every walk of life to learn something which will help her to stand on her own feet, whether she marries or doesn't marry.

The most tragic letters that come to this column are from women who have never learned to do anything in the way of gainful occupation. They lose their husbands through death or desertion, and are distraught at the prospect of having to support two or three children and not knowing how to do it. Their attempts are so heartbreaking I will not attempt to enumerate them.

The thing for every girl to do is to take time by the forelock and learn something that will help her to be independent, come what may.

IF YOU LIKE the exotic in millinery, you will enjoy one of those untrimmed velvet skull-caps. Untrimmed in front, it has enormous roses outlining the border of the hat and almost covering the nape of the neck.

HERE'S A BIT OF GLAMOUR FOR PLAIN FOODS

THOSE ordinary, everyday dishes, which you must, for economy's sake, serve several times a week—give them new flavour appeal by adding a little H. P. Sauce. Some items like stew, meat pie, slices of Sunday's roast warmed up in the frying pan, macaroni dishes, meat balls, etc., are flavoured best by adding H. P. while cooking. With other foods like cold meats, fish, leftovers of fowl, bacon and eggs, add the H. P. when serving.

This is the way to put a bit of glamour into everyday foods and have the family—including yourself—eat them up with relish. H. P. Sauce is such a success at flavouring foods because it is thick, rich, and has good flavouring power.

WITNESSES STATE WEEDS WERE CUT BEFORE ACCIDENT

C.N.R. Sectionmen Give Evidence in Suit for Damages Against G. Montgomery, Frankford

SOME RULED OUT

Moses Batchelor and Thomas McColl, Canadian National Railway sectionmen, testified before a Supreme Court jury here yesterday afternoon that weeds on both sides of the railway at crossing near Glen Miller where George Montgomery's automobile is said to have crashed into a railway track-car on July 5th., 1939, were cut three days before the accident occurred.

The collision, which caused severe injuries to James Risk and Frederick Todd, London, Ont., track-car passengers, is the basis of a suit for damages of $25,000 being brought by the railway against Montgomery. The hearing concluded its second day yesterday under Mr. Justice MacKay.

The sectionmen stated they had started cutting weeds at the Glen Miller crossing one half mile north of that where the collision occurred on July 2nd. By July 5th they were working one and one-half miles south of the second crossing, where the collision took place.

Batchelor admitted, however, under questioning by the bench that the weeds had been cut to the fences extending 100 feet south of the crossing and from that point "one swath, from 8 to 10 feet" had been cut.

Evidence Ruled Out

The evidence of Samuel Loshaw, section foreman, was ruled out by the bench after objection by defendant's counsel J. M. Balfour, on the grounds that it would not carry much weight. Loshaw had been in Glen Miller vicinity since September 1939, and counsel argued that since the collision many physical changes in the terrain surrounding the crossing had taken place. "Evidence of this witness may confuse the jury, which has heard that of witnesses present at the time of the accident", ruled the Bench.

He had driven several times along that part of the highway leading to the crossing, David Smith, retired sectionman testified and had seen track cars coming along the right-of-way often. The track can be seen from the highway along the route taken by the Montgomery car for a distance of 250 to 300 feet with the exception of a slight obstruction from 40 to 50 feet from the crossing. The rails of the track can be seen from 30 to 100 feet south of the crossing.

Must Work Both Ways Says Bench

"I suppose the man on the track-car can see the automobile, too. It must work both ways", observed Justice MacKay.

Smith testified he had gone to the scene of the accident on July 5th and had observed the track-car on the side of a ditch 33 feet from the crossing, eastward on the highway. It was turned around and rested on the slanting shoulder on the north side of the ditch. Risk was in the ditch some ten feet closer to the track while Todd lay unconscious between Risk and the track-car.

A piece had been gouged out of the guard-rail and a plank between the rails at the northern end of the crossing, Smith said.

Frederick Todd, London, Ont., C.N.R. travelling auditor severely injured in the crash, told the jury he had contacted Risk as he was leaving Trenton for Bancroft on the morning of the accident. He had shown his credentials and obtained permission of Risk to ride with him.

Humor was injected into the proceedings at this point when defence counsel asked Mr. Todd, if he thought there was any risk attached to riding on a track-car.

R. E. Laidlaw, C.N.R. counsel interjected with "Why certainly, there already was a Risk on the car".

The court-room smiled as Mr. Balfour retorted "I had no intention of punning".

Todd remembered nothing from moment the track car 'was gliding' around a curve near the crossing, until eight days later, when he regained consciousness in Belleville General Hospital. He had suffered a fractured leg, skull fracture, fractured ribs, and a back condition. He had spent five months and ten days in hospital undergoing special surgical and medical treatment. His condition at present was very well, with the exception of his leg. Witness admitted the C.N.R. had paid all hospital and medical bills and his wages of $210.00 per month, while in the hospital. He had paid other expenses of $276.00 himself.

All Expenses Paid

G. Blankern, C.N.R. compensation clerk, told the court he had paid Risk the sums of $793.83 for medical and hospital bills and $1,864.84 in wages during hospitalization, and Todd $1,224.52 and $1,673.32 for the same accounts.

C.N.R. Maintenance Superintendent Andrew Reyburn, testified that the track-car involved in the collision had been sent to his department and scrapped after repairs had been found impossible. The value of the car when new was $345 and at the time of the accident $145. No warning signals had been placed on any of this type of car, he said. It had been struck near the rear end.

Mrs. Frederick Todd, informed the court of the sufferings of her husband during his stay in hospital and subsequently. "He is much better now", she said. I have noticed a great change in the last month". George Williams, Belleville General Hospital X-ray technician, identified plates taken by him of the accident victims.

ACHIEVEMENT OF KIWANIS CLUB IS REVIEWED

Various Chairmen Report on the Work Done by the Several Committees

WORK IS PRAISED

In the absence of a principal speaker at the Tuesday luncheon of the Kiwanis Club, the members took over the meeting and the progress of the club and the achievement of the organization during the past year was reviewed for the benefit of the younger members. Dick Flynn presided with Harold Carruthers as song leader and Charlie Richardson as sergeant-at-arms. Leo B. Riggs presided at the piano.

Ross Stiver completed the report of the delegates to the District convention at Toronto and he stated that the committee advocated the program of reforestation in Clubs. He told the members that the attendance for the year was down from the previous year with a percentage of 74.33 per cent. The convention said the speaker advocated the working together of the Program and Attendance chairmen so that the members would be pleased to come out due to the fine programs arranged. The clubs had a total membership of 94 net and Belleville supplied 25 per cent of the forty new members obtained, which is indeed a wonderful record. The convention also favored more inter-club visits and Belleville stood fourth in this respect in the district, another fine record for the club. The speaker was of the opinion that the aims and objectives of the club should be run at least once a year in the press and that the Club should have a speaker on Dominion Day that could inform the club members of the changes proposed in B.N.A. act. Mr. Stiver was also of the opinion that the Club should support the church in its spiritual aims.

Morley Wyman, general chairman of Publicity called on the various chairmen for an achievement report and some of the statements made were most interesting and showed that the club has been active in nearly every sphere of civic betterment. Jack McIntosh, chairman of Membership, told the Club there had been fourteen new members join the Club in this term and that a larger number could be secured if room was available. Harold Seldon, chairman of Welfare, explained that the committee worked along silently but always doing a fine work. He told the members the club paid the V.O.N. clinic rent, gave medicine to children in need and that the physician members were always willing to assist in operation for tonsils and other ailments providing the children or parents were not able to pay for same. Charlie Tripp, chairman of Agriculture committee, believed the Poultry Project would have a far reaching effect in the community and that the work should be continued another year but with an enlarged committee so that more members would be better acquainted with residents in the rural areas.

Ted Hughes, chairman of the Sports Committee, told of the work of the Ki-Y Hockey and Softball seasons stating that 313 players participated in the two sports and only $80.96 was expended by the club. The Boys' and Girls' Work Committee under the direction of Harold Carruthers, had a busy year. They assisted in putting a roof on the kitchen at the boys' camp, gave prizes to those writing the best essays on Fire Prevention and presented St. Michael's Band with $15 after the organization assisted in the reception to Walter P. Zeller at the Country Club this summer. Jack McVeigh, chairman of Public Affairs, spoke of the open air rinks provided by the Kiwanis Club and the great benefit derived by the children who used them, while Ted Willing spoke on Vocational Guidance and the number that had been assisted in securing employment through the committee. Ted has views on Vocational Guidance and is keenly interested in seeing that the boy coming out of school gets a proper start in life. Morley Wyman reported for Jack Trudeau, chairman of Ways and Means Committee, stating this committee had successfully put over the Carnival and the Draw Book Campaign. The press was thanked by the speaker for the fine co-operation that was shown.

Chicago Spoils Home Debut Of Boston Bruins by Defeating Art Ross' Hockey Machine 6-5

Chicago Score Their First Win on Boston Ice in Four Seasons

TROPHIES PRESENTED

N.H.L. President Presents Bobby Bauer With Byng Trophy and Bruins With Their Pennant

By SIDNEY GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The quiz experts are about ready to admit that Chicago Black Hawks have reached the stage where they can supply the answers to any questions put to them by other teams in the National Hockey League.

The first signs that such a thing might happen began to appear last season, when the Hawks finished fourth in the standing with a club well-stocked with youngsters by Manager Paul Thompson. The word went around then to watch the Hawks next season, and it seems to have been good advice.

Although the new season is less than two weeks old and they have played only three games, the Hawks have shown enough for Thompson to get consideration of his prediction that the team will finish in third place. They definitely do not look like a team that will finish on one of the bottom rungs.

Have Fine Offensive

Thompson apparently has welded together a club with a better offensive than any Hawk team in the past 10 years, for lack of scoring punch has always been a Chicago defect. Long noted for good defensive work and good backchecking, the Hawks have broken the 100-mark in goal scoring only twice since the 1931-32 season and one of the times was last season.

The Hawks demonstrated their new scoring punch last night in the only scheduled game, by spoiling the home debut of Boston Bruins before a crowd of 12,000 fans. The Hawks won 6-5 to go into first place in the standing, a point ahead of New York Rangers and Detroit Red Wings. The Wings and Hawks each played three games, to the Rangers' two.

Already Team Scores Nine Goals

Thompson's charges now have run in nine goals against the opposition, for although they were blanked 1-0 by New York Americans in their opening game of the season they topped Montreal Canadiens 3-1 in their other contest. They have a chance to atone for their one defeat tomorrow night, when they play Americans in New York at the same time as Canadiens are hosts to Toronto Maple Leafs.

George Allen, who counted one of the goals against Canadiens, scored twice against the Bruins and now is the leading goal-getter in the League with three. Other Chicago scorers were Mush March, Bill Thoms, Bob Carse and Earl Seibert.

The Boston tallies went to Milt Schmidt, Roy Conacher, Bobby Bauer, Bill (Flash) Hollett and Eddie Wiseman.

First Win in Four Years

Thompson and the Hawks found the victory particularly sweet as it was the first scored by a Chicago team on Boston ice in four seasons. The game was wide open with the Hawks twice holding three-goal leads and the Bruins making it close by scoring twice in the last six minutes.

Prior to the opening face-off League President Frank Calder presented Bauer with the Lady Byng trophy, which the Boston player won last season. The trophy goes to the player judged the "most gentlemanly" in his conduct on the ice. Calder also turned over the 1939-40 league championship pennant to the Bruins, as well as championship medals.

AIR RAID STOPS GAME AT LORD'S

Spectators Remain in Seats as Sirens Sound, Police Suspend Play

London, Nov. 14 (CP).—Even in wartime it takes a lot to upset a cricket match in England.

Probably for the first time in history an air-raid stopped play at Lord's cricket ground in London. The Times tells it:

"As the umpires and the teams left the field at the sound of the siren, many spectators remained in their seats; others took cover beneath the stands, and a few went to public shelters in the neighborhood.

"But one spectator remained calm and imperturbable—a Chelsea pensioner who stood alone in the middle of the arena, a vivid figure in his red coat—satisfying himself apparently that the wicket would not crumble before it became the turn of the Scots Guards to bat."

Spectators at a Tottenham Hotspur football club practice match made up their mind they did not want play interfered with and their cheering drowned the wail of the siren.

Play continued for several minutes until police approached the referee and asked him to suspend the game. Their action was greeted with booing.

A cricket match in another district went on until the raider was seen overhead. Then the match was delayed for only a few minutes while the plane passed over. Some of the players stood under trees, others went to the pavilion.

Just Thirteen Horses, But What Class Nags

Kingsville, Tex., Nov. 14 (CP).—On the bill of lading, they were listed merely as an express shipment of thirteen horses, but a fortune in thoroughbreds arrived at the fabled King ranch recently.

Heading the batch from the Kentucky blue grass was Bold Venture, 1936 Kentucky Derby winner, for which the ranch interests reportedly handed over $40,000.

Also included was Ciencia, bred on the King ranch, 1939 winner of the Santa Anita Derby and the only filly to turn the trick. A third big-time stakes winner was Dawn Play, another mare, which captured the American Oaks in Chicago three years ago.

Split Second, which has won her share of first class races for the King ranch, was in the consignment. Split Second and Ciencia are mated to War Admiral.

Other arrivals were On Hand, bred to Man o' War; Synonym, bred to Johnstown, and the following, all mated to Bold Venture: Last Boat, Incandescent, Gulf Breeze, Otra Morena, Maravilla and Eye-to-Eye.

More than 150 suggestions had been received by the committee, given the task of naming the hotel by interests erecting the building. All these were discarded in favor of the Lorld Elgin, suggested Tuesday by Ald. H. P. Hill.

"Peck" is Back Again

Roger Peckinpaugh has been chosen manager of Cleveland Indians of the American Baseball League.

In taking the job Peckinpaugh becomes a basebal rarity — twice manager of the same major league club. His previous tenure, started in 1928, ended with his discharge in mid-season, 1933.

"Peck," who is 49 and was once a star shortstop, succeeds Oscar Vitt, released after he led the rebellious Tribe into second place this year.

Ava Bradley, the club president who fired Peckinpaugh seven years ago, announced Peckinpaugh signed a two-year contract.

The Big Seven

(By the Canadian Press)

Syd Howe, Detroit Red Wing forward, retained the lead among National Hockey League point-makers today despite the fact his team did not see action last night. Five players are tied behind Howe with three points apiece with three of them—George Allen and Mush March of Chicago and Milt Schmidt of Boston — gaining the necessary points in last night's Chicago-Boston game, the only one of the night. Seventh place is shared by 18 players with two points but only one — Johnny (Peanuts) O'Flaherty of Americans —has his points made up of goals.

Sports Roundup

(By Eddie Brietz, Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Nov. 13—(AP)—Gossipy gossip: Henry Armstrong, who will retire soon, is quietly assembling a stable of fighters. . . . Don Budge has regained the 15 pounds he lost when that strep throat knocked him for a loop, but he still is in a bad humor. He's beefing because his new gas buggy rattles when he hits 115 m. p. h. . . . Carl Snavely and Dick Harlow are such close pals they exchange strategic formations once a week during the season. . . . And Fritzie Zivic has offered to bet Al Davis $1,000 he haymakers Al in seven stanzas, or less.

It isn't very funny
And neither is it nice

She cannot skate around a suit.

The Dodgers are a-goin'

FRANK McCORMICK WINNER OF MOST VALUABLE AWARD

First Baseman of Cincinnati Reds Choice of Experts for Award

HIT .309 IN YEAR

Fred Fitzsimmons of Brooklyn Ranked Second but Well Behind Leader

(By Judson Bailey Associated Press Sports Writer.)

New York, Nov. 13 (AP)—Frank McCormick, first baseman for the World Champion Cincinnati Reds, was the National League's most valuable player in 1940, a committee for the Baseball Writers' Association of America announced today.

The youngster from New York, who joined the Reds three years ago and has played in every one of their games since, didn't have his best season, but it was a good one, and vital to the Reds.

He hit .309 and drove in 127 runs, as compared with a batting average of .322 and 128 runs batted in in 1939.

The balloting produced no particular surprises and ran the gamut of stars of all eight clubs in the league. Corpulent Fred Fitzsimmons, Brooklyn's veteran knuckleballer, who led in percentage of victories with a record of 16 and 2, ranked second in the voting and Debs Garms of Pittsburgh, the somewhat disputed batting champion, tied for 13th.

This is the order in which the "also-rans" finished:- Fitzsimmons 84 points; Dixie Walker, Brooklyn, 71; Harry Danning, New York, 64; Stanley Hack, Chicago, 61; Ernie Lombardi, Cincinnati, 38; Bill Werber, Cincinnati, 36; John Cooney, Boston, 31; Dolph Camilli, Brooklyn, 30; Eddie Miller, Boston and Debs Garms, Pittsburgh, 28 each; Arky Vaughan, Pittsburgh, 27; Claude Passeau, Chicago, 26; Joe Beggs, Cincinnati, 19; Terry Moore, St. Louis, 18; Elbie Fletcher, Pittsburgh, 16; Bill Nicholson, Chicago, 12; Kirby Higbe, Philadelphia, and Carvel Rowell, Boston, 10 each; Al Lopez, Pittsburgh, 9; Maurice Van Robays, Pittsburgh, 8; Truett Sewell, Pittsburgh, 7; Harold Reese, Brooklyn, Max West, Boston, and Babe Young, New York, 6 each; Whitlow Wyatt, Brooklyn, and John Rizzo, Merrill May and Hugh Mulcahy, all Philadelphia, 3 each; Pepper Martin, St. Louis, 2; Frank Gustine, Pittsburgh, 1.

N.H.L. STARS

(By the Canadian Press)

George Allen, Chicago, who took over the lead among N.H.L. goalgetters by scoring twice, thereby running his total to three, as the Black Hawks defeated Boston 6-5.

Milt Schmidt, Boston, who scored once and assisted in another tally against the Hawks.

STOP TABLE TENNIS

Cape Town, Nov. 14 (CP).—Owing to the number of table tennis players being called up for active service, the Western Province Association decided to abandon the men's competitions. The women's league will be carried on.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was looking at the paper before pop came down to breakfist, saying, Well, here's a strange queer one. Among those invited to meet Lord Darby at the Briddish Embassy last evening were the Duke and Duchess of Wister, Lady Emmswitch, the Earl of Straffishire, and Sir Willyum Potts. He hee, Sir Willyum Potts, ma said.

Being pop's name with a Sir on it, and ma said, Just wait till he comes down, I'll tease him unmercifully.

Wich she started to, saying, Well well, observe who's in our mist, how is your royal nobility this morning?

Okay, if you'll pardon my royal flush of embarrissment at the warmth of your reception, pop said.

And he started to eat his breakfist, ma saying, What did Lady Emmswitch have to say?

She was strangely silent, pop said. She just kept chewing her monocle in a distracted sort of way. What's new from Lord and Lady Tweedscloth? he said, and ma said, Now Willyum that's not a bit funny.

I'm not laughing, I assure you, pop said. Who's that picture postcard from? It looks like Count von Muckmuck's handwriting, he said, and ma said, You may think you're showing your sense of humor, but you're just giving vent to a lot of nonsense with no idea of its foundation.

For Peet sake I come down for my breakfist like a good citizen and I find myself knighted into a belted earl or something, and when I try to live up to my new station I get the middle class razz, pop said, and ma said, Now really, Willyum, I mean really, you can be the most irritating man alive or dead. Can I help it if you're Sir Willyum Potts by proxy? she said.

It is my fault if you're the dowager queen mother by acclamation? pop said, and ma said, Oh, keep quiet and have a personal look at yourself and maybe seeing will be believing. There, Sir Willyum, there, how do you like it, your highness? she said.

And she poked the paper at him, pop not seeming to think much of it even after he saw it.

The future of Juvenile hockey in Belleville today hangs in the balance. A half dozen business men attended last night's meeting at the "Y" to discuss the future promotion of the winter pastime among the kids. With a war on our hands these men considered that efforts to sponsor minor league sport should be predominate, as the of-age players are either in the services or many be in training in the near future. Another half dozen business men voiced their willingness to help in the executive end of a local juvenile hockey loop, thus assuring Belleville of hockey material for years to come. Unfortunately the management of the Hume Arena is unable at this time to definitely assure the Juvenile sponsors of any concrete arrangements for the utilization of the arena at this early date, as the accommodation of O.H.A. clubs is primary in their season's program. With this picture confronting them the Juvenile sponsors have abandoned all organization and promotion until something more certain relative to playing dates is afforded them.

With the exception of the netminding position, the Belleville entry in the Van Horne Memorial series seems fairly well secure. For the past two days Skippers St. Louis and Watt have been trying to contact Sergt. Laurie Gibson at the Airport, but with little success. Rumours are going the rounds that Gibson has been transferred to Montreal. However, we hear Sergt. Gibson is still stationed at the Trenton Airport, if he can be located among its increased numbers. Otherwise Hastie will be flanked by Tabby Gow and Jack Till for one line, with Mark and Bill Storms teaming with Frank Butler, while St. Louis, Jim Donohue, the former Cornwall Flyer, and Harry McCreary looking after the rear-guard work. They meet Queen's in the opening game at Kingston tonight.

Arch Ward, sports editor of the Chicago Tribune, observes: "Umpire Red Ormsby gave up a prayer of thanksgiving when he was appointed one of the officials for the 1940 World's Series for a fee of $2,500. The dough was welcome, for it meant extra luxuries for Red, the missus and the 12 younguns. But it wasn't the money he was thinking about. 'Two years ago, five doctors told me I'd never be able to work again,' said Red in telling of his gratitude. . . . Bill Benswanger, president of the Pittsburgh Pirates, plays the pipe organ, which probably has nothing to do with the fact that he smokes the strongest pipe in Organized Ball . . . Paul Derringer, who pitched the deciding game of the World's Series, would gladly give up his $5,800 share of the Series coin for a 100 per cent hay fever cure."

Commenting upon one of the many hockey accomplishments of the late Frankie Collins when he played for the senior champion Petes, Peterborough Sports Editor Fred Craig recalled the following incident: "Collins will always be remembered by hockey fans for one outstanding achievement. In the second game of the 1926 senior finals at London he scored one of the quickest goals on record, certainly the fastest in a game of such importance when he beat Alfie Moore, London goalkeeper, less than three seconds after the initial faceoff. The Petes had played their "home" game in Toronto, winning 4 to 2 and a two-goal lead was none too robust. It was recognized that scoring the first goal in London would be a decidedly important factor. Frankie saw to it that the opening counter went to the Petes. When the puck was dropped he secured possession, took two strides in the direction of the London goal and then let fire. The puck struck the ice in front of Moore and before that startled player could make a move the rubber had bounced into the net and the Petes were three goals ahead. That quick score had a decided psychological effect upon the outcome of the game, the Petes ultimately holding London to a tie score and taking the round and the championship by two goals."

Do you remember when Torchy Peden, Victoria six-day bicycle rider, established a world record at Minneapolis nine years ago today when, paced by an automobile, he pedalled a mile in 48 2-5 seconds—16 seconds better than the mark set in 1917.

Next season the Cleveland Indians don't want to try any of their "cry baby tactics" on the new manager of the Indians. Yesterday Roger Peckinpaugh was named manager of the Cleveland team and signed a two-year contract. "Peck", as he was known when he starred for the Yankees and Senators, becomes one of baseball's rarities as he now becomes manager of the same major league club for the second time. "Peck" managed the Tribe from 1928 to 1933 and is the type of manager who rules with a firm and iron hand.

Billed as the Canaidan champion and International snooker and pocket billiard expert, George Chevier will appear in exhibitions at the Uptown Billiards on Wednesday and Thursday. Any local exponents of the ancient game of billiards wishing to test their ability will be accommodated by Mr. Chevier, who makes as high as 121 off snooker breaks, he claims.

Alice Marble, queen of the tennis courts, turned professional yesterday and will go on tour with Don Budge, Bill Tilden and another female net star. Miss Marble will receive $25,000 for signing on the dotted line. She says she'll use the cash to further her musical studies her ambition being to be a "Met." star.

Controller Fred Hamilton, of Toronto, is going right ahead with his war charity East-West football extravaganza on Dec. 7th. The Winnipeg Blue Bombers are coming east for the game and it's hoped the western rules will be given a trial during part of the game in order to let us "down easterners" see what the west has got in football.

Sport Eye — The Minnesota Golden Gophers are being heralded as the No. 1 team of American football these days, ousting Cornell from the top slot.... Orillia won the Georgian Bay District and Niagara Falls the Niagara Peninsula title in the C.O.S.S.A. The local puck entry in the Van Horne Memorial has signed Hewitt, who tended goal for Wally Elmer's junior "Bees" last year, but the St. Louis-Watt-operated sextette is still seeking the whereabouts of Sergt. Laurie Gibson, but with little results.... A number of local football fans are planning to take in the Argo at Ottawa game on Saturday.

Liner Queen Elizabeth Leaves for War Duty

New York, Nov. 13—(AP)—The British liner Queen Elizabeth pushed her 85,000-ton bulk through thrashing, wind-swept seas off the North Atlantic coast today, headed for an unannounced destination and active duty in the war.

A police launch patrolled the Hudson River as the $30,000,000 mistress of the seas left her pier, and another police boat and two Coast Guard vessels escorted the grey-painted vessel until she was out of sight in the rain and fog of the lower bay.

Although oil and provisions had been taken aboard the Elizabeth almost daily for weeks, the first definite indication she soon would leave the harbor where she sought refuge from the dangers of war last March 7 after a secret maiden voyage from the British Isles came when shore leave for her crew of 600 was cancelled this morning.

When the Queen Elizabeth first tied up here, it was thought the still-incompleted luxury liner would remain for the duration of the war. Plans were changed.

British officials declined to indicate where the Elizabeth would make her first call. Members of her crew had thought she might put in at Boston to go into the Eastern United States seaboard's largest drydock for inspection.

Jury Recommends Erection Of Guard Rail Along Bank Where Three Drowned in River

Accidental Death is Verdict Given in Inquest Held at Trenton

SHORT DELIBERATION

Trenton, November 13—After considering for a half-an-hour a coroner's jury returned a verdict of accidential death in the deaths of Mrs. Vera Jackson of Hilton, her daughter Velma and Mrs. Lee McMurter of Brighton. The jury urged that guard rail posts be erected along the river bank at this point.

The three women lost their lives, when their automobile plunged over a 40-foot embankment into 15 feet of water in the Trent River. The car had collided with another automobile driven by Major T. Rupert went out of control and swerved sharply into the river.

Testifying at the inquest, Constable Taylor testified that the accident occurred about a quarter of a mile north of Lock No. I, on highway 33, just inside the town limits. The road at this point was slightly on a grade and with a slight curve.

"When we arrived on the scene the lights of the car in the river were still burning," said Constable Taylor. "Constable Lozo went back to the lock and obtained a boat. Coming back to the scene he hooked a chain around the rear bumper of the car and the two trucks pulled it part way out of the water so that Constable Lozo could get the bodies from the car."

"Major Rupert told me at the scene, that he was the driver of the other car. He appeared quite normal and although there was a strong odor of liquor he was not intoxicated. With him in the car were Second Lieutenant Lloyd Blue and Second Lieutenant J. Kincaid. They were on their way to Madoc, when the accident occurred", said the witness.

Impact Near Centre of Highway

"The two cars collided about in the centre of the highway with the left front fenders and bumpers on each car colliding," said Constable Taylor. "In the collision, the left front tire of the Jackson car blew out and the left front wheel of the car was badly bent making it impossible to control the car. From my investigation, the car swerved sharply to the left after the impact and went directly over the approximate point of impact to the embarkment. The Rupert car lost the left front wheel in the collision and the car went to the west side of the highway, coming to rest on the shoulder of the road about 200 feet from the point of impact."

"The driver of the Jackson car would have no control over the car."

"The point of impact must have been between the glass on the road and the mud spot," testified Constable Taylor. "The glass was about in the centre of the highway, while the mud spot was a trifle to the west of the centre line."

Evidence Corroborated

Constable Lozo corroborated the testimony of Constable Taylor and stated that there was "a strong odor of liquor on Major Rupert but he was not intoxicated."

"Death was due to drowning," testified Dr. Farley who was present at the scene, when the bodies were taken from the water.

Major Rupert testified that the accident occurred after his car had come over a knoll. "The car was on its own side of the road when I first saw it. As it approached it swerved to my side of the road and then back again. I tried to miss it but I couldn't do it. I was travelling about 30 to 40 miles a hour, and the other car would be doing about the same."

"After the collision we went back to see where the car went and found it in the river. Mr. Blue tried to open the door of the car by diving into the water but was unable to do so," said Major Rupert.

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER THIRTEEN.

Precisely one second after the door closed, Captain Hugh North sat up, very suddenly for a man who had been heavily drugged an instant before. He cast a single comprehensive glance about his disordered rooms.

"Nothing amateurish about dear Miss Belknap," he grimly told himself as his eye encountered a neat little mound of talcum dumped into the washstand.

Then he snatched up a golf cap, pulled on a gray panama coat, and donned a pair of amethyst-colored glasses. With the celerity of a leopard, he darted to the door and opened it a crack. She was still there in the hall, humming a little tune while waiting nonchalantly for the arrival of the elevator.

What a perfect actress she was! His respect for her arose. Had she not asked for ginger ale, he never would have thought to watch her reflection in the window glass before which he had paused. Lucky it had so faithfully reflected the brief and significant flicker of her hand towards his highball glass.

A sudden warmth pervaded him. He hadn't been so taken in for years! Why, she had not even asked to have the window closed! Had only pretended to be cold, and her counterfeit of the "companionable" English girl had been flawless. "Now," he whispered to himself, "let's see just where she goes with that slip from the talcum powder box."

Down the corridor sounded the metallic clatter of the elevator doors sliding back, and North watched his visitor step into the car with a pleasant nod to the operator. A split second after the car door closed he was bounding down the corridor towards a fire escape.

Consequently he was out on the sidewalk in plenty of time to observe the spectacled Miss Belknap's exit from the hotel and her entry into a taxi piloted by a shrill-voiced Spaniard. From the shelter of some parked cars he watched her seat herself, after gazing—only perfunctorily—to the left and right; apparently she had no fear of pursuit.

Conscious that the second phase of the great affair was now well under way, North promptly beckoned a grinning Japanese cabby.

"Hey, bochan! Like that girl's looks," said he in quick confidence—"want to see where she lives. Keep along far enough back to avoid suspicion. Do a good job and there's ten dollars in it for you."

"Yes, sir." The Japanese kept expertly out of the direct line of observation.

The cab that contained that singular young woman who had invaded North's room presently turned Ewa side off Nuuanu avenue to speed down Beretania street. North, crouching tensed in the back of his cab, was a little alarmed when the Japanese turned into Maunakea, a street parallel to the infamous Tin Can Alley. Here the street lights revealed the sidewalks crowded with pantalooned Chinese women, babies, and noisily gossiping men. A new smell was in the air, sharply reminiscent of weary old China.

For several minutes North was busy memorizing turns and convenient landmarks when presently the leading car turned into the forbidding confines of River street. Here the air was even more redolent of fish, mud, and Oriental refuse.

Jolting and lurching over badly paved streets, the leading cab headed towards the harbor down a very narrow street. Progress was slow now, and North twice lost sight of the tail light of the leading cab as swarms of shrill, half-clad children darted across the street in play.

Fervently, North recommended caution to himself—this opportunity must be delicately handled . . . if he were killed or disabled who would be left to carry on?

How odd to think that the destiny of great nations might well hinge on what took place during the next half-hour! Come what might, North must get back that dead girl's scroll of paper. . . .

Suddenly the cab swerved to the curb and came to a panting standstill. The cabby looked back.

"See, misser?" he whispered through the window. "There go missie."

Not half a block ahead, the tall, white-clad figure of the pseudo Miss Belknap was disappearing into what looked like the entrance of an alley.

"Good work, bochan," North said, giving the Japanese a ten-dollar bill; then he stepped out and swung briskly along towards where the girl had disappeared.

What he had taken for an alley proved to be the entrance of a gloomy, malodorous little court, hemmed in by buildings fairly teeming with life.

The building into which his visitor vanished proved to be only two stories in height and had but two bells and name cards in sight. One, old, yellowed, and flyblown, read, "Dr. Wellington Chung", and the second, comparatively new, bore three words: "Nina Strassin, Photographs."

Aware of dew which was falling like a fine rain, North briefly considered; then, easing his .32 in its shoulder holster, he cautiously tried the door. Luck was with him, for it gave, and he stood in a darkness which smelled faintly of medicine and disinfectants. Apparenty Dr. Chung occupied the ground floor.

North remained poised, listening. . . . From beyond the green-painted door to his left there came not a sound, and no encouraging thread of light beat under it.

Dared he risk the stairs? He wondered. . . . The false Miss Belknap must be entirely confident that he would sleep until late the next day. Not once had she so much as peered back from her taxi.

As though to decide him, the faintest murmur of voices floated down from above to tell him that Nina Strassin's apartment was not untenanted.

The intelligence captain's nerves were taut. . . . What if the stairs squeaked? Well, it was a risk he must take.

With his heart thudding, North crept upwards until he arrived before a door painted a lacquer red. There he paused listening . . . a sense of deep satisfaction crept over him. Great moments were at hand.

No, there could be no mistaking the voice of the girl he sought; accents which were no longer the bluff, hearty ones of a "companionable" English girl came to him.

"You found him?" he heard a man's gruff voice inquiring in French.

"But yes. You and Wilson misled me, Josef. You made me to think he was the cleverest of the American service. He is charming—" the listener felt a sudden and unaccountable exhilaration as she paused—"yes, very charming, but—but good lord!—not in the least clever."

In the darkness North's lips curved into a brief smile, then he drew from his pocket a peculiarly shaped strip of metal which he deftly and silently inserted into the common door lock. After a minute's delicate manipulation, there sounded the faintest imaginable click and the door yielded.

What would he find inside? He wondered, as, a fraction of an inch at a time, he eased the door open and found himself peering into a small hallway that was lit by a really beautiful Chinese lantern of bronze. Expertly, he studied the vista thus disclosed, and decided that the voices were coming through a door to the left. To the right was what appeared to be a dimly lit library, dominated by a wide desk littered with a small snowstorm of papers. He wondered whether some of them might help him. . . .

North deliberately checked on certain items. There were two more doors down the hall; there was a window open in the library; there was also in that room a closet which stood with its door partially ajar. The .32 automatic was in his hand as he stepped in and found he could hear the red-haired girl's measured tones.

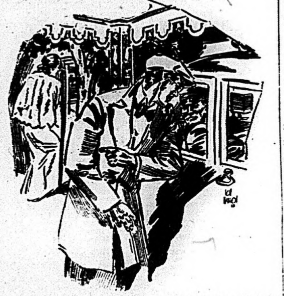
"Mais oui," she was saying. "It worked perfectly. Even better than I dared hope. Not for a moment did this Captain North question my identity—you see? It pays to overlook nothing, not even the hotel telephone girls."

The invisible man sighed gustily. "Bogu, Nadia, had I but half your brains and acting ability, I would be head of the O.G.P.U."

The other laughed, "Some people don't think so, Josef. Captain North, for example."

"Then he is both stupid and ungallant," declared the man.

(To be continued)



North, in hasty disguise, told the Jap cabby, "Like that girl's looks —Want to see where she lives" . . .

Easier Undertone In Butter Prices

Toronto — The Toronto butter market closed nominal with an easier undertone yesterday as buying disappeared in the afternoon session. Prices held steady at previous levels in the morning, when light offerings were kept moving, but buyers withdrew from the market later and prices turned down as some selling pressure became evident. Morning sales were recorded at 30 1-2 cents a pound for No. 1 grade Ontario creamery solids, while no business developed in the afternoon, although the product was offered at 30 1-4 cents, with the odd lot available as low as 30 cents a pound.

Price trends were mixed on the egg market. Continued cautious buying weakened quotations on top grades, but the undergrades moved higher under good demand. Receipts of fresh eggs remained light and a premium of 1 cent a dozen was reported on the Government inspected graded shipments.

Montreal Produce

Montreal, Nov. 13—Produce market prices here, as reported by the Dominion Department of Agriculture, follow:

Butter—First grade creamery prints, jobbing price, 31c to 31 1-2c; first grade solids, jobbing price 30 1-2c to 31c.

Eggs — Graded shipment in used free cases, selling price, A-large 47c to 48c; A-medium, 42c to 43c; A-pullets, 35c; B-large, original, 28 1-2c to 29c; B, 27c to 27 1-2c; C, 21c. Receipts, 272 cases.

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

British forces finally have found the Italian Fleet and crippled it, but it took aircraft, not ships, to do the job.

Mussolini's battleships which have studiously avoided coming in contact with the British Mediterranean Fleet were found yesterday "snuggling behind their shore defences," in the words of the Admiralty. They were holed in at the Taranto naval base where British planes bombed them.

At least two and possibly three Italian battleships were smashed along with two cruisers and two auxiliaries. The battleships were among the world's most powerful.

Mussolini's Griefs Many

Mussolini's griefs, it seems, come not singly but in battalions. His troops on the Albanian frontier apparently are trying still to reform and stem the Greek thrust which routed them after their brief advance in the first days of the Balkan War. Additional Italian troops fell into Greek hands and the amount of military equipment the Greeks seized has not yet been counted.

The Admiralty did not identify the aircraft which bombed Taranto, but since it and not the Air Ministry made the announcement it was assumed they were planes of the Fleet Air arm, possibly flown off the decks of the aircraft carrier Ark Royal which has been cruising in the Mediterranean.

Naval Blow at Axis Sweet Revenge

The Naval blow at the Axis was sweet revenge for the sinking by a German commerce raider of the lightly armed British merchant cruiser Jervis Bay. The Jervis Bay went down in the Atlantic after fighting the raider for two hours which allowed most of its convoy of 38 merchantmen to escape.

Sixty-five members of the crew were taken into an East Coast Canadian port by a Swedish vessel whose skipper put about and returned to the scene after five hours because, he said: "They did so well for us that I did not like to leave them."

Losses No Help to Diplomacy

Loss of the Italian ships seemed not likely to do Axis diplomacy any good, either. The aggressors carry out much of their diplomatic moves by threats, but the more blows they suffer at the hands of the Allies the less effective their threats are likely to be. No one is frightened of a man who is being beaten up.

The crippling of half the main striking power of the Italian Navy may have a weakening effect on their Libyan Army which has remained practically immobile on the edge of the Egyptian desert for weeks. The ships were seldom seen and were notably shy when they were seen, but they were a potential menace in that they could be used to escort troop and supply ships to North Africa.

By their very existence they constituted a danger, because there was always a possibility that the timid Italian Naval Command might be bolstered by bolder German talent, talent whose boldness might be accentuated by the fact it would be using somebody else's ships.

Foggy Statements at Berlin

Some foggy statements came out of Berlin today on progress of conversations between Russian Premier Molotoff and German Big-Wigs, but the amount of scurrying around Molotoff was doing did not indicate that they were by any means cut and dried.

ROAD TO VICTORY

Policy is Outlined

"That is the policy we have followed from the beginning, the policy that we are pursuing today and the policy we intend to pursue so long as we are responsible for the administration of Canada's war effort," he said.

Mr. King's statement on defence policy was in reply to a remark made only a few hours before in the same House by Mr. Hanson: "For us, aid in the defence of Britain should be our first objective; the defence of our beloved country will follow.".

Mr. Hanson also had questioned the effectiveness of the administration policies and urged creation of a committee which would examine the ministers responsible on details of the war effort from the standpoint of military participation and supply of munitions.

M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F. Rosetown-Biggar), as acting House leader of his group, followed Mr. King but had not completed his speech at adjournment.

He said present policies of the government were "delivering Canada more completely into the hands of those who already monopolize our economic life."

Mr. Coldwel declared the country had no right to ask men to "surrender themselves" for armed service unless industry and financial institutions were asked to make equal sacrifice.

Each of the three speakers read the main part of his speech. Mr. Hanson spoke 2 1-4 hours, the Prime Minister 2 3-4 hours and Mr. Coldwell only 30 of the 40 minutes alloted him under rules of the House.

No Interruptions

There was little animation in the chamber which was well filled with members. Galleries were scarcely more than half filled. There were virtually no interruptions and little applause.

Mr. Coldwell will conclude his address today, followed by John Blackmore, leader of the New Democracy group and Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Minister of Agriculture and National War Services.

Mr. Hanson ranged over a wide field in his discussion of the government's record. He urged that all parties and major private interests should be represented at the Dominion - Provincial Conference called for mid-January to consider implementation of recommendations made by the Rowell-Sirois Royal Commission.

The Opposition Leader said the government should make a personal appeal to Premier Eamon De Valera of Eire to "lease to Canada for the duration of the war" bases from which Empire naval and air force units could operate.

The Prime Minister urged upon all in the House and outside it the desirability of restraint in comments on the actions of other nations, particularly Japan.

He spoke of France and declared the mission of Canada, as a country which was French as well as British, should be to uphold "the traditions of French culture and civilization, and the French passion for liberty in the world."

Given Intimate Picture

Giving an intimate picture of Canadian-United States co-operation for defence, which was initiated he said, at conferences with President Roosevelt in 1937, Mr. King declared that "in the midst of darkness which today enshrouds mankind, the relations between the United States and the British Commonwealth shine forth as the one great beam of hopeful light left in the world".

The Canadian-American defence agreement was "no temporary Axis". In reality, it marked the "full blossoming of a long association in harmony between the people of Canada and the United States".

Speaking of British-Canadian-United States co-operation from the point of view of the whole British Commonwealth, the Prime Minister said that "in ultimate importance, it far surpasses the formation of the Triple Axis —the accord between Germany, Italy and Japan.

Mr. Coldwell in his speech said the C.C.F. members welcome the new session of parliament, believing as they did that parliament should not prorogue or adjourn during the war for more than ninety days at at any time.

"It is a sad commentary on the Prime Minister's profession of democracy that he has treated parliament with scant consideration since the outbreak of the war", he said.

Although the Prime Minister had given assurance at the August adjournment that parliament actually would meet again November 5, announcement had been carried in the press later that the Nov 5 meeting would be a mere formality.

Still a Free Parliament

"This is still a free parliament and not a Fascist Grand Council or Nazi Reichstag to be assembled and dismissed at the will of any member of this House, no matter how high the office he may occupy," he said.

"Since France had fallen completely under the domination of the dictators, he wondered what Canada's relationship now was to the Vichy government whose decrees were "obviously dictated by its Nazi masters." This raised the question of the position of the French Embassy in Ottawa, enjoying all the priviliges of diplomatic immunity.

Recently Maj.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, Chief of the General Staff, had been making speeches across Canada emphasizing the need of intensifying efforts "towards the complete provision of armaments for our men in uniform."

The C.C.F. had held for more than a year that Canada's most effective contribution in this war ought to be by national organization of industry to operate without profit.

The National Resources Mobilization Act so far had been used only to mobilize men but it should first have been used to mobilize industry for an efficient war effort, he contended.

Reliance on private enterprise almost lost the last war and blocked the manufacture of certain war supplies in Canada for the first eight months of this war.

"It was not until a new government in Britain revolutionized the control of her war effort that the picture began to change. Yet in Canada, under the policies favored by the Department of Munitions and Supply, this country is being delivered more completely into the hands of those who already monopolize our economic life, he said.

"Indeed, I will go a step farther and say that it would appear that government-owned institutions are being sacrificed in the interests of private corporations."

The success of the war effort in Britain in the last six months was due to the fact labor was organized and its power was demonstrated in the highest councils of the nation. In Canada employers thwarted attempts to organize with impunity. Even the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation did it.

Complains of Radio.

Mr. Coldwell complained that only members of the government or officials who praised them were invited to take part in radio discussions of current matters. Reports of internal conditions in C.B.C. indicated the need of a parliamentary airing of the whole situation.

Mr. Hanson, earlier, advocated extending the compulsory training period from 30 days to at least four months, and then attaching all training men to units in the non-permanent active militia for further training.

He recognized there were difficulties of lack of equipment which hindered more advanced training and the thirty day program was good as far as it went. However, a small well-trained and well-equipped army was more to be desired than a huge army of poorly trained men.

He urged the government to tell the people of Canada the actual state of its war program. They had had so many conflicting reports, so much partisan propaganda from governments, that they did not know what to believe.

Journalists Visit Canada

"It will be recalled that a large number of eminent journalists from the neighboring republic were invited to visit Canada in September last", said Mr. Hanson. "I believe that the Canadian government was the host and that the arrangements were consummated and carried through under the auspices of The Canadian Press.

"In any event these gentlemen came to Canada. They were taken to see everything their conductors wanted them to see. Presumably they were told everything their conductors wanted them to hear. Cetrainly I have the right to assume that, and certainly I have the right to assume that they were not shown or told anything that would be detrimental to the prestige of the government. That was not the idea at all; that never was contemplated. Mr. Rupert Davies, head of The Canadian Press, would see to that.

"They were shown and told of the best of Canada's war effort. They went home, and early in October write their impressions and ideas in their own way, and I judge without any censorship. They do not make pleasant reading. Frankly I was greatly disillusioned. I did not have an opportunity of studying all they reported, but some of their reports rather made my heart sick.

Not All Adverse

"I suppose the most outstanding military expert among them was Mr. Baldwin of the New York Times, a newspaper which in my view ranks as high as any other journal in the world, if not higher. His report appeared in the New York Times of October 1, and the headlines themselves are disheartening:

"War effort peak in Canada a year off—Dominion expected to become major factor in conflict late in 1941—Bottlenecks in skilled labor, Machine tools and plane engines revealed."

"How does that gibe with what we were told in the months of July and August, when parliament was in session? Particularly how does it gibe with what Canada has been told by Ministers and others after parliament had adjourned? I am glad to think that Mr. Baldwin's comments and reflections were not all adverse; far from it."

Prime Minister Replies

In reply Mr. King said:

"My honorable friend quoted from a statement made by Mr. Hanson W. Baldwin, the military critic of The New York Times . . .

"My honorable friend has chosen a few paragraphs from such an article and has cited these as the reason for changing his mind about the necessity of having parliament meet earlier than it otherwise would . . .

"Bottlenecks and shortages and such things are among the inevitable events of war. No country has escaped them. The fact that there should be here and there limitations in our war effort is inevitable. The change from a peace-time economy to one of war is a tremendous thing, it takes time . . . What my honorable friend did not stress is what after all was the real opinion of Mr. Baldwin, as those who talked with him well know, one of tremendous admiration for the war effort of this country and tremendous appreciation of the speed with which it had been carried on . . .

"We stated at the outset that if we simply wished to win the first battle we might have put all our forces in—that is what we were more or less advised to do, hurry up, get multitudes of men to the other side, no matter how, get them over—you might win the first battle but you would lose the war by that method.

"On the other hand by careful planning, by avoiding mistakes at the outset by taking a long-range view instead of a narrow view I believe this country today in the eyes of the world is seen as the great force that is coming forward to do what the British Government itself said we would do if we put long-range plans into force, namely, make what would be the decisive effort for victory towards the end."

Fruits and Jams Need Careful Packaging for Shipment to Troops

Fruits, vegetables and jams for troops overseas will not be accepted for mailing unless they are properly packed, Hon. William P. Mulock, postmaster-general, has announced. Complaints have reached Ottawa from the Canadian Postal Corps of packages arriving containing decayed fruit and broken bottles. Other mail has been damaged by the sticky substance.

While parcel post "is not the proper medium for the shipment of fruits and vegetables overseas", those using the service should never include such commodities in a parcel with other articles he said. They should be carefully wrapped and put in tin boxes. As a further safeguard, dip each article in wax before wrapping in layers of thick paper, with an additional wrapping of fabric.

Customs declarations should accompany each parcel, which should be correctly addressed and prepared. The address of the sender should be included.

British Communique

London, Nov. 13 (CP).—The Admiralty issued the following communique Wednesday:

"It has now been established that during the enemy air attack on one of our convoys in the North Sea on Nov. 11, H.M.S. Vimiera shot down two Junkers 88 aircraft into the sea.

"These are in addition to the enemy aircraft reported in yesterday's Admiralty communique as shot down during this attack on the convoy. Thus the losses inflicted on enemy aircraft by anti-aircraft guns of his Majesty's ships during this attack amount to five aircraft certainly shot down and two damaged. These enemy losses are in addition to those announced by the Air Ministry."

JERVIS BAY

did she do her job before meeting her inevitable end that at least 29 of the 38 merchantmen managed to put themselves out of range of the enemy guns.

But the heroes weren't all on the naval vessel, for the ship that brought the survivors into harbor late yesterday, a dingy Swedish freighter that had been in the convoy, had braved the Nazi gunfire also to return to the scene of the one-sided battle and pick up the Jervis Bay's men as they drifted in a lifeboat and three rafts.

Swedish Captain Saluted

For this, the Royal Navy men saluted Capt. Sven Olander. "It was magnificent," said one. "The captain of the Swedish ship was a hero worthy of the sea traditions of his great nation."

And Capt. Olander, who took his ship into danger because "they did so well for us that I didn't like to leave," returned the tribute. "It was glorious," he said fervently. "Never will I forget the gallantry of that British captain sailing forward to meet the enemy."

For that was the way the old Jervis Bay sailed. Straight into the maw of the German's guns, the Union Jack aflutter, guns belching their impotent fire, British tars meeting the old challenge "I think everybody aboard was proud as our ship turned to the enemy," said the senior officer among the survivors. "Our captain knew just what we were going to get, but it didn't matter."

Captain Stays on Bridge

For Irish-born Capt. Fogarty Fegan, the order to join combat was his last. Badly wounded, he was on his bridge as the 14,000-ton Jervis Bay, her last salvo fired, her super-structure aflame and her hull gashed below the waterline, settled down by the stern.

The survivor officer declared the vessel fought a "very lengthy action" considering the top-heavy odds against her. Whether she had made hits upon the enemy—reported previously as a ship of the pocket battleship class—was not evident to the toiling men on the cruiser.

She assisted in the escape of the convoy vessels by throwing overboard smoke floats as she steamed between her charges and the raider to join battle. The merchant vessels were bound for Britain from an East Coast Canadian port.

Gear Out of Commission

Early in the engagement, the Jervis Bay was hit. Her steering gear was put out of commission, her fore and after bridges were shattered, and her forward guns put out of action. But she continued to fight every available gun and to manoeuvre as best she could with crippled steering facilities until there was nothing left but to abandon ship.

Even in her death throes, there was no letup in the hail of metal pouring on the ship. The Nazis switched to shrapnel exploded by time fuses in an attempt to butcher the now helpless seamen as they climbed into the boats.

Five minutes after the abandoning, the Nazi left the Jervis Bay to her fate and went after the convoy vessels. "She fired on the other ships until well into the night," the officer said. Star shells were used to light up the sea.

The Swedish captain said he thought he saw five freighters being hit. He also believed the passenger liner Rangitiki, which subsequently reached port safely, had been struck by a badly-directly shot aimed at the Jervis Bay.

Survivors of 4 Ships Land

St. John's, Nfld., Nov. 13 (CP Cable)—Survivors of four ships sunk by a Nazi raider were brought to a Newfoundland port today aboard a vessel which picked up their lifeboats after they had been tossed about the Atlantic for more than 36 hours.

Four of the 20 men aboard the rescue ship were taken to hospital but three of these were discharged after an examination. The fourth had a broken leg.

The survivors said the attacks on their ships were made at night by a large ship with heavy guns whose fire was described as "deadly accurate." The raider's methods was first to disable the steering geer and then to finish off her prey at close range.

None of the ships was identified.

After they had taken to the boats, the survivors said, they encountered heavy weather. Only limited quantities of food and water were in the lifeboats and their occupants were for the most part little clothed against the cold and bad weather. They described their experience as a "wretched time."

One boat from each ship lost still is missing but it was believed possible other ships might have picked them up.

MOLOTOFF MEETS

a long-range program of German-Russian co-operation. Informants declared both German and Russian speakers at the dinner given Molotoff last night emphasized the friendly nature of relations between the two nations.

The avenue leading from the Bellevue palace, where Molotoff is staying, to the Chancellery was guarded closely by police as the Russian statesman was escorted to his second day of conferences with Nazi officials.

An unusual sight to Berliners was the number of plain-clothesmen.

A curious crowd was gathered in front of the Chancellery.

After talking for some time with Goering, Molotoff had a short meeting with Deputy Nazi leader Hess. Additional talks were scheduled for tomorrow—chiefly with Von Ribbontrop.

Will See Hess

Nazi expected the Russian, in his conferences, also would see Deputy Nazi Leader Hess.

Hitler and his Russian visitor, Nazis said, are "bent on building far-reaching co-operation for the future," in addition to dealing with "current problems."

(In Tokyo, the press claimed that further German-Russian co-operation inevitably would weaken what it called the Britain-dominated "old order."

(In Istanbul, the Turkish press took the view that the Berlin talks held the key to the future of the Balkans and the Near East. Some commentators speculated that Germany might be seeking Russian approval "before violating Bulgaria or Yugoslavia in order to crush Greece.")

It was expected he would meet again with Hitler and Foreign Minister Ribbentrop with whom he talked at length yesterday, while his staff of 33 experts explores special problems with Nazi department heads.

Talks Followed by Banquet

Molotoff's two and one-half hour talk with Hitler late yesterday afternoon was followed by approximately 200 German and Russian dignitaries. No foreign diplomats were invited.

Official circles maintained silence on the nature of the discussions between Hitler and Molotoff. The press limited itself to generalities and the German public—like the rest of the world—was completely in the dark concerning what had taken place behind the Chancellery's closed doors.

Some commentators viewed Molotoff's visit as a diplomatic manoeuvre of economic, rather than military, importance.

The usually well-informed Dienst Aus Deutschland expressed belief the meeting "again reflects the conviction that the weight of German-Russian relations is not so much in improving the strategic situation of Germany in the war against England as in its efficacy as an element in final arrangements for peace.

SWEDISH CAPTAIN

here yesterday. "But I think I was just as safe at that spot," he said with a wise twinkle in his eye. "Wouldn't you expect the enemy to be somewhere else by then?"

"But they did so well for us that I did not like to leave," the skipper said. "What they did was glorious. I will never forget it."

The captain, alternately chewing on and waving a fat cigar, told the story of the battle, as he saw it from the deck of his little freighter. He was in the eastbound convoy as the enemy raider came up on the port horizon.

Saw Enemy Coming

"But I didn't see him right away," he recalled. "We saw the crews manning the guns on the Jervis Bay, but my officers thought it was just exercises. I said, 'Yes, maybe so, but I feel sort of funny.'"

"Then we saw the enemy," he related. "He looked like a pocket battleship. As soon as I saw him—B-a-n-g! The first shot of the battle exploded right over us.

"Pieces of metal fell on my ship's deck, but none of us was hurt. We were about 600 yards from the Jervis Bay. The second shot missed him, too, and hit the Rangitiki instead. The third salvo hit the Jervis Bay."

But while the shells were flying, the Jervis Bay was busy. She dashed out between the convoy and the raider, swiftly laid down a smoke screen for her charges "and went full speed against the battleship."

Received Orders to Scatter

"We got the order to scatter," the captain went on, "and I turned my ship away. After awhile, I called my officers to the bridge and asked them what they thought we should do.

"My opinion was that we should go back and do what we could for those seamen who put up such a wonderful fight for us. We did that.

"We had no trouble finding them. When we came near, they shone their flashlights. We took the officers and men out of the lifeboat and then manned it with five of our men to take the sailors off the rafts. Thirty of the men were on one raft. We took aboard all the survivors in two trips.

GREEK ARMIES

The Greeks took advantage of the lull to strengthen their lines. Snow and rain made conditions in the mountains difficult.

Italian Prisoners Reach Athens

Last night 500 Italian prisoners arrived in Athens.

A high command communique said: "The number of Italians taken prisoner in Epirus is increasing," and included "wounded abandoned by the enemy."

One company of Albanian troops, officers and all, was said to have surrendered as Greek forces pressed forward in most places to their own frontier, which Italians crossed from Albania 17 days ago.

The Greek advance was reported to have thrust the Fascist invasion divisions back into Albania, except for a shallow salient in Epirus, near the coast.

Greeks said their own counter-wedge into Albania, at the northern end of the front, was defended successfully despite Italian "reconnaissance raids" against Greek-held heights around Koritza.

A Ministry of Home Security communique said a town in Epirus and another in western Macedonia were bombed yesterday by Italian planes with some civilian casualties.

Italian Flags Seized

The Greeks continued to add to their war stores equipment found abandoned by Italian troops driven back to Albania. The high command said 75-millimetre guns, many howitzers and much other equipment, together with the flags of some of the Italian units, had been seized.

(Dispatches to Jerusalem from Beirut last night said French authorities under rule of the Vichy administration had refused to permit 3,000 Greeks of military age to leave the mandated territories of Syria and Lebanon to help defend their homeland.)

PREMIER HEPBURN REFUSES GUEST TICKETS!

When offered official guest box tickets to the Motion Picture War Services Rodeo, in aid of the Lord Mayor of London's Air Raid Victims Fund, to be held in the Coliseum, Toronto, on November 14th., 15th., and 16th., Premier Hepburn insisted instead in buying them from the Queen's Park War Services Guild. Ashes of Former Prime Minister Buried in Nave of Historic Abbey

London, Nov. 14.—(CP)—The ashes of former Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain were buried today beneath the grey stone floor of the nave of Westminster Abbey resting place of many of Britain's historic figures.

At the close of the 40-minute Anglican service, Mrs. Chamberlain, heavily veiled, knelt on the floor, took chrysanthemum petals from her handbag and dropped them into the two-foot square, purple-lined crypt.

Prime Minister Churchill, clad in a long black coat with an astrakhan collar, stood intent among the Cabinet Ministers throughout the service at the graveside.

The Duke of Gloucester represented the royal family. Mrs. Chamberlain curtsied when he shook hands and murmured his sympathies.

The Archbishop of Canterbury offered the final prayer.

Many present were in uniform.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

Climate of Greece! The climate of Greece varies from a marine climate along its coast to an intenser form inland. Generally, the summers are long and dry with cloudless skies. The noted Etesian winds blow from the north in summer bringing welcome relief from the heat. The summer storms are noted: skies are clear and the ocean a deep blue adorned here and there with white foam. As fall approaches cloudiness increases and snow may appear on the mountain tops late in October. Winters are mild on the whole but occasionally there are days with biting northerly winds. At Athens the mean summer temperature is 79 degrees, and the winter mean is 50 degrees: the yearly rainfall is about 15 inches.

PLANES, FINANCE, SHIPS NEEDED BY U.K. SAYS LOTHIAN

In Message to U.S. Says Next Year of War as Dangerous to All as Past Year

ENROUTE TO POST

London, Nov. 14 —(CP)— The Marquess of Lothian, British Ambassador to the United States, is enroute from London to Lisbon, where he is expected to meet Sir Samuel Hoare, British Ambassador to Spain.

In a message broadcast to the United States last night from London, Lord Lothian, who is on his way back to Washington, said Britain needs "planes, finance and ships if we are to be sure of defeating the Nazi threat to liberty."

"The next year of the war may be as dangerous, perhaps more dangerous, both to us and to you than the last," he added. "Without adequate assistance from you in the three spheres that I have described, we cannot be sure of victory."

The Ambassador expressed his nation's thanks to the United States for the aid already given.

Raids on Taranto Carried Out Under Moonlight

(By Larry Allen, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Aboard a battleship of the British Mediterranean Fleet Off Taranto, Nov. 14—(AP) — Navy bombing planes swooped in the moonlight into the heart of Taranto's inner defences Monday night flinging torpedoes and high-explosive bombs at sides and decks of warships, and the pilots said they left one great battleship aflame and two others beached or half submerged.

Sheets of flame leaped from the 35,000-ton Littorio, which the Italians have called the fastest warship in the world.

Pilots said fires burst from the other damaged battleships both of the 23,622-ton Cavour class.

DEFENCE FIGHTERS TURN BACK TWO NAZI FORMATIONS

The Few Planes Which Reached Edge of London Area Turned Back Without Dropping Bombs

Watchers View Nazi Plane Shot Down in Flames by A. A. Fire

London, Nov. 14 (CP)—Royal Air Force fighting planes roared to battle off the southeast coast today and shot down 13 German dive bombers and one fighter seeking to cross the Channel for daylight raids on Britain.

In all 15 enemy planes were destroyed, the Air Ministry said.

Two light formations of Nazi planes tried to attack London but were repelled by defence fighters before they could reach the capital proper.

A few planes which reached the edge of the London area headed home without dropping bombs.

The Royal Air Force reported it cleared the skies in less than half an hour.

Hitler Charges 'England Capitalistic'

Berlin, Nov. 14—(AP) — Hitler, addressing munitions workers and army labor groups today, said it is "a plutocratic, capitalistic England" dominated by "anti-social tendencies" that is waging war against "the German socialistic state."

"This struggle is being carried on, not only by German soldiers, who are the best in the world," said Hitler, "but also by many millions of workers in German factories and armament plants."

He declared the workers had given the soldiers the best weapons so that "sacrifice could be held to the minimum."

He asserted that the modern German state was "established on the firmest and strongest foundation possible."

MOULTON REPRIEVED

Guelph, Ont., Nov. 14—(CP)—William Moulton, Stratford, convicted here Sept. 13 of the murder of Pte. Arthur Phillips, Perth regiment, C.A.S.F., and who was sentenced to hang Nov. 19, has been granted a reprieve, Sheriff H. C. Waind announced today.

The announcement said an official communication has been received here from the Under-Secretary of State, advising Sheriff Waind that Moulton's sentence has been commuted to one of life imprisonment in Kingston Penitentiary.

'Am Closing Up Closer to Enemy' Last Radio Message of Jervis Bay

An East Coast Canadian Port, Nov. 14.—(CP)—How the armed merchant cruiser Jervis Bay made a suicide stand against a powerful armed enemy raider was told and retold in this port today as 65 survivors of the battle rested here after the ordeal.

In order to save her convoy of 38 ships, the Jervis Bay matched her puny weapons against the big guns of the raider, at the same time laying down a smoke screen to enable the ships loaded with cargoes for Britain to fan out and escape.

"It was magnificent fight all the way through", recounted Leading Stoker George Beaman of Halifax, a survivor who drifted on a life raft for nine hours before he was rescued by the Swedish merchantman, the Stureholm, a member of the convoy.

The last wireless message by Captain Forgarty Fegan of the Jervis Bay was a fitting epitaph for a British naval man. "Am closing up closer to the enemy", he radioed the convoy.

In 15 minutes his brave ship was helpless" and in something more than 70 minutes she had to be abandoned, "an inferno, fore and aft".

One arm shot away, Captain Forgarty went down with his ship.

The Master of the Stureholm, stocky Captain Sven Olander, "did not have the heart" to leave the men of the Jervis Bay in the water and although safely on his way back to Canada due to the action of the armed merchantman, he turned about to pick them up.

"By jove", said one of the rescued ratings, "that Swede was a Godsend"!

It is now known that at least thirty of the thirty-eight ships in the convoy are safe. But for the action of the Jervis Bay, many would never have docked with supplies for Britain again.

20,000 of Italy's Finest Mountaineer Troops Cut To Bits by 2,000 Greeks

By MAX HARRELSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Athens, Nov. 14 (AP).—Some 20,000 of Italy's finest mountaineer troops who marched gaily into Greece on Oct. 28 were cut to pieces and routed by a comparative handful of 2,000 Greeks in an eight-day battle which began on the 30th, a wounded Greek captain declared today.

The captain, 37-year-old Panos Kyriakou, propped up in a hospital bed to tell his Homeric tale, said his men toiled 54 miles through the Pindus mountains in a continual downpour of rain for two days to make victorious contact with the invaders.

The Italians were caught flat-footed, he said, and from that moment the story was one of deadly Greek bayonet charges up craggy slopes, of close-quarter combats with rifles and machine-guns in ravines and passes, and of a panicky Italian retreat.

On Nov. 6, Greek reinforcements took over the job and the weary 2,000 got a rest.

Captain's Account of Battle.

Here is Captain Kyriakou's account of the savage battle:

"The encounter took place on Oct. 30 in the early morning on Mount Goumari, a peak 5,900 feet high, west of Mount Smolika and six kilometres (about 3¾ miles) northeast of the town of Samarini.

"The Italian forces consisted of the third Alpini Division, two battalions of Bersaglieri, two battalions of Grenadiers, and two independent companies, supported by mountain artillery, 19 Howitzers, 12 machine-guns to each battalion, automatic rifles and a multitude of other equipment of all descriptions.

"The Italians were taken completely by surprise.

"They were marching in four columns of three battalions each. As soon as the fight began the first machine-gun bursts were fired, the Italians were thrown back and start-

FRENCH COLONY OF INDO-CHINA IN GRAVE DANGER

Foreign Circles Believe Japan Preparing for Another Move

STRENGTHEN FORCES

(By Clark Lee)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Shanghai, Nov. 14 — (AP)—Foreign circles expressed belief today that Japan was preparing for another move in the near future against French Indo-China, possibly ending the shaky sovereignty of that French colony.

Chinese newspapers contended Japan was aiming at permanent occupation of all French Indo-China.

Chinese reported new Japanese demands on the colony included the right to land troops at the southern port of Saigon, circulation of Japanese military yen throughout the country an d"loans" of 500,000 Indo-China dollars a month to finance exports to Japan.

Foreign sources lacked information whether such demands actually had been presented but said current developments did point to another Japanese move against Indo-China in the near future.

Expulsion of French-Speaking Residents From Lorraine Protested by Vichy Gov't

Vichy, France, Nov. 14 —(AP)—The Vichy Government announced today it had protested to the German Armistice Commission concerning the expulsion of French-speaking residents from the province of Lorraine.

A communique, issued after a cabinet meeting, declared the Germans had given French-speaking Lorraine residents the choice of being expelled to Poland or France.

Since all chose France, the communique declared, the residents were being transferred into the unoccupied zone of France at the rate of seven trains daily.

The Germans were accused of telling the Lorrainers that the action was being taken as the result of an alleged accord between Vichy and Berlin.

Formal Denial Issued

"The government issues a most formal denial of this allegation." the communique said.

Vice-Premier Pierre Laval, who returned to Vichy this morning at Chief of State Philippe Petain's request, gave the government a first hand account of conditions in the German-occupied zone—of which Lorraine is a part.

The population transfers from Lorraine to the unoccupied zone were said to have begun Nov. 11

After denying that the French were in accord with the Germans on the transfers, the communique said there never had been any question of measures of this kind in recent French-German conversations.

"As concerns the fact of the expulsion, the French Govrnment protests to the German Armistice Commission," the communique said.

Laval's return, interrupting negotiations with German authorities in Paris, was regarded here as abrupt. Political observers expressed surprise, since he had not been expected before Saturday at the earliest.

The urgency of the Cabinet meeting was shown by the early hour at which it was called. Advance in-

GREEKS DRIVING A NEW SALIENT IN ITALIAN LINES

Considerable Number of Italian Planes Destroyed on the Ground

Athens, Nov. 14 (AP)—The Italians were reported today to be withdrawing large numbers of troops from the Yugoslav frontier and speeding them to southern Albania in an attempt to halt the Greek advance in that sector.

The shift in the Italian troops was regarded as an indication not only that the Italians are on the defensive but that the British and Greek air attacks on the Italian naval base at Taranto and other Italian and Albanian bases had held up the transport of re-inforcements from the Italian mainland.

Counter-attacking Greek forces were reported to have driven a new salient into the centre of the sagging Italian lines. Mopping up operations were proceeding further south in territory abandoned by the Italian right wing.

Advices from the front said the Greeks were now in a position to dominate the important road leading southwestward from Koritza.

A dispatch from Ioannina said that the Greeks not only were systematically penetrating Albanian territory but were seriously threatening vital Italian communication lines and that an Italian retreat "on a major scale" could be expected.

A brief announcement by the high command said that Greek troops had occupied new hill positions on Albanian soil in the Pindus Mountain region, but did not indicate the depth of the penetration.

In the Epirus sector, flanked by the Ionian Sea, where the Italians had pushed some distance into Greek territory in the early stages of the 18-day-old war, the Greeks were said to be moving rapidly forward.

President Refuses Resignation of His Ambassador

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—William C. Bullitt announced today that President Roosevelt had declined to accept his resignation as Ambassador to France.

Bullitt, in a statement, said he had believed he could be of more service to the country if he were free to write and speak without restrictions of public office.

The statement said the President, however, expressed a wish that Bullitt should not resign.

Still open, however, was the question of whether he would return to France or be assigned to some other diplomatic post such as London, in connection with which his name has been mentioned.

It was believed in well-informed quarters that Bullitt was not likely to be sent to Vichy, capital of non-occupied France.

Taranto Harbor and Docks Attacked by RAF Bombers

London, Nov. 14.— (CP)— From hard-hit Taranto, at the tip of Italy, to Berlin, the Royal Air force's bombers struck last night, pressing home the offensive which has crippled half of Mussolini's battleships and given the Empire's combined sea-air power prestige throughout the world.

At Taranto, where three battleships and four other warcraft of Italy's hoarded battle fleet were reported crippled by naval torpedo planes flying in from aircraft carriers Monday night, planes of the R.A.F. bomber command followed up. The Ministry of Information said that they successfully attacked both harbor and docks, and that all returned to their base (perhaps Malta or Crete).

Berlin, Nov. 14 —(AP)— A communique issued at the close of Soviet Premier-Foreign Commisar Byacheslaff Molotoff's visit to Berlin today said Germany and Soviet Russia were of a single mind "on all important questions of interest" to them.

Molotoff and his retinue left Berlin at 11 a.m. (5 a.m. EDT) after two days of conferences with Hitler and other Nazi leaders.

The communique issued soon after his departure said:—

"During his visit to Berlin on Nov. 12-13, 1940, Chairman of the People's Council and Foreign Minister Molotoff had talks with the Fuehrer and Reichs Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop.

SEARCHERS HUNT SHORELINE FOR MISSING BODIES

Hope Abandoned for Finding Alive Any of 67 Seamen Aboard Two Freighters Which Foundered

18 ALREADY FOUND

Ludington, Mich., Nov. 14 (AP)—Searchers patrolled the shore-line in this area today for additional bodies of victims believed to have perished in Monday night's Lake Michigan gale which veteran navigators declared the worst in many years.

Hope was virtually abandoned of finding alive any of the 67 seamen aboard two large lake freighters and two fishing tugs presumed to have foundered in the stormy waters.

Thus far bodies of 18 sailors—16 from the crew of the 7,200-ton William B. Davock of Cleveland, the 4,200-ton grain carrier Anna C. Minch of Sarnia, Ont., and two cooks from the Canadian pulpwood carrier Novadoc—have washed ashore along with bits of wreckage.

Coast Guardsmen expressed belief that the lake, whipped into a fury by high winds Monday night and Tuesday, might hold forever the secret of the fate of the four vessels and the men known to have been aboard.

If the vessels foundered unexpectedly crew members on duty inside the cabins would have been trapped and only the bodies of deck hands would be recovered. Guardsmen said.

Smashing of Italian Fleet Britain's Answer to Axis That 'Democracy is Decadent'

First Lord of Admiralty Also Says Action at Taranto is Fulfilment of Promise to Greece

BLACK WEEK FOR DUCE

London, Nov. 14.—(CP Cable)—The balance of world sea power was "decisively altered" by the Taranto action, A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, said Wednesday night in a broadcast.

Declaring that this is the "most important week in the history of naval operations of this war", Mr. Alexander said that the Taranto action, in which aircraft of the fleet air arm surprised and bombed the Italian battle fleet, "provides a clear answer to repeated assertions of the Nazis and their supporter that democracy is decadent."

"The results which flow from the action at Taranto must be far reaching. It is not only that the situation in the Mediterranean has been transformed in a single, swift naval action, but the balance of sea power throughout the oceans of the world is decisively altered".

Germany's surface ships have not always avoided action with British craft, the First Lord said, but the results have been such that the Nazis have been forced to place some reliance in the Italian fleet.

"What is the condition of that fleet today?" the First Lord exclaimed. "It would be interesting to know the comments of the German admiralty".

Referring to the British promise to do all possible to aid Greece, Mr. Alexander said: "Here at Tar-

STORES OPEN EVENINGS FROM DECEMBER 16

At a recent meeting of the Retail Merchants' Association, it was proposed to have the stores open in the evening for Christmas shopping on Monday, December 16th. This plan will continue until Christmas eve and will allow all residents plenty of time to make their selections.

Contrary to the general belief, the Santa Claus parade to be staged on Saturday, December 7, is not sponsored by the Retail Merchants but is a community enterprise with everyone being invited to lend a helping hand, so that Belleville and district can be advertised. Morley Wyman, manager of Zellers Limited has been appointed chairman for the parade and he is surrounded by an energetic band of officials which include, Honorary President His Worship, Mayor Glencoe E. Thompson, Vice Chairman, W. B. Lattimer, J. E. Logan, T. E. Ford, Finance, J. G. Galloway, Treasurer, C. L. Jewell, Publicity, G. M. Cootes, Bands, Fred Jobson, Parade Personnel, T. K. Christ Church Men's Club Enjoy Varied Program

The regular weekly meeting of the Christ Church Men's Club on Tuesday evening took the form of a "Smoker" and proved quite the most enjoyable evening of the present season. The enthusiastic applause which greeted each number on the program indicated wholehearted appreciation of the large number of the members of the club, and their friends who were present. Horace Wright, the club president, filled the position of chairman in his usual genial way and the address of Dave Bradford, the club secretary, on "The Navy" was quite one of the finest and most instructive that the club has been permitted to listen to. Dave's years of service with the Navy gave him a grasp of his subject which made the Navy live before his audience. He used the lantern slides to good advantage in illustration of his talk. The musical numbers were all of a high order and greatly enjoyed. The program follows:

Chairman, Mr. Horace Wright; Community Song Leader, Mr. Harry Lennox.

Opening number, "O Canada"—The Audience; Chairman's Address of Welcome—Mr. Horace Wright; Community Singing; Selection—The Belleville Boys' Band; Violin and Piano Selection—Messrs. Les. and Ray Lennox; Community Singing; Vocal Selection—A group from Christ Church Boys' Choir; Soloists, Jack Shaddock, Bruce Wood; Reading, Mr. George Cornish; Selection—Belleville Boys' Band; Cornet Solo—Roy Pomeroy; Clarinet Duet—Mac and Jim Dowsett; Address on the Royal Navy (with lantern slides)—Mr. Dave Bradford; Community Singing; Violin and Piano Selection—Messrs. Les. and Ray Lennox; Reading—Mr. George Cornish; Community Singing. God Save the King. Refreshments.

The Men's Club is very much alive and has a well-planned series of programs prepared for the coming winter. They have added considerably to their recreational equipment and an interesting evening is promised at each of their meetings. Carpet-ball, table-tennis, darts, bagatelle and cribbage all have a share in each evening's activities. A card of invitation has been printed and is being distributed to men in uniform to come to the meetings and enjoy the hospitality of the club. They will find both a warm and hearty welcome. The invitations are already being accepted by a number of Service men who are finding in the club a new friendship in the Church when away from home. The club meets in Christ Church Parish Hall each Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

Transports Convoyed By Provincial Police In This District

Motorcycle and Provincial Police cruisers convoyed large motor transports through the Central Ontario areas all night last night, Inspector Frank Gardner, in charge of District No. 8 O.P.P. with headquarters here, revealed this morning.

"Attorney-General Gordon Conant ordered that all fleets of the Martin Transport, Ltd. and Direct Winters Transport must be escorted while in transit by night following alleged attempts to ditch transports in Western Ontario after a strike of the drivers of these companies had been ordered earlier in the week," stated Inspector Gardner today as he revealed that all such transports passing through the area from Oshawa to Kingston had been convoyed by Provincial Police last night.

"Every available motorcycle patrolman was on duty last night escorting large fleets of these transports through Central Ontario while we had every Provincial Officer we could muster supplementing in police cruiser cars. The fleets of Martin trucks travelled in convoy at a safe distance apart all night, some of my officers not having sleep for over 36 hours," added Inspector Gardner as he stated that every officer operating out of the district headquarters in Belleville had been assigned to night patrol including himself Sergeants H. Thompson and S. Hunter and all available constables. The night convoy will continue until the strike is settled. Several of the striking drivers were arrested on charges of molesting and intimidation in Toronto yesterday.

Large Birthday Cake is Cut As Bridge St. Congregation Celebrates Anniversary

Records of Past 125 Years Are Revealed—Greetings of Church Officials and of Mayor Presented to Congregation at Social Gathering

One hundred and twenty-five years of outstanding progress in the fold of Christian endeavour were fittingly celebrated at the Bridge Street United Church on Wednesday evening as the members and adherents of this, Belleville's oldest church, met in a happy social gathering to commemorate the anniversary of the founding of the Methodist Church in the city of Belleville. The evening's program consisted of short talks by eminent officers of the Conference and the Presbytery, members of the Belleville Ministerial Association, the Mayor, His Worship Glencoe Thompson, while musical numbers rendered by prominent Belleville talent provided diversion and were heartily enjoyed by the crowded assembly.

A short devotional period conducted by the Rev. D. T. McClintock, Minister of the Tabernacle United Church, opened the evening's program. Rev. Mr. McClintock was introduced by the Rev. Dr. J. Semple who acted as chairman. Rev. Dr. Semple said that owing to the close association of the Tabernacle Church with Bridge Street Church, it was indeed fitting that Rev. Mr. Clintock should have a part in the celebration on this memorable occasion.

Early Days of the Church

Mr. F. S. Deacon, Recording Steward, extended the official welcome of the church to the visiting ministers and to members of the Belleville City Council, including Mayor Thompson. Mr. Deacon then gave a brief history of the founders of the Bridge Street United Church. "They were men of vision and came from godly homes," said Mr. Deacon. Many of the names connected with the founding of the church 125 years ago were noted by Mr. Deacon, who said that at one time the original Methodist Church was interested in evangelism, and held many evangelistic meetings, the last of which was held during the 1880's. Bridge Street United Church being the oldest church in the city it has been responsible in fostering many other churches in Belleville. In closing Mr. Deacon read messages of greetings from former members and other associates of the church; Mr. Mark Dulmage, Owen Sound; Mr. Harry J. Coon, Toronto; Mr. W. A. A. Chown, Toronto; Mr. D. B. McCoy, Hamilton; Mr. James Johnson, Boston; Mr. Fred Lingham, Lockport, N.Y.; Dr. David Clare, Guelph; Dr. Peake of Transcona, Manitoba.

Religious Bodies Invited

The Rev. G. G. Wright, rector of Christ Church, extended greetings on behalf of the Ministerial Association of Belleville and also on behalf of the congregation of the Anglican Church. "One hundred and twenty-five years of outstanding service is something to be proud of," stated Mr. Wright, adding that the powers which are now aiming at the destruction of the British Empire, are also aimed at the very essentials of what religion stands for and, as a result, religious bodies will be driven together in closer association with each other. "We must do this or die," concluded Rev. Mr. Wright.

Conference Good Wishes

The greetings of the Bay of Quinte Conference were brought by its President, Rev. H. W. Cliff, M.A. "Attaining as you have your 125th anniversary, you should feel as though you have climbed a hillside and have so gained a vantage point from which to view the accomplishments of your past," told Mr. Cliff, as he congratulated the Bridge Street United Church congregation on their achievement. In closing he said Bridge Street Church had served well in the Kingdom but will go on to make further contributions. "We rejoice with you, thank God, and take courage," were his closing remarks.

Greetings of Mayor and Presbytery

At this point Mayor Glencoe Thompson extended thanks for the invitation received by the council body to be present at this unique gathering. "The founders of this church must have been of good stock to have withstood for 125 years," said Mayor Thompson, as he extended the greetings of the city of Belleville.

Rev. J. G. McKee, B.A., B.D., Chairman of the Presbytery, said that "you have already received the felicitations from the Presbytery, as well as congratulatory messages upon your noteworthy achievement, but your greatest history will never be written in the records." Rev. Mr. McKee pointed out that the presence of churches in a community or city was one of the greatest encouragements toward settlement by new residents. In closing he stated that "it was to maintain the standards of which we all fall short that we are here tonight," adding congratulations to Dr. Semple in the attainment of the 125th milestone in the founding of his church.

Throughout the program and between numbers Rev. Dr. Semple entertained those present with many interesting excerpts from the records of the early history of the Methodist Church in Belleville, as well as from early city history.

Huge Birthday Cake

One of the highlights of the evening's entertainment was the cutting of a huge bi-thday cake which was partaken of by the congregation in commemoration of the anniversary. Mrs. F. E. O'Flynn, one of the oldest members of the congregation, after a fitting ceremony, cut the cake following which an appropriate social period was enjoyed. The ladies of the congregation served a delightful luncheon to bring the evening's program to a close. Musical entertainment throughout the program was provided by Mr. Alec Gordon and Miss Leona Riggs who rendered several delightful piano duets which were much appreciated, while Mr. J. Bankier, and Mrs. George Stobie rendered solos.

POLICE COURT

Richard J. Ewing, Toronto, was sentenced to serve two years less one day in the Ontario Reformatory when he appeared for sentence before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in today's County Police Court held at the Court House. Ewing had pleaded guilty to charges of stealing 700 pounds of grain and also to the theft of a heifer calf in a previous court. Today Detective Fred Isard presented a third charge against Ewing as he was arraigned for sentence. The third count was that of obtaining by false pretences a .22 calibre rifle from the Walker Hardware Company by means of a worthless cheque. The accused man admitted the charge but stated the goods had been returned. Ewing was sentenced to two years less one day on all three counts, the sentences to date from the time of his arrest and to run concurrently.

Suspended Sentence

Thomas Van Zalkenburg, Thurlow youth who was an alleged accomplice of Ewing's in the initial two crimes, also appeared for sentence after tendering pleas of guilty in previous courts. "This is a first offence for this boy and his father has made restitution in the matter of the calf and grain," explained Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson. Taking everything into consideration His Worship gave the lad a year's suspended sentence.

Further Remand Given

William Poole, Cooper, appeared on a charge of uttering and sending threatening letters to his employer. Poole, who was arrested by Provincial Constable A. Dymond, Madoc, last Friday, was further remanded without bail.

Four cases of violations of the Highway Traffic Act brought pleas of guilty and fines paid out of court by C. J. Cormier, who paid $10.00 and costs for driving without a necessary operator's licence. Marcus Roman was assessed $5.00 and costs for speeding, while H. B. Killoran paid $10.00 and costs for illegal parking along the highway and D. Payne enriched the court's coffers by $5.00 and costs after admitting charges of careless driving.

Relieved of Stomach and Kidney Suffering; Praises Syntona

No Longer Troubled With Gastritis, Indigestion, Constipation, Nervousness and Loss of Sleep— "Wouldn't Be Without Syntona in the House."

Now is the time to take a good, refreshing herbal tonic to improve the action of the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels; to promote proper assimilation of food for energy and resistance and to rid the system of excess acids and waste matter that often cause many days of sick headache, backache, rheumatic pains and tired, irritable feelings. Syntona is specially compounded from pure, selected herbal juices for that purpose and the results it gives are vouched for by thousands of reputable local men and women. Read here the interesting experience of Mr. Thomas Fox, 55 Crooks street, Hamilton, according to a recent interview.

"I had suffered greatly with my stomach and kidneys," said Mr. Fox. "I didn't seem to be getting any nourishment out of the food I ate. It just seemed to sour in my stomach and cause gas, indigestion and bloat. Consequently I felt miserable all the time and I had so little energy that if I walked a short distance I would have to sit down and rest before going home. My kidneys disturbed my sleep so often each night that in the mornings I always felt unrested, nervous and irritable.

MR. THOMAS FOX

"One day a friend recommended Syntona to me, and it turned out to be just what I was always needing. It soon put an end to my stomach suffering. As I continued with the treatment my kidneys began to function regularly, so I could get my proper sleep. It is quite some time now since I took that treatment of Syntona, but ever since then I have felt more energetic and healthy in every way. I always keep a bottle of Syntona in the house and I use it when I eat anything that disagrees with me. It fixes me up every time."

If you who read this suffer as described above, go to Dolan's Drug Store, Belleville, and find out for yourself about this grand medicine that is helping so many people.

JURY UNABLE TO DETERMINE EXPLOSION CAUSE

Verdict in Death of Frank Collins Given as Death From Result of Fractured Skull Caused by Explosion in Tank Car

Despite the efforts of expert witnesses, who threw no direct light upon the cause of the explosion of the gas tank car that caused the death of Frank Collins, Imperial Oil employee last Saturday, the coroner's jury was unable to determine the cause of the explosion at the adjourned inquest looking into the death of the late Mr. Collins held before Chief Coroner Dr. J. A. Robertson at the Police Station last evening.

The jury found that the late Frank Collins died as the result of a fractured skull caused by an explosion in a tank car, but the cause of the explosion was unknown to the jury. However, the jury recommended that the aluminum loading pipe into the tank cars be of sufficient length to reach the bottom of the tank cars and to extend at least one foot above the top of the dome of the tank car to avoid any chance of the hard metals of the loading arm coming in contact with the steel tank, that might cause a friction spark.

Only One Eye Witness

The only eye witness to the fatal explosion was Harry Smith, employee of the British American Oil Company, who was employed at painting a loading rack directly across Front Street from where Mr. Collins was engaged at preparing a tank car for loading. When asked what he saw by Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson, Mr. Smith said —"I had just turned around and saw Frankie standing over the dome of the oil car, directly over the man-hole".

"Did you speak to him?" asked Mr. Robertson.

"No, I was about to when the explosion happened and I saw him hurled high into the air", stated Mr. Smith as he added as he ran over to the scene and notified Imperial Oil employees, who called a doctor, ambulance and the fire department.

"Did you see any flames?"

"Yes, but only after the explosion", answered Smith as he added, that he later saw the loading pipe had been placed in the dome of the car before the explosion.

Dr. E. McDonald, Belleville, stated the cause of death was the result of a compound depressed fracture to the left side of the skull and associated injuries, which included numerous other fractures of limbs. "It is my belief, that Mr. Collins received the major injury to the skull at the time of the explosion and the other injuries when he fell to the car", added Dr. McDonald.

A. D. McLean, resident-manager of the local branch of the Imperial Oil Company, stated he was not an eye witness to the accident, nor had he made any extensive observations, but he told of the accustomed procedure of loading gasoline tank cars. "The rail beneath the car and the pipes leading to the car are both properly and permanently grounded", stated Mr. McLean as he said he could give no explanation as to the cause of the explosion. He added that Frank Collins was an experienced employee and "had loaded and unloaded hundreds of tank cars".

John Mitchell, Toronto and consulting civil engineer for the Imperial Oil Company for the past 18 years, was the principal witness called by Crown Attorney Robertson to give expert testimony as to the construction of oil tank cars. For the benefit of the jury Mr. Mitchell produced large blue prints outlining the designs and intricate construction of such cars, which are constructed to Government regulations.

Possible Causes of Explosion

Mr. Mitchell stated professionally he was of the opinion that there were only four possible causes for such an accident.

First—"Static electrical sparks"; but here precautions have been taken in the permanent groundings to eliminate this.

Second—"The introduction of an open flame near the open dome"; but Mr. Collins was an experienced employee and conversant with the results of such practices which would risk his life.

Thirdly—"The striking of a friction spark in the vicinity of the dome of the car"; here you have the down pipe into the car made of aluminum, which is a non-sparking metal and a friction spark would be out of the question.

At this point Mr. Robertson interrupted and asked if the metal knuckle joint coming in contact with the car might cause a friction spark. "Yes, but only under extenuating circumstances", replied Mr. Mitchell.

Fourthly—"The possibility of sabotage", which I admit is remote, but during the war we have had all of our cars, empty or filled, sealed with railway seals".

"Was this car sealed and if so where?" asked Mr. Robertson.

"It was sealed by the Supertest people here in Belleville following a delivery", replied Mr. Mitchell

"Was the seal broken?" asked Crown Attorney Robertson.

Only One Could Answer

"Only Mr. Collins could answer that, but we have the broken seals which were found nearby", concluded Mr. Mitchell as he assured the jury he was sorry to say he was unable to ascertain exactly what had caused the explosion of the oil tank car on the Imperial Oil Company siding in Belleville here on November 9th., last, resulting in Frank Collins' death. "We have asked the assistance of the Fire hImmGQ IlLs Nf eraH?b- d and are doing everything possible to solve this matter", assured Mr. Mitchell.

The coroner's jury impanelled by Sergeant Arthur Booth was composed of Fred Chamberlain, foreman, Charles Mott, C. McDonald, A. Dafoe and S. F. Barnum.

ROYAL NAVY CRIPPLES ITALIAN FLEET

The strength of Britain's navy was never in doubt in any part of the world. It is the terror of the enemy and this week Italy has felt its power in several blows, delivered at Taranto naval base when the Italian fleet was crippled by raids by the Royal Navy air arm in so striking a manner as to leave, as Prime Minister Churchill said in the House of Commons, reactions which will reverberate to every corner of the earth, the second the smashing of an Italian convoy which was proceeding between Italy and Albania, with the resultant sinking of an Italian supply ship, the setting afire of two, "almost certainly sunk," a fourth escaping in a smoke screen and the damaging of one of the two escorting Italian destroyers which also escaped, and the third, another success at Taranto.

The events of this week have demonstrated that the Royal Navy is an arm of great defence and of powerful offensive. Hitler felt the real might of the Royal Navy at the Skagerrak when his navy was crippled. Now Mussolini, who, in his few months of war has seen his submarines whittled down in the Mediterranean and some warcraft lost, sees disaster after disaster come upon him this week.

The disasters to the Italian navy at the Taranto naval base and to the Italian convoy are sequels to the war which Mussolini began against the Greeks.

The first of this week has witnessed great achievements of the war in the culmination of the Greek resistance with the retreat of the Italians from their invasion across the Albanian border and in the successive effective blows delivered by the Royal Navy with its air arm and its warships against the Italian fleet, which has only three battleships left effective.

ENEMY COMMUNIQUES UNTRUSTWORTHY

The world has a good proof of the lack of value in communiques issued by the Germans and Italians, whose reports are so goebbelized as to deflect far from the truth and are largely distortions for the sake of propaganda.

Last week the Germans claimed that a Nazi surface raider had sunk an entire British convoy in the Atlantic. In the rush to tell the world of the attack the Germans did not wait for truth for truth and the Nazis are not associated. But Britain has given the true facts. The Jervis Bay, an armed merchant cruiser with the British convoy, had thrown herself against the raider with the result that at least twenty-nine of the 38 ships in the convoy escaped in the gathering darkness with the possibility of more yet returning to port. The German communique told nothing of the heroic self-sacrifice of the Jervis Bay, which, though hopelessly out-gunned and facing superior armament continued to pour out her shells against the Hun ship and at length sank fighting to the last. The Jervis Bay closed her career in the finest and most glorious spirit of the British Navy.

The full story as told by the British is one of glorious renown for the men of the cruiser. The faces of men who were rescued from the Jervis Bay in that encounter and landed in Newfoundland, glowed as they praised the action of the Jervis Bay. "It was nothing short of suicide when they closed with the enemy. But it was according to the highest traditions of the navy." That is it. Had it not been for the Jervis Bay, they said, the Nazi raider would have got every ship in the convoy. The action of the Jervis Bay is said to have been "like a bulldog leaping at a bear." It was an amazing spectacle of gallantry.

The Nazis could not tell that. The Goebbel office hid this story of British heroism and sacrifice but the whole story is now out and British seamanship and courage ring as ever true.

Then Italy the other day tried to shortcut a British story of a triumph of the British navy air arm. Rome admitted that an Italian battleship had been damaged in an air attack on the naval base at Taranto. It remained for the British Admiralty yesterday to announce that a major disaster had been delivered against the Italian navy.

The British communiques relate the truth. The enemy communiques dare not tell the truth, particularly when there is a Fascist or a Nazi reverse. Berlin tells the world what it wants the world to know and so does Italy and nothing more.

Stories in the Italian and German communiques must always be regarded with great reserve and caution and not be accepted in their fullness because of the advantage the enemy seeks to gain by distortion or hiding of the truth from the Germans and Italians as well as the world at large if possible. But the outside world, which does not wince at the words of Hitler and Mussolini, knows the record of this pair of dictators whose communiques are subject to the treatment of distortion and falsification.

British official statements bear the marks of truth upon them. They have the proofs.

ON THE LAKES

The men who go down to the sea in ships or who sail the Great Lakes are built of heroic stuff and serve their day and generation at the risk of their lives when the elements rage. November is a time of year when the mariner watches for the slight signs of disturbances and takes every advantage which modern equipment and invention has given to craft plying the oceans and the lakes. On the Great Lakes November storms often develop into violence and many noble lives are lost.

The storm of last Monday night when Lake Michigan claimed many heroic seamen and wrecked a number of ships and when other craft were battered and pounded by the waves and the gale, was one of the worst in history. Those who have survived have undergone great hardships in their effort to save their ships, to save their fellow sailors or in saving their own lives from the waters.

The families of those who have gone down have the sympathy of men and women everywhere in their loss for in this day we know how much is owing to the men who carry on the services by rail, by water or by air, and those who serve in any capacity in transportation. Without these brave men civilization would not have reached the heights it has attained.

GREEKS DRIVING

Northern End of Line Quiet.

Little activity by ground forces was reported at the northern end of the 100-mile battlefront, where a government spokesman said the Greeks still were holding their mountain positions dominating the Albanian town of Koritza.

Greek aircraft, however, bombed that important Italian invasion base yesterday, the high command said, destroying "a considerable number" of Italian aircraft on the ground and blowing up a large building.

A communique issued from British headquarters in Greece reported that the Royal Air Force again had attacked the Albanian port of Valona Tuesday night and Wednesday morning, setting fire to ammunition dumps. Long-range bombers also successfully attacked oil refineries at the Italian Adriatic port of Bari the same night.

The Greeks again accused the Italians of bombing cities and villages of no military importance yesterday, causing some casualties.

WHAT GERMANY WOULD LIKE TO DO TO BRITISH CULTURE

By E. M. Forster in the London Listener

What would the Nazis do to civilization in these islands and in the Empire if they won? I want to answer this question from the point of view of a writer.

I don't suggest that conditions over here are perfect. During the present century, the writer and the artist generally have worked under growing disabilities; the law of libel hits them unfairly, so does the dramatic censorship. And since last September, things have got worse, owing to regulations necessary for the defence of the realm; publishers and printers are frightened of handling anything which may be thought disloyal, with the result that much original work and valuable comment are being stifled. This cannot be helped; a war is on so it is no use whining. But it is as well to remember that as soon as the war is won people who care about civilization in England will have to begin another war, for the restoration and extension of cultural freedom.

But although cultural conditions are not perfect in this country (and it would be cant to pretend that they are), they are paradise compared with the conditions in with the conditions which Germany would impose on us if she beat us.

Destruction of national culture is part of the German program of conquest. In Czecho-Slovakia, for instance, they have barred operas by Smetana, the great Czech composer, and the plays of Capek. They have revised school books, falsified Czech history, forbidden the singing of Czech national songs, and subsidized German educational institutions, for which the Czechs have to pay. In Poland the fate of culture has been still more tragic, since Poland is a conquered country; their conduct in Poland, rather than their conduct in Czecho-Slovakia, is the model which the Nazis would follow if they got over here.

Listen, for instance, how they have treated the University of Cracow—and then put for "Cracow" "Oxford" or "Cambridge" or any other university which you know—Melbourne, Toronto, Johannesburg, Aligark. Last November, 170 professors and teachers at Cracow were summoned by the chief of the Gestapo to the hall of the university and placed under arrest on the grounds that they were continuing their work without Nazi permission. They were sent straight off to concentration camps in Germany, where 18 of them died, and their places were filled by Nazi nominees.

I know Cracow. I have, or rather had, friends in the university there of whom I can get no news. They have welcomed me to their charming little flat overlooking the green boulevards; they have shown me their noble city with its great Catholic churches and its marvellous fortress. Owing to their kindness and hospitality, it has happened that Cracow has become for me a symbol of Nazi bullying on the continent and I can hardly see its name without trembling with rage. I mention it now—that lost and lovely place—because one needs to visualize in these terrible times. It does not convey much if I say, "The Nazi would reorganize and re-staff our educational system." It does convey something if I say, "They would treat Oxford as they have treated Cracow." They are stamping out culture everywhere in Poland, so far as they can. They consider it their mission to do so, on the ground that the Poles are naturally inferior to Germans. "A Pole is a Pole", writes a Nazi journalist, "and any attempt at familiarity must be rebuffed."

So now for England. Let us consider more closely the effect of a Nazi victory upon civilization.

Our press, our publishing and printing trades, our universities and the rest of our education system would be instantly controlled. So would theatres, cinemas, and the wireless. The British Government (assuming that one remained) would be held responsible for their conduct, and have to punish them if they did anything which annoyed Berlin. There would be complete remodelling. In these respects, the methods adopted in Czecho-Slovakia and Poland would be followed, and with the maximum of brutality; the joy of baiting Englishmen in England would be intoxicating. Germanization would probably not be attempted. But the Gestapo and the rest of the occupying force would, of course, import such Nazi culture as was necessary for their spiritual sustenance, and we should have to pay for German libraries and German schools, into which, as members of an inferior race, we should not be allowed to go.

What about our literature? The fate of individual writers would be hard. Those of any eminence would probably be interned and shot. This, however painful to themselves, would not, it is true, be a great blow to literature, for by the time writers have become eminent they have usually done their best work. What would matter, what would be disastrous, is the intimidation of our younger writers—men and women in their twenties and thirties, who have not yet had the chance to express themselves.

The invaders would take good care to frighten or cajole them. Forbidden to criticize their conquerors, forbidden to recall the past glories of their country, or to indulge that free movement of the mind which is necessary to the creative art, they would be confined to trivialities, or to spreading their masters' opinions.

A bureau would be established and licenses to create or to comment would be issued, as in Germany by Dr. Goebbels, and withdrawn if independence were shown. Rebelliousness might mean death. I don't think this is a fancy picture. It is only what is happening in Europe, and why should we get special terms? And I am not accusing our enemies of any general hatred of culture. They like culture. They are human beings, who enjoy reading books or going to plays and films, just as we do. They too want to be happy. The Germans don't hate culture, but they are doomed to oppose it because it is mixed up with thought and action, because it is mixed up with the individual; just as it is their doom to oppose science and religion.

You will remember the famous burning of the books in Germany. Would they try to burn English books too? I don't think so. It would mean too big a blaze. We would probably be left with our existing libraries and allowed to read our classics in such spare time as we possessed. I do think though that a different interpretation of English literature would be attempted in our schools. They would put it to our young people that our best writers were Nazis at heart, and so try to warp their minds.

Those seem to me to be the chief cultural points in a Nazi conquest—and you will remember that I am keeping to this particular aspect and not talking about politics and economics. They want our land, it is true; they want our money—sure. But they also want to alter our civilization until it is in line with their own. If my view of them is right, they cannot help doing this: it is, so to speak, their fate. They have identified civilization with the state, and the National Socialist state cannot be secure until no civilization exists except the particular one which it approves.

A peace which was the result of a Nazi victory would surely not differ much from a Nazi war. Germans would no longer be killed, but they would go on killing others until no one survived to criticize them. In the end, they might achieve world-domination and institute a culture. But what sort of culture would it be? What would they have to work with? For you cannot go on destroying lives and living processes without destroying your own life. If you continue to be greedy and dense, if you make power and not understanding your aim, if, as a French friend of mine puts it, you erect 'a pyramid of appetites on a foundation of stupidity', you kill the impulse to create.

Swift Ship Repairs Done in Record Time

London, Nov. 14 (CP). — Ships which is peacetime would have been given up for lost because of serious damage they suffered are at sea again tracking down the enemy, thanks to swift, unorthodox work of the "mateys" in Britain's naval dockyards.

Some remarkable jobs have been done at one yard, particularly with small vessels which have borne the heavy brunt of this war so far. For example there was H.M.S. Kittihawks, a corvette which struck a mine. They made almost a new ship out of her.

Ask the chief engineer how it was done and he will say merely, "by methods we should not be allowed to employ in peace, but which today, when every ship in the fleet is invaluable, are fully justified."

These methods saved a naval minesweeper which was badly holed in a collision during the Dunkirk evacuation, but now she is at work again. They saved another minesweeper, whose side was battered in by a mine, and sent her out on patrol again in just four days.

Dr. Andre Labarthe, formerly professor of physics at the Sorbonne in Paris, will be director of a new faculty of science at the French Institute in London.

Tourist Failure

(From The Winnipeg Tribune)

There is a good deal of heart-searching going on in Ottawa because of the comparative "flop" of the national campaign to attract American tourists to Canada during the 1940 season. The Ottawa authorities made some honest mistakes but, on the whole, worked hard and showed real initiative in the tourist campaign.

The Dominion Government's tourist efforts, in many directions, deserved high praise. It is particularly good to learn that Ottawa is now in the mood to make a much greater effort for next year to co-ordinate the work of Dominion, Provincial and private agencies interested in promoting travel.

There is no doubt about the 1940 "flop". Canada was in an extraordinarily favored position to attract tourists. With Europe closed to the American traveller, this country had an unprecedented opportunity. To set an objective of obtaining 300 million dollars worth of American tourist trade was to put the aim definitely low. And yet, in fact, according to Leo Dolan, head of the Canadian Travel Bureau, Canada's intake for the year will not be much more than 250 million dollars. This represents an actual decrease of about 25 million dollars from the 1939 figures. Something is seriously wrong.

Mr. Dolan, who attended the recent conference of tourist organizations at Ottawa, has mentioned some odd fears which prevented certain United States tourists from visiting Canada this year. One man he solemnly tells us, thought he would be in danger from submarines if he took a trip up the Saguenay River in Quebec. If our Dominion tourist authorities are seriously alarmed about stories of this nature concerning Canada, they might mull this thing over from another angle.

The Tribune is convinced that arbitrary restrictions designed to prevent Canadians from visiting the United States have had a lot to do with queering the national plan for attracting Americans to Canada.

In the first place, they have created bad blood for us in the very homes of our friends. The people most annoyed are those who know us best—our friends, neighbors and personal acquaintances just across the line.

In the second place, it is humanly impossible to tell the Americans to "come on up and see us" and, at the same time, inform them that we are so sorry we are not allowed to drop in and see them.

Humanly and psychologically, the present sales talk won't wash. We are trying, in the same breath, to tell individual Americans to spend their dollars in Canada and to tell individual Canadians that they mustn't spend a nickel in the States.

We know very well that all the American dollars that we can lay our hands on are going right back to the United States. But they are not going to our personal friends and neighbors across the line. They are going to distant American manufacturers of machinery, munitions and materials of war. They don't ring up any music on the cash registers of our nearby acquaintances.

Never did we need friends and ambassadors in the United States more than we do today—for the broadest national reasons. If the authorities are worried about absurd stories, like the submarine yarn, what could better counteract these than a few Canadians circulating freely in the United States and telling the truth?

In fact, the Dominion Government might seriously contemplate encouraging Canadian embassies of goodwill like The Tribune's "Pine-to-Palm" tour of 1926. A few enthusiastic visiting Canadians could probably do much to drum up tourist trade for Canada. It would supplement the efforts of the many Canadian travel bureaux.

The Tribune does not believe that Canada's net tourist balance would seriously suffer if arbitrary restrictions were removed. No intelligent patriot wants a wide open expenditure of Canadian dollars in the United States for private purposes. But there must be some reciprocity. And, on grounds of broad national policy—when the maximum of goodwill between Canadians and Americans is imperative—it is unwise to irritate our closest friends and neighbors with petty but aggravating pinpricks.

For years the undefended border-line has been the boast and the toast of two nations. If we continue to plaster it with "one-way traffic only" signs, we may find out too late that we have turned it into three thousand miles of petty irritation.

CANADA'S FARM

from which they returned only last week-end.

Agreement under which Britain would absorb a substantial part of Canada's large surplus of agricultural products would in part help to meet the wartime agricultural crisis pictured to the House of Commons yesterday by House Leaders of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation and New Democracy groups. Two members from government ranks also agreed with the suggestion that something had to be done to relieve the situation.

The midweek half-day in parliament produced a detailed program for the rehabilitation of agriculture from M. J. Coldwell (C.C.F. Rosetown-Biggar). John Blackmore (N.D. Lethbridge), urged the necessity of utilizing the National Credit not only to meet such domestic emergencies as that confronting agriculture but to help finance the war, without adding to the public debt or to taxation.

Take 2 Canada's Farm njBtP

Meighen Critical

In the Senate, Conservative Leader Arthur Meighen asserted Canada was not doing its part in the defence of Britain. Instead, the Dominion was "mesmerized by Home Defence" although Defence of Britain was vital to Canada.

Senator Raoul Dandurand, government leader, replied that Canada was doing everything Britain asked. Britain had not asked for more Canadian soldiers but had asked for help toward domination of sea and air. Toward that end, Canada was bending its efforts.

The 30-day compulsory military training plan was criticized for its inadequacy by Senator Meighen and, in the Commons, by Capt. G. S. White (Con. Hastings-Peterborough). Senator Meighen termed its products "hot house soldiers" while Capt. White submitted that with only one month's training these men would be "only an undisciplined mob" in an emergency.

Capt. White, appearing in uniform, criticized the lack of equipment provided for his non-permanent active militia unit, the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. The only equipment they had besides rifles and bayonets was what they had made themselves, he said.

A broad plan for marketing of all farm produce through Boards having producer representation was laid before the Commons by Mr. Coldwell. The program called for acquisition by these Boards of all farm produce, at parity prices and suppression of speculation in food products, including closing the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Packing and processing plants should be operated under co-operative or public ownership.

Mr. Coldwell called for appointment of a full-time Minister of Agriculture.

The wheat surplus would yet prove an asset, Mr. Coldwell held, but the Government should be carrying it financially now, not the producers. Wheat growers should be given 75 per cent of the guaranteed price set by the Wheat Board if their grain was properly stored on the farm.

A planning commission for the industry would guide future policy and co-ordinate the operation of the Marketing Boards. Among other things, it would arrange for export to Britain, without profit to Canada, of supplies of food now rationed in that country.

Mr. Coldwell urged the Government to define its war and peace aims. Democratic Canadians wanted the war to end in a lasting peace based on social and economic justice and the rule of law. That meant peace must be negotiated between peoples freed from threats of force. Collective security involving the establishment of an international authority superior to individual states would be necessary.

Pernicious influences were now at work disintegrating Canada's political democracy, John Blackmore warned the House. The first consisted of economic considerations, the second of emotional and intellectual considerations through distortions effected by propaganda.

Sub-Amendment Submitted

Economic democracy were becoming more and more futile and would cease to exist.

Mr. Blackmore submitted a sub-amendment to the address-in reply to the speech from the throne, regretting the government's failure to adopt a monetary policy which would permit a maximum war effor without increasing debt or taxation, and declaring the view that present financial policy would destroy the liberties essential to a true democracy.

In his speech he warned the expansion of national credit need not result in inflation. There were only two ways of dealing with inflation—either cut down the amount of money in circulation or increase the supply of goods in circulation.

Joseph Thorson (Lib. Selkirk) endorsed the recommendations of the Rowell-Sirois Commission. A national reform program was needed immediately to enable Canada to make its maximum war contribution and to lay the foundation for a strong Canada.

"If our financial structure was utterly inadequate for Canada in time of peace, it is even more necessary now than it would be in peace time to make the changes recommended by the report", he said.

Joseph Bradette, Liberal-Cochrane, endorsed the recent suggestion of Premier Adelard Godbout of Quebec that French-speaking Canadians should learn English, but he thought the same idea might be followed by the English-speaking majority. He approved the suggestion soldiers receive free transportation while on leave.

Meighen Urges Help to Britain

Senator Meighen urged the government to concentrate on helping Britain, even at the risk of facing some local schisms. "If any in this country in the party which I belong are instrumental in digging up these schisms," he said, "I will oppose them and support the government."

"What I fear is that we are not directing our efforts toward the essential, vital end," Senator Meighen continued. "I fear we are dissipating our efforts and our substance in activities which appear fine and popular but which never will win a war. If the history of national conflicts has taught us anything it is that there is only one way to win a war, and that is by having the decisive forces at the decisive point at the decisive time.

"Is Canada contributing to that way of achieving victory by sending to the actual theatres something less than 60,000 men?"

Senator Dandurand in his speech said Canada was answering the call for whatever Britain asked. Today, Britain was not asking for a single man for a regiment on the other side.

"Just now Great Britain is only asking us for what we are helping her with, and we are helping to the full in what she wants from us. Let there be no misunderstanding, if no more men are being sent it is because they are not asked."

Foreign Trade Quite High

Senator W. D. Euler (Lib. Ontario) in a report to the Senate said Canada's foreign trade was up $600,000,000 over the previous year and showed a favorable balance of $345,000,000 as compared with the previous year.

Senator A. K. Hugessen (Lib. Quebec) read into the record a report outlining the work of the Department of Munitions and Supply in the war effort.

Both Senator Meighen and Senator Dandurand paid tribute to Neville Chamberlain, former British Prime Minister who died in England last Saturday, and complimented Senator Athanase David (Lib. Quebec) and Senator Salter A. Hayden (Lib. Ontario) on their addresses moving and seconding the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

Referring to Senator David's remark that the hand of friendship was stretched out by Quebec in these dangerous times to the rest of Canada, Senator Meighen said he was eager to grasp that hand.

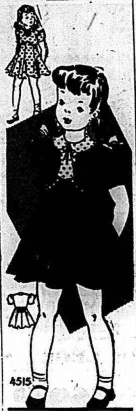
Jay Kiddie Bolero-Frock



By ANNE ADAMS

Pattern 4515

"Small fry" love to wear bolero-dresses to school and play—they're so pert and jaunty. And mothers like them for the extra warmth they give a youngster on wintry days. This gay bolero style, Pattern 4515 by Anne Adams, is full of original, gay touches, yet as simple as ABC to sew up at home. The buoyantly flaring skirt is panelled all 'round with the two front panels "upped" for a high waistline. The cute rounded collar looks well trimmed with a self-fabric or ribbon bow; buttons and ric-rac add colorful touches. Notice the nicely cut lines of the perky short sleeved bolero. For a three-piece effect, make the whole upper part of the frock in lively contrast to the skirt or bolero.

Pattern 4515 is available in children's sizes 2, 4, 6, 8 and 10. Size 6, bolero and skirt, takes 1 3-4 yards 36-inch fabric; blouse, 3-4 yard contrast.

EDUCATION WEEK OBSERVED AT ST. MICHAEL'S

Parents Invited to Inspect Classes at Work at the Academy

MUCH IMPRESSED

St. Michael's Academy is observing Education Week, held "open house" on Wednesday afternoon, when large numbers of visitors were invited to inspect the afternoon classes in session. From two o'clock until four parents and friends arrived at the school and passed from classroom to classroom where lessons were in progress. They had the opportunity of meeting the teachers and of visiting the children in their school environment.

Of special interest was the boys' vocational department which is in charge of Mr. John Doran. Wood working and draughting displays were arranged and showed the splendid progress of the pupils, the results of careful training and well equipped work shops. A group of boys engaged in draughting showed the intricacies of this study. Displays of splendidly finished articles made by the classes in wood working were greatly admired and included well finished end tables, magazine racks, book ends, etc.

The Household Science Department proved equally popular. Here the smartly uniformed students were at home to many guests. The room, bright and well lighted, with its smart furnishings, colorful draperies and decorations of flowers was most attractive. This department is under the guidance of Miss Rose Mary Gibson. Refreshments, prepared and served by the girls themselves, one presiding at the tea table with the grace of an experienced hostess, were enjoyed by the visitors. The department well designed and fitted as a spacious apartment was greatly admired, as was the handiwork of the knitting classes. A small fee for the tea was charged the proceeds being devoted to the War Savings Stamp Fund.

Evening Program

A fitting conclusion to open house was the program last evening in the auditorium in connection with the distribution of prizes by the Catholic Women's League.

Bob Wilson was master of ceremonies for the interesting program welcoming the visitors to the school on behalf of the staff and scholars. A number by Bobby Powers opening the program was followed by a piano solo by Ralph Beasly. Helen Cooper contributed an Irish dance and the Senior Girls, smart in the uniforms of the domestic science department were heard in a Choral Reading, "The Home Builders". Marguerite Garvin contributed a Military dance on a drum and Hazel Alexander gave a reading from the poetry of Edgar Guest. Mary, Catherine and Helen Grant and Catherine Barrett danced a Scottish reel. This was followed by a piano duet by Veronica Chapelle and Rose Marie Hamilton, and a Highland dance by Mary Grant. A group of songs by junior boys and girls concluded the program. Their numbers were "A-Hunting We Will Go", "Bubbles" and "Santa Lucia" the last being sung by a group of six, Ralph Beasly, Cyril Holland, Joan Hunter, Joan McCabe, Angela Paulini and Ina Amo.

All numbers were presented in a faultless manner and were keenly appreciated by the large gathering present. Mrs. W. Grant assisted greatly as accompanist to several of the numbers.

Prizes Presented

Rt. Rev. J. F. Nicholson, V.G., presented intermediate certificates to those who had successfully completed the course of the intermediate school. Prizes for highest standing in Grades One to Ten in the June Examinations were awarded. These were the gifts of the Catholic Womens League and the president, Mrs. E. J. Butler, assisted in their presentation. The winners were: Grade One—Genevieve Tracey; Grade Two—Jean Frawley; Grade Three—Gerard Flurey; Grade Four—Gerald Whalen; Grade Five A—Lawrence Power; Grade Five B—Gordon Blaind; Grade Six—Barbara Feeney; Grade Seven—Boyd Upper; Grade Eight A—John Doyle; Grade Eight B—Mary Agnes Wilkinson; Grade Nine—Alfred Jones; Grade Ten—Grace Wilkinson.

Mrs. John Neate, Regent, presented to Mary Agnes Wilkinson the prize awarded annually by St. Julien Chapter I.O.D.E. to the pupils with the second highest entrance standing in the city. Miss Wilkinson was also the recipient of the Knights of Columbus prize, presented by Grand Knight George Lee, for highest standing in St. Michael's Entrance Class, and the John D. Hayes prize for second highest place in the city's Entrance candidates. John Doyle was also presented with a John D. Hayes prize for those ranking from third to tenth place in the city's Entrance list.

Alfred Jones was winner of the prize donated by B. J. Black and Sons for highest standing in Grade Nine.

Essay Contest Winners

Monsignor Nicholson presented to three girls from the Household Science Department, Catharine Moher, Grace Wilkinson, and Lorna Kiser, the medals awarded by the Canadian National Exhibition Committee for the high honors they achieved in competition in Toronto at the Exhibition. The prizes for essays on Public Safety awarded by the School Board were then presented to the following winners:

Grade Two—Billy Nolan, Grade Three—Mona Pritchard, Grade Four—John Walsh, Grade Five A—Lawrence Power, Grade Five B—Diane Upper, Grade Six A—Barbara Feeney, Grade Six B—Hilda Beary, Grade Seven—Boyd Upper, Grade Eight A—John Doyle, Grade Eight B—Mary Agnes Wilkinson, Grade Nine—George De Carlo, Grade Ten—Grace Wilkinson.

Tribute to the talent of those who had taken part in the program providing the audience with so much pleasure in their numbers of vocal and instrumental music dancing and readings was paid by Monsignor Nicholson in his address. He commanded the teachers on the training which had resulted in such fine work as was witnessed on the stage. Appreciation was extended to the School Board in its unceasing efforts in providing everything necessary for the progress of the scholars, to those who so kindly donated prizes, the Knights of Columbus, the Catholic Women's League, St. Julien Chapter, I.O.D.E., Mr. John Hayes and B. J. Black and Sons. Monsignor Nicholson congratulated the winners of the prizes, their parents and teachers for the high standing attained. In his interesting address the speaker pointed out that education develops the principles which make for good citizenship in peace and war.

The singing of "There'll Always be an England" and "God Save the King" brought the occasion to a conclusion.

Madoc

Madoc, Nov. 14.—Michael Franks of Madoc passed to his reward on Thursday, Nov. 7, in his seventieth year. On Saturday, Nov. 9, prayer was offered in the family home at 1:30 p.m. and the funeral service was held in the United Church at Hazard's at 2:30 p.m. The Rev. Alfred Poulter, minister of the United Church of Madoc assisted by the Rev. E. D. Snelgrove of Queensboro conducted the service. Rev. Poulter used as a basis for his remarks St. John's Gospel 14:16-17.

A very large assembly gathered to show their respect for one they had known so long and to express their sympathy with the sorrowing.

Mr. Franks was born in Tudor Township on Feb. 5, 1871. On Mar. 27, 1897 he was married to Margaret Burns Moore who survives him. Three children were born to them, Ella May who passed away on Sept. 22, 1913; Allan with his wife and four children reside on their farm at Harts; Stanley who with his wife and Mrs. Franks, Sr., reside on the Franks homestead two miles north of Madoc village where the deceased had lived for thirty-four years. He was an honest, industrious, hard-working farmer respected by all who knew him and will be missed not only by his family and relatives but by the community at large. He was a member of the United Church at Madoc.

The bearers were William Stewart, Samuel Bush, Edward Wannamaker, James Burris, George Ketcheson and John Davidson. Those who carried the flowers were Elliot Burris, Allan Ketcheson, Kenneth Burris, Gordon McCoy, Charles Lummis and James Lummis.

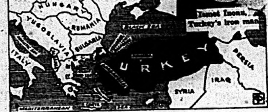
Eyes of World Focus on Turkey As Axis Invades Balkans Trying To Cut Off British Life Line

By DEAN A. WOODRUFF
(Central Press Canadian Writer)

Turkey has a well-equipped army of 2,000,000 first-class soldiers

Ismet Inonu, Turkey's iron man



Washington, Nov. 14—With axis moves in Rumania and actual war in Greece foreshadowing a further thrust in the Balkans, the eyes of the world and the hopes of Great Britain are turned toward Turkey. Can Turkey act as an effective barrier against the German drive to cut the British life line at the Suez Canal? Or will she have to permit the German war machine to ferry across the straits and rumble through her mountain passes to Syria and Palestine?

These are burning questions in all the warring capitals today as Greece tries desperately to hold back the legions of Mussolini. The importance of Turkey's stand becomes clear if one considers that a German advance through Turkey or Egypt would cut off the British fleet from its vital supply bases in the east. Combined with a successful axis attack on Gibraltar, this would force England to abandon the Mediterranean or see a large portion of her navy bottled up.

Turkey has Progressed.

Forty years ago Turkey would have been in no position to resist anyone. Then it was known as the "sick man of Europe", an empire disintegrating under chronic misgovernment and intrigue. The Turkey that today stands watch at the cross-roads between Europe and Asia, between the Mediterranean and the Black Sea, is much smaller, but infinitely stronger and more independent.

Thanks to the progressive and far-sighted work of the late Kemal Ataturk and Ismet Inonu, her present leader, she is now united and sturdy, self-reliant and potentially self-supporting. She has a well-equipped army of 2,000,000 first-class soldiers, her finances are sound and the budget is balanced regularly, despite large purchases of armaments and industrial equipment abroad.

There are no large foreign interests or minorities in Turkey to intrigue or dictate policy. Only in the last two years has the government at Ankara permitted itself the luxury of accepting the foreign loans thrust upon it by the Germans and the British in their eagerness to gain Turkish friendship.

Unity, At Last.

If Turkey resists Germany, she can rely on internal unity, which is more than most European countries have been able to do. The secret of unity is confidence—confidence in the wisdom of every act of government. Wise old Kemal Ataturk, the "gray wolf", knew how to inspire it. He steered clear of extremes.

Though his power was as absolute as that of Hitler and he was ruthless toward opposition, Ataturk was sure of his aims and his strength lay in the fact that his people were sure of them, too. Outside of his more spectacular acts—such as the abolition of the fez and the veil and the introduction of the Latin alphabet—most of Ataturk's reforms were unobtrusive.

Moreover, though he took away the political power of the Moslem church, which had retarded progress in Turkey since the days of Mohammed, the faithful were not persecuted; and though, like the Nazis, he preached self-sufficiency, he never allowed it to become a fetish. Compare this to the present regime in Germany.

Foreign Policy Same.

A sane foreign policy also contributes to the potential strength of Turkey's position. Its leaders have contrived for twenty years to embrace Russia without also embracing bolshevism; a treaty of friendship with Italy has survived the severe friction over sanctions at the time of the Ethiopian war; bitter quarrels with Greece have been patched up, and since 1932 Turkey has been a model member of the League of Nations. Her pact with Persia, Iran and Iraq has made her strong in the middle east, and with the sponsoring of the Balkan pact in 1933 she has emerged also as a leader among her small neighbors in Europe.

With her old ally, Germany, she has been friendly despite the fact that she has come out on the short end of a good many of the typical Nazi barter agreements.

Pact Faces Test.

England and Turkey signed a military alliance a year ago which now is about to be put to the supreme test. It obligates them to fight side by side against anyone—except Russia—who disturbs the peace of the Balkans. So far it has affected none of Turkey's other relations; she still is allied with Russia and even now officially friendly with Germany. She is on good terms with all the great powers and has been able to remain completely independent — a feat achieved by straight dealing and moderation.

This "splendid isolation" from the quarrels of the world may be rudely shattered any day as Italy penetrates Greece and Hitler hints of giving the signal for his troops to march through Bulgaria toward Constantinople (Istanbul).

CAMERA SCHOOL R.C.A.F. UNIT

Rockcliffe Air Station Trains Men in Aerial Photography

Ottawa, Nov. 14 CP).—The aerial camera is the eye of the modern army and a school of photography is an important branch of the Royal Canadian Air Force establishment at Rockcliffe Air Station.

Officials at R.C.A.F. headquarters say Canada stands high among the nations in military photography because of her 20-year background of peacetime mapping of large areas from the air.

The Rockcliffe school is commanded by Sqdn. Ldr. J. R. Cairns. Officers, non-commissioned officers and men study the technique of aerial photography and learn how to make maps on the basis of photographs.

It was Sqdn. Ldr. Cairns who convinced the Dominion government in 1921 of the possibilities of aerial map-making. In that year a party of surveyors was working in northern Manitoba. They had to travel by canoe with their heavy instruments and camp equipment.

Cairns encountered them on a flying trip into the northland. Without telling them his plans he flew all over the area, taking photographs. A week later he was developing the pictures in Ottawa. From them he mapped the territory.

It was weeks later before the ground surveyors came out, and more months passed before their calculations were completed and a map made. It wasn't as accurate as the one Sqdn. Ldr. Cairns made in a couple of weeks.

Essential Work.

Today, the fire-proof vaults at Rockcliffe station hold more than 1,000,000 negatives taken during the aerial mapping of large sections of Canada. The pioneers who developed aerial photography in the dominion are training scores of younger men to operate the camera eyes of Canada at war.

R.C.A.F. officials say aircraft flying at great height can photograph large areas of hostile territory with meticulous detail. The use of infra-red filters makes ground haze and war-raised dust no handicap. The pictures are vital in planning offensives and searching out camouflaged gun emplacements, munitions dumps and troop concentrations.

The course at Rockcliffe is for 12 weeks with 10 weeks additional for men who are to become instructors at the ten training schools for observers set up under the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. Many graduates may be technicians in developing and printing, attached to R.C.A.F. squadrons sent overseas, officials said.

U-BOAT CAPTAIN HELPED VICTIMS

Told Them He Was Sorry For Fatalities And Gave Them a "Lift"

Swansea, Wales, Nov. 14—(CP)—A U-boat commander towed a lifeboat containing survivors of a ship he had torpedoed, gave them supplies and apologized for sinking their vessel in a manner contrasting strikingly with the usual behavior of U-boat men, according to Arthur Hulland.

Hulland was cook aboard the oil tanker British Fame torpedoed in the Atlantic last August. When the survivors in the lifeboat came alongside the submarine the commander asked "how many have I killed?" Hulland related. He was told three with the first torpedo.

The German said he was sorry and asked survivors to convey his regret to their families when they reached home.

"There you are," he added. "It is your duty to bring petrol into your country and it is mine to stop it. It is your turn this time. Perhaps it may be mine next."

The commander provided the survivors with food, water and tobacco and then took them in tow until the tow rope snapped. Not considering the spot a safe one for him to linger in, the commander then set the lifeboat a course to the Azores. The survivors reached there safely after five and a half days.

AT THE BELLE

"Flowing Gold"

"Flowing Gold", thrilling saga of life and love in the Texas oil fields is now playing at the Belle theatre. The highly lauded Warner Bros. film transcription of Rex Roach's immortal novel stars John Garfield, Frances Farmer and Pat O'Brien.

The new motion picture largely concerns itself with Johnny Blake, John Garfield's role, an iconoclastic young drifter doomed to the life of a fugitive after killing a man in sel-defence. In his wanderings about the country he meets up with Hap O'Connor, played by Pat O'Brien. Hap's rough exterior hides a heart of gold, and he is extremely grateful to Johnny after the latter saves his life in a free-for-all brawl.

Complications arise when both men fall in love with the beautiful and vibrant Linda Chalmers, played by Frances Farmer, daughter of their eccentric employer. The pair save her oil wells from the machinations of a conniving rival and manage to capture flowing gold—the rich black Texas oil.

West coast critics are unanimous in their praise of "Flowing Gold," referring to it as one of the most exciting action-dramas of the year. They were particularly impressed with the performance of John Garfield and Pat O'Brien as the honest, rugged oilmen. Much space was also devoted to mention of beautiful Frances Farmer's flawless portrayal after a too-long absence on the New York stage.

In addition to its three dynamic stars, "Flowing Gold" features such well-known supporting players as Raymond Walburn, Cliff Edwards. "Flowing Gold" is the picturization of Rex Beach's best loved adventure story.

"Money and the Woman"

Mystery movie fans are in for a treat when "Money and the Woman" is presented as the companion feature attraction. Starring Jeffrey Lynn and Brenda Marshall, the Warner Bros. thriller was adapted from a story by James M. Cain, author of that popular mystery play, "The Postman Always Rings Twice."

Jeffrey Lynn, who recently turned in such a grand performance as the minister in "All This and Heaven Too," plays the leading role of a young bank executive. Brenda Marshall, rewarded by her studio for the fine job she turned in as Donna Maria in "The Sea Hawk" appears as the wife of a young bank clerk, who is under investigation. Roger Pryor, in the role of the bank clerk, has come under the influence of a gang of criminals and becomes involved in a murderous plot to loot the bank of $90,000.

Miss Marshall, who has become suspicious of her husband, because of his constant philanderings, offers to help Jeffrey Lynn solve the bank robbery. The trail toward success however, is fraught with danger and before the two can successfully solve the case, several murders and countless thrills cross their track.

The supporting cast includes many of the most popular character actors in Hollywood, among these are John Litel, who is seen as Lynn's friend, Roger Pryor, the bank clerk, Lee Patrick, the other woman, Henry O'Neill and Guinn "Big Boy" Williams.

"Money and the Woman" is a picture that should be seen by every moviegoer in Belleville and vicinity that craves thrills, excitement and mystery.

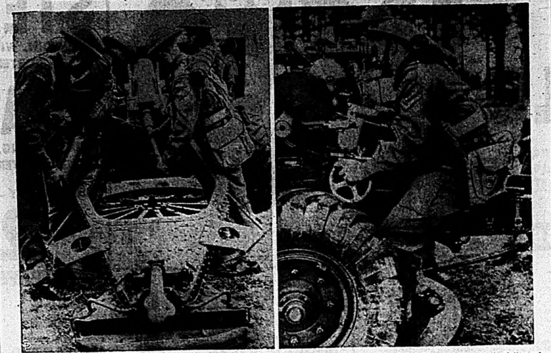
"On Foreign News Fronts" is the title of the new issue of the March of Time to be presented on the same program.

PROTECTING POSTIES

London (CP)—Postmen in rural districts, with no shelter facilities, are to be supplied with steel helmets that they may carry on during raids. Metropolitan post office workers have already been supplied.

Triple star team, John Garfield, Frances Farmer and Pat O'Brien, as the adventuresome trio in the exciting picturization of Rex Beach's best loved adventure story, "Flowing Gold," now at the Belle with Jeffry Lynn and Brenda Marshall in the romantic mystery story, "Money and the Woman."

CANADIAN ARTILLERYMEN UNDERGO TRAINING WITH AN "EYE FOR THE FUTURE"



Units of the Royal Canadian Artillery now stationed in England are undergoing strenuous training manoeuvres on the south coast. Members of the R.C.A., who have been highly praised by high ranking British officers for their efficiency, are shown ABOVE, during manoeuvres. These gunners will give a good account of themselves on the great day when England will begin land operations against Germany and Italy.

BRITAIN'S FIRST LINE OF DEFENCE ON PATROL

A group of British destroyers are silhouetted against the sky-line as they patrol the much-troubled waters around the British Isles. It is their duty to clear the water lanes of any enemy craft, so that transports and cargo vessels may make safe journeys.

AT THE McCARTHY

"London Can Take It"

The following is a review on "London Can Take It" written by Roly Young and published October 30th 1940.

"Biggest thrill among the war films to date is a little ten-minute item called "London Can Take It" which will be given nationwide release in Canada this week by Warner Brothers, who are handling it on a cost basis for the British Government. It's a long, long time since I've seen a short subject that could pack so much emotional and dramatic wallop into one reel. Credit for much of this impact can be given to Quintin Reynolds, war correspondent for Collier's magazine who gives the commentary in a minor key, never raising his voice above a very quiet conservational tone, but putting such awe into his remarks that they seem almost supernatural. "London Can Take It" is just the story of the nightly air raid. It starts as the people are going home from work; it shows them getting into their shelters; actual night shots are lighted by the flash of bombs and the glare of fires, while some of the most striking scenes are those of the anti-aircraft guns lighted by their own flash. You see the civilian army at work, combatting the destruction, and then as dawn breaks, London awakens, starts back to work with that indomitable spirit which is the keynote of this entire picture. It is the vivid living picturization of something we all want to know and believe, to wit, that all the Hun frightfulness is a vain gesture, because "London Can Take It." This special screen attraction will be presented on the screen of the McCarthy theatre starting this weekend, in addition to the present program playing "Blondie's newest laugh hit" the Bumstead family in "Blondie Plays Cupid" and the co-feature "Girls Under 21" featuring Rochelle Hudson and Paul Kelly.

AT THE CAPITOL

"It's In the Air."

Roly Young says: So you want to laugh? Okay, make a couple of dates to see George Formby in "It's In the Air," at the Capitol. The first time just go ahead and laugh with the rest of the audience and then go the second time and get a new series of laughs by catching the gags that you laughed through the first time.

However, the important thing about this film is Mr. Formby. Mr. Formby is a rare type of comedian; you not only laugh at and with him, but you like him as well. So often comedians, in their efforts to look funny, make themselves repulsive, and while you may laugh at them and their looks, you instinctly feel that you wouldn't want to associate with them. Formby is just the opposite. He doesn't have to make himself look funny, Nature looked after that. He's positively weird to look at, but he has a nice personality with it and once you get used to him you begin to like the guy. That's one big secret of his success in England, which will be repeated over here.

The general idea of this review so far is that I'm sold 100 per cent on George Formby. He's the most refreshing laugh purveyor the screen has brought us in years.

As for the picture, well it's about a guy who can't tell his left hand from his right and his inefficiency during Air Raid Precaution drill loses him his uniform. When his sister's boy friend changes to civies at their house, George gets into the R.A.F. uniform and from then on things happen fast and furious. He is mistaken for a dispatch rider, has an hilariously hectic time with a drill squad and ends up piloting a new bomber in spite of the fact that he's never been in a plane before in his life.

Added features with this attraction are "Now It Can Be Told," an all-star comedy, Popular Science in technicolor, Tim Tyler's Luck serial and Universal News of the Day.

The Stars Say

For Friday, November 15

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

AN INTERESTING and eventful day, in which tact, stratagem, intrigue, and confidential proceedings may result in surprising denouement. These are likely to culminate in the public eye, with the endorsement and signs of preferment from those in power and authority. Innovation, originality, romance and adventure have their influential place in contributing to a mappy, progressive and probably thrilling state of affairs, in which creative ability, high ideals and spiritual faculties seek crystallized expression.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves confronted by a year in which peculiar experiences or extraordinary contacts may make life thrilling, romantic, adventurous and even specctacular. There are subtle and intriguing forces at work, calling for finesse and subtlety in order to put over programs in which the ideals, aspirations, intuitions seek expression. This may be the form of art, music, poetry, drama, possibly politics, adventure or romance in which the finer creative urges demand expression.

A child born on this day may have an unusual and intriguing character, the heights and depths of which may prove unfathomable. It should be strongly intuitive, aspirational, idealistic.

AIKEN'S W.M.S.

The November meeting of Aiken's W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Bruce Hogle on Wednesday afternoon.

An exceptionally fine program was given with the president, Mrs. Fred Westover, leading in the worship service. Letters were read from Mrs. Chas. Moon and Mrs. Perry Hamilton for remembrances sent and Mrs. Lee Grills read a letter of thanks from Mrs. O. S. Reddick, supply secretary, for bale received from this society.

The Scripture was read by Mrs. Spafford and the offering was received and dedicated by the singing of a hymn. Rev. L. W. Scott was present and spoke on "Re-making the World". A missionary duet was rendered by Mrs. Geo. Millard and Mrs. Fred Westover.

A short temperance play was presented under the direction of Mrs. Bruce Hogle, secretary of Christian Friendship and Temperance, with Mrs. Millard, Mrs. S. Westover and Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton assisting.

A solo was given by Mrs. (Rev.) L. W. Scott. A reading was given by Mrs. Bruce Hogle. The third chapter of the study book was given under the leadership of Mrs. Hogle, assisted by Mrs. Perry Hamilton, Mrs. Wheeler, Mrs. C. Grill, Mrs. Scott, Mrs. Ken Bush and Mrs. Spafford.

This service reverently commemorated the life and service of Miss Minnie Shipley, a pilgrim of the Honon Road, whose life was dedicated to missionary work in North Honan, China. For twenty-five years Miss Shipley served in that field as a friend and counsellor of village women, as pioneer in the movement for a reading church, as leader in rural evangelism and as inspirer and colleague of the young Christian leaders, who today are carrying on the work she began.

A fine and interesting report of the W.M.S. rally at Cannifton which had been prepared by Mrs. Cyril McMullen was read by Mrs. Fred Moon.

The meeting was closed with prayer and the benediction by the pastor, Rev. L. W. Scott.

"VERBOTEN" ROAD

This amusing sign at a sentry post in Dover strikes a humorous note. The notice written on the sign in German, reads, "Military warning. Danger to life, no through way," signed, "Heinrich von Pigow, Oberlieutenant." The sign was probably posted as a warning to possible Nazi invaders. A British Tommy grins at the notice as he leans on the barrier.

Little Benny's Note Book

We were eating breakfist this morning, being Nora's day off, and ma said to pop, Is there anything special on your mind in the way of a menu for this evening, Willyum, and please keep the fact pinned to your mind that we had liver and onions yestiddy.

Meaning not to suggest it again for today, and pop said, My deer, you've taken the wind from my sales and left my mind a blank.

Perhaps I can offer a suggestion, ma said. What would you say to a combination of several of your favorite dishes? she said, and pop said, Where have you been all my life? I'd say, Today's the day, he said.

Well then, you know how much you like onion soup, dont you? ma said, and pop said, I know it better than anybody.

Then that's the start, ma said. Then there will be old fashion corn pudding and scalloped potatoes and fried tomatoes southern style. That's in the way of vegetables, she said, and pop said, Good, dont let anything elts get in their way.

In the way of meat there'll be terkey stuffed with chessnuts, and lemon merrang pie in the way of dizert, ma said, and pop said, I'll be here promptly with a discreetly wattering mouth.

I know you imagine you have an unreasoning prejudice against resterants, but there's a new and very attractive looking place just opening today on the Avenue, and that's their special introductory menu, I got a notice from them in the mail ma said, and pop said, My deer, I'm a wiley old fox in fact I'm so cunning that I know when I'm trapped.

Meening he surrendered and being good news for me and ma on account of us both liking resterants.

Top-Grade Eggs Slightly Lower

Toronto, Nov. 14—Announcement that the Wartime Prices and Trade Board had been given authority to fix maximum prices on butter in Canada and the report of a weaker trend at Montreal helped to unsettle the undertone on the Toronto butter market.

Prices closed nominal as buyers, who had made substantial commitments over last week-end, displayed little interest in offerings. No. 1 grade Ontario creamery butter solids were offered in wholesale channels at the lower price of 30c a pound.

Further recessions occurred on top grades on the egg market owing to slightly increased receipts and continued slow trade. Under grades maintained a firm tone, however, as local demand was concentrated on these lower priced eggs.

formation indicated that the Cabinet also would discuss the situation in the North African colonies.

Might Risk Running Gauntlet

Berne, Switzerland, Nov. 14 (AP)—The Petain-Laval Government at Vichy is taking urgent steps to defend its African empire against inroads from Gen. Chas. De Gaulle's Free French forces, reports reaching diplomatic quarters here said today.

Unconfirmed reports reaching these sources said units of the French fleet had left Toulon and other continental bases for North African ports.

It could not be learned whether the fleet would merely pull in at Oran in North Africa to keep an eye on Gen. Maxime Weygand's North African activities or whether it might risk running the gauntlet at Gibraltar to get to an Atlantic port in Africa.

ASSUMES COMMAND

Tokyo, No. 14 (AP)—Domei, the Japanese News Agency, reported from Bangkok today that Premier Luang Bipul Songgram of Thailand (Siam) had assumed supreme command of the nation's armed forces with the approval of the Thai Regency Council.

The move apparently was made, Domei said, to prevent an attempt to overthrow the government.

DEFENCE FIGHTERS

The two formations tried what appeared to be a pincer movement, attacking from two directions.

The first wave of about a dozen bombers, escorted by three high-flying fighters, crossed the Kent coast and headed for the Capital at the same time as another wave of about 20 planes approached from the mouth of Thames.

Some raiders also were reported in the vicinity of the northeast coast during the morning.

Sirens wailed an alert in London shortly before noon and Axis raiders were reported over several Midlands towns as air attackers began their second year of assaults on British soil.

The "raiders passed" signal sounded after only a brief time in the Capital and one German bomber was reported shot down at Poole on the south coast, after a fight with British Spitfires. The crew was said to have been killed.

Weather Moderates

Weather in the Strait of Dover moderated after last night's gale, one of the worst of the year, which hampered the activity of night raiders. Only a few planes were reported over London before an all-clear ended the regularly nightly attack on the city.

"Bombs were dropped in one district in the London area and at some places in east and southeast England", the government reported in a communique. "In a town in East Anglia and in the London area a few houses were damaged. Elsewhere very little damage occurred. The only casualties are a small number of people injured".

London itself was quiet after a short raid, during which Royal Air force fighter planes climbed up to engage Axis bombers.

Watchers on the shore of an east coast Scottish town reported seeing a German raider shot down in flames and another probably damaged by anti-aircraft fire.

British bombers, an authoritative source said, attacked a number of objectives in Germany during the night, including some in the R.A.F.'s 30th raid on Berlin.

In the 12 months since the first bomb of the war dropped on British soil in an attack on the Shetland Islands Nov. 13, 1939, the government has reported 2,375 raiding planes shot down during assaults on the United Kingdom and shipping.

This represents an approximate loss of about 7,200 men, Royal Air force defence losses in this same period were reported at 815 fighters, but 405 of the pilots were saved.

Bombing casualties in the year were reported at about 15,000 killed and 21,500 wounded, 75 per cent in the London area.

SIMPLE BURIAL

The order of the Burial Service, printed in blue ink, had with it an air raid warning headed in red:—

"Should it be necessary to take cover during the service:—

Then it gave directions by which various parts of the congregation would be conducted to the safety of the Abbey's deeper sanctums.

Chamberlain's ashes were placed at the south side of the Abbey beside the plain grey stone marking the burial place of Andrew Bonar Law, Canadian-born prime minister of two decades ago.

Attendants said the burial service was one of the simplest held in the Abbey. The public were excluded and only a relatively small congregation was admitted to the Abbey by cards marked "Secret".

The pall bearers, who were seated on either side of the catafalque, were Mr. Churchill, Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary; Capt. E. A. Fitzroy, Speaker of the House of Commons; Viscount Simon, Lord Chancellor; Sir Archibald Sinclair, Secretary for Air; Capt. Henry Margesson, Chief Government whip in the House of Commons; Clement Attlee, Lord Privy Seal; Sir Kingsley Wood, Chancellor of the Exchequer; Earl Stanhope, former Cabinet Minister; and Arthur Chamberlain, a cousin of the late Prime Minister.

FRENCH COLONY

Win Air Bases

The Japanese already have won air bases and other military concessions and stationed troops in northern Indo-China.

Foreign officials saw another immediate source of danger to Indo-China in the current tension with Thailand (Siam). It was held likely that any serious clash between the two might be used as a Japanese pretext for landing troops and "restoring order".

Some Colonial leaders, including a number who favor the Free French movement of Gen. Charles De Gaulle and who oppose yielding to Japan are gathered at Saigon, but they lack the forces necessary to put up a successful fight.

British strategists are known to be deeply concerned by the likelihood of Japanese control of southern Indo-China, for Japanese troops there could move unopposed across Thailand and blockade the Malay Peninsula in the event of a British-Japanese conflict.

(Britain announced last night she had strengthened her forces in the Far East and had appointed Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham to be Commander in Chief in that area.)

CONFERENCE

'Mutual Trust' Says Communique

"An exchange of views was carried out in an atmosphere of mutual trust and led to mutual accord on all important questions of interest to Germany, and the U.S.S.R."

Molotoff was accompanied to the station by Foreign Minister Von Ribbentrop with whom he had a final conference of several hours last night after a formal reception at the Russian embassy.

Soviet Ambassador Alexander Schwarzew boarded the special train with his chief, who departed with the mystery which has surrounded his visit unrelieved by any immediate disclosure of the nature of his talks with Nazi leaders.

British aircraft lent a touch of excitement to the Russian statesman's visit last night in the the German capital by raiding the city for the first time since his arrival Tuesday morning.

Fires were started in the outskirts of the capital German authorities said.

(Zurich, Switzerland, had a brief air rair alarm at 11:45 p.m. (6:45 p.m. EDT) and a German plane later crashed in a neighboring canton.)

Second Meeting With Hitler

Molotoff had his second meeting with Hitler yesterday afternoon—a four-hour conference which followed talks with Marshal Goering and Deputy Nazi Leader Hess.

It was believed unlikely that any announcement concerning the outcome of the talks would be made here until Molotoff returned to Moscow and reported to his chief, Joseph Stalin.

Nazi Press Attitude.

The Nazi press, avoiding speculation on the nature of the Berlin conferences, devoted considerable space to a purported analysis of European history which, it said, gave a basis for future co-operation between Germany and Russia.

The Hamburger Fremdenblatt mentioned German-Russian co-operation during the Seven Years' War in the Napoleonic era and discussed family relationships between the Hohenzollerns and the Romanoffs.

(The last ruling Hohenzollern was Kaiser Wilhelm II who abdicated just before the close of the First Great War and was exiled to Doorn, Holland. The Romanoffs, Imperial family of Russia before the revolution, were killed by the Bolsheviks who laid the ground work for the present Stalinist regime.)

Germans Watch Reactions.

While maintaining silence regarding the subject of the talks between Hitler and Molotoff, German official circles watched with keen interest the reaction of the foreign press and radio.

(The official Turkish radio declared last night that the axis powers were in a hole because of Italy's attack upon Greece and said that Berlin, "having failed to win help from France and Spain, is now trying to win aid from Russia.")

(A high Turkish official in Ankara, meanwhile, said that should any decision be taken at Berlin "unfavorable to Turkey, this nation will not be taken unaware.")

Red Star Predicts Strengthening.

Moscow, Nov. 14 (AP).—Red Star, Soviet army organ, said today the visit to Berlin of Premier Molotoff would bring "a strengthening and development of Soviet-German relations in the interests of both countries".

This was the first Soviet comment on the premier's trip since a communique on Nov. 9 announced his acceptance of the German invitation to visit Berlin.

The newspaper, commenting on the visit, said:

"German and Italian newspapers emphasize that Molotoff's trip is an event of first-rate political significance. There is no doubt that the renewal of personal contact and a friendly exchange of opinions with leaders of German policy will make for further strengthening and development of Soviet-German relations in the interests of both countries."

Comment at Berlin

Although it was stated authoritatively that little, if anything, would be disclosed about the conferences beyond the communique issued after Molotoff's departure, informed sources indicated that it was now up to Turkey to decide whether she would join the forces creating "a new order" in Europe or whether she would stand aside from or even oppose them.

(As the Russian-German conferences began, there was widespread speculation, never confirmed in Berlin, that the talks would centre largely upon the role of Turkey, friend of Britain, in the near eastern phase of the war.)

Report Germans Expect Developments

Informed sources expressed the opinion that new develpments would result from the conferences, not only in Europe, but beyond the European continent. They doubted, however, whether these developments would become visible immediately. They intimated that immediate action resulted usually only after Hitler conferred with Mussolini.

Karl Schnurre, head of the German economic delegation to the U.S.S.R., returned on Molotoff's train to Moscow, as did the German ambassador to Moscow, Count Friedrich Von Der Schulenberg. The German delegation had been in Moscow for some time before Molotoff's visit.

ed retreating in a northeasterly direction.

Take Prisoners Without Resistance

"In a ravine locally called Prionia, we took our first 11 Italian prisoners without resistance. They raised their hands and shouted 'Viva Greca.'

"At 3 p.m. my battalion attacked, pressing around Distrato. A fight developed in the ravine while I was trying to climb Mount Smolika to gain a dominant firing position.

"A night attack launched by more battalions drove the Italians back north of Smolika and threw them into the ravine.

"There the fighting continued for six days. The Italians, being chased back from hilltop to hilltop, managed to take advantage of the terrain to circle about.

Wounded in Engagement

"At 1 p.m. on Nov. 5th I received orders to attack and occupy a strategic height with one company of infantry. The height was held by about 400 Italians with full equipment. They were supported by batteries on a hill 1,000 yards away but by 2.10 p.m. the height was taken, with the Italians driven back, leaving behind 64 dead and wounded and 27 prisoners.

"I was wounded in this engagement. The Italians, fighting in small groups of about 25, retreated in panic. My forces carried on the fight through Nov. 6 when reinforcements arrived. My men were so enthusiastic that I could not hold them back.

"On Nov. 6 the Italians still were being hotly pursued in the direction of Koritza when the retreat developed into an irregular flight, the Italians throwing away their equipment.

1,000 Killed.

"Up to eight o'clock that night, we had taken about 800 Italian prisoners and killed about 1,100.

"On the snow-covered summit of Mount Smolika, which is 2,500 feet high (highest in that region), about 250 Italians were killed by bayonet charges and machine-gun fire.

"At nine o'clock on the night of Nov. 6, an Italian cavalry column coming from the direction of Koritza to assist the retreat was held and dispersed and itself retreated in disorder.

"Panic spread to the whole column. They threw away everything they had in order to flee more quickly.

"We tied our prisoners together with ropes in groups of eighteen and led them back, each group being escorted by two Greeks.

"They made no resistance. On the contrary, they seemed pleased at their capture.

"Throughout the fighting, Italian planes with Greek colors machine-gunned and bombed the Greeks. During the first day they flew at 1,000 feet.

"Practically all the prisoners we took were young men 20 to 25 years old, many of them wearing beards like that of the late Italian Marshal Italo Balbo."

The figures given by Kyriakou did not cover the period since Nov. 6, during which the government has announced annihilation of the greater part of an Italian division.

anto is the fulfillment of that pledge".

The action at Taranto was the "climax to a black week for Italian arms", Mr. Alexander said.

Disastrous For Italians

"Their defeat at Galabat, their retreat and the destruction of divisions of their crack troops in Greece, the bombing of Italian bases in Albania and Italy, and blows inflicted on each and every arm of the Italian forces have reached their peak with the action at Taranto."

The Italian fleet had "carefully avoided" the action which the British had always sought in the Mediterranean and had "remained immobile behind the defences of their harbors."

"Even these defences, however, have failed to protect them," Mr. Alexander said. "Within their inglorious shelter, the Italian battle fleet has suffered a defeat."

"I once ventured to say that the Italian Admirals regarded their capital ships as a capital investment and appeared determined to emerge from the war with their capital intact.

"Today we have imposed a severe capital levy on the Italian Navy."

Mr. Alexander compared the success at Taranto with the "No less glorious fight of the Jervis Bay—a fight against overwhelming odds."

"The Jervis Bay," he said, "secured the escape of the vast majority of the convoy in her charge."

In contrast to this tribute was Mr. Alexander's reference to a raid made by British light surface forces on four Italian transports in the Straits of Taranto. In this action, he said, the escorting destroyers fled from the scene when the attack began, and one was damaged by gunfire. One transport was sunk, two set on fire, and one heavily damaged.

Mr. Alexander also paid tribute to men of the fleet air arm for their work in the bombardment of Taranto.

yards and other objectives in mid-Berlin, despite miserable flying weather.

There was evidence, too, of aggressive British preparation for defence of far eastern bases and possessions.

An Air Marshal, Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, was made Commander-in-Chief of the Far East with headquarters in Singapore and it was disclosed that reinforcements had reached British bastions in the Orient.

Plane Carrier in Use

Something of the nature of the Monday night raid on Taranto was disclosed last night by the First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander when he paid tribute to the forces involved—including the captains of the Aircraft Carriers Eagle and Illustrious.

That means that planes from at least three British Aircraft Carriers now are operating against southern Italy. For the Ark Royal has been named in accounts of the bombing of other objectives.

The Aircraft Carriers Courageous and Glorious were sunk earlier in the war and the action against southern Italy is the first known instance of the use of this type of warship in a major action since the Norwegian campaign. The Glorious was sunk off Norway; the Courageous in the western part of the English Channel.

Special Tributes Paid

Mr. Alexander singled out for special tribute Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham Commander-in-Chief of the Mediterranean fleet; Rear-Admiral Arthur Lyster head of the fleet air arm, and Captains Bridge and Boyd of the Eagle and Illustrious respectively.

Ironically, Capt. Lyster was appointed a Cavalier of the Italian Order of the Crown for services in the First Great War. He commanded the Glorious before she was lost off Norway.

"Widespread" Raids Over Germany

The attacks on the German capital were carried out during "widespread operations" over Germany in the face of "extremely adverse weather", a communique declared.

Among the targets listed as bombed in the Berlin area were the Schleisischer railway station and the Grunewald freight yards.

Bombs started a "number of fires" the Ministry said.

'Bursts Observed On Targets'

An electrical power station at Cologne, inland docks at Duisburg-Ruhrort, industrial targets at Dortmund and Dusseldorf and a batter of coke ovens at Lintfort also were attacked and "bursts were observed on all these targets".

Other objectives, the Ministry's communique said were oil plants at Gelsenkirchen, Hanover and Leuna, airdromes at Haamstede, Kfeuzbruck and Lubeck and a seaplane base at Norderney. Docks at Calais and Wilhelmshaven also were reported bombed.

Two planes were lost in the operations.

Blind Members of Community Will Be Guests at Concert

Blind persons in the community will be guests of the Canadian Concert Association for the new series of concerts this season. They will be entertained to the first program when Thomas L. The concert to which the blind were invited last season was so greatly enjoyed by them that the association arranged that they should be special guests at future concerts.

SEARCHERS HUNT

Dramatic rescues yesterday cut the death toll.

At Pentwater, 15 miles south of here, a fisherman, Clyde Cross, piloted his bobbing fishing tug Three Brothers, alongside the stricken Novadoc and took aboard 17 seamen who had clung to the battered hulk all Tuesday night.

Fears that the New Haven Socony and its crew of 16 had foundered were dissipated yesterday when the 251-foot tanker, with compass and radio disabled and navigation charts washed overboard, reached East Chicago, Ind., after a 48-hour battle with waves that swept away the pilot house.

INVESTIGATORS BEGIN PROBE OF 3 EXPLOSIONS

Reports of Other Blasts and Violent Incidents Follow Tuesday's Explosions

(By The Associated Press).

A series of blasts in United States explosive plants—one of which was engaged in defence manufacture —drew the attention of investigators in an attempt to determine whether they were connected with possible sabotage efforts.

A three-way inquiry was begun into the explosion in which eight were killed and 26 injured at the plant of the United Railway Signal Company Plant, Woodbridge, N.J., Tuesday. Although there apparently were no indications of sabotage, authorities had not altogether ruled out this possibility. The company makes railroad signal torpedoes and other safety devices.

Three were killed in the plant of the Trojan Powder Company, Allentown, Pa., which had army and navy contracts for explosives. Those killed were in a building where detonators were made.

Three more died in the Burton Powder Works of The American Cyanamid Corporation at Edinburg, Pa., in an explosion of 1,000 pounds of dynamite.

Federal Bureau of Investigation men were conducting investigations at each plant.

All three explosions occurred two months to a day after the mysterious blasts which killed 51, September 12 in the plant of the Hercules Powder Company at Kenvil, N.J.

Reports of Other Blasts

On the heels of the powder plant explosions came reports of other blasts and violent incidents, at least one occurring under mysterious circumstances.

A 10,000-gallon storage tank exploded at the Canton Refining Company, Canton, O. About 1,000 gallons of fuel oil burned fiercely and threatened four other tanks for a time. The blast's force blew the top off the tank and knocked down several employees, but none was injured. It appeared to be accidental.

In Oklahoma, an explosion damaged units of the Phillips Forrester No. 1 oil well under circumstances which the plant foreman said were mysterious. No one was working at the time.

Two men were killed and two others injured when a shipbuilding crane at San Francisco's Western Pipe and Steel Company capsized. The incident was reported to the F.B.I.

Fire believed of incendiary origin broke out in a locker room of the Todd dry docks in Seattle shortly after plant officials began an investigation of a series of incidents in which machinery had been damaged with emery dust at the dockyard. The fire caused little damage.

Chairman Dies Comments

Commenting on the chain of explosives plant blasts, Representative Martin Dies (Dem.-Texas), Chairman of the House of Representatives Committee investigating unAmerican activities, declared he was dispatching investigators to "every scene of trouble." He said, "The acts of sabotage in the past 24 hours are only a beginning," and added that he would ask a Congressional appropriation to conduct a nationwide "close-in" on all subversive elements.

CANADIANS FAIL SUFFICIENT USE OF HEALTH AIDS

Millions Spent Annually for Services of Which Best Use is Not Taken by People of Dominion

Ottawa, Nov. 14 (CP).—Maintenance of public health in Canada costs $193,000,000 or $19 a person, annually, according to latest official figures. This, say experts of the pensions and health department, is a higher figure than Canadians spend on education and only just below the sum spent on clothing each year.

The National Committee for Mental Hygiene has just concluded a thorough survey of medical care and public health services in Canada and concludes that full advantage of what science has made available for use in prevention and treatment of disease, is not being taken.

Death rates for first-year infants varies greatly in different parts of Canada where conditions are comparable, the committee report said, adding that 2,500 more beds are needed in Quebec and the Maritimes for tuberculosis cases alone, and 500 for other provinces. An additional 8,500 beds are needed for treatment of mental illness in Canada.

Medical Service Army.

The report said more than 55,000 Canadians, including 10,000 physicians and surgeons, 4,000 dentists and 20,000 graduate nurses earn their living by providing public health and medical services. Of the $193,000,000 spent annually, the committee's survey showed that 72 per cent is paid by private individuals, 21 per cent by governments and seven per cent comes from philanthropy and industry.

Of the annual expenditure roughly $90,000,000 goes to doctors and dentists and nurses; $50,000,000 represents hospital costs, less salaries of personnel; $12,000,000 is spent for physicians' prescriptions; $50,000,000 on drugs and $33,000,000 on patent medicines and drug sundries. Sanitation costs for a year run to $12,000,000.

The committee reported that organizations to secure medical care in groups are growing in the Dominion and through workmen's compensation several millions of dollars a year are being spent in this manner.

Schemes whereby employees each contribute a small sum a week to cover medical care are developing in the various provinces, most novel of these being the municipal physician system operating in Western Canada.

This system has made the most progress in Saskatchewan, the committee said. Under the plan a physician is engaged at a salary to provide general practitioner care for approximately 2,000 people living in a certain area. Cost is met through a land tax, the average annual price per person in rural areas being $2.12. This plan, the committee found, is operating in approximately 100 rural municipalities and 50 towns in Western Canada.

STAFFS "SLEEP IN" IN LONDON STORE

Basement Equipped Like Hotel to Meet Emergency of Air Raids

London, Nov. 14 (CP).—Provision for skeleton staffs to sleep in basements, earlier closing and special facilities for employees with long journeys to leave early are among arrangements made by big London stores to combat effects of shortening daylight hours and longer night raids.

At one large, fashionable Kensington store plans have been completed for a nucleus staff of 500—one-tenth of the whole personnel—to sleep in basements equipped like a hotel. A snack bar, restaurant, smoke room, games parlor and radio lounge will be among the amenities.

Another big store nearby closes at five o'clock but many clerks leave earlier in order to arrive home before the sirens sound.

"The ingenuity of our girls is amazing," the staff manager of a third store said. "Some of them have to use tram, train and bus on the homeward journey and others hitch-hike."

Question of store closing has been discussed at the Home Office by a deputation representing store and distributive workers throughout the country. They urged fixing a general early closing hour, applicable to all stores, a delegation of power to local authorities to vary the hour when necessary.

GREAT GAPS MARK MIDDLE TEMPLE'S BOMBING ATTACKS

Historic Rooms of Famous British Writers Smashed in Nazi Raids but Valuable Works Saved

London, Nov. 14 (CP).—Historic Middle Temple Hall, damaged heavily by a bomb during a recent air attack, was opened by Queen Elizabeth in 1576 and it was there that Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night" was performed for the first time by the playwright's own company in 1601.

One end of the beautiful building, one of London's most famous tourist attractions, has been wrecked and the whole structure has been evacuated.

The Inner Temple Hall nearby had been bombed previously. There is scarcely a building in these ancient Inns of Courts which does not bear the marks of bomb explosions.

The bomb that mutilated the Middle Temple Lane and also razed some of the buildings. There are two great gaps facing the ruined end of the Hall.

Works of Art Moved.

An official of the Middle Temple Treasury said most of the priceless works of art in the Hall, including portraits of Queen Elizabeth, Charles I on horseback, attributed to Van Dyck, and portraits of other sovereigns, and the valuable stained glass windows, were removed at the start of the war.

The double-hammered beam roof, one of the finest in Britain, and the famous panelling were damaged, however, for the bomb completely destroyed the east wall.

The Minstrels' Gallery has gone. Debris fell on the serving table said to have been made from Drake's ship, the Golden Hind, and the benchers' table reputed to have been the gift of Queen Elizabeth.

No Serious Casualties.

Crown Office Row, where Charles Lamb was born, was damaged. Horace Wyndham, the author, had a narrow escape while sitting in the back room of his chambers. Other chambers were demolished. There were no serious casualties but twelve persons were rescued from a damaged cellar.

Brick Court, where Oliver Goldsmith died, has had its roof damaged and windows smashed. The rooms where the author of "The Vicar of Wakefield" was visited by Dr. Samuel Johnson, who looked at the manuscript and sold it for £60 ($267) have no windows. The brickwork about the commemorative plaque is chipped.

Broken glass was found on the reputed tomb of Goldsmith by the Temple Church. A rafter from Elm Court was hurled into Brick Court, some distance away. Parts of Goldsmith Buildings, Elm Court, and Essex Court also suffered. But behind the shuttered windows minus glass, typewriters of the law still click.

Cables from the Dominions and the United States expressing sympathy have been received by the authorities.

Nineteen inches of rain fell during 36 hours and the Calcutta mail train bound for Bombay was cancelled because of floods.

Remembrance Day

The war veterans of the village of Bancroft made Remembrance Day this year very impressive by organizing the Boys Scouts and the Non-Permanent Active Militia under command of Major Babcock to make their parade a standout. The Boy Scouts, war veterans and members of the N.P.A.M. assembled at the Community Hall prior to ten o'clock a.m., forming into their respective groups, then marched into the Community Hall for a memorial service conducted under the joint supervision of the Rev. N. R. Flowers, pastor of St. Paul's United Church and the Rev. G. A. Gordier, rector of St. John's Anglican Church. Singing was led by combined choirs of both churches accompanied by Miss Jessie Colling as organist. The hall was neatly decorated for the service and a large audience was in attendance. Following the forty-five minute service the war veterans, Boy Scouts and militia filed out of the hall, forming up again into column of march and paraded to the cenotaph for the final service which was conducted by the Rev. G. A. Gordier which consisted of the placing of the memorial wreath on the cenotaph by Mrs. Thos. Letts, Sr., of Turriff, brief prayers, followed by a two-minute silence at 11 a.m. and the sounding of the Last Post. The various groups again took position and marched around the block halting on Front Street to honour the war veterans as they passed in front of the local militia. Immediately following the parade "A" company was dismissed at the orderly room.

Hold Bridge Party

The war veterans held their annual bridge, euchre and dance in the Community Hall Monday evening which was well attended despite the terrible night, rain having fallen throughout the day. Ladies bridge was won by Mrs. W. A. Dillon, gentlemen's bridge by Mr. P. McCaul; ladies' euchre by Miss Rea Stringer and gentlemen's euchre by Mr. Archie Eddy. Following cards the dancers got under way to the ever popular strains of the old war tunes by the Troubadour Orchestra. At midnight lunch was served and immediately afterwards the prizes were awarded. Drawing for a hand appliqued quilt took place, which quilt was donated to the war workers by Miss Sarah Plumley and the lucky winner was Mrs. Roy Robison. A number of Christmas cakes were auctioned off and the dance was resumed until 2.15 when the party came to a close with the playing of the National Anthem.

'CHUTE TROOPS MAY BE RAISED FOR DOMINION

Air Minister Power Says Scheme Will Probably be Joint Undertaking by Army and Air Force

By FRANK FLAHERTY

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Nov. 14 — (CP) — Bold and bright young men with a yen for excitement will be in demand when and if a corps of Canadian parachute troops, now under consideration, is organized.

Air Minister Power has announced that formation of such a corps is being considered as one of the steps which should be taken with a view to a possible offensive by Empire forces.

In planning for parachute troops the Canadian authorities are taking a couple of leaves out of the new books on tactics of the German and Russian armies. Moreover, the United States Army is engaged in the organization of a parachute battalion. At Fort Benning, Georgia, a parachute unit is being recruited from 34 infantry organizations, each infantry unit being given a quota in the new corps.

Parachute troops were used by the Germans in Holland, Belgium, France and Norway with some success and by the Russians in the Finnish war with somewhat less success, according to available reports. Just how big a factor they were in the German advance last spring has not been authoritatively determined but military authorities seem to be in agreement that the parachutist has a definite place in the fast-moving offensive operations of these days of mechanized warfare.

Fight On Their Own

Intelligence and resourcefulness together with daring shape up as prime requisites for a parachutist. In the parachute forces every jumper, once he makes his jump, becomes his own general for the time being. Groups of men may be dropped from planes at one place to assemble under a designated commander but each man must use his own wits when he lands.

The highest kind of courage is required of a man who jumps from an airplane into hostile territory. The jumping itself becomes second nature through training but the courage comes in when the man faces armed formations and possibly a hostile civil population single-handed.

Maj. Power said the parachute scheme will probably be a joint undertaking by the army and the air force. The men will come from the army and be trained by the air force in jumping but once on the ground they will operate as soldiers.

According to information available here it is probable that men for the jobs will be hand-picked from the army and not enlisted directly from civilian life as parachute men. The army, once plans are formulated, might ask for volunteers and choose the keen, daring type of fellow who will make the best parachutist.

Most Mobile Force

Available information, indicates the German parachute troops are a special formation within the air force. They are believed to be volunteers. Parachute troops are considered the most highly mobile force yet developed. They are a sort of super-cavalry and fulfil somewhat the same function in a modern army as did the horseman in the days of slow-moving armies.

They can be placed anywhere in short order to attack communication lines and key points, to create confusion in the enemy's back areas and to secure information. Placed in suitable locations, parachutists may send off wireless or visual signals to aircraft.

At the moment there is no intention of training Canadian parachutists to serve as fifth columnists. Hence present plans call for no particular stress to be placed upon the language qualifications of the men selected for the work.

WINTER SHIPPING FOR WELSH COAL

Producers Hope Trade With Canada is Continued The Year Round

Swansea, Wales, Nov. 14—(CP)—West Wales anthracite coal circles have high hopes that trade with Canada will be continued during the winter months.

In view of the external markets lost to the anthracite trade in France and Italy, there is grave danger that many collieries may have to close down.

A conference, attended by D. R. Grenfell, minister for mines, was held of all the interests concerned and it is understood that negotiations which have been proceeding here and at London for an arrangement whereby shipments to Canada would continue all the year round are making favorable headway.

Usually the season extends from April to November and during that period substantial trade is carried on with the Dominion. The St. Lawrence River is closed by ice in the other months and shipments in the ordinary course, cease until the first open water.

ESCAPE ADVENTURE IS REAL THRILLER

Polish Sergeant, Once Canadian, Now in England, Has Stirring Tale

London, Nov. 14—(CP)— How "Jan", bearded Polish sergeant, escaped from Warsaw as the Germans marched in a year ago reads like an episode from an Edgar Wallace thriller.

Jan, who learned to speak a little English as a lumberjack in Canada, is now in the Polish brigade, with the British forces in Palestine. The tale is issued by the Ministry of Information here.

"My battalion," says Jan, "was brought back to defend Warsaw. We fought from street to street and there's nothing like a torn-up street to stop tanks." Then ammunition ran short. A German bomber "blew hell out of high water" and Jan and his fellow-soldiers had to leave their barricade, split up, and make for a railway line leading south.

"I hid in what was left of a dressmaker's shop for a couple of nights and knowing the Germans had entered the city dumped my uniform and put on a flashy dress," Jan related. He joined a crowd of refugees trekking out of Warsaw. It was stopped by a German patrol.

Jan tried to sneak into an alley.

"A little German soldier spotted me and shouted 'where are you going?' I slid into an open doorway and gave him the works with my Mauser. It took only a couple of minutes to strip him and get out as a full private of the Wurtemberg Hussars.

"Three days later I came across the body of a Polish peasant, did another quick change act and finally joined up with a section of Polish regulars making for the Rumanian frontier....We outnumbered the frontier post guard so handed the sergeant a bribe with one hand and took it back with the other."

The rest was easy—comparatively.

SHOW RUSSIANS GERMAN WRECKS

Labor M. P. Suggests Eye-Opening Tour For Soviet Officials in England

London, Nov. 14—(CP)— John Morgan, Labor M.P. for Doncaster in the House of Commons, asked Col. J. J. Llewellin, parliamentary secretary to the ministry of aircraft production, if he would suggest to competent Soviet authorities that it might be in their interest to accept an offer of a conducted tour of various dumps of wrecked German aircraft.

Col. Llewellin in a written reply said "there are a large number of wrecked German aircraft on exhibition throughout the country. Should representatives of the Soviet or any other government represented at the court of St. James's wish to see them, I should be glad to arrange any assistance they may desire."

NO WALKOVER PAPER WARNS

London Journal Sees Victory Ahead But Long Hard Road to Go

London, Nov. 14—(CP)—Warning that there can be "no walkover to victory" for Britain is sounded by the Daily Sketch in an editorial.

"There appears to be at the moment rather to omuch easy optimism about, mostly engendered by the magnificent work of the R.A.F." says The Sketch. "This work does indeed give us grounds for a steady confidence in the ultimate result. But that does not justify even an approach to the assumption that we have anything but a long and hard road in front of us. That we shall beat him (the enemy) no one doubts who has made a careful reckoning of all the factors involved. But there is a danger that after arriving at this conclusion we may forget the factors."

MEXICO LINKS HER DEFENCES TO U.S. AND LATIN AMERICA BY UNIVERSAL CONSCRIPTION

Army to Expand By 200,000 Men in Two Years

By JACK STARR-HUNT
(C.P.C. Correspondent)

Mexico City, Nov. 14. — Mexico's "tough little army" of approximately 52,000 officers and men is going to be increased by 200,000 within the next two years.

Linking her defence measures to those of the United States and the rest of Latin America, Mexico recently adopted a sweeping universal conscription law for the first time in history. The first two divisions of 12,000 men each will be called to duty on Jan. 1, 1941. Thereafter, other groups will be summoned for training until the desired expansion is reached.

Almost overlooked in the summer's general political excitement, the new law was passed by congress and approved by President Cardenas. Supplies and equipment for the new forces are being assembled as rapidly as possible, and war department specialists are hard at work ironing out details for training of the nation's man-power.

Urged By United States.

Mexico City military circles have no doubt that the revolutionary step was largely brought about by gentle urging from the United States. Mexicans, like Americans, have traditionally shunned the idea of conscription. But once proposed, the law met little opposition in congress and has been greeted with enthusiasm by the people. Posters, put out by most labor organizations such as the CTM, have lately plastered the city, urging the nation to organize for national defence.

All able-bodied males in the republic between the ages of 18 and 45 will now be liable for military service. After a year's training with the army, each man will be on call for active duty for a period of four years after his return to civilian life. After that, he will pass into successive reserve groups until he reaches the age of 45, when he will become part of a proposed home guard.

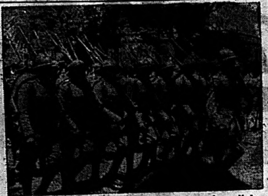
All classes of the nation will be affected. From the wealthy man's son to the humble peon, toiling in the fields and mountains in remote parts of the country.

For the first time in their lives, thousands of illiterate and ragged Indians will be moved from their straw huts to military centres. There they will be taught the rudiments of modern warfare, clothed, fed and trained to read and write. Many of them will learn trades in the army's vocational schools. Many of them will learn to think of their country in a new way, as a nation among the nations of the world, as an object for their fierce but undirected loyalties.

Far Reaching.

This mobilization of the relatively untouched levels of the population is, in the opinion of foreign observers as well as educated Mexicans, one of the most significant and far-reaching steps that Mexico has ever taken. It is one of the reasons why there was little effective opposition to the law.

In a country where roughly half of the population cannot read nor write, where the cleavage between classes is unbelievably wide, conscription will have more than a military meaning. Mexicans are counting on economic and social gains, as well as armed strength.



Mexico's well-trained infantry will find their ranks swelled by 200,000 within the next two years.

In Mexico's rough country the donkey still is a necessary part of the army able to travel where trucks and tanks would be helpless.

But uppermost in the minds of foreign military observers is the effect of universal service on Mexican internal and external security. The creation of a large, well-trained and loyal army will, in their opinion, be a stabilizing force for the country. Fifth column dangers and the possibility of future internal trouble stirred up by outside forces will be greatly reduced, they say. Conscription will give the government power to crush any subversive agitation.

This added security for Mexico will lift a load off the shoulders of Uncle Sam. Knowing well the explosive nature of Mexican politics, the United States has had to keep in mind the possibility of some day intervening to guarantee order and to keep Mexico from dangerous hands. This worry should be greatly lessened in the future.

Many Army Changes.

In preparation for conscription, the present Mexican army has recently been undergoing radical changes in leadership and equipment. The traditional bureaucratic, inefficient type of officer—a hold-over from revolutionary days—is being gradually replaced by younger men, professionally trained in the army military college, the Mexican West Point. Light tanks have been added to the army, a few anti-aircraft guns have been bought, and a new communications division, equipped with the latest radio devices, has been formed within the past year.

The qualties of the Mexican soldier are held in high regard by foreign military attaches. They are "tough little men", drawn from sturdy peasant and Indian stock. They are admirably suited for the kind of fighting they are most likely to be called on to do—fighting in the hills and mountains and in the desert. Able to fight and live on little food, their powers of endurance are the equal of any army in the world. Essentially, their favorite tactics are those of the American Indian. They know how to fight in the hills, taking advantage of every natural obstacle, firing from behind every rock and tree.

Past Record Bad.

Military history shows that most of their defeats, which have given rise to a legend of inefficiency and cowardice, were due to poor leadership, to politician-officers ready to sell out to the highest bidder. That is now being changed, although the small Mexican army still has more generals on the list than the army of the United States.

Some day, in defence of the hemisphere, Mexican and United States troops may have to fight side by side. If sea routes to the vital Panama canal should ever be threatened, the United States army would have to move south by land, through Mexico and the other Latin American countries. Mexico would then be an important link in the chain of communications with Panama, as well as a possible landing base for foreign troops.

With a strong Mexican army, trained to repel or delay landing operations, the defence of the American hemisphere will be made more easy. And so, United States officials here have welcomed Mexican conscription as a valuable cooperative step.

Thirteen Million Houses as Well as Vast Business Properties to be Covered in Compulsory Insurance Scheme

London, Nov. 14 (CP).—Immense interests are affected by the War Insurance of Property Bill which provides for nation-wide compulsory insurance against air raid damage to all buildings in the United Kingdom—homes as well as factories.

Details of the bill, introduced by Prime Minister Churchill in the House of Commons, Oct. 8, are being completed by Sir Kingsley Wood, chancellor of the exchequer. The bill is retroactive and will cover all damage since the start of the war.

Previously there had been no insurance against property damage by enemy air attacks. It is proposed to provide insurance against war damage to all forms of movable property, household effects and personal belongings as well as industrial plant and machinery.

Buildings' Value.

It is estimated the capital value of all buildings in the United Kingdom is at least £10,000,000,000 ($44,500,000,000) and of this total about £6,000,000,000 ($26,750,000,000) is ascribed to the 13,000,000 houses distributed all over the land.

Of the houses, one in every eight is mortgaged to the building societies who have today more than £7,000,000,000 ($31,150,000,000) owing to them by 1,500,000 house buyers. For this reason building societies are anxious to have two insurance schemes, one applying to houses and the other to all other kinds of buildings.

There are many complications involved in bringing such a scheme into existence. Every factor usually taken into account in considering insurance risks is absent. Insurance circles say that beyond the fact stressed by Mr. Churchill that damage so far has been substantially less than had been anticipated there is nothing on which to base an estimate of the ultimate cost.

Thus the prime minister's assurance that if necessary a state subvention will supplement the pool raised by premiums is seen as essential if substance is to be given to the scheme. What the premium is likely to be and how it is to be collected have been matters of considerable discussion between the Treasury and representatives of the leading insurance companies, building societies and property owning associations. The figure generally favored is 2s 6d (56 cents) per £100 ($445) of capital value.

Pool of Millions.

From the pool, or central fund, which will total hundreds of millions of pounds, those whose houses and other property have been damaged will be able to recover "certainly by the end of the war, and possibly before", according to an authority. Meanwhile, those who are in difficulties will be helped to carry on.

The question of valuation is one of the outstanding problems. Since the war started property values have fallen considerably, and, according to one source, there is doubt as to whether the present valuations shown on fire insurance policies could be realized. On the other hand replacement costs have risen substantially. Institution of the war insurance scheme is expected, however, to do much towards restoring property to favor as an investment.

OTTAWA OFFERED PLENTY OF TIPS ON RUNNING WAR

Suggestions Arrive Daily and Are Gratefully Received by Officials Whether Acted on or Not

Ottawa, Nov. 14 (CP).—Many and varied are the suggestions coming to the government these days of how best a Canadian might contribute to the war effort. They range all the way from suggestions for collecting tin cans to ideas for dropping gorillas on the enemy and an offer to get inside a torpedo and direct it at the enemy.

The suggestions come to government departments from citizens of all ages and classes, all anxious to help win the war.

Daily in the mails these suggestions arrive and all receive attention for, as one official put it, "you never know when you may find a fine idea in a haystack." For example, one suggestion that came was considered of the greatest importance and operations were being carried out in the most secret way.

Officials decided the citizen who made the suggestions could have had no knowledge of what was going on and, while they had the highest regard for his discretion, they were loath to admit even to him that his idea was being investigated. They finally decided to inform him as to the state of affairs in order to obtain his silence. This was done and the whole matter remains an official secret.

If In Good Spirit.

Officials of the national war services department said all suggestions indicating the spirit and good will of the people of the country are gratefully received. But it is not to that department alone that offers and suggestions come. Rather they come to virtually all departments — finance, war services, defence, air, navy and even trade.

One particularly interesting idea came from a naturalied Canadian of Italian birth, a railway shop worker in Winnipeg. This worker wrote that he and his fellows had been considering the position of the nation in respect to the war and the position of those serving in the armed forces.

He felt himself that he could not accept more money for remaining peacefully at his work than was paid those who were fighting. In consequence he was prepared to surrender his pay over and above the $1.30 a private in the Canadian Active Service Force received, toward national expenditures.

An old soldier in the west, Arthur Krogstadt, a man totally disabled as a result of the last war, sent in a dollar a month from his war pension and offered his body "if any suicide troops are to be raised". Unable to write himself he had a friend draft a letter in which he expressed his willingness to "put myself in a torpedo or lie in a mine behind the lines and blow the enemy up as they advance."

In Rhyme Too.

..Other suggestions are in lighter vein. One arrived in verse:

"It's not only wealth and armaments,
Plus soldiers in the ranks,
But a lot of stand togetheredness
That will outweigh the enamies' tanks."

A ranchman in Alberta wrote suggestion the government might use payment in kind in the war effort and he would contribute anything he had by way of grain, cattle or hogs.

Youngest suggestion but by no means fantastic is that of Sylvia Dattner, six-year-old miss of Calgary. She wrote Prime Minister Mackenzie King saying, "I would like to know if you think it's a good idea to start a club to save tin cans and help win the war. Please let me know. Your friend, Sylvia."

Sylvia's idea comes under the head of salvage, officials say, and that matter is under consideration.

The War Inventions Board gets probably the most and the wildest ideas, but they get many good ones too. The good ones usually come from scientists or those occupied in research work. These are the ones they won't talk about. They will mention the idea of taking up gorillas in parachutes and dropping them on the enemy to macerate them into mince meat, or slinging a bridge below balloons across the broad Atlantic.

SAILOR IS SAILOR ASHORE OR AFLOAT OLD NAVAL CUSTOM

Language of the Sea Bewilders Landlubbers; Personnel of Naval Headquarters Attached to Ship

By FRANK FLAHERTY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 14 (CP).—When a Royal Canadian Navy man is on the job at his desk at headquarters here in the capital, miles from a sea-going ship, he is "aboard" and when he is out of the building he is "ashore". That's the way they talk in the navy.

For instance, an officer here telephones: "Is Petty Officer Jones aboard?"

"No sir, Petty Officer Jones is ashore. Shall I have him call you when he comes aboard?" came the answer. It happened that Petty Officer Jones had just stepped out of an office building to buy an evening paper from a passing newsboy.

Officially a sailor lives and works in a ship whether he happens to be in mid-Atlantic or in the middle of the Sahara Desert.

Every day Canada is becoming more of a naval power. We are getting more ships and hiring more men to work and fight in blue uniforms. Naval Minister Macdonald, according to recent utterances, is one of those who believe Canada will need a sizeable navy even after the present war. To most Canadians, however, the language and the traditions of the navy are "Greek".

Each station of the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer Reserve from which the navy draws its recruits is treated as a ship. The sentries work in watches. The hours of the day are divided into watches as on shipboard.

H.M.C.S. On Land.

Almost all Canadian personnel not attached to a real ship are attached to one or other of two fictitious vessels, H.M.C.S. Stadacona and Naden. The Naden is a depot ship for the Pacific coast and the Stadacona's personnel includes naval headquarters in Ottawa and personnel serving ashore on the Atlantic coast.

When naval officers are in training at Royal Military College, Kingston, their school is called H.M.C.S. Stone Frigate after one of the buildings they use. The building is on the site of an ancient naval barracks.

Someday for the information of the land-lubbers who pay the taxes which purchase ships and whose lives and jobs depend on the protection of the navy, naval headquarters may issue a dictionary of naval terms and usages.

Such a book would include an explanation of such terms as "show a leg" and "hands to cocoa and wash".

These are orders roared out aboard a ship in the morning. "Show a leg" is said to be a hang-over from the days when one of the King's ships occasionally had to sail in a hurry with visiting wives aboard.

The women were usually assigned hammocks apart from the crew and were not required to get up when the crew was called in the morning. Just in case some sailor tried to steal an extra hour's sleep by pretending to be a visiting woman, the order "show a leg" was given.

The Evidence.

Then everyone on board who did not get up had to hang a bare leg over the side of his or her hammock. If the leg was smooth there was no trouble but if a man's hairy leg appeared something had to happen.

"Hands to cocoa and wash" is one of the first morning orders but now it should be "hands to tea". On getting up sailors used to get a cup of cocoa, then do some work or drill and then have breakfast. Now it is thought cocoa is too rich for early morning so they get tea.

"Splice the main brace" is an expression that gladdens the heart of old-time sailors. It means issue an extra allowance of rum, comes of festival occasions, such as holidays or visit from the King.

INDIANS SPREAD NEWS BY RUNNER

Moccasin Telegraph Still Channel of Communication in Some Settlements

The Pas, Man., Nov. 14—(CP) — The "moccasin telegraph" which for many years has done yeoman service among Indian tribes in this outlying community, 400 miles northwest of Winnipeg, has been operating daily since September, 1939.

S. Lovell, Indian agent here, who recently returned from a trip through the backwoods to register 300 Indians, said the natives are extremely interested in news of the war. Each day, families living near traders who own radios gather round to listen to accounts of world events.

The news is then relayed from settlement to settlement by "moccasin telegraph."

SO EVERYONE'S A FIREMAN NOW IN OLD LONDON

And its Just as Well to be Athletic And Know First Aid According to Newsman's Daily Chronicles

By D. E. BURRITT

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 14—(CP)—Notes that might have appeared in the diary of a Canadian newspaperman—if newspaperman had time and pencil:

First night back in flat after month in hospital, three bombs wreck half apartments in block.... next morning, no water, no gas.... start for office feeling as used to when Lake Ontario too cold for regular morning dip....halt at restaurant for breakfast...."sorry, you'll have to wait in line, having a little trouble with the cooking".... day uneventful, comparatively speaking.

Next night three of us walking home are showered with incendiary bombs.....Louis Hunter of Quebec smothers one in tin hat.... Doug Amaron of Montreal burns shoes and trouser legs stamping out another....I leap (well I get over somehow) fence of neighborhood square and find myself with nothing with which to douse the one. I've tackled....finally find lawn roller and grind bomb plus half one shoe into turf....forced to drop on bellies in gutter four times within 15 minutes....one gutter flooded by ever present firemen....that's fun, too.

Well On The Move

Finally reach home to find building across street on fire....join voluntary brigade and find hydrant... move into new flat....(we were going to move anyhow but perhaps those three did persuade us to leave a little earlier)....still no water....three bathrooms but can't use them....even barber shaves you with cold water....next day again uneventful, until dark, when things get more interesting.

Finally reach home after 45 minute hunt for taxi....more incendiaries....this time they fall in winter's coal stored in back court of big block....porter and newspaperman finally subdue flames with favorite recipe, six pails of sand and 10 of water....still, first time we've been warm all evening.... more incendiaries....three fires within two blocks....still more incendiaries.... sound like blinds allowed to furl uncontrolled....two hefty (and I mean hefty) explosions within a couple of blocks....everybody with pair good legs goes to lend aid...

Planes still roaring overhead .... flames shooting skyward from more and more sources....part of two streets in shambles....gunfire deafening....scores of A.R.P. workers and firemen, ambulance drivers and innumerable others on job within minutes..casualties being brought out....not a pretty sight....no word of complaint....rescued groups, silent and awaiting instructions, gaze at what had been their homes.... few appear frightened .... mostly they look lost....

Wounded Warden

Debris, tons of it in flames....air filled with smoke, dust and floating wreckage....warden with heavily-bandaged head guides injured woman over tons of broken things that fill roadway...."where's the ambulance, please?" asks the warden in same way as he might ask the way to nearest pub.... "thank you very much," adds the woman, blood streaming from two facial wounds, hand hidden in cotton gauze.... minute later warden returns, one hand propping bandaged head .... "anybody else need first aid?" .... another warden leads him to ambulance....he stays this time....

We return to flat....another series of catnaps....another day.... another night's bombing has started....three hours late for dinner... and even in wartime housekeepers get annoyed because "dinner is spoiled".... what do I care.... I'm on a milk diet....

Free Yourself from Constipation!

The surest way to rid yourself of any ailment is to discover the cause and to overcome it. Constipation is caused, in the majority of cases, by a diet lacking "bulk."

If your usual menu is made up mostly of bread, meat, potatoes—in all probability your bowels lack the necessary "bulk." Purgatives do not give any lasting relief. Then eat Kellogg's All-Bran. It helps form a soft "mass" in the bowels that is favorable to "regularity."

A delicious, crisp and tasteful cereal, All-Bran is also one of the foods richest in Vitamin B1, the natural intestinal tonic.

Eat All-Bran every day, drink lots of water, and regain your gayness and well-being. Made in London, Canada by Kellogg. At all grocers.

WARTIME INNINGS FOR COLOR-BLIND

Some Airmen Thus Deficient Can Detect Guns Normal Eyes Cannot See

London, Nov. 14—(CP) —Color-blindedness is a defect which disqualifies applicants for a variety of jobs such as engine-drivers and taxi drivers, but it may prove of use in war.

Color-blind airmen have proved they can detect camouflaged guns that normal eyes cannot see. It may be that a type of camouflage designed to deceive the color-blind will have to be used to hide guns, ammunition depots, hangars and other strategic material from them.

One person out of every 55 cannot tell red from green, and one in 50 confuses green and brown. Very rare are the totally color-blind to whom the world appears like a photograph in black and white. The pastel-shade color-blind, much more prevalent among men than women, cannot distinguish between the lighter shades of pink and yellow and blue and green.

Color-blindedness is sometimes called "Daltonism" because, although it was known for centuries, the first to study the subject was John Dalton, the famous chemist, who in 1794 published an account of his own case and analyzed its peculiarities. For days he went about in his scarlet gown of a Doctor of Civil Laws at Oxford happily unconscious of its effect on those around him. And when asked what color gown he thought he was wearing, he pointed to an evergreen.

GREEK NO SISSY DESPITE FRILLS

Soldiers Have Showy Uniforms at Times — Just Peace Times

New York, Nov. 14—(CP)— The Greek dress their soldiers differently on different occasions. For ceremony, certain Greek army units are decked out in showy frilled skirts like dancers. The Greeks like to dance, too.

When there's real military business to be taken care of, Greece can outfit members of its small standing army in serviceable uniforms and equip them with modern rifles. (Greece probably would run out of equipment if she called up all of her reserve forces, but her standing army is well equipped.

WHEELS FOR SKIS ON WINTER PLANE

Edmonton, Nov. 14 (CP).—Planes equipped with wheels instead of skis will operate this winter over the Edmonton-Yukon commercial air mail route and to assure their efficient operation two huge tractors have been flown to the far northern landing fields at Fort Nelson and Watson Lake.

Fort Nelson is about 600 miles northwest of Edmonton, just south of the Northwest Territories boundary in the northeast corner of British Columbia. Watson Lake is in the Yukon, midway between Fort Nelson and Whitehorse, Y.T.

The tractors, to be used in field maintenance, are equipped with circular saws which will cut lumber for snow rollers to pack and clear the runways. With the fields kept suitable for the landing of planes, the oft-needed procedure of changing from wheels to skis or vice-versa in flights over the route will be eliminated.

Both fields are maintained by the Yukon Southern Air Transport. They may be used, however, by the United States army planes en route to Alaska, where, company officials recalled, the United States government is carrying out an extensive air force defence program.

The two tractors, weighing 3,000 pounds each, were sent north by railway from Edmonton, driven to Fort St. John, B.C., then disassembled for the flights to their new homes.

HOUSE DISCUSSES JAMAICA EXCHANGE

Question Asked Regarding Purchase of Sugar Commodities in Canada

London, Nov. 14—(CP)—Authorities in Jamaica as in other colonies have instructions to make exchange available to pay for any supplies which it is essential to import from Canada, George Hall, under secretary of state for the colonies, told Sir Leonard Lyle in the House of Commons.

Sir Leonard had asked earlier "whether in view of the substantial Canadian exchange profit by shipments of Jamaican sugar to that Dominion would the secretary arrange for the exchange authority in Jamaica to take a broadminded view in regard to the purchase from Canada of commodities indispensable to sugar production, at present unobtainable in this country."

"The Canadian dollar resources," Hall replied in a written statement, "are under the control of his Majesty's government, which include those embraced by sales of colonial produce, are strictly limited and must be used to the best advantage to promote our war effort."

He added "that it is not compatible with this over-riding consideration to give specially favorable consideration to a particular colonial sugar industry, because its sugar goes to Canada and not, as does most colonial sugar, to this country."

WORK RAILWAYS DESPITE BOMBS

All Branches of British Transport as Normal as Possible in Blitzkrieg

London, Nov. 14—(CP)— British railwaymen continue to work during air raids to fulfill their "front line" responsibility of keeping the nation's railway services running.

According to a railway spokesman all branches of the railway transport services operate as normally as possible during air attacks. Both passenger and freight trains continue to run, trainmen and signalmen remain at their posts, and tickets are issued at the booking offices the same as usual.

"All other railway staff continue at work during air raids until danger is imminent in the immediate vicinity of the places at which they are working," he said. "Work is resumed again as soon as the immediate danger is past.

"The closest co-operation exists between the railways and the railway trade unions in the maintenance of the railway transport services."

The spokesman said that as a safety factor, the speeds of trains are reduced during raids so that drivers have their trains fully under control in the event of a sudden emergency.

FAMOUS GENERAL AMONG LONDON'S FREE FRENCHMEN

Writer Details Career of Catroux a Scholarly Soldier Still Ally of Britain

London, Nov. 14—(CP)—High in the councils of Free French Forces in London is a general of whom the British people know little. He is Army Commander General Catroux who to millions of Frenchmen ranks with the greatest of France's military leaders and politicians, says Charles Gombault in the London Daily Sketch.

After a short period with the Chasseurs Alpins, Catroux started his apprenticeship to war in the Foreign Legion and during his collaboration with Lyautey at the beginning of the pacification of Morocco, Catroux learned at the same time both military technique and diplomatic art. He also became accustomed to important administrative problems, Gombault points out.

Thus, 15 years later, when a colonel, and asked by Lyautey to pacify the Middle-Atlas region of the French colony, he entrusted the Foreign Legion with the building of one of the highest roads in the world, by which his troops were later able to join those of Colonel Giraud—since a General and taken prisoner by the Germans in May, 1940.

By this means peace was established, and this road, primarily built for military purposes, has since ensured the commercial exchanges indispensable to the prosperity of the country. At the same time, Catroux had an entirely new township built in the midst of the Moroccan desert, to the south of Beni Abbes.

Goethe Translator

When a prisoner of war in 1916, Catroux worked out a plan of escape. His perfect knowledge of the German language nearly enabled him to succeed but he was caught again near the frontier. He finished the war in a cell and there spent all his time in making a remarkable translation of Goethe's "Werther."

Afterwards Catroux was military attache in Constantinople where he took part in the delicate work of establishing the new frontier line between Greece and Turkey as defined in the Treaty of London.

Having proved himself a soldier, writer and diplomat, Catroux was proposed by the French government as Ambassador to Madrid. But General Franco, gifted perhaps with foresight, set his choice on Marshal Petain.

Thus M. Manderl appointed Catroux Governor-General of Indo-China. Soon after the first few weeks which followed the armistice General Catroux had to carry on difficult negotiations to safeguard Indo-China's independence, having to resist both Japan's demands and Vichy's appeals for capitulation.

When a few weeks ago Catroux left Saignon to join the Free French forces in London, not a single Japanese soldier had set foot on Indo-China.

FIND NEW MARKETS CANADA'S LIME

New Uses Increase Production And Industry Develops

Ottawa, Nov. 14—(CP)—Production of quick and hydrated lime is developing rapidly into an important Canadian industry as new uses are discovered for lime and its products.

Hydrated lime is a specially prepared slaked lime in the form of a fine powder and is marketed in 50-pound multi-wall paper bags, while quick lime is marketed in lump, pebble, crushed and pulverized forms.

The value of products of the Canadian lime industry was $4,003,514 in 1939, compared with $3,542,652 in 1938, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reports. Production totalled 552,209 short tons, comprising 474,753 short tons of quick lime valued at $3,326,647 and 77,456 short tons of hydrated lime worth $676,867.

A new market for white, high-calcium lime has been created by the use of calcium carbonate filler in place of imported clay in newsprint and magazine paper, according to a report by M. F. Goudge, an engineer of the Mines and Resources Department. He also reports a new chemical use for lime in the manufacture of a plastic from pulp-mill waste "that promises to be one of the cheapest of all plastics."

An estimated 900,000 tons of limestone were used in producing lime in 1939. Capital employed in the industry totalled $4,802,983. There were 59 plants in operation in 1939, compared with 53 the previous year and they employed 937 employees, against 867.

The amount of lime used for chemical purposes last year was 455,148 short tons, while only 97,061 short tons were used for building, agriculture and other purposes.

Belleville Collegians See Twenty Point Margin Fade As If By Magic But Win 26-21

Local Interscholastic Gridders Enjoy Five-Point Lead Over Bowmanville High in Return Game

COLVILLE RUNS 85

Belleville Kids Run Amok, Headed by Bill McBride, but Fade Badly as Timekeepers Help "Rubber Town" Gridders in Last Frame

After massing a twenty-point lead in a thrilling third period rally the Belleville Collegiate "scarlet scourge" faded badly in the dying quarter and ultimately walked off the Fair Grounds grid iron with a 26 to 21 win over the Bowmanville High School in the first game of the senior Interscholastic before 1,000 fans here yesterday. In winning the local "Collegians" enjoy but a five point lead to haul into the Rubber Town for the second game of a two-game series with total points to count on the round.

Paced by Bill "Ghost" McBride the Belleville squad held Bowmanville at even terms for the first half before "the Ghost" ran wild as the "scarlet scourge" bagged three touchdowns in the third stanza. Stalled on the ground the Bowmanville squad took full advantage of the nonchalant efforts of Coach Les Shiels' locals in the last period and in desperation went to the air to be rewarded with two touchdowns and a placement that elevated the visitors into striking distance of winning in the dying moments.

Timekeepers Off Key

Costly to the homesters was the inadequate timekeeping of the game as the third and last quarters saw extended time played throughout as the official timers of the game showed little knowledge of the handling of the timepieces and in both periods an extension of regulation time was admitted by the chief officials, which doubtless assisted the efforts of the visiting Bowmanville squad in their belated rally.

Belleville opened the scoring in the initial frame when Clare punted and Brown was rouged. McIlveen cut back to gain 15 and on a sequence play pitched a 30 yard forward into the arms of Fisher, who was in the clear and was chased over the Belleville goal-line for a touchdown, that Brown converted and that made the count 6 to 1 for the visitors at the quarter whistle.

B. C. I. Forge Forward

"Stewie" McBride plunged for two successive gains early in the second quarter and on a forward pass, Clare to Cronk to Pigden, the latter put the oval on Bowmanville's fifteen. "Ghost" McBride took it to their six and Clare cracked over to a touchdown, which he converted making the count 7 to 6 for Belleville, before Brown ran wild for the visitors on a criss-cross for a substantial gain at the halfway mark.

To open the second half Bill McBride ran a Bowmanville punt back 40 yards to the visitors' 18 and "Brother Stewie" promptly cracked over for a hard drive and a touchdown, that Clare converted, 13 to 6 for Belleville. Bill McBride ran another Bowmanville punt gallantly for a 45 yard gain and Clare ripped off eight more to have McBride weave through for a second major score in a matter of seconds as the Shiels-coached squad ran amok to make the count 18 to 6. Pickering speared a Bowmanville fumble but Underhill halted the locals momentarily as he intercepted a Belleville forward, but Belleville held and Clare and Cronk took forwards for gains and Clare punted to have Brown rouged for a point. Bill McBride took a forward for a 40-yard gain and Clare kicked to Brown, who was rouged for another singleton. Bowmanville fumbled on their own 25 and when Clare punted over Slemon muffed Brown's pass and Theobald fell on the loose ball for a Belleville touchdown, that Clare converted and the score stood exactly 26 to 6 as the Rubber Town squad. Cronk broke up a Bowmanville attempted placement, but Brown kicked into the coffin corner for a point on the next play and the last quarter opened with the score standing at 26 to 7 for Les Shiels' "scarlet scourge."

Visitors' Rally Strong

The last 15 minutes of play which was actually 25 by unbiased timing, saw the visitors take to the air in desperation, as the locals rested on their advantage and played loose and careless ball. Belleville fumbled on their own 30 and Brown promptly booted a placement for three points. Jack Colville intercepted a Belleville forward and raced 85 yards for a touchdown that was not converted, but made the count 26 to 15. Still playing indifferent ball the locals let Colville run amok for a nice gain via the aerial route and then the same player who was playing inspired football and encouraged by Brown, romped over a touchdown and Brown kicked the extra point to make the score stand at 26 to 21. Arguments then ensued as to the extended playing time and it was discovered that the timers had erred as to the official timing, but the discovery came too late for the god of the Belleville squad who enjoy but a scant five point lead to haul into Bowmanville on Nov. 23rd for the return game with points to count on the round.

The Belleville line held up much stronger than that of the visitors, but the Bowmanville plays were timed much superior in the clutches, especially their aerial attack. On the ground the locals held well and stalled the visitors through their line, as Clare and Brown staged a cagey punting duel, giving their ends plenty of opportunity to get down under. Bill Brown and Jack Colville were the outstanding players for Bowmanville, and McIlveen, Fisher, Underhill and Allin covered themselves with football glory. Bill McBride was the chief ground-gainer for Belleville, as Clare and "Stewie" McBride carried well, the latter doing some extensive plunging for substantial gains. Sharpe, Pickering, Campbell, Jones and Warren drove hard through the line and gave Clare plenty of protection, which if duplicated in the return game should see a Belleville victory right in Bowmanville.

Referee—E. S. Leckie.

CANADIAN TROOPS TO PLAY HOCKEY

Large Artificial Ice Rink in England Secured for Use of the Canadians

(By Ross Munro, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

With the C.A.S.F. Somewhere in England, Nov. 14—(CP) — The Canadian troops are going to keep hockey alive in England this winter.

A large artificial ice rink has been obtained by the Y.M.C.A. for use of the Canucks and a boom hockey season is expected. Plans are being completed to enable teams from the two Canadian divisions and corps troops to play regular schedules.

Oscar Pearson, long-time physical director at Toronto Y.M.C.A. and for several years physical director at the Ottawa "Y" who now is organizing secretary of 1st Division sports, is setting up an office in the spacious Arena building to devote much of his time to organizing the leagues. These will cover every unit which can raise a team.

"If the Hun raiders just leave the building alone, we should have an excellent hockey season," he said. "The Y.M.C.A. obtained the rink after some negotiations and it is now being fixed for our troops. It likely will open for the first game sometime this month and as far as I can learn will be the only rink in England going this winter."

The glass roof is being taken out and boarded up for safety. The rink is regulation size for hockey and the ice surface will be as good as most in Canada.

Pearson said considerable hockey equipment has been obtained for teams which haven't any and 600 pair of pleasure skates are at the rink available for the soldiers and civilians. There are 300 pair for men and 300 for women.

MARLBOROS TIED FOR TOP HONORS IN SENIOR O.H.A.

Team Could Only Gain a Draw With Niagara Falls

HAMILTON WINS

London Trounced 8-2 and Players Engage in Free-for-All After London Goalie Trips Player

(By the Canadian Press)

Three teams were tied in top place in O.H.A. senior hockey today after the tumult and shouting of last night's two uproarious league games died away. Hamilton and Toronto Marlboros joined Port Colborne at the head of the class when Hamilton trounced London 8-2 at London and Marlboros held Niagara Falls to a 4-4 overtime deadlock at Toronto.

It was the second time this season that Marlboros and Niagara Falls failed to reach a decision, and brought forth some rather conclusive evidence as to at least one of the lads who should be in close running for league scoring honors this season. Bobby Walton, clever centreman on Niagara Falls' first forward string, got three of his team's goals, including one that tied the score in the third period. Sy Allen got the other Niagara Falls goal. Cooper assisted in two of Walton's goals. Eddie King was the big shot in Marlboros attack with two goals. Murray Ezeard and Drummond scored the others.

But the Hamilton-London fracas supplied most of the extra-curricular action. Jack Eley, Brandon-born goalkeeper who has guarded nets from that Manitoba city to the Maritimes, started the monkey-business in the second period when he ripped fiery little Red Geddes after the London winger made a rush. Geddes and Eley started throwing punches after the trip, and after game officials stopped the battle Geddes was given a five-minute penalty, Eley a two-minute stretch, leaving Hamilton without a goalkeeper for that time. London didn't score, however and Eley got back to his nets just as the period ended.

Officials had been forced to stop other minor outbreaks of high feeling.

Leo Lamoreaux, Hugh Barlow and Johnny Conick each counted two Hamilton goals, with Dillon, Brady and Doug Fritz getting the others. Hank d'Amore and McLeod scored for London.

KNOWS PLAYERS BY THEIR SHOES

St. Louis Cobbler a Specialist and Enjoys Major Ball Leagues' Trade

St. Louis, Mo., Nov. 14 (CP).—One of the unsung heroes of baseball is George Dom Madonna, an excellent repairer of shoes.

He has stuck to his last so faithfully and well in his shoe doctoring shop across from Sportsman's Park that his fame has spread in both the major baseball leagues. The players save up their damaged shoes, while on the road, and bring them to Madonna to fix when they play at St. Louis.

Consequently he knows a lot about the pedal characteristics of many baseball players.

"You see this toe guard, worn all the way through," says Madonna, displaying a cleated shoe. "That's Elden Auker's, the Browns' submarine pitcher. He's hard on his shoes and drags his foot when he pitches.

"And you know Myril Hoag, who was with the Yanks but now is with the Browns. He's six feet tall but this tiny size four-and-a-half is what he wears on his foot."

In his shop Madonna specializes in a special pitcher's toe guard. Besides shoes he mends baseball gloves, unjams zippers, and talks baseball with his customers. He's specialized in baseball work for twelve years.

Bill Calladine Of Peterborough With Philadelphia

(By The Canadian Press)

Pittsburgh Hornets probably wouldn't have any trouble at all in leading the American Hockey League's western section if they had a half dozen players like Lloyd Roubell.

As it is the Hornets are tied in points with Hershey Bears for second place in the section standing, and Roubell has had a lot to do with getting them there.

In seven games, the North Bay-born Roubell has slapped home five tallies, or exactly one third of the Pittsburgh goal production, to date, and now leads the league in goal-getting. Despite Roubell's efforts, however, the Hornets have won only two and drawn one in their seven starts.

One of their victories was scored last night at home as they downed Philadelphia Ramblers, with whom Roubell formerly played, 2-1. Roubell got one of the gials and Harry Currie the other. The Philadelphia score went to Calladine.

In the only other game of the night New Haven Eagles battled to teihr third draw in six games, ending up at 2-2 with Indianapolis Capitals. The New Haven goals went to Don Willson and Vic Myles while Hec Kilrea and Jud McAtee scored for the Capitals.

Seven Beach Players Make All-Star Team of O.R.F.U. Picked by Coaches, Writers

Squad Headed by Syd Reynolds, One of the Two to Receive Unanimous Call

WELL BALANCED

Backfield Picked to Give All Phases of Offensive Power

By SYDNEY GRUSON

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Nov. 14 (CP).—The power in the Senior Ontario Rugby Football Union lies with Toronto Balmy Beach, unbeaten in six league starts, so it is no surprise to find Alex Ponton's players dominating the circuit's 1940 all-star team which was released today.

Seven Beach men are on the club selected for The Canadian Press by the coaches and sports writers in the O.R.F.U. cities. They are headed by the veteran Syd Reynolds, one of the two men to receive an unanimous call, and are rounded into a balanced squad of twelve with four Sarnians and one Camp Borden soldier. Here is the team:

Assured of Offense.

The team, naturally, has all the requisities of an all-star club, with insurance for all the offensive departments in that every member of the backfield does more than one thing well. At their specialties, Perry and Seymour would handle the plunging, Crowe and Porter the passing, Porter the kicking and Thompson the running.

The wall behind which this backfield would operate is made up of an experienced group, big and strong with a man such as Jim Butler at one end who could drop back and do a capable kicking job as he has for Sarnia Battery in recent weeks. The selectors went for experience in picking their linemen.

The host of men given one or more votes on the backfield was surprising in view of Balmy's clear-cut superiority through the regular season. The unquestioning eye of the selectors was caught only by Thompson, who labored so valiantly in a lost cause, and the Union's No. 1 line plunger, Seymour.

Thompson got all nine votes, three of them for the quarterbacking job, and Seymour was dropped on only one ballot. Hamilton Alerts did not place a man on the team, but Odie Gibb and Hardy Awrey, the club's best backs, were among those receiving mention.

Can Anticipate a Play.

Johnny Manson, who has come along as a fine relief for Porter, was the only one besides Thompson and Porter considered for the signal calling. The six votes given Paithouski were a grand tribute to the brilliant defensive work of the former Queen's University star. He is a bone-crushing tackler and has an uncanny sense for anticipating a play.

The selections for the rest of the line were made without trouble. The voters gave Norris six ballots; Barron, Reid and Shields four each and Jim Butler three. Ike Norris, a brother of Dick, and Balmy's Leo Deady each received two votes for outside.

Reynolds, a perennial all-star, made a great comeback this season after a brief retirement. In his 30s, the veteran has shown all of his old skill in nailing a man in the open field. He is almost as good defensively.

With the old Sarnia Imperials disbanded and only a few parts picked up in the Battery Club, and with Peterboro and Montreal Westmounts not operating, it was sure that this season's mythical team would look little like that of 1939. Only Thompson is a holdover.

BELLEVILLE TEAM DEFEATED 8 TO 0 BY TRICOLOR

Locals Shy of Condition and Could Not Keep Pace With Well-Drilled Winners

TEAM HAS PROMISE

Many New Faces Introduced and Team Appears in Brand New Equipment

Lack of condition was primarily responsible for the 8-0 lacing the Reliance Aircraft and Tool Company team from this city took in their first game in the George Van Horne Memorial senior series at the Jock Harty rink in Kingston on Wednesday night. The boys were willing but the flesh was weak and after Queen's had scored three goals without a reply in the first frame and held scoreless in the second, through grand work by Hewitt in the Belleville net, the boys lost their driving and defensive force and Queen's rammed home five counters in the third chukker to make the route complete. The score is not an indication of the play for while the boys had the strength they held their own in the fast company but when they became leg weary in the last part of each period, the opposition with plenty of practice under their belts simply skated the locals into submission.

The team was pitted against the best the Tricolor could produce. The team, iced by Coach Jake Powell, was the same that performed in the senior intercollegiate race for the past three years. They have played steadily together for that time, have had the best of coaching and experience and they made every move count. Their combination play was excellent despite the fact the ice was not in the best condition, they checked back in faultless style and their rushes had sting to them. The Belleville team, sponsored by Speedy St. Louis and Ken Watt, had a number of new faces in the lineup and the Beleville fans will like their style and enthusiasm. The team was bedecked in new uniforms not unlike those used by the Shell softball team of last summer and they were quite distinctive and added a gay touch of color to the sombre khaki about the Arena.

Speedy St. Louis has gathered a fast skating outfit together and after they become accustomed to each other will have a smart club. Hewitt, who starred for Wally Elmer's Club when they won the "Speedy" St. Louis and McCreary Junior B title was in the nets and looked after the defence chores. Hestie, Gow and Bill Jackson composed one line and T. Donihee, Gill and Bill Storms the other with Mark Storms and Sanderson as substitutes. T. Donihee, Hestie and Gow impressed the fans with their fine stickhandling but the team is handicapped as they have only two right wingers on the squad. However reinforcements will be added and it is expected the Belleville entry in the O.H.A. will have something to say before the titles are handed out. The lineups:

Belleville—Goal Hewitt defence, St. Louis and McCreary, centre, Hestie, wings Gow and B. Jackson, subs. Sanderson, Gill B. Storms, M. Storms and Donihee.

Queen's—Goal Burrows defence, J. Neilsen and C. Williamson, centre M. Williamson, wings, Nory Williamson and M. Neilson subs Lane, Carty, Hepburn, Savory.

Referee—W. Watts.

Pupil and Teacher Match Hockey Brains

By The Canadian Press)

The pupil and the teacher match their hockey brains tonight in the meeting of Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens in the feature contest of a two-game National Hockey League card. Their teams' brown also will have something to do with the result, but Happy Day vs. Dick Irvin gives the meeting an added flavor.

In the other game, Chicago's surprising Black Hawks travel to New York to meet the Americans. Hawks lead the N.H.L. at present, and their only defeat was by Americans 1-0 in the first game Chicago played this season. Americans could go into a first place tie by stopping Hawks again.

But in the Day vs. Irvin go lies most of the interest. Day was one of the star defencemen and for many seasons club captain while Irvin coached the Leafs. Happy succeeded Irvin to the Leaf coaching job when Tommy Gorman picked the quiet-spoken pigeon fancier to lead Canadiens out of hockey's wilderness this season.

It will be the first clash of the season between the league's only Canadian representatives, and it comes after both have played two games. They play tonight in Montreal and come right back in a return engagement at Toronto Saturday night, two games which should provide a good test of both teams' early mettle.

CALLING 'EM

Between the Lines

with

Ken J. Colling

Tossing a twenty point lead out of the proverbial football window Coach Shiels' Belleville senior gridders narrowly missed defeat at the hands of an inspired Bowmanville interscholastic squad yesterday. Just how long the gridiron gladiators battled in that hectic last period will never be known, but much of the credit of the Bowmanville rally can be attributed to the timekeepers for their frequent lapses, as it is now admitted the last period was fully ten minutes over regulation time. Aside from this fact the "scarlet scourge" have no person to blame but themselves. They became careless and played indifferent ball once they enmassed a 26 to 6 advantage. On the ground the locals proved much superior, but the Rubber Town squad carried punch in their aerial attack and the drive of a Red Grange in Bill Brown, their sterling halfback, but it was Jack Colville, who upset the locals applecart as he speared a Belleville forward and romped over 85 yards for a touchdown as the visitors rallied in the dying moments.

Against Albert College last week "Buck" Sharpe was removed owing to a minor injury and the local line collapsed. Yesterday when Sharpe was forced out again history repeated itself. (Get it.) Coach Shiels' local kids proved to all and sundry they carried the drive and punch when they rolled up 19 points in the third stanza in a brilliant effort, that was headed by Bill McBride, whose running back of kicks was superb, as "Brother Stewie" and Ross Clare carried the brunt of the line plunging in that hectic third frame. Tired, exhausted and befuddled, as the result of the extended playing time forced on them by the timers, the Belleville squad failed to protect their hard-earned advantage in the foudth canto and before they could rally the inspired Bowmanville team had rung the gong for two touches and a placement. In Bill Brown the visitors fielded as tricky a broken field runner as has graced a local gridiron in years, although he did not overshadow McBride's running back of punts. Jack Colville and McIlveen are another pair the locals will have to place their weather eye upon at home.

Statistics show that the visitors made 13 first downs to Belleville's 11, while the Rubber Town kids completed eleven forwards in 20 attempted. The local squad only tried eight via the aerial route, but completed six of them. On the ground the "scarlet scourge" halted the visitors, but when the Longworth-coached kids went to the aerial attack it was just too bad, especially as their plays of this type really clicked in that stretched-out fourth quarter. Ross Clare outpunted Brown to a noticeable degree and the local outsides were getting down fast, but so were the Bowmanville ends, which made matters rather even on this score. Through the line Belleville excelled, however, and we see no reason why the "scarlet scourge" cannot win in a canter. Much credit must be given to the superior Belleville line for the fine protection the boys gave Ross Clare on his punting. The kids deserve much credit for their stand in this department. Incidentally just prior to the game it was announced that Lester Shiels, former coach of B.C.I. grid squads had replaced Morley Baker as coach of the "scarlet scourge," despite the fact yesterday was the 13th.

Sergt. Don Thomas, of the 3-47th Battery, was in Belleville last evening seeking the answer to whether or not the Belleville boys in the 3-47th were going to receive any assistance in the matter of sweaters for their hockey team. An appeal had gone out, both verbally and through the press, but no response had been received by the boys who have enlisted to fight for our country. Naturally the soldier boys were quite curious to ascertain the whys and wherefores of the matter. The local service clubs have promised assistance, but as the Battery boys open their hockey schedule in Kingston on Friday night they are quite anxious to dress their team in a proper manner. The Battery colors are scarlet trimmed with blue. Freddie McGuire, Lum Carson, Walt Gerow, Currie and Leary are some of the local players with the 3-47th. It is sincerely hoped Belleville will answer to this urgent call and need, especially as Cobourg equipped the goalkeeper and all that is asked of Belleville is a paltry $40.

Do you remember when Two-Ton Galento flattened Harry Thomas at Philadelphia in three rounds two years ago today, as prelude to his losing struggle with Joe Louis the following spring. The Jersey barman lasted through three rounds with the champion.

It's a boy at the Monte Pearsons'. A seven-pound baby boy was born to Mr. and Mrs. Pearson at their Frenso, Cal., home recently, being the New York Yankee pitcher's third child. "And he'll be a ball played too," predicted Monte.

Lou Gehrig's record of playing 2,130 consecutive games may escape him, but Frank McCormick, first baseman of the Cincinnati Reds, is shooting at the National League mark of 822, set by Gus Suhr, also a forst baseman, when with Pittsburgh. Frank ahs passed the half-way mark, appearing in 463 at the end of the 1940 season, and will be forced to maintain the gait through the 1943 season to beat Suhr.

What price championships? After winning the Allan Cup last season the Northern Ontario senior hockey picture died a snap death, as the mining district is not going to enter either the Memorial or Allan Cup playoffs this winter. They're going to devote all their time developing youthful players, there dividends pay better.

Pitted against the best senior Intercollegiate team "Senator" Powell could muster from Queen's University, "Speedy" St. Louis' "Aero-Boys" from Belleville didn't fare any toe well in their initial Van Horne series game last night when the "Presbyterians" beat the locals 8 to 0. The score is not exactly as bad as it first appears. The Queen's aggregation have been practicing religiously for over two weeks, while some of the local squad were wearing skates for the first time in the present puck semester. The Van Horne Cup mentors could have drawn Kingston against Queens for the league opener, thus icing two teams which had plenty of practice, but no, it would suit the purpose of the Limestone City executive to toss in the unpracticed Belleville team into the slaughter. However, it was not until the third period when the St. Louis-Watt sextette was leg-weary that the Queen's seniors skated to a decided victory when they scored five of their counters.

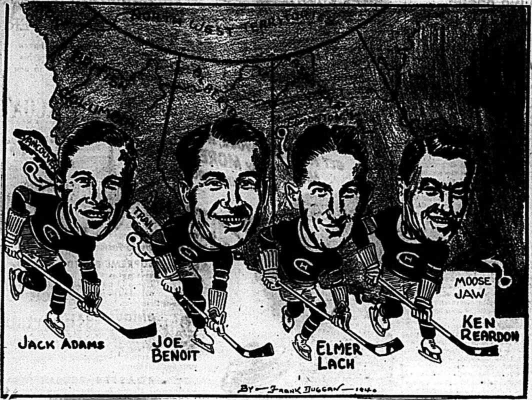
Western Canada Contributing Heavily to Eastern Hockey



By GUS GARBER

(Central Press Canadian Sports Writer)

Montreal, Nov. 14.—The exodus of hockey players from Western Canada to the east has assumed major proportions this year and no fewer than four of Les Canadiens' rookies hail from somewhere between the Prairies and the Pacific Coast.

Even in the coaching and business end of Montreal National League club there is a distinct western touch. There is Dick Irvin, the pigeon king from Regina as coach, and Frank Patrick, one of the Vancouver Patricks in the role of business manager, talent scout and trouble shooter.

Great things are expected by the Canucks from the western contributions. They're banking heavily on young Ken Reardon of Edmonton, who is still young enough to play junior hockey if he so chooses—but doesn't.

From Moose Jaw comes Elmer Lach, who, as Coach Irvin puts it, "is always where she should be. We expect great things from him." Lach is a centreman and will have to step lively to keep up with such able vets as Paul Haynes and Murph Chamberlain.

Moving westward, we come to Vancouver which is ably represented on the Canadien roster by Jack Adams of Vancouver Lions. A rip-snorting young left winger, he is being counted on to supply a lot of that scoring punch Irvin and Patrick expect from their youthful charges.

From Trail, the smelter town, up in the interior of British Columbia, hails Joe Benoit, who played for the Trail Smokeaters, who toured Europe two years ago. He will patrol the right flank for the Canucks.

A couple of other coast products, Lorin Mercer and Morrie Rimstad, who came east with Jack Adams, worked out with Canadiens in the pre-season tune-up period and showed enough stuff to be farmed out to New Haven Eagles, the Canadien farm team in the American League. They may yet wind up with the Canucks before the end of the current season.

Maritimes Make Strong Bid For Allan Cup Championship

Hockey Moguls of the East Planning Heavy Attack for Amateur Ice Honors of the 1940-41 Season

MANY NEW STARS

Sydney, N.S., Nov. 14 (CP).—The Maritimes are making their strongest challenge for the Allan Cup this season since the palmy days of 1935, when Halifax Wolverines brought the senior Canadian amateur championship to the Atlantic coast for the third straight year.

The Maritime scouts and business managers have roamed far to line up the talent for the three-team Cape Breton League. Not since the famous Moncton Hawks ruled the seniors for two seasons prior to the Halifax triumph has the east gathered such a collection.

It might be better at this moment to say that the team managers hope they have collected the talent. There are a few clouds on the horizon, such as the inevitable arguments with other clubs about who signed whom, and the possibility that the lure of a professional contract may prove stronger than the call to action in the east.

The final set-up of the Cape Breton league will not be known until the National Hockey League clubs have settled on their 1940-41 rosters. For instance, Sydney Millionaires have the ace duo of Johnny McCreedy and Dick Kowcinak ready to play for them as they rejected professional offers from the Toronto Maple Leafs. The two flashy forwards starred for Kirkland Lake's Allan Cup champions last season.

Some Good Players.

Mindful of that and of the fact championships have a habit of following the McCreedy-Kowcinak combination, the Millionaires coaxed them into their fold this year.

Sydney has lost Tony Graboski, who led the league in scoring last year, to Montreal Canadiens. Glace Bay Miners signed up Bill Judza, Winnipeg star, only to discover he had decided to go instead with New York Rangers. The Miners were thrown for another loss when the Westmount Canadiens were given rights to Les Ramsay, a player sought by Glace Bay.

Unless Sydney loses McCreedy and Kowcinak, however, these losses will be accepted as the fortunes of war and the teams will be more or less satisfied to start the 66-game schedule with those already on hand. If Sydney loses the duo, it will hurt—decidedly.

Of last year's team, Sydney kept goalie Bill Dickie, Remi Van Daele, Ray Powell, Jack Fritz, Jack Atchison and Bud McEachern along with Coach Bill Gill. Besides Snowdon, McCreedy and Kowcinak, they have signed or claim Steve Latoski, last year with Ottawa, Bill McGregor, Winnipeg; Ray Mullins, Valleyfield; and Bill Hannon, last season with North Sydney. They probably have others as well but no team as yet has shown its hand fully.

Veterans and Others.

Glace Bay Miners scrapped all but Hal McBride, Boots Bair, Matt Kelly and Irving McGibbon and picked up Jimmy Foster—on two Allan Cup winners with Moncton Hawks—as goalie; Irving Mackie, Quebec; Jim Dewey, Sudbury; George Newbolt, Sudbury; Moe White, Verdun; Alex Archer, Winnipeg; and Vic Hanneberry, South Porcupine, Ont., in addition to playing coach Jo-Jo Graboski, said to be even better than his brother Tony.

North Sydney kept only goalie Bill (Legs) Fraser, Norman McKay, Ab McKinnon and Frankie Clifton and signed up Walter Schere, Kitchener, Ont.; Maurice Merchant, Geraldton, Ont.; Bill Sneider, Nelson, B.C.; Howard Mason, Guelph, Ont.; Glenn Sutherland, Brandon, Man. and Tic Williams, last year with Sydney, and Jimmy Russell, former Glace Bay Miner. Mickey Roach, one-time N.H.L. player, was retained as coach.

HOPES TO SAVE MOUNTAIN GOAT

Washington State Game Specialist Studies Animal to Stop Extinction

Seattle, Nov. 14 (CP).—Hikers and climbers in the mountain country of the Cascades may be lucky enough to see a mountain goat bouncing away over and through the rocks.

But for Nilo A. Anderson, 27, a young Washington State game protector-biologist, the billies and nannies and kids are all part of his day's work.

He not only wants to keep the goat from becoming another vanishing North American animal, he even has hopes of putting the rare, sure-footed denizens of the cliffs and high alpine country back onto the list of big game animals which may be hunted.

Washington, with the largest number of mountain goats of any state, closed all hunting on them fifteen years ago. They are not to be confused with mountain sheep of the Rockies. They're closely related to the goat-antelope of Asia and the chamois of European mountains.

Anderson lives in a cabin at the head of Lost River, thirty-five miles by pack train from the nearest community, to carry on his special work. He spent most of his day hours studying the goats, clambering over mountain trails and scaling sheer cliffs to their haunts. Last winter, he snowshoed in and spent a month there.

So, after his careful study of the goats of Island and Chopaka mountains and in the mountains at the head of Lake Chelan, he has just made his report to the state game department. It's the first known such study from first-hand observations.

Anderson reported seeing eagles attacking goats twice, once a kid and another time a mature billy, attempting to knock them off cliffs to be killed in the fall below. Coyotes are also a natural enemy.

BRITISH SOCCER DODGES NAZI BOMBING

By DOUGLAS AMARON

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 14 (CP). — British football, competing against German air raids as a Saturday afternoon attraction, is bearing up stubbornly in the most trying times it has ever known.

Forced by war contingencies to run its leagues on a goal average basis rather than on the usual "two points for a victory, one for a draw" system, the Football Association, of which the Earl of Athlone, Canada's Governor-General, is president, has seen gate receipts dwindle because of what the press calls lack of "the real competitive spirit".

Change in the system of compiling standings was made because it was believed games might have to be cancelled and because lack of transportation facilities made a full schedule impossible.

After eight weeks of play, however, only a few games have been cancelled and sports writers generally have taken to goal-average system over the coals, claiming the standings give little indication of the true merits of the teams.

Penalized For Winning.

Arsenal, current leaders of the South Regional section, had a 5.000 average Oct. 12 before their match with Tottenham. They won the game 3-2 and their average fell to 4.000. The next week they beat Northampton 5-4 and dropped another point in the averages. Had they played two scoreless draws their average would have remained at 5.000 so they actually were penalized for winning.

"Surely," wrote G. Wagstaffe Simmons in The Sporting Life, "it need not be emphasized that there is something wrong with a system of reckoning that punishes clubs if they win, but permits them to retain their average if no goals are scored."

Despite the criticism, the Football Association decided to retain the system for the second half of the season, starting after the new year and continuing until the first week in May.

But to conciliate those who believe wins and losses are more important than goals, the association arranged for a knock-out cup competition. It will begin after Christmas and run until May 3 when the final will be played

Competition has been keen in both the southern and northern halves of the English league and there wasn't an unbeaten team after eight weeks' play.

Arsenal, with seven victories in eight games, has been the pick of the southern half, while Manchester City, with five victories, two draws and a loss and a goal-average of 3.600 has kept in front in the north.

Clubs Keep Going.

Clubs, paying a maximum of 30 shillings ($6.68) a week to players and filling their lineups with a large number of amateurs, have managed to keep going despite slim crowds and holdups during raids and there have been no withdrawals since the leagues started.

To do away with holdups a system of "spotters" similar to that used in factories and office buildings is being considered and if adopted it is expected attendance will increase. Games won't be stopped unless there is actual danger of bombing. Crowds of 5,000 have been tops in England but in Scotland, where attendance restrictions are not so severe, as many as 30,000 have turned out for a game.

The Southern Scottish League, which still uses the point system in compiling standings, keeps to familiar pattern with Glasgow Rangers in front with 18 points in ten games. They are the only unbeaten team in the league.

SHE DOESN'T YELL HER FOIL SPEAKS

U. S. National Women's Champion Fencer Admits a "Duel" Role

Hicksville, N.Y., Nov. 14 (CP). — Helena Mroczkowska is a good fencer, United States national women's champion in fact, but her instructor tells her she'd be better if she'd learn to yell.

It's the custom of fencers to shout "Eh, la", meaning "got you that time" as they brandish a foil in the face of an opponent. You're supposed to shout this whether you've scored a touch or not, just to confuse the enemy.

But Helena is a quiet girl and her "Eh, la", comes out in a mild little whisper. And if she misses a point she merely murmurs an undramatic "Oh, gee".

"My instructor tells me I need more fire, and I guess I do," reports Helena, who isn't a know-it-all champion.

But, with or without fire, she has a deadly thrust with a foil. She has on occasion, actually wounded her opponets, scratched them at least, while she herself ever has been hurt.

Social Sport.

Helena contends fencing is a pleasant social sport, cutting and slashing notwithstanding. It is estimated 250,000 persons in the United States participate in it. Fencing is good for the figure, it gives grace of movement.

"Fencers never speak ill of each other," says Helena.

When she isn't defending her fencing championship, Helena, who learned to fence in college, is flying an aeroplane, piling up enough hours for her commercial license. And when she isn't busy at either, she's typing away, holding a job as secretary at Roosevelt Airport. Her salary pays for flying lessons and fencing equipment. There's only one drawback.

"I lead a healthy life but I don't get enough sleep," she says.

The Manchester Guardian helpfully tells British housewives "how to make margarine taste like butter". The recipe involves a pint of salt and "a teaspoonful of suet".

McCREADY LOSES EMPIRE LAURELS

Auckland, N.Z., Nov. 14 (CP).—Earl McCready, Canadian wrestler who claimed the British Empire heavyweight wrestling title after defeating Jack Taylor in Canada in 1933, has at last lost his crown to John Katan after defending it successfully for seven years.

In the meantime the Amulet, Sask., athlete has wrestled in Canada, Australia, New Zealand, England and South Africa and has never been defeated in a title bout.

McCreedy was defeated in a match at Wellington, N.Z., by Katan who gained the only fall in a hard-fought contest. The new champion is a fellow-countryman, so that the title remains in Canada. He had four times challenged for the title in Canada and New Zealand, but had never before beaten McCready although he had a draw to his credit. He is a skilful, but not spectacular wrestler. He has successfully defended his title against several challengers already.

DRUMS RHYTHM INTO TEAM

Boise, Idaho, Nov. 14 (CP). — Coach Ted Bank, whose Idaho football team took four straight lacings and then played Utah State to a scoreless tie, has decided he'll have to drum some rhythm into his team's offence. So he uses a big bass drum in training periods to beat out the timing for his green but willing sophomore backs.

Arthur Cole of the Kent Special Constabulary has been awarded the medal of the Order of the British Empire for rescuing a R.A.F. pilot from a crashed plane.

VICHY APPEALS TO FOLLOWERS OF DE GAULLE

Petain Gov't. Offers 'Clemency' if They Return to Their Normal Places in Fatherland

Vichy, France, Nov. 14 (AP)—The Vichy government appealed Wednesday to all followers of Gen. Charles De Gaulle to "return to their normal places in the Fatherland and receive the clemency" of Premier Petain.

"This clemency, however, a communique said, will not be extended to native colonies who have joined the Free French De Gaulle movement betraying their duties as soldiers and citizens."

The appeal was directed to young soldiers in De Gaulle's movement who "have been led astray by intense propaganda and who are now wondering how their country would greet them if they succeeded in escaping." De Gaulle leads the Free French forces who are carrying on the war beside Britain.

Marshal Petain knows, the communique said, that they had no desire to betray their country in following "a bad shepherd who exploited their thirst to serve and their thoughtless ardor to profit his ambition."

PAYS TRIBUTE TO CHURCHILL

French Writer Speaks of His "Lion-Like" Fury When Fate of France Was In the Balance

Lisbon, Portugal, Nov. 14 (CP).—Andre Maurois, writing in the Diario Noticias, paid tribute to Prime Minister Churchill's "lion-like fury and eloquence" when the fate of France hung in the balance after the battle of Sedan.

Churchill's first reaction after the battle of Sedan was to reduce to the minimum the gravity of defeat," the famous French author wrote.

"On his arrival in Paris, Churchill astonished and reassured the Supreme War Council with the vigor of his decision. Those who saw him that day were full of admiration for his lion-like fury and eloquence.

"Churchill opposed the abandonment of Louvain and Brussels and the evacuation of Belgium. He wanted a counter-offensive ordered."

IS AIR WARDEN WITHOUT ARMS

Born That Way, London Man Is Doing As Good As Any of Them At His Air Raid Post

London, Nov. 14 (CP).—Horace Lineham was born without arms but he's the most useful man at the Welsh Tavern Air Raid Precautions Post.

What other wardens do with their hands, 31-year-old "Joe" does with his feet. And just as well, too. He answers the phone, keeps the log, puts on his tin hat, stops buses when there is danger, tests gas masks, shepherds people to shelter, keeping busy at the 101 jobs that occupy an A.R.P. warden's time.

"I've been a warden for a year, working without pay," said Joe. "I'm no good to the army but can do anything at A.R.P. that other people can do. I'm registered as a part time worker, but most days I put in eighteen hours. I live just around the corner.

Joe has no fear of anything the Germans may send over, but he has a complaint. "The boys want me to do all the inside work. I want to be outside—in the front line."

His mates call Lineham the most useful man on the job.

"He did a grand piece of work when we took the gas mask census, making sure everyone's mask fitted properly," said Les Couchman, one of his aides. "The only trouble is we can't find enough to keep him busy.

"You'd think he would be satisfied with the work he does already. But not Joe. He wants to be a roof spotter."

PILOT PLANE LYING PRONE

Aerial Fighters of Future May Do Their Work on Stomachs Expert Says

London, Nov. 14 (CP).—Fighter pilots of the future will fly their super-fast machines while lying on their stomachs because this will be the only way the human frame can bear the strain of banking and pulling out from a dive at the speeds certain to be reached, the Evening Standard Air Correspondent predicts.

Pilots flying in the orthodox sitting position would be more liable to "black out"—a loss of vision caused by an abnormally sharp movement which produces pressure inside the skull and acts on the blood vessels in the obdomen. Dilation of these vessels withdraws blood from the brain into the abdominal pool but if the airman is lying down while taking sharp curves there is less tendency for the blood to surge into the abdominal pool.

The correspondent did not believe the prone position would make much difference to the pilot's efficiency as a flier. He would be able to see everything below, above and around him. Mirrors might help him see to the rear.

Moreover, the prone position of the pilot would assist the streamline of the fuselage of the super-fighter in that it could be reduced in depth, made more rounded, and possibly shortened.

TROOPS IN DESERT BURROW TO SAFETY

It's Not Difficult To Outwit Italian Bombers In Arid Fighting Grounds of Western Desert

With the British Army in the Western Desert, Nov. 14 (CP).—British troops in this hot, desolate region, have become sand-hogs. The great empire military establishment has gone below the desert sands which provide perhaps the world's best camouflage.

Tents are pitched in sand pits and are sand-bagged to the roof. Entering each headquarters is like penetrating an Egyptian tomb in the Valley of Kings. They are dug deep and reinforced to be proof against direct hits.

So effective has the burrowing been that owing to scarcity of targets Italian raiders often release their bombs anywhere in the desert in the thousand-to-one chance of hitting something.

PAMPHLET TELLS FOR YOUNG MIND WAR'S BIG ISSUE

Finding Thirst for Basic Facts of Democracy Ottawa Officials Issue "Two Ways of Life" to Fill Need

By KEN CLARK
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 14 (CP).—The government is going into pamphlets. The first one, a 28-page booklet, mostly pictures, will be out shortly. It is called "Two Ways of Life" and shows, on the smooth shiny paper used in the rotogravure magazines, what is the difference between the Canadian concept of life and that of the Nazi.

Interviewed by The Canadian Press, Herbert Lash, director of public information, said "The purpose of this booklet is to show that the difference between these two ways of life is the sole issue of this war. We have found that there has been a thirst for some basic facts on democracy". The booklet contains four speeches made in the government's "Face the Facts" radio programs.

The speeches illustrate four points of view ,the director said. They were made by Dorothy Thompson and Robert Sherwood, citizens of the United States and respectively columnist and playwright, by James Hilton, the English author, and by J. W. Dafoe, editor of the Winnipeg Free Press. Brief biographies of the authors are contained in the booklet.

For Schools' Use.

The publication is designed for use in primary schools and the first two years in high school. Its aim is to demonstrate the issue in a simple plain and effective way. It contains little reading matter.

There is a brief introduction saying that Germany and Italy have declared war upon the Canadian way of life. There follow pages wherein the totalitarian theories are shown on the left-hand page and the Canadian way on the right hand page.

For example on page four, extracts from Hitler's Mein Kampf are compared with statements from leaders of democracy, his Majesty the King, Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Justice Minister Lapointe.

Pictures illustrate the points of the booklet. Two comparative pictures are entitled "Religion Destroyed" and "Religion Exalted". The one shows churches ruined and the other demonstrates religious tolerance in Canada as among Roman Catholics, Protestants and Jews. Family prayers are featured.

Another set of pictures shows the Reichstag burning and a photograph of the exterior and interior of Canada's parliament. The interior emphasizes the opposition, illustrating the freedom of Canadian political criticism. Two clippings from the press tell the story of the Canadian way of life.

Two other illustrations show how, under Nazi rule, labor is gagged, and how the worker enjoys the Canadian freedom of speech. Still another shows the Nazi youth regimented and forced into a mould while the Canadian is allowed to develop his own personality in his own way.

The pictures are briefly explained in a text which has been made as simple as possible. Words of one syllable are preferred.

Translations.

In the text French and English are given equal prominence and for the benefit of foreign language groups all captions are translated in German, Italian, Polish, Norwegian and Ukrainian, the six largest New Canadian groups.

The information branch of the Department of War Services, before putting out the book, discussed the whole matter with teachers and experts throughout the dominion and the director says the idea was "enthusiastically received.

For the benefit of teachers a short reference list of reading matter is contained in the booklet. The back pages are blank with the heading "notes" so that pupils will be able to write in their own explanations and comments.

The booklet is expected to be ready by the middle of the month. "If we are successful with this booklet and another intended for the primary schools," Lash said, "we will pursue the idea and put out booklets whenever it seems advisable."

Thirty-two states, including most of those bordering Canada, will observe Thanksgiving Day, Nov. 21, advanced date suggested by President Roosevelt.

LINES OF COMMUNICATION KEPT OPEN—MORALE HIGH IN LONDON DESPITE WORST EFFORTS OF NAZI RAIDERS

STILL SMILING

Still smiling, these survivors of the Nazi's latest raid leave shattered ruins of their homes with what they managed to salvage. A family pet, RIGHT, finds something soft among the debris on which to nap.

KEEPING LINES OF COMMUNICATION OPEN

Men of the Royal Engineers sort out undamaged telephone and telegraph cables from amid debris left in wake of recent Nazi air raid on London. The engineers re-route the cables over a duck-board bridge laid in a bomb crater. It's hard work, but the all important lines of communication must be left open.

ORPHANAGE NAZI "TARGET"

Casualties were "miraculously few" according to British authorities when Nazi bombing planes blasted this orphanage and other buildings of mercy. But these kiddies seem as able as the rest of London to "take" the Nazi bombings without murmuring.

BOMB DISPOSING'S A 'REAL PLEASURE'

Former Bank Clerk Finds New Job Thrilling but Real Fun

London, Nov. 14 (CP).—A London bank clerk who gave up his job to become a member of a bomb disposal squad of the Royal Engineers finds "much fun and real pleasure" in his new work of taking the sting from delayed action bombs.

"I'm surprised to find how much fun and real pleasure I get working with the parties," he said in a letter to a friend, in which he described the "biggest thrill of my life".

"About a fortnight ago," he wrote, "I was standing in a hole in about three feet of mud. Suddenly Jerry started dropping bombs around us and machine-gunning us. I amazed myself with the speed with which I covered so long a distance in so short a time. The blast of another bomb simply blew me down the steps of a shelter—and all I suffered was some lack of breath.

"But the spirit of our people!" the sapper goes on. "The spirit of these Londoners. Our section was called to ——— the other day. There were houses smashed like matchwood. Yet the people carried on, and were laughing too.

"One good soul said she was sorry she couldn't make me a cup of tea, but the milk was a little later than usual. And she had nothing, absolutely nothing, left of home!"

As an epilogue, he added "we are all looking forward, you know, to our spring tour of Germany, visiting such interesting places as Berlin and Hamburg."

P. E. County Veterans Gather For Armistice Day Banquet

Record Crowd Renews Acquaintance With Old Comrades

OTHER ITEMS

Picton, Nov. 13.—The bond which links old soldiers was very much in evidence at the annual Remembrance Day get-together sponsored by Picton Post Canadian Legion in their hall Monday evening. There was a capacity crowd in attendance with a goodly representation of those serving in the present conflict enjoying the occasion. It was re-union for many of the vets, who meet old comrades at these gatherings and much hand-shaking and exchange of reminiscences were in evidence.

Despite the apparent lightheartedness of the crowd, there was a determination to carry on until victory is again won and such songs as "There'll Always Be An England" were sung with feeling.

Comrade Arthur Phasey made a capable master of ceremonies. Two minutes' silence was observed and "O Canada" sung. Frank Starr spoke of the work of the Legion and Judge E. H. McLean spoke.

C. A. Newman and W. Cavers gave feats of magic, mystifying the crowd by producing eggs from a seemingly empty bag, concocting all kinds of drinks from a magic bar and a headless man stunt as well as card tricks. Pte. Harold Armstrong of H. P. E. R. 2nd Btn., excelled in humorous stories; M. V. Dow gave two solos; an orchestra composed of C. Cooper, H. Greenfield, Bob Dunlop, Cpl. Edgar Keep, Bill Beasley and E Dunlop led in the singing of favorite songs and a number of those present provided impromptu entertainment. Refreshments were served.

Arthur Goodwin won the set of andirons on which 800 tickets had been sold. Mayor McKibbon made the draw. They were donated by Mrs. W. S. Fraser and proceeds of $200.00 go to the Red Cross.

Spend $95,000

Extensive work is under way in Prince Edward County to improve the Bell Telephone service. Many men are being given employment and unofficially it is estimated $95,000 will be expended. The lines on the Marysburgh section have been taken over by the Bell Company and will be extended and reconstructed. These lines, now served from the Milford exchange will be served from Picton exchange and 170 rural subscribers will receive the benefits of the "common battery" system which was introduced in Picton last year. When the Milford exchange is eliminated, there will be no "long distance" charge for calls between Milford and Picton. Picton merchants will benefit by the cheaper and better communication between farm and town.

The rural lines will be ready to operate on "common battery" system early next Spring. Smaller and neater telephones will be installed in subscribers' homes. The number of subscribers on each line will be reduced to a maximum of ten, and an improved system of ringing will be introduced. A subscriber will hear the rings of only half the parties on his line.

Additional facilities will be provided on the switchboard in the Picton exchange. Underground conduit will be laid from the tele- Street to York Street. The underground cable will connect with overhead cable running along York and Church Streets to Union Street and thence along the county road to Milford.

Rural lines in Prince Edward County will be entirely reconstructed and new copper wires will be erected from Picton to Cherry Valley and Point Petre. Elsewhere, high-strength steel wire will be used, permitting long spans between poles.

The greater part of the work will be carried out under contract from the Bell Telephone Company by James E. Dunfield, of Carleton Place. Local labor will be employed wherever possible. Certain special jobs, such as the erection of cable and the installation of the new telephones, will be carried out by Bell Telephone experts.

Altogether, 2000 new poles will be placed, seven miles of cable erected, and 400 circuit miles of wire strung. It is estimated that the entire work will involve 43.000 man-hours of labor. Working this problem out, local mathematicians may discover that it would take one man, toiling at the regular number of hours a day, and taking the usual number of holidays, about 11 years to complete the task. It is expected, however, that the reconstruction will be completed by the fall of 1941.

Hold Bayonet Drill

"C" Company, Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment, N.P.A.M., held a full day of training Monday, Remembrance Day, at the local Armories. Parade was called for 9.30 a.m. in preparation for the march to the war memorial for the Armistice service at 11 a.m. "C" Company posted a ceremonial guard at the memorial during the service. The company marched to the Memorial Park, leading the Armistice Day parade of local organizations, headed by the band. In spite of pouring rain, the company made a fine showing in their new battle dress uniforms.

It had been planned by the officers of the company to hold manoeuvres in the country Monday afternoon. The men brought their lunch to the Armouries and at noon tea and coffee was served. The heavy downpour of rain forced cancellation of the outdoor activities and the afternoon was occupied in intensive training in the Armouries. A good deal of the time was spent receiving instruction in bayonet fighting from Lieut. Eric Graham who is an expert in this type of warfare.

Late Miss Mae Jeffers

The funeral of Miss Mae Jeffers was largely attended in St. Gregory's Church on Monday morning when requiem mass was sung by Rev. Fr. Joseph O'Nell of Toronto, a cousin of the deceased, assisted by Rev. Fr. Meehan Mr. David Harrington sang "Nearer My God to Thee," during the service. Death occurred on Saturday, Nov. 9th at the home of her aunts, the Misses Doherty, following an illness of many months. Miss Jeffers had spent her entire life in Picton, where because of her kindness and pleasing personality she had a host of friends who regret her passing. A cousin, Mrs. Kathleen O'Nell of Toronto was also present at the funeral. Interment was made in Mount Olivet cemetery.

Mrs. Clarence Rutter, Queen St., opened her home on Monday evening, for regular meeting of the Evening Branch of the W.A. of St. Mary Magdalene's Church. There was a large attendance of members, and three visitors present. Sewing on a quilt occupied the members. At eleven, refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Miss Winnifred Wycott, Miss Hilda Haddon and Mrs. D. A. Fournia. Mrs. L. Robinson invited the group to her home for their next meeting.

The members of the N.P.A.M. spent Armistice Day drilling in the armouries. The men took their lunches which were supplemented with hot tea and coffee at noon, and the same beverages were served at five o'clock. In the evening all the Veterans, and a number of friends, had a very enjoyable smoker in the Legion Hall. His Honour Judge McLean addressed the meeting. Community singing was also enjoyed.

In spite of pouring rain, a large parade marched from the armouries to Monument Park for the Remembrance Day Service. Marching, were representatives of the Air Force, the N.P.A.M., the Cadets, the Girl Guides, Boy Scouts, Veterans, members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Legion and the regimental band. Rev. J. F. Reycraft, Rev. J. B. Creegan, Rev. W. R. Pair, Rev. Mr. Trantor and Capt. Rankin assisted at the impressive service.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred King spent the week end with friends in the Niagara Peninsula.

Mr. C. C. Cooper returned on Saturday from camp in the north with a fine deer.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard MacDonald and three children of Gananoque spent the week end with the latter's parents Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Turpin, Church Street.

Mr. Harry Doyle who has been seriously ill in Prince Edward Co. Hospital for the past four months, is now convalescing satisfactory at the hospital and expects soon to return to his home on Mary Street.

On Sunday, Nov. 17th Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McKenna of Black Creek, will celebrate their Golden Wedding. A family dinner will be served at noon at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Eugene Keogh. In the afternoon and evening Mr. and Mrs. McKenna will be at home, at their own residence, to their friends and neighbors.

Mr. and Mrs. McKenna were married on Nov. 17th, 1890, in the Old St. Gregory's Church, the bride being Miss Aggie Bond. They have a son Arthur McKenna, and a daughter Mrs. Keogh, and eleven grandchildren. Both enjoy excellent health and take an active part in the work on their farm, in community undertakings and are faithful attendants of St. Gregory's Church. They will receive the felicitations of a host of friends on this happy occasion.

The rummage sale held under the auspices of the Guild of the Anglican Church, in the Parish Hall, on Saturday, was very successful, slightly over $100.00 being realized.

Mrs. F Owens, convener and members of Group I of the Anglican Guild, realized a fine sum from their sale of home cooking on Saturday morning, held in Mrs. Palmatier's Gift Shop.

Build Permanent Road

A permanent road leading from the town to the local Bombing and Gunnery School is to be constructed at an estimated cost of $21,000, it was decided at a special meeting of Prince Edward County Council and Town Council here. Tenders will be let, with work to start immediately. Tentative plans call for the building of 5500 feet of roadway with 2800 in Picton and the remainder in Hallowell Township. Grading will be done this Fall and paving next Spring. The cost will be borne by the province, county and town.

Reeves H. S. Colliver, Picton, Howard Weese of Ameliasburg, Mayor N. McKibbon and County Engineer John Dunkley stressed the value of such a road to the town.

Aircraft Workers See Them Working

Somewhere in England, Nov. 14 (CP).—Ten aircraft workers from a Spitfire factory spent a day at a fighter station watching pilots fly the machines they built.

The workers were shown every phase of the airman's life, heard first-hand accounts of how the planes stood up in air duels and described to the pilots how they had been built.

At a luncheon at which airmen and workers sat down together, the commanding officer of the station read a message from Lord Beaverbrook, minister of aircraft production, expressing his thanks to both for their part in winning the war.

"It is my conviction," the Canadian-born peer said in his message, "that from your meeting will emerge a resolve to strive still harder, to endure with unbroken courage, so that victory may bring us peace [illegible] and the hope of happiness in years to come."

ARMISTICE DAY IN CAPITAL

CP APPOINTS WAR REPORTER TO OTTAWA JOB

Edwin S. Johnson Named Military Correspondent After Varied News Experience in War and Peace on Two Continents

Toronto, Nov. 14 (CP).—Appointment of Edwin S. Johnson, former London Superintendent, as Military Correspondent at Ottawa is announced by J. A. McNeil, general manager of The Canadian Press.

Mr. Johnson will arrive in Canada shortly to take up the newly created post. He will report and interpret Canada's military war effort with a background of experience as war correspondent with the Canadian Active Service Force in England.

First appointed war correspondent with the 1st Division last February, his sphere of activity was appreciably enlarged in July when the division was absorbed in a corps under command of Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton. Later he served for a time as correspondent with the 2nd Division at its training base. He will be succeeded alternately at the corps headquarters by S. S. Robertson, London superintendent, and Ross Munro, formerly of the CP Press Gallery staff at Ottawa.

Johnson brings to his new position more than twenty years' newspaper experience, most of it with The Canadian Press, Appointed London superintendent in 1937, after working in Ottawa, Toronto and New York, he directed the bureau's output of news during the momentous pre-war years and in the early months of the conflict.

In the summer of 1939 he toured France, Italy, Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Austria and Poland with W. Rupert Davies, president of The Canadian Press, acquiring background that was to be valuable in later months.

In France.

Shortly after war broke out he visited British General Headquarters in France with a party of Dominion ministers, the first Canadian correspondent to reach headquarters.

Last June while serving as war correspondent with the 1st Division he packed his bags to eavle with the division for France and was at a channel port ready to embark when the division received orders to remain in England.

Johnson stayed to report the stirring story of the division's advance parties who reached France and barely managed to effect a retreat to the channel when French resistance broke down and the Germans swept into the area.

A native of Manitoba, Johnson began his newspaper career with the Winnipeg Free Press in 1919 after serving in the First Great War with the Royal Flying Corps. He entered The Canadian Press service in Winnipeg in 1924 and has held some of its most important news staff positions, including those of parliamentary correspondent at Ottawa, night superintendent at Toronto and New York superinteundent.

A gold teapot of the George II period, six inches high, was sold for $5,429 in London with the Rothschild collection of old silver. The pot was originally the King's Plate, presented for a racing victory at Newmarket in 1736.

WITNESS CLAIMS VIEW IS BARRED BY SWEET CLOVER

Damage Suit in Supreme Court Continues for Fourth Day

CASE ARGUED

Obstructions barred the view of the right-of-way and railroad tracks from a point 203 feet west on the highway intersecting the railroad at a crossing near Glen Miller, to another point 26 feet from the tracks, H. C. Argue, real estate valuator and investigator testified at yesterday's hearing of the $25,000 damage suit brought by the C.N.R. against George Montgomery, Frankford.

Argue further told the jury at the session which sat until 10.45 o'clock last night, that sweet clover at a height of from 57 to 68 inches grew continuously down the west bank "as far as I could see." The point on the railway track where vision was least obscured was 187 feet south of the crossing, he said.

On the afternoon of the accident the witness had gone down the hill, west of the crossing, over the same route taken by the Montgomery automobile, alleged by the plaintiffs to have struck a track-car and severally injured two C.N.R. employees on July 5th, 1939, in an automobile.

His assistant, 6 feet 3 inches tall, with his hand raised overhead, had walked northward on the tracks from a point 207 feet south of the crossing. The assistant had reached a point 118 feet south of the crossing before his hand could be seen, Mr. Argue said, and then for a distance of 18 feet only.

Could be Seen 203 Feet

A car could be seen 203 feet west on the highway from a point 126 feet south of the crossing. At a point 60 feet south of the crossing a car could not be seen until it emerged 10 or 12 feet from the crossing rails.

Under cross-examination by R. E. Laidlaw, K.C., plaintiffs' counsel, the witness admitted a motorist had an "unobstructed view of the railway" at a point 26 feet west of the crossing.

Objection voiced by B. M. Balfour, K.C., defendant's counsel, resulted in a qualification of the former question. "I said before I could see an object 5 feet high on the tracks 30 feet away."

"At what point on the highway could you see an object 300 feet on the tracks?"

"Ten or twelve feet from the track."

Objection Sustained

Cross-examination regarding the potential actions of a motorist approaching the crossing, raised objection by defendant's counsel which was sustained by the bench on the grounds the questioning approached demand of deduction on the part of the witness.

Argue would not venture an opinion as to the speed of the automobile when it struck the track car. He had not seen any fresh marks on the planking near the rails at the crossing.

Walter Elliott, tractor salesman, swore he saw sweet clover "six feet high" near the borders of the crossing. He had driven down the hill west of the crossing and had observed that he had to be very near or almost at the track to see southward along the track owing to heavy growth and a high bank near the tracks.

Under cross-examination by Mr. Laidlaw, Elliott agreed with the previous witness that a motorist would be able to see "a few hundred feet south on the track" when about 10 feet west of the tracks on the highway.

Motor Wheels Twisted

He said the track-motor wheels had been "twisted some two or three inches out of line." He had known Montgomery well, but did not know whether he had used the highway very much or not. Montgomery had been ordered by Provincial Police to drive down the hill west of the crossing while they and himself had stood 100 feet south on the tracks. Constable Ezra Lockwood, Frankford, testified "We could not see him until he came within 50 feet of the track when we could see the top of the car. Fifteen feet from the crossing we could see the car plainly," he said.

He had seen sweet clover growing 4 to 5 feet high, 15 feet easterly towards the west fence near the crossing and brush and clover about the return fences. He had seen a stone near the north end of the crossing and marks on the planking near the rails.

Sweet Clover Growing

Cross-examined by Mr. Laidlaw, Constable Lockwood said sweet clover was growing 4 to 5 feet on the west side of the highway.

Photographs taken on July 7th two days after the accident, and produced by the defendant's counsel adduced evidence that weeds were cut on the southwest embankment south of the highway "for a considerable distance or about 150 feet." Farther down the track the vegetation was "quite tall and consisted of poison ivy and sweet clover."

A representative of a track-car manufacturing company which supplies these vehicles to prominent railroads of Canada stated that in his opinion the track-car in question "had been struck by a terrific force." The company, he said, did not include warning bells or other warning signals as standard equipment unless ordered by the purchasers.

Prior to adjournment last night, Mr. Justice MacKay told the jury to report at ten o'clock this morning in order to get the case disposed of. Today marks the fourth day of the hearing, and a decision will not likely be rendered until late tonight, if then.

Two other cases, one a jury and the other a non-jury case will conclude the longest Supreme Court session in the history of Hastings County.

WINDSORS HEAR OF MARINERS' ORDEAL

They said their boats were machine-gunned, and that many of their comrades were killed or later died of wounds. The two survivors were 23 days without food and eight days without water before they were picked up and landed at Nassau. Each lost over 60 pounds in weight.

Dealer Offers Coal Trademarked With Red Spots

For years, housewives of Belleville in common with housewives from all parts of Canada and United States, have depended on trademarks as a guide to quality when filling their market baskets. And their husbands have grown used to looking for the trademark on their favorite shaving cream or cigar, to be sure they were getting the genuine article.

But when Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Citizen got around to filling their family coal bin, they had to buy on faith. No one seemed to be able to find a really satisfactory method of trademarking coal.

Now, at long last, their problem is solved. The final proof is on view at the yard of the F. S. Anderson Co., coal dealer, at South Front St., or 38 Bridge St. E., authorized distributor of Famous Reading Anthracite. There you will see tons and tons of coal plainly marked with indelible red spots.

"It took eleven years of research to find a way of applying a trademark that would stay put, and not rub off and discolor floors and bins," Mr. F. S. Anderson explained.

"Look at this." He exhibited a gleaming black lump of coal liberally spotted with red.

"I dare you to rub that off! When you see those red spots you know you're getting Famous Reading Anthracite, the low ash, laundered hard coal — and nothing else but."

"And if you think people in Belleville don't appreciate the protection they get from being able to buy a trademarked coal, you've got another think coming. You'd be surprised how many calls I'm getting from people who've never bought from me before."

Burden of British Fleet Eased by Crippling of Italian Warships at Taranto

Releases Ships for Duty on Atlantic and Reduces Danger to Convoys in the Mediterranean

HANDICAPS ITALY

London, Nov. 14 (CP)—The triumph over the Italian fleet by torpedo-carrying aircraft of the British fleet air arm has altered the balance of power in the Mediterranean area on land as well as at sea, Naval sources said today.

With one stroke, they said, the fleet air arm has:

1. Eased the task of convoys reinforcing the British armies in Egypt and Palestine.

2. Released powerful naval units for service in the Far East, where the appointment of Air Chief Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham as Commander-in-Chief points to a strengthening of the Empire's Oriental forces.

3. Allowed Britain's battle cruisers and lighter ships armed with eight-inch guns to join in the search for a German commerce raider in the Atlantic.

4. Boosted the British Empire's prestige with the Turks, Greeks and Moslems of the Eastern Mediterranean area.

5. Reversed the ratio of capital ships in the Mediterranean from six-to-four in favor of Italy to four-to-three in favor of Britain.

Battleships vs Planes

British authorities said torpedo-carrying planes of the fleet severely damaged two Italian battleships, "probably" knocked a third out of action, and wrecked two cruisers and two auxiliary warships in an Armistice Night raid on the Italian naval base at Taranto, in Southern Italy. They declared the only battleships Italy still has in action are of First Great War vintage.

They also saw in the attack proof that airplanes operating from aircraft carriers at sea can sink a battleship with their one-ton torpedoes, if not with bombs.

The man most affected by the British victory is Lt.-Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell, who expects to find it easier to reinforce his armies in Palestine and Egypt, facing Italian forces estimated by neutral sources as two or three times stronger numerically.

British naval and military circles said, however, that Italy's always-difficult problem of reinforcing her legions in North Africa now verges on the "impossible."

Strictly from a naval viewpoint, adherents of air superiority declare the British victory at Taranto sounds the death knell of massive fighting ships, too costly to be risked in action unless they have heavy superiority in guns.

Neutral naval sources termed huge German submarines carrying 20 torpedoes and operating as either underwater or surface craft "a menace more dangerous than any pocket battleship."

These undersea craft, larger than any in the world except the French "Surcouf", usually attack from the surface at dusk. They have a surface speed of 19 knots.

BRIGADE OUT TWICE ON WEDNESDAY

A blazing tar barrel in the back yard behind the business place of Mr. Ed Kellaway, Bridge Street, caused firemen a run to that address on Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Kellaway was heating tar in preparation to repairing a roof when the tar caught ablaze and the alarm was turned in, but all danger was past when firemen arrived on the scene.

On Thursday morning a chimney blaze at the old Scantlebury property at the corner of Donald and North Front Streets caused firemen a run. The house was undergoing renovations with only one small stove being used to heat the building when the blaze occurred. No damage was reported.

Italian Communique

Rome, Nov. 14—(AP) — British bomber formations, seeking out the seat of Italian naval power in an effort to deliver crippling blows, again attacked the strongly fortified fleet base at Taranto and raided the southern port of Crotone, the Italian High Command admitted today.

At the same time British announcements of the damaging of half of Italy's six battleships and two of her cruisers in a Monday night aerial attack were claimed to be "fantastic."

(A Pritish communique, describing the new raid on Taranto naval base, said docks and harbors were hit in a "successful attack" Wednesday night.)

The Italian communique said only that "some damage" was caused to dwellings, three persons were killed and 12 injured.

The bombs at Crotone, across the Gulf of Taranto, were claimed to have fallen in the harbor.

(The British communique did not mention Crotone.)

In a supplement to its regular communique the Italian High Command said:

"Yesterday Mr. Churchill gave out a version in the House of Commons of what took place which, in large part, is fantastic.

"It is not considered necessary on the Italian side to hasten to reply to such tendentious alterations of truth as those contained in Mr. Churchill's speech and in the declaration of the First Lord of the Admiralty.

"Occasion will not be lacking in the next few days for a final, detailed statement, not only on the Taranto episode, but on the whole naval warfare and air and naval situation in the Mediterranean."

Spain Requests $100,000,000 Loan From United States

Washington, Nov. 14 (AP)—A Spanish request to the United States for a loan of $100,000,000 was reported today in informed diplomatic quarters.

No decision on the loan request has yet been reached, it was stated, and ultimate action was expected to await pending events in the war and clarification of Spain's position in the conflict.

Some administration officials, it was understood, look askance at the Spanish request for financial assistance in view of the bitter attacks made in the Government-controlled Spanish press against the United States, particularly in regard to this country's relations with other American republics and the Philippines, once a Spanish colony.

The $100,000,000 loan is desired by Gen. Francisco Franco's government, it was said, to feed and rehabilitate a hungry and impoverished Spain, which has been unable to achieve recovery from its long and destructive civil war.

United States officials had no comment on the Spanish Government's reported request for financial aid.

Press dispatches, permitted to pass the Madrid censor, report that Spain's economic and food supply condition is so serious any military adventure might be disastrous.

Even if Spain should permit transit of German troops to attack Gibraltar, observers believe the Germans would have to carry their own food and supplies, for it would be impossible to live off the country as Nazi forces did in Poland, France and other invaded countries.

Italians Withdrawing From Pindus Sector On Central Front

By J. Wes. Gallagher Associated Press Staff Writer.

Salonika, Greece, Nov. 14 (AP)—Greek sources reported the Italian army was withdrawing from the Pindus sector on the central Albanian front today to avoid being cut into segments by advancing Greek infantry.

Military experts said the Italians were in danger of losing communication with their flanks.

The Greek army was described as clearing up re-occupied areas as it went along re-establishing communications, bringing up reinforcements, salvaging captured Italian equipment, and rounding up Fascist stragglers in the mountains.

A new group of prisoners arrived from Phlorina today, en route to camps being established well behind the lines.

Snow in the mountains tends to retard military operations. The mountainous frontier, which is clearly visible from Salonika, was capped with snow, as is historic Mount Olympus, 25 miles south of Salonika.

One air raid alarm sounded here this morning, but no raiders were sighted.

KILLED ON HIGHWAY

London, Ont., Nov. 14—(CP)—L. Cpl. Sydney Hart, 41, an instructor at the militia training centre at Woodstock, Ont., was killed today when knocked down as he was walking on No. 2 Highway, about 25 miles from London.

L. Cpl. Hart's home is in London. He was returning to his post at the time of the fatality.

EGYPTIAN PREMIER DIES AT OPENING OF PARLIAMENT

Was Stricken While Reading Speech From the Throne

Cairo, Egypt, Nov. 14. —(AP)—Egyptian Premier Hassan Sabry Pasha collapsed and died today as he was reading the Speech from the Throne at the opening session of Parliament.

The Premier was carried from the Chamber and the reading of the Speech was continued by the President of the Senate.

Strangely, the words of the speech were much the same as those Sabry Pasha used in the first royal statement read by him as new head of the Government last July.

Then he said: "Egypt, who is anxious to maintain her integrity and independence, is equally anxious to fulfil her obligations toward her great ally, Britain, and to carry out her alliance of friendship in the letter and spirit".

Today the Speech said the country had "executed the treaty of alliance and friendsihp with Britain with complete sincerity, both in letter and spirit".

Egypt, it said, is jealous of her sovereignty and independence and is "striving to conserve her security and maintain her integrity".

The Premier undertook the task of organizing a coalition cabinet last summer after Italy entered the war. Previously he had served as Minister of Communications and Minister of Marine and War.

RELIEF IN SIGHT FROM ICY BLASTS

Higher Temperatures Predicted in Areas Swept by Recent Storms

New York, Nov. 14 (AP)—Icy blasts again swept the northern sections of the United States today with temperatures ranging from freezing to below zero, but relief was in sight.

The weather Bureau forecast rising temperatures in the plains States by tonight or tomorrow.

Meanwhile, the number of known dead in the storm ravaged areas reached 108, not including 81 missing sailors.

Eighteen sailors were known to have perished in Lake Michigan during the week's storms. Hopes of finding the missing crewmen alive were virtually abandoned.

Crews of boats that rode out the gale termed the storm the worst in their experience. The oil tanker New Haven Socony reached East Chicago, Ind., yesterday covered with ice and extensively damaged.

Capt. Robert W. Parsons of the lake freighter, Thomas F. Cole, brought his ship into Milwaukee yesterday after being swept "almost from one end of Lake Michigan to the other." Parsons, a veteran of 30 years on the Great Lakes, said the storm surpassed any in his memory.

Lake Erie Fishermen feared that this season would be their poorest in 16 years because of extensive storm damage to nets.

Williston, N.D., with a reading of 17 below zero, was the coldest spot on the United States weather map Wednesday.

RUMORED HITLER, MOLOTOFF AGREE ON SOVIET SPACE

AP Correspondent Draws Picture as Berlin Quarters See it of Newest Ambitions

New York, Nov. 14 (CP)—A Berlin dispatch to The Associated Press from its chief of bureau in the German capital, Louis P. Lochner, today said that according to German sources Hitler and Molotoff agreed upon a Russian "grossraum"— or vast space of domination—extending through British India to the world's oceans.

The dispatch quoted these sources as including Turkey, Iran, Afghanistan and British India in this Russian sphere, with Germany and Italy "allotting" the rest of Europe and Africa to themselves.

Here's Lochner's report of the picture of the newest ambitions as developed from inquiries in quarters which he termed "always reliable on matters of foreign policy."

"1. Russia will have her "grossraum," or vast space of domination, just as the Axis and Japan arranged to have theirs by the terms of the three-power pact they signed Sept. 27.

"2. This 'grossraum' will not be created at the expense of parties not involved in the present European conflict.

In other words, no further slice will be taken out of Finland nor will the Dardanelles be taken from Turkey, provided she behaves in a matter not inimical to the Axis and Russia.

"3. Turkey must make up her mind definitely and finally anent her place in the future scheme of things. Germany, Italy and Russia all feel confident that Turkey will, in due time, seek an anschluss with the totalitarian powers.

"If any further argument is needed to convince Turkey where her bread is buttered, Russia, with her friendship pact with Turkey, is the obvious partner to present the additional arguments.

"4. Whatever compensation Russia may desire in return for her support of the Berlin-Rome-Tokyo arrangement must come from a 'bankruptcy inventory' of the British Empire. German sources seem certain that Molotoff, speaking for Stalin, considers Britain already defeated, just as does the axis.

"5. If the Soviet Union should desire to realize her age-long dream of obtaining access to the world's oceans, say via Iran or Afghanistan and British India, she will find the axis powers "disinterested". In other words these powers will raise no objections.

"6. All parties concerned will join in efforts to bring about a non-aggression pact between Russia and Japan, as a result of which Japan, too, will show her 'disinterest' in those regions which Russia regards as part of her 'grossraum'."

MAYOR LA GUARDIA IS CONFIDENT

Equipment, Resources of Supply and Reservoir of Men Coming So Fast He Hopes and Believes 'We Will Not Have to Use Them'

Seattle, Nov. 14 (CP). — Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York, chairman of the Canada-United States joint defence commission, declared explosively here last night:

"I'm still that kind of American who believes that we could lick the whole world if we had to."

He made the retort when asked about the implications of a possible Russian and Japanese alliance with Germany.

Merchant Cruiser Enables 29 Vessels to Escape Nazi Raider

A fresh page was written in the glorious history of the Royal Navy when the armed merchantman Jervis Bay, ABOVE, sacrificed itself so that 38 vessels of a convoy might have a chance to escape from a heavily-armed German raider which attacked the convoy. The raider, described as one of Germany's famed pocket battleships, attacked the convoy off the coast of Ireland and the Jervis Bay immediately rushed to the attack, laying down a smoke screen to enable the convoy to break up and escape. Battling against desperate odds, the Jervis Bay, with guns blazing, kept the Nazi raider occupied until, a blazing hulk, she plunged beneath the sea. In the meantime at least 29 of the 38 ships of the convoy were able to escape. Capt. Fogarty Fegen of the Jervis Bay went down with his ship after directing the fight while suffering from a wound which nearly severed his arm.

Picton and District

Picton, Nov. 14—Fifty-five young people attended the Phi-Del-A-Tee Club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Walden Tuesday evening. Several members of the R.C.A.F. were welcome guests.

The motion pictures shown by Capt. W. C. Hicks held the close attention of all as various members of H. and P. Edward Regiment were recognized. In color the scenes taken in London, the English countryside and towns, the ocean voyage, lovely gardens and other scenes were not only interesting but beautiful. Destroyers bucking great seas, guns in action, air raid shelters, planes and historic landmarks were shown.

F. E. Walden and son Fred contributed a lively piano duet "March of the Uhlans." President Don Walters conducted devotional exercises with Miss F. Barber at the piano. Miss Eileen McCalpin read the Scripture. Phil Dodds, treasurer, reported on the rummage sale. It was decided to hold the next meeting on Monday, Nov. 25, at the home of Miss Florence Barber. Miss Anne Waring, leader for the month, was responsible for the program. Host and hostesses were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Blakely, Mrs. R. J. Ross, Miss Dorothy Thurston. Jack Blakely and Morden Foster moved a vote of thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Walden for opening their hospitable home, Mr. Hicks and others.

Herd Sire Purchased

A fine herd sire has been brought to Prince Edward County in the purchase of Smith Haven Korndyke Pietje, a January son of Downhamdale Finderne Pietje, a 907-pound grandson of Springbank Snow Countess and Montvic Rag Apple Pietje. His dam was the highest junior 3-year-old milk producer in Sub. B in 1939 with 18,538 pounds of milk, 621 pounds fat.

This animal, of a very fine type as well as of outstanding breeding, was purchased by Fred Hubbs, Bloomfield and Ronald Hyatt, East Lake, from Smith Haven Farm, Woodstock, who consigned him to the Golden Anniversary sale at Stratford on Nov. 9.

This sale saw 75 head average $204. Highest price was $410 with Messrs. Hubbs and Hyatt paying $400 for this sire, the second highest priced animal in the sale.

Springbrook Snow Countess is well known as the world's greatest lifetime Butterfat producer and a monument has been erected which bears a model of her.

The top priced animal was Montvic Rag Apple Emperor Andy, born April 7, 1940, and consigned by Mount Victoria Farm, Hudson Heights, Quebec. This animal is a brother of Emperor Bonheur Nig, a yearling purchased at the National Holstein sale by Amos Hudgin and Brian Dodds, Cherry Valley road.

Blow at Taranto May Force Hitler To Help Italians

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON

Washington, Nov. 13 (AP).—Successful British blows at Italian naval power, coupled with Greek victories against the Fascists, are tending to force Hitler's hand. The logic of events may compel him to go to Italy's aid soon, even at the risk of complicating Russo-German relations.

British announcements of having destroyed or crippled virtually half of Italy's capital ship fleet by a single air blow provide a far graver situation for the axis than the dimming of Italian military prestige by the Greeks.

Those Italian ships, even if held in close leash because of superior British naval power in the Eastern Mediterranean, have been an important factor in the battle. While they remained afloat and ready for action, much of Britain's heavy fleet had to be retained in those waters.

With three of the six Fascist battleships destroyed or out of action for months, Britain has clinched her grip on seas vital to axis plans for breaking the British sea blockade in the east. Numerous British war craft can be spared for convoy duty elsewhere and to hunt down German surface raiders in the North Atlantic.

Balance Decisively Changed.

Prime Minister Churchill touched upon that aspect in his gleeful report to parliament on the Taranto bombing raid and its results. He held that the balance of naval power in the Mediterranean has been "decisively" changed in Britain's favor by this one action. He also said it would carry with it "reactions upon the naval situation in every quarter of the globe."

Coming close upon announcements of the heroic stand of the British armed merchantman, Jervis Bay, against a German pocket-battleship, the Taranto episode thrilled British hearts. Berlin claims of destruction of convoyed British shipping were convincingly refuted once more by the news of the Jervis Bay incident, and thus fresh doubt was cast on similar Nazi outgivings.

The London Admiralty also reported that British warships had smashed an Italian convoy at the Albanian port of Valona. Presumably that action took place in the narrow Straits of Otranto.

This means that British ships as well as aircraft are striking at the vital communication line between Italy and Albania, being used as a bridgehead for the attack on Greece. Reinforcement of that attack, already beaten back by the Greeks to a meagre foothold on Greek territory, depends on free use of those waters.

That Germany can long delay moving to the aid of her axis mate seems incredible. There have been hints that Hitler frowned upon the Mussolini enterprises, but even so, Nazi abandonment of Italy at this critical juncture would open a dangerous axis rift, perhaps lead to a popular revolt in Italy against Mussolini.

Moreover, an Italian military disaster in Egypt may conceivably result from the revised naval situation in the Eastern Mediterranean. The Fascist army there, bogged down for weeks at Sidi Barrani, is placed in new peril. Britain now is in better position to prevent reinforcements or supplies from reaching this army from Italy.

John D. Hayes Host to Members Of Boys' Club

Sound of leather pounding leather echoed through the large auditorium of the Gerrard "K" Boy's Club at Spruce and Sumach Streets, Toronto, as two 55-pound lads battled to a two-round draw, following the annual dinner given the boys by John D. Hayes, president of Laura Secord Candy Shops Limited and honorary president of the Downtown Kiwanis Club.

It was the second treat of the year for the hundreds of underprivileged boys at the expense of Mr. Hayes. The first was in July, when he chartered a steamer and took them to Niagara Falls. Scenes that took place that day were revived by showing of moving pictures. Prizes were distributed to boys of the winning softball team and to others whose efforts at gardening had proved most fruitful.

Filly Threw Rider, Then Won Race

London, Nov. 14.— (CP)—The laugh was on the bookmakers at Thirsk Park when Gollywog Filly, a two-year-old, racing for the first time, captured the Sutton Maiden plate.

The filly bolted on the way to the post and threw Gordon Richards, champion British jockey. When the bookies saw this they lengthened the horse's odds from 4 to 1 to 8 to 1.

Gollywog Filly then was led back to the post, got away to a good start and took first place from the favorite, Samanga, by a head.

Cork, Ireland, Nov. 14.—(CP)—The 1,023-ton freighter Ardmore of Eire registry, which left Cork for Fishguard, Wales, Monday, was presumed today to be lost.

She carried a general cargo and a crew of 25. By coincidence, the former Ardmore, owned by the same company, was lost with all hands, November 13, 1917.

Bomb Splinters From Battle of Britain

By HAROLD FAIR
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Newest wartime gadget: A "bomb snuffer" to smother incendiaries. You just pick up the thing, resembling the top of a roasting pan, with a broom handle that has a hook on one end and drop it over the bomb. The contents of dry sand are released immediately to fall on the bomb. It can be recharged.

A layman suggested at the Chester Diocesan Conference that people who flee crowded cities for the quiet and raid-free safety of the country should increase the subscriptions to their city parish "for the pleasure of enjoying a peaceful night."

J. W. Luxford of Banstead, Surrey, figured a tin hat was not enough to protect him from falling shrapnel. To guard his shoulders, he got a section of automobile tire, carved a big notch so it would slip around his neck and wore the thing as a Canadian rugby player would put on shoulder-pads.

Even when not working Lord Beaverbrook is Spitfire-conscious. Columnist Hannen Swaffer relates that one night he invited a couple of Evening Standard editors to the Savoy underground grill. They arrived and, seeing he had a party, took their own table and ordered a bottle of champagne. Invited to join the "boss" they had two more bottles and added the first to the bill. When he saw it, he exploded: "Why, this would buy a Spitfire."

Dorothys throughout the world have sent £3,300 ($14,685) to the Dorothy Spitfire Fund inaugurated by Mrs. Dorothy Clark of Sheffield. Contributions have been received from the United States, South Africa, Egypt, India, China.

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Sharp note of discord arose today between conquered France and its conqueror, Germany, when the Petain-Laval Vichy administration accused German authorities of lying and protested against their expulsion of French citizens from the province of Lorraine.

Acting in contrast to all the previous talk of collaboration in establishment of a new European order and the like, the Vichy government said the Germans had expelled French people from Lorraine and sought to convince them that the action was taken in conformity with an agreement between the Vichy authorities and Germany.

"The government issues a most formal denial of this allegation," a Vichy communique declared, adding: "As concerns the fact of the expulsion, the French government protests to the German Armistice Commission."

This development occurred while Russian Premier Molotoff started home from Berlin, having completed two days of conferences with Nazi headmen and experienced his first air raids at the hands of Britain's Royal Air Force.

What Molotoff did or said in Berspired German press said his conspired German pres asaid his conferences did not concern military matters. This was taken in some quarters to indicate they did concern military matters, but that Molotoff said "no" to whatever Germany wanted of Russia in a military sense.

Neutrals Heartened

The Fleet Air Arm's battering of the Italian fleet at Taranto was expected to inspire a healthy respect in all international circles for the Royal Navy.

The incident was expected to have a vitalizing effect on the morale of all those whose inclination to resist further Axis demands may have waned through fear. That and Greek successes against Italy on land were believed already to have heartened both Yugoslavia and Turkey, the latter Britain's non-belligerent ally.

It's effect on the Russians was not immediately apparent, although Moscow previously has admitted British mastery of the eastern Mediterranean. Molotoff however, could hardly have failed to be impressed by R.A.F. raids on Berlin at the time he was holding a reception for the Germans in the Russian Embassy.

There is little doubt that the Air Force command staged the raids largely for Molotoff's benefit because the Air Ministry described flying conditions over the Berlin neighborhood as extremely bad.

There was no immediate sign that any Italian counter-offensive was developing against the Greeks who continued mopping up Mussolini's stragglers and carting away war material and supplies which the frightened Fascists abandoned when the tough Hellenic mountaineers bore down on them. Italian soldiers continued to surrender, some of them in bad physical condition and some so glad to get through with the war that they shouted "viva Greca".

Vagrancy Charges Laid Against Ten For Alleged Activities

Toronto, Nov. 14.— (CP)— Ten men will appear in Ontario courts today to answer vagrancy charges as a result of their alleged part in activities arising out of the current strike of employees of two transport companies.

Toronto police arrested Jesse Gibbons, Stanley Waylett, John Carney, John Deadey and Wilfred O'Keefe, all of Toronto, last night after they allegedly stopped truck drivers Harry Brown and Leo Sittler on a city street and attempted to persuade them to abandon a large transport truck and go to union headquarters to sign up with the Teamsters' Union.

At St. Catharines Nicholas Mereza of Welland, Thomas Honslow of St. Catharines, Grand Naison of Sudbury, Edward Wedlock, of St. Catharines and Edward Sidgman of Toronto, will appear as a result of their alleged attempt to stop a Direct-Winters transport truck on Queen Elizabeth Way.

Companies involved in the labor trouble are the Martin and Direct-Winters transport companies.

PLAN TO FOSTER WAR STAMP SALE

Employers Told of Operation Payroll-Deduction System

The operation of the payroll-deduction plan in fostering the sale of War Savings Stamps and certificates to employees of industrial firms was thoroughly discussed at a meeting held in the council chambers of the city hall on Wednesday evening at which employers of labor in Belleville and district and principals of schools of the city were present. The meeting was addressed by Mr. J. G. Parker, General Manager of the Imperial Life Assurance Company, who explained to local employers the details of the plan by which the Employer-Employee section of the War Savings Committee expect to sell approximately $60,000,000 in certificates annually out of the total objective of $100,000,000.

Mr. Parker told the meeting that since the payroll-deduction plan had been put into operation the War Savings Committee had, up until the 31st of October, sold more than $24,000,000 worth of War Savings Certificates, representing approximately $20,000,000 in cash. Mr. Parker reported that the plan was being received with marked enthusiasm generally throughout Canada and that the success of the plan was indicated.

Plan in Operation in Many Places

In the absence of Mr. P. C. MacLaurin, who is in charge of the War Savings Committee for the Belleville district, Mr. J. Barclay acted as Chairman for the evening. Many employers of labor present stated that the payroll-deduction plan of selling War Savings Stamps to employees was already in operation at their places of business, but a general campaign for the adoption of the plan by every employer of labor in the district is underway.

Mr. Kenneth S. Hill of the Belleville Collegiate staff told the meeting that since school opened in September, more than $5,000 worth of stamps had been sold through the efforts of the pupils. Pupils of public schools are also engaged in a stamp selling campaign, it was revealed. All efforts by pupils or others in selling War Savings Stamps are purely voluntary with no remuneration whatsoever being realized by agents, it being a patriotic effort on the part of those doing so, to raise money for Canada's war effort.

Following Mr. Parker's talk, the meeting was thrown open for general discussion, during which time problems pertaining to the local campaign were discussed.

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

CHAPTER FOURTEEN

"Where are you going?" the man asked.

North started, as in his ears sounded the sibilant swish of silk rubbing on silk.

"To the library for cigarettes. No, don't get up—get on with your work. Lord knows there's enough to be done before morning."

"That matter of Teodora and the Floating Lily is—"

Instantly Nadia Stefan's voice cut in. "Be quiet, Josef!"

Teodora? Floating Lily? North engraved those three words in his memory while he slipped into the closet he had already noted.

Squirming in deep among some fragile and deliciously scented garments, he stood, poised and alert, when the bright oval of the closet keyhole told him that a light had been snapped on.

"Yes, Josef," the girl called Nadia was insisting, "I have a distinct sense of hurt and disappointment in Captain North. He left a bit of talcum on the rug and a speck more on his trousers, and tomorrow he'll wonder how I found his hiding place."

"I wonder if you are quite right, Comrade Commander," objected the other. "Before Aristide La Tour—er, retired—he used to say this Captain North was the cleverest secret agent in both the Americas—and if you recall, Monsieur La Tour never dealt out his praise with a shovel."

North's heart began to throb like a voodoo drum as he detected the noise of footsteps wandering about the library.

Nadia was only partially successful in smothering a yawn. "La Tour wasn't smart enough to make his brain rule his heart. But he died well—and few of us can do that."

In the stuffy blackness North stiffened a little. . . . So another famous figure in international espionage had reached the end of the trail!

His speculation was terminated by the sound of approaching footsteps; his thumb threw off the safety catch of his pistol when a hand closed on the closet door knob.

"You must get that lock fixed tomorrow," the girl remarked. "It looks so bad when I have callers," and to his dying day North never forgot her next words. "You see, Josef, I am expecting someone here tonight."

"Who? Not Clark?"

"No, Josef." Nadia's voice was almost purring now. "Wilson Clark is kaput, as they used to say in the war days. He's . . . liquidated."

"Who, then?"

"The great Captain North, himself."

"North?" The other gasped. "Bogu! Shall I post the others below? They are in the kitchen."

"No, Josef."

"But what, Comrade Commander—how?"

From amid a maelstrom of unpleasant emotions North heard that rich, low-pitched laugh ringing out again. "Oh, Josef, sometimes I despair of you! Subtlety, man—that's what you must have to play this game. Very simple. He thought that I thought he drank the drug I put in his glass. But I know he didn't; he only pretended to swallow."

North's mouth felt unbearably dry; he could feel the perspiration breaking out on the backs of his hands, and for once a great fear was on him.

There was no doubt that Death crouched ready to pounce. Death—no half measures! The game was too vital to admit of any other penalty for his imbecility. Death—and he who had viewed death hundreds of times wondered what it would be like to die, to feel life ebbing away.

"Yes, my dear Josef,"—only as from afar he heard her mocking accents—"I think we have not done badly tonight. After I have done with him I will make you and the others a present of this so clever Captain Hugh North. But—peste! —I fear we are keeping him waiting. Unless my ears deceived me, he came in about three minutes ago."

"Came in!"

"Yes. You will find the clever Captain in that closet!"

As a drowning man sees, feels, and remembers an incredible number of things in one brief instant, so Captain Hugh North's brain was whizzing as he found himself adroitly and inextricably at the mercy of Nadia Stefan. Before his mind's eye flashed visions of great gray steel ships belching shattering broadsides, of myriad mangled men gasping . . . all because he had committed the gravest of all errors in the game of international espionage: that of underestimating an opponent's intelligence.

The rivulet of sweat flooding his eyes and the maddening tickle of a rough tweed coat against his cheek suddenly sobered him in time to hear the Russian girl's voice saying: "At first, Comrade Josef, I thought I would kill him in his room—just a drop of prussic in his drink or something like that. Very sure, very safe but there was always a chance that someone might blunder by."

"And so," cut in Josef, "you brought our friend here for his—er—exit?"

"Exit? No!" the girl objected abruptly. "I—I have been thinking this Captain North, he is very nice-looking; he is also sensible. Perhaps there will be no need to kill him."

As a result of this abrupt volte-face, North found himself in a delicate dilemma. Had she meant that last? Or was it merely a subtle insurance against a furious, if eventually suicidal, resistance?

He must, he told himself, get a grip on his emotions—the duel with this remarkable girl would not be over until—well, until it was really a case of sayo-nara (good-bye), as she so tactfully put it. He might as well, he told himself, acquire as much face as possible — Russians were Orientals at heart—so he returned the automatic to its holster and wiped his streaming features.

"Captain North?" That voice beyond the closet door was soft now, but singularly incisive. Yes, soft like the paw of a feline which, in a trice, can become a steel-tipped weapon of death.

For a moment he decided to remain silent—perhaps something of her true intent could be learned.

"Please come out. Surely you would not be so cruel as to disappoint me?"

North's heart began to gallop. . . .

"Why don't you answer? Josef will not hurt you if you come out with your hands up. Otherwise—" The voice outside the panel fairly purred. "I hope you are not going to force me to violence, for mon cher Capitaine, I abhor violence."

He still remained silent. . . . Suddenly beyond the door panels, something cracked like a very dry stick which is snapped.

In the hot, suffocating darkness North felt an icy finger tracing the length of his spine.

"Revolver and silencer," he told himself as he noted the appearance of a little round hole in the upper panel of the closet door.

"One over," remarked the man outside, "then one short." He shot again and, because the silencer reduced the pistol's report to a mere metallic snap, North heart a bullet smack into the floor.

"You see, Captain," chuckled the man Josef, "once I was an artilleryman. Now I will start—how you say it?—walking through the bracket? First one at the knees, then—"

The girl uttered a sudden laugh, strident and unmusical. "Oh, go ahead and kill the fool, Josef! I thought he had some intelligence."

Faced with those two significant bullet holes, North surrendered with, "No need, my friends; I'm convinced. If you'll unlock the door I'll come out and complete Mademoiselle Stefan's program for the evening."

Outside the man spoke roughly. "Look out, little comrade Nadia! Stay out of line with the door. These Americans sometimes are crazy!"

Chillingly contemptuous was her retort. "Not this man; he wants to remain alive."

Then North, his white suit wrinkled and wet with perspiration, stepped out of the closet to be blinded by the glare of a desk lamp, carefully arranged to bring about just that result. For the moment he could see nothing of his captors.

Feeling uncommonly foolish, the intelligence captain remained motionless, hands raised on a level with his shoulders and trying to look unconcerned.

In the gloom behind that blinding glare someone laughed a cruel, mocking laugh.

"Josef, permit that I present you to the great Captain Hugh North, D.I.C."

"D.C.I." corrected the prisoner with a grin. "Department of Criminal Investigation!" he stressed with some sarcasm.

Josef murmured ironic pleasure and the girl laughed before saying, "Accept my apologies, please. Josef, would you mind putting these handcuffs on the wrists of the great American detective?"

The girl's towering companion obeyed promptly. Oddly perhaps, North became aware of an urge to see more of this dominant, singular woman—sometimes when his hands were not secured with handcuffs of bright chromium steel. Besides, he wanted to investigate that "Floating Lily" business. "Teodora," too—was she the murdered girl?

There was no doubt after his first glance that Josef was a Russian. His were jet, faintly up-slanting Mongoloid eyes, broad Tartar cheekbones, and a pointed skull crowned with a crest of black hair.

Josef stepped back and, at Nadia's signal, switched on the room lights.

"You came," began Nadia Stefan, "to recover the little scroll which you stole from that poor girl?" as Josef was searching the American agent.

"You are too modest, mademoiselle," North smiled. "The truth is, I was so charmed with your acting that I couldn't resist the temptation of continuing so pleasant a conversation.

"Merci—what a graceful falsifier you are! But," — she shrugged a little—"being a woman, I—well, I like flattery and the way you say it—sounds almost convincing."

He could see her now very plainly: a straight, supple, and infinitely menacing figure, a silencered revolver in her hand.

"I mean it—you have nerve," she commented, and all the while her eyes, no longer masked by Miss Belknap's spectacles, studied his heated features. "In Russia you would go far."

"About as far as La Tour, I suppose."

"No, I really mean it," Nadia Stefan insisted.

SPANISH GOV'T BARS ENTIRE AMERICAN PRESS

Another Italian Division Destroyed in Mountains

Government Order Effective Monday For U.S. Newsmen

Retaliation For U.S. Refusal to Allow Spanish Newsmen To Set Up News Agency in States

Madrid, Nov. 15 (AP).—The Spanish government barred the entire American press from operating in Spain effective Monday.

All American correspondents, including those of The Associated Press, United Press, New York Times and Chicago Tribune, were informed that from Monday on they would be prohibited from sending out dispatches.

The above newspapers and agencies mentioned are those with regular offices and staff correspondents in Madrid.

The reason given was that the United States government had refused entrance visas for correspondents of the Spanish Agency E.F.E. and that E.F.E. had been refused permission to set up an office in the United States.

It had been proposed to send an E.F.E. correspondent to the United States, Jose Antonio Jiminez Arnau, brother of the director general of the Spanish government press bureau, Enrique Jiminez Arnau.

No further details were given. There was no indication that United States correspondents would be obliged to leave the country.

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen

Condensation forms! The winds carry water vapor inland from the ocean surfaces to be changed to many interesting varieties of water. Close at hand and forming under our very eyes are dew, frost, fog, glaze and rime. Glaze is the clear ice coating that comes when rain falls, freezing to objects whose temperature is below 32 degrees. Rime, not so common, is a feathery, frost-like deposit formed by cooled fog particles on the windward side of exposed objects. High in the air beyond our immediate observation are formed snow crystals, which combine to produce snowflakes, sleet or ice pellets formed by rain falling through cold air, hail, drops of water of all sizes from the smallest cloud particle to drops two-tenths of an inch in diameter.

German Officers Interned in Canada Entitled to Pay

Ottawa, Nov. 15—(CP)—German officers interned in Canada are entitled to receive certain pay which is recoverable from the German government, Lt.-Col. H. Stethem, assistant director of internment operations, said today in a statement.

Similarly British and Canadian officers held prisoner in Germany are entitled to pay, recoverable from the government in whose service they belong.

The governing international convention is that relating to the treatment of prisoners of war, ratified by Canada Feb. 20, 1933 and agreed to by some 39 of the various powers and states, Col. Stethem said.

With this pay the officers buy their clothing and food.

Amplifying his printed statement Col. Stethem told The Canadian Press that only civilian internees wear the regular internment camp uniform, distinguished by a broad red stripe, inserted down the trouser legs and a large red circle in the middle of the back.

"Members of the armed forces are still fighting men even when held prisoner and entitled to wear the uniform of their country," said Col. Stethem.

There is actually no cash transaction in giving pay to officer prisoners, the money being placed to the credit of their accounts against which they receive camp token money or make camp purchases which are subsequently paid for through their accounts.

Revolt Directed Against Iron Guard

Budapest Nov. 15—(AP) — The Hungarian Press displayed today under large headlines reports of a revolt in the Rumanian Iron Guard in which one person was said to have been killed and seven injured at Bucharest.

The reports, filtering through strict Rumanian censorship, followed publication of an announcement from Bucharest that three highranking members of the Iron Guard had been expelled.

The revolt was said to have been directed against the Iron Guard leader, Horia Sima.

Minneapolis, Nov. 15.—(AP)—A perplexed man called up United States draft headquarters and confessed that on registration day be celebrated so much he ended up registering in two places. What to do? Answered the Draft Board: "Report in the district which calls you first and quit worrying about the other one. The army will do your worrying for you after that".

ITALIANS BACK UP

Thousands of Italian Prisoners Taken by Greeks Though Outnumbered Three to One

Athens, Nov. 15 (AP)—Destruction of two Italian divisions, presumably totalling about 30,000 men, was announced by the Athens radio today and advices from the Albanian frontier credited Greece's armed forces with continued sweeping successes in all sectors.

Previous reports mentioned the destruction of only one division but the radio said a second was destroyed while seeking to aid the first.

The Greek army has taken the initiative along the entire 100-mile battlefront from the Ionian Sea to the Yugoslav border and is driving the Italians back everywhere, the radio declared.

Believe Five New 35,000-Ton Warships Now in Service

London, Nov. 15—(CP)—Although the Government maintains the closest secrecy, there is general belief here that the Royal Navy has had its five new 35,000-ton battleships of the King George V class in service for several months.

Prime Minister Churchill's statement of Nov. 5 that "we have ceaselessly strengthened the fleet in the Eastern Mediterranean" was interpreted in some quarters to mean that at least some of the new battleships already had gone to that area.

If these ships are in service they raise the total of Britain's capital ships to nineteen. With three Italian battleships knocked out of action in Monday's air raid on Taranto, Axis capital ship strength is only nine, counting two German 10,000-ton pocket battleships.

Mr. Churchill told the House of Commons in February that the King George V class soon would join the fleet. In April it was reported they were undergoing their trials.

The five great battlewagons, especially designed for speed, wide range and protection against air attack, are the King George V, Prince of Wales, Duke of York, Jellicoe and Beatty. They were launched between February and November, 1939.

DRIVE IS OPENED

New York, Nov. 15.—(AP) —A drive to raise $1,000,000 for the relief of the war-stricken people of China was opened last night by the newly formed China Emergency Relief Committee Inc., headed by Author Pearl S. Buck. Miss Buck announced that Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt was honorary chairman.

Fogarty Fegen's Heroism Places New Name in Britain's Naval Annals

London, Nov. 15.—(CP Cable) — Britain has written a new name in her naval annals, that of a sturdy Irish captain with the alliterative name of Fogarty Fegen, who went down with his ship, H.M.S. Jervis Bay, her guns blazing and her colors flying, as she challenged a powerful German raider.

Thanks to the "suicide" stand of the Jervis Bay in mid-Atlantic at least 30 of 38 ships in convoy are safe in British ports.

Capt. Fegen, 49, who went to his death November 5, maintaining the great traditions of the Royal Navy, was brought up in those traditions.

His father was the late Vice-Admiral F. F. Fegen of Ballinlonty, Tipperary. His grandfather was also a naval officer. Two brothers served in the Royal Navy. One is now dead, the other is Commander R. F. Fegen, attached to the naval command of a West Scotland port.

The sea was in his blood. He was a cadet in 1904, and in the First Great War he served first as a lieutenant and later was command of the Destroyers Moy and Paladin. Later he became Commander of the Naval College at Jervis Bay, in New South Wales.

He was appointed to the command of the Jervis Bay, an armed merchant cruiser, two months before the war.

32 Ships of Convoy Safe, 1 Unaccounted For, 5 Known To Be Lost

London, Nov. 15 (CP).—The Admiralty announced today that two more ships from the convoy attacked by a German surface raider on the North Atlantic are known to be safe.

The announcement said only four of the convoy's 38 ships are known to have been sunk by a raider. A fifth vessel is still unaccounted for.

Another, the admiralty announced was sunk by German bombing attack three days after escaping while the raider was engaged by the armed merchant cruiser Jervis Bay, which was escorting the convoy.

The ships whose safety became known today are the San Demetrio and the Morzka Wola.

Well-Known London Theatre Damaged

London, Nov. 15 (CP Cable)—The Theatre Royal in Drury Lane has been damaged in a German air raid, it was disclosed today.

A bomb crashed through the roof, the gallery and two balconies, and exploded in the pit.

Historic parts of the theatre, one of the oldest in the world, were not damaged, only a small piece of plaster was knocked from the Royal box in which every sovereign since the time of Charles II has sat.

It was also disclosed today that a bomb struck the grounds of Buckingham Palace recently, shattering figured glass windows in the Palace picture gallery.

HUGE QUANTITIES OF FARM PRODUCE SOLD TO BRITAIN

Hon. J. G. Gardiner Announces Terms of Agreement in House of Commons

CUT WHEAT SURPLUS

Ottawa, Nov. 15 (CP)—Canadian fish and farm products other than wheat have prospect of a sure market worth $105,000,000 in the United Kingdom next year, according to the report brought by Agriculture Minister Gardiner from a mission to Great Britain.

In addition, the Minister told the House of Commons yesterday, there is a likelihood the wheat surplus will be whittled down to 100,000,000 bushels or less in the next five years, while poultry, eggs and butter will go to the United Kingdom through the usual channels, although no fixed agreements have been reached for those products.

Mr. Gardiner said tentative agreement had been reached on bacon and pork products, canned fish and frozen cod, processed

Five Minesweepers Are Reported Lost

London, Nov. 15 (CP).—The Admiralty today announced the loss of five minesweepers — the trawlers Rinovia, Sevra, William Wesney, Stella Orion and the Drifter Girl Helen.

Meat of Dogs Legalized As Food in Germany, New Law Effective Jan. 1

Berlin, Nov. 15 (AP).—Effective Jan. 1, the meat of dogs will be a legal food for humans in Greater Germany.

A new law effective on that date provides for inspection of dog flesh, thus to be controlled in the same manner as meat from cattle, hogs, goats, horses and other domestic animals.

Dogs and hogs are to be examined for evidence of trichina (a parasitic worm) after being slaughtered, as are wild hogs, bears, foxes, river wolves, badgers and other meat-eating animals intended for human consumption.

Unlicensed and unclaimed mongrels presumably will furnish an additional supply of low-cost meat. Many canines are trained for service with the armed forces.

Some restaurants now serve horse meat. Consumers are not required to surrender their precious meat points for this food, as they are for pork, beef and other meats.

New York, Nov. 15 (AP).—News that dogmeat has been legalized for human consumption in Greater Germany recalls stories of famine in the Reich of the First Great War.

Dog meat then was scarce. Horse meat, served today in some Nazi restaurants, sold then for 86 cents a pound.

In April, 1917, a Dresden restaurant scored a coup by purchasing an elephant from a travelling circus to provide choice steaks and cutlets.

The last American woman to return from Germany after the United States entered the First Great War asserted that in Leipzig she found the piece de resistance on local menus was elephant meat, the heel being considered the greatest delicacy. The lions and tigers already had disappeared from the local zoo.

Sausage of Many Meats.

Sausage, standard of the German table, was made from horse, donkey, mule, fish, goat and rabbit meat and from Kohlrabi, a cabbage-like plant which was colored pink and spiced.

In May, 1917, an agricultural expert at Passau, Bavaria, advised Germans to "follow the example of Nebuchanezzar and eat grass" Other scientists proudly announced that certain layers of "edible earth" had been located in the lower valley of the Vistula.

A returning American traveller said people were eating crows, which sold for 40 cents each. Sparrows sold for eight cents. A sea food famine raised the price of canned eel to $2.50.

Germany countered a starvation blockade with substitutes or "ersatz" products as people stood in long lines to receive their one egg a month. Gypsum and chalk were used to adulterate flour and baking soda. Carpenters' glue was reportedly used in the manufacture of pudding powder.

FREIGHTER HULK FOUND SUBMERGED NEAR PENTWATER

Anna C. Minch Lying 400 Feet Offshore in Forty Feet of Water

ONLY MASTS VISIBLE

Sixteen Bodies of Foundered Vessel Have Washed Ashore

Ludington, Mich., Nov. 15— (AP)—The hulk of the Canadian freighter Anna C. Minch, which sank in Lake Michigan with 33 men during Monday's storm, was found today submerged in 40 feet of water a mile and a half south of the pier at Pentwater.

The vessel is lying 40 feet offshore and only the tips of the masts are above water.

It was discovered by Clyde Cross who went out in his fishing tug Three Brothers. It was the Three Brothers, piloted by Cross, which rescued 17 men from the foundered Canadian freighter, Novadoc, Wednesday morning.

Cross was able to remove the steel pennant from the most of the submerged steamship.

Search For Other Hulk

A further search was planned today for the hulk of the William B Davock, which is believed to have gone down in the same vicinity with 24 men.

Sixteen bodies have drifted ashore.

Four of the bodies that washed up at Pentwater and one here were claimed by Capt. Scott Misener, president and general manager of The Sarnia Steamship, Ltd., of Sarnia, Ont., owners of the Minch. The body of a youth, identified only as a crew member of the Minch, was sent to Toronto, for possible further identification.

There were two fatalities among the crew of the Novadoc, pulpwood carrier owned by The Paterson Steamship Lines of Fort William, Ont. They were Joseph Deshaw, steward of Toronto, and his assistant, Philip Flavin, Halifax.

Windsor Lad, Stoker on Jervis Bay, Listed As Missing

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 15 (CP). — Stoker Angus MacDonald, 21-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Angus MacDonald of Windsor, was making his first trip on a naval vessel—the Jervis Bay—when the armed merchantman was destroyed in a battle with a German raider while protecting a convoy. He is listed as missing.

MacDonald joined the Royal Canadian Naval Volunteer here last July. He was transferred to an east coast Canadian port six weeks ago and was taken on the Jervis Bay three weeks later.

MacDonald was well-known by golfers here as a caddy at the Essex Golf and Country Club.

Sylvia Pankhurst, Once Pacifist, Campaigns For Aid to Selassie

London, Nov. 15 (CP). — Sylvia Pankhurst, veteran suffragette and pacifist is now campaigning for aid to little Haile Selassie, King of Ethiopia, who is now reported somewhere in Africa, trying to organize an offensive against Mussolini, whose troops slaughtered his primitive subjects in a war that is now history.

Miss Pankhurst, whose followers at one time chained themselves to the fence outside No. 10 Downing street, were accused of pouring sulphuric acid in mail boxes, and in their day were widely considered a prime nuisance, is editor of the "New Times and Ethiopian News" published in a dingy old building in the Fleet street district.

Miss Pankhurst, an inveterate fighter, calls her paper, a tabloid publication, "an organ for international justice". Its office is in a thoroughly-bombed district of "the city".

Thirteen times Miss Pankhurst went on hunger strikes in British prisons and was forcibly fed as she campaigned for unpopular causes before and during the First Great War to which she was bitterly opposed.

One time when she spoke publicly against British participation in the First Great War she was arrested and fined. Miners in the town where she spoke paid the fine.

Miss Pankhurst, daughter of the late and renowned Emmeline Pankhurst, has been fighting usually unpopular battles almost all her life.

Who's Who gives her address at Woodford Green, Essex, a not-too-healthy spot. There is a balloon barrage base not far away.

Many Buildings Straffed Including The Cathedral

Midlands Hard Hit But London Has Comparative Raid Rest

London, Nov. 15—(CP) — The Ministry of Home Security announced today that about 1,000 casualities were indicated from preliminary reports of a heavy air attack on Coventry last night.

A communique said: "It is feared that extensive damage was done and many buildings destroyed, including the cathedral.

"The city suffered very seriously and the people bore their ordeal with great courage," it added.

At least two raiders were shot down.

The scale of the raid, the communique said, was "comparable with those of the largest night attack on London." Fires were reported to have broken out at many points and "indiscriminate bombardment of the whole city followed."

Intensive anti-aircraft fire was reported to have kept the invaders high and "hindered accurate bombing of industrial targets."

In the first daylight activity of the air war today, British fighters dispersed a squadron of German planes attacking a south coast town.

Two air raid warnings were sounded in the town by mid-morning.

The day stabs followed a night of assaults against Britain's "workshop" area.

Many Victims Buried in Ruins Of Historic City

Coventry, England, Nov. 15—(CP)—Coventry was a scene of devastation today after Nazi bombers from dusk to dawn had dumped their destructive loads in ceaseless relays.

A full moon shone, but its brilliance was dimmed by a pall of smoke and the glare of fire from burning buildings.

Today there were at least 1,000 dead and injured; victims were buried under vast piles of wreckage, fires licked through the town and the 14th Century Cathedral, with its 303-foot spire, was but one of many buildings in ruins.

Scarcely a street escaped the pounding of the raiders. It was the worst continuous attack experienced by any city—including London—since the siege of Britain began.

All night long, the narrow streets where Lady Godiva rode on her horse nearly 1,000 years ago trembled and crumbled with the thunder of diving planes, the scream of bombs and their explosions and the roar of anti-aircraft fire.

Searchlights stabbed through the shroud of smoke. Rifles and machine guns crackled as the city's defenders tried to shoot scores of flares out of the sky.

Two Hospitals Hit

At least two hospitals were hit. There were casualties in one; in another, all glass was blown from the operating theatre.

Store after store was damaged, but authorities said that supplies were not affected materially and that there would be no food shortage.

Military Targets Unharmed

The aeronautical expert of the Press Association said the Germans "failed lamentably" to hit military targets.

Several other Midlands towns were raided. In one 24 houses were demolished, 150 damaged extensively and a bomb dropped on a

BRITISH ANSWER LONG-RANGE GUNS

Nazi Guns on South East Coast Finally Lapse Into Silence

London, Nov. 15 (CP).—German long-range guns pounded Britain's southeast coast for two hours this morning, drawing a heavy counter-bombardment from British coastal batteries before they finally lapsed into silence.

The Nazi guns opened up just before daybreak as the mists were lifting from the English Channel, shaking the earth in the Dover area with heavy shells.

British guns mounted on the Kent coast went into action about 9 a.m. (3 a.m. E.D.T.).

An observation balloon went up from the French cliffs east of Cap Gris Nez and the air shook as shells screeched back and forth. There were no reports of casualties.

BEARS APPEAR PLENTIFUL IN NORTH

If the number of bears seen passing through the city on the cars of returning hunters is any indication of their numbers in the woods, it would appear that bruin is almost as plentiful this hunting season as are the deer. Practically every day a bear can be seen weighting down the fender of a passing car as some hunting party return from the chase and yesterday was no exception. The party in question were from Denbigh and a large bruin weighing well over 300 pounds and in splendid condition, lay across the front fender of their automobile.

"Y" PREPS HOLD PARTY

Many people passing the Y.M.C.A. building on Wednesday night wondered what all the racket was about. However, it was nothing to worry about, it was just the first Prep party of the winter season. 40 members of the Prep group and a few of their friends made a big evening of it, playing games, some of which were noisier than others, for a couple of hours, and then eating such quantities of sandwiches and cake, and drinking so much cocoa that the Social Committee had a busy time keeping them served.

But, it's all in the regular program of a Y group, and along about 9.30 the happy, tired boys, some so full of food they could hardly waddle, could be seen leaving the building with a memory of a big time had, and already looking forward to the next one. When is it to be? We wonder.

AD ILLUSTRATION IS INCORRECT

BABY MOOSE IS PET BUT HUNTER SHOOTS IT

Somewhere in Ontario there is a hunter who could easily lay claim to being "the meanest man in the world," for, according to a story in the Peterboro Examiner, over the past week-end he shot a baby moose that had been the pet of many residents up Coboconk way. The baby moose, along with a brother or sister, had been seen often of late with its parents, and had become so tame that children of the district were in the habit of taking pictures of it as it fed with a herd of cattle on a neighbouring ranch.

Last week-end, children out seeking to take pictures of the moose found it, the carcass still warm, but a bullet from the gun of some heartless hunter had ended its life.

That is the reason the villagers in the Coboconk district are up in arms and it is said that if the guilty party can be found he will be given the choice of two different modes of punishment. He may either face the fists of the angry villagers, or the hoofs of a bereaved and bewildered mother moose.

SLIPPERY ROAD CAUSE OF CRASH

Skidding on the slippery and snow-covered highway two miles west of Deseronto, an automobile driven by E. G. Hosking, R.R. No. 5, Belleville, turned completely over in the ditch along highway No. 2 shortly after two o'clock this morning.

Hosking and a passenger, Kenneth Sutton, of the R.C.A.F., both escaped without injuries, although the motor car was a complete wreck, Motorcycle Patrolman Chas. Siple reported after investigation. The vehicle, which was a 1928 model Chevrolet, rolled over and came to a stop, while resting on the top. Doors, windows and the body damaged beyond repair.

Democractic Standards Must Prevail Says Judge C. A. Cameron

Notwithstanding the slowness of other nations to perceive the course being pursued by Nazi Germany under Hitler, and their desire not to believe what they saw was true, even when they did perceive it, all of which resulted in a great lack of military preparedness to withstand the impulse of Germany's attacks and invasions, the courage and indomitable will of Britain and her Allies will eventually completely subdue the enemies of the Democratic way of living, and again bring peace and comfort to our war torn world. This was the highlight of the address made to the Torch Club by Judge C. A. Cameron last night at their regular bi-weekly supper meeting at the Y.M.C.A.

Judge Cameron was introduced by George Dudgeon of the Collegiate staff, who is adult advisor to the club, and the thanks of the club was expressed by the President, Ben Ogilvie.

The Judge gave the group a rather extensive survey of the conditions prevailing in Europe between the end of the last war and the beginning of this one, tracing the development of the Nazi idea and method, and giving the members a little clearer insight into International affairs.

The warning was given, howeve that although the Democratic way of life would prevail, we must be prepared to accept changes, some of them, perhaps, radical in our Democratic system when this war is over, for there is still a lot of injustice in the world, and until it has been wiped out, we cannot hope to have done with discontent, which is the prime cause of all major upheavals.

Provincial Constable A. Dymond Praised By Justice Mac Kay

The tribute was paid during the hearing of the Parks-Munro $10,000 damage suit in which the officer, Provincial Constable Arthur Dymond, Madoc, testified to the condition of the driver of an automobile involved in the accident.

The officer stated he could smell beer or liquor on the man's breath, and he was acting "very excitedly". He had taken the man to a doctor's office where a blood test had been taken, and the decision reached that the man was not intoxicated.

"You did a splendid thing, officer," commented Justice MacKay, "and I commend you for your thoughtful action. It has probably saved a lot of unnecessary trouble and time."

DRUNK DRIVING BRINGS TEN DAYS

Toronto Truckdriver Held Responsible for Accident Near City Limits

After sideswiping another motor vehicle, a truck driven by Victor J. Graham, Toronto, crashed into a hydro pole at the west city limits here last night causing considerable damage and breaking off the pole.

Today in city police court, held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., Graham pleaded guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated and was sentenced to serve ten days in the common jail. William Hamwell, of Toronto, and a passenger in the truck driven by Graham, pleaded guilty to a charge of common drunk and was fined $10 and costs or 14 days in default thereof.

Graham was proceeding easterly in his truck about nine o'clock and had just entered the city limits when it is alleged his truck sideswiped a west bound transport driven by A. E. Nash, Toronto trucker. The force of the impact swerved the Graham driven truck towards the south, where it struck a hydro pole, breaking it off at the base.

Constables Arnott, Taylor and Motorcycle Patrolman J. H. Hatch investigated and placed the pair under arrest, while the truck was towed to a local garage.

Besides being imprisoned for ten days Graham was assessed $6.75, costs and his driver's licence was suspended for a period of one month.

Frank Elliott, Belleville, was sentenced to serve ten days in jail after being convicted of assaulting Miss Dorothy Elliott, also of this city. "All I did was to take hold of her wrist and I don't think I should go to jail for that," protested Elliott. "If you so much as touch a person it constitutes assault in the eyes of the law," explained Magistrate Butler as Elliott was removed to the cells.

In the absence of Crown Attorney S. G. Robertson today, Police Court Clerk Chief Kidd conducted the prosecutions of the day. Three inebriates admitted imbibing too freely and one was sentenced to three months, when Chief Kidd pointed out it was the accused man's third offence of drunkenness in the past six months.

The grounds have been enclosed by a fence and motorists are now permitted to drive past. For a time the road has been blocked. No visitors are allowed on the grounds without special permission.

BRITAIN ORDERS SPEED-UP IN MUNITIONS MAKE

Million New Workers to be Drafted Into Production of War Essentials by August 1st., 1941

(By J. F. Sanderson, Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 15—(CP Cable) — An industrial speed-up has been ordered by the government which will involve the drafting of 1,000,000 men and women into the production of munitions by August, 1941.

The object of the scheme is to place Britain's output of war essentials by the end of the second year of war at a pitch reached in 1918, four years after the outbreak of the First Great War.

Of the 1,000,000 new workers to be drafted to wartime essential industries 500,000 will be women. The government will comb the non-essential industries for trained workers who can be transferred to the production of planes, tanks, warships and other implements of war.

Extra training schools will be opened to give them experience in precision work necessary for the production of modern war machines. As many as possible will be recruited from the ranks of the unemployed who number between 500,000 and 600,000 including thousands of unemployables.

In Co-Operation with Trade Unions

It is believed possible that the speed-up will involve requisitioning industrial property under government management. This principle is already in operation in many branches of wartime production, the government taking control of factories falling behind in production or where a change of management is thought to be preferable.

The scheme will be operated in collaboration with Britain's powerful trade unions which have in effect surrendered their rights and privileges for the duration of the war to work in co-operation with the authorities in wartime production.

It is impossible to show what increase the speed-up will mean in Britain's industrial army because the government stopped publishing figures on the outbreak of war.

BRITISH AND GREEK VICTORIES

The Grecian Isles and the mainland of Greece today glow in the light of glorious victories won by smaller forces of Greeks or Hellenes as they were known of old, against superior forces of Fascist Italians. The ancient heroes who saved Greece from invaders twenty-five centuries ago at Thermopylae, at Marathon, at Salamis and at Plataea, are honored in the achievements of their descendants today. A story of the defeat and cutting up of 20,000 Fascist troops by two thousand Greeks in the mountains as reported yesterday was one of the most remarkable achievements. It shows the inspiration which fires the Greeks against the would-be-invader and desecrator of their country.

Britain has stood faithfully by her pledge to aid the Greeks. Both the British people and the Greek people are greatly cheered by the most momentous news of this week which places it in the foremost period of Allied successes. The support by the British navy and air force have been of inestimable value to the Greeks and to the British alike. Here the alliance is working in the completest form and results are mutually beneficial.

British navy and naval airmen from a carrier at the Battle of Taranto performed in the true spirit of the Royal Navy and the incidents they have figured in are among the most daring in history. From other days is recalled the British naval success in "singeing the Spanish king's beard" in the days of Drake. At Taranto the prestige of the Fascists was singed.

All in all this week in the Mediterranean will live in history. The events have reached a culmination which will no doubt tell very effectively on the future progress of the war in the Inland Sea.

HISTORY AS IT IS BEING MADE

Today world history is being made and the people in the democratic countries of the world can see the course of events, which are of course hidden from the German and Italian peoples by the dictators. The people get an accurate picture of events from the British communiques and in the newspaper stories which give intimate touches of the most dramatic events.

In these days of history-making events, the newspapers serve a necessary purpose, to present the facts and give the people a clear view of what is happening. Democratic peoples are trained to face facts, even if they are at times unpleasant. The newspaper makes a permanent record.

When the history of this war is written, the newspapers of Allied countries will be searched for facts and stories of these momentous times and there will be a vast material found in papers in every part of the world which is not subject to suppression, as well as in the official records.

But the people of today do not have to wait for that history to be written. They are not like the Germans and Italians who are given but part of one side. The democratic peoples read the truth as far as it is possible to assemble it under the conditions of war. Modern science with cable and telegraph make this possible along with telegraphed photographs.

The radio of course plays its part in distributing news but the radio cannot carry the news in all its fullness and amplifications as the newspaper does. The British radio commentary on the news is very important and broadcasts of addresses by leading Britishers are very much appreciated.

MUSSOLINI'S STOCK FALLING

Mussolini built up Fascism on dictator principles and then tried them out on Ethiopia, Albania and Spain.

Then he looked for bigger tests. He thought France done for and jumped in as an ally of Hitler and won for the Fascists the name of "jackal." So he tried to show Britain what Italy could do and his experiences in the Mediterranean have been rather a sorry failure with his campaigns bogging down and his fleet winning the name of being fugitive in character. While this was going on he lost warcraft, including submarines in encounters with British ships and his drive toward Egypt has won him nothing.

Why he invaded Greece when he did is not clear. It is thought he wanted to show Fascist prowess but his prestige has been falling steadily since he launched his ultimatum at the Greeks. The Greeks did not know fear and they understood Fascist bluff, so they hit back at the unsuspecting Mussolini who expected Greece to yield to his demands without a fight. Now the Greeks not only fought and defeated but they discredited Duce's army and bottled up his choicest division, the Centaurs, who had been especially trained for mountain fighting. Then began the Italian retreat before the Greeks.

But more woes were in store for the Duce. British air squadrons began to make the air hum about the toe of Italy. Along came British airmen to hit military objectives at Naples, then blows fell at Durazzo in Italianized Albania. At length came the blow at Taranto where Mussolini's fine battleships lay. There a major loss to Italy was sustained. Then followed the raid on an Italian convoy which was all but destroyed.

So it goes on. Italy's prestige has been dropping steadily in the past weeks. Mussolini must be irritated and Hitler must be annoyed at the showing of his ally.

"More Help" Theme of Canada's Foreign Language Press

More and still more help in the fight for freedom is the recurring theme of Canada's foreign language Press. "Novy Shliakh" (New Pathway), Ukranian semi-weekly of Saskatoon, puts it in these words: "Thousands of our brothers, sons and grandsons stand today armed in the British Isles, elbow to elbow with the heroic sons of Albion, like a living wall against hostile aggression. Our cents and dollars also constitute a part of Canada's war funds. We are not the last ones by any means, but our assistance should grow proportionately to the needs and the sacrifices of the people in the British Isles. It should grow and get mightier every day. Our poverty, which in normal times could be a sufficient excuse, would now be only a subterfuge. When the people over there are sacrificing their lives and everything they have,— we too must offer help from here in the spirit of complete unselfishness."

Der Courier, German weekly, Regina, presses on its readers the need for gratitude, gratitude that no aeroplanes are raining death over Western Canada, that Canada has been spared the epidemics which almost every war brings." In spite of the war", Der Courier continues, "we are allowed to use our mother tongue and go about our business unimpeded. And still people complain; it has become the custom to do so.

"Der Nordwesten, German weekly, Winnipeg, in an editorial published in both German and English, observes that the foreign language section of our population includes some 300,000 German-Canadians and a much less but quite substantial number of Italians. "The vast majority of both," says Der Nordwesten, "are just as anxious to see the barbaric policy and methods of the leaders of their fatherlands crushed, as is the most ardent and heavily bombed Londoner. Such people deserve credit rather than the criticism which is often directed against them by ill-informed people . . . Hereafter we trust that everyone who has taken upon himself the responsibility of our citizenship, and fulfilled its requirements, will be treated not as an alien, but as a full-fledged Canadian. The spirit of Canada is a mighty factor in the assurance of victory."

And a writer in "Keneder Adler" (Jewish Eagle) Montreal, describes how, on Broadway, he went to see the film: "London Can Take It."

The film showed England's capital was being bombed by Hitler's aeroplanes and how the King's pilots were fighting back. I noticed that the whole audience was receiving this, with the same feelings and emotions as I, a British subject. When the airplanes of the R. A. F. appeared, the whole audience applauded them, just as though to give them courage.

Let's Face the Facts at Home

Parliament reassembles this week. So long as it is in session, Canada's war leaders—the Prime Minister, his war cabinet and other ministers—must be in attendance in the House.

To their onerous duties as policy-makers and departmental heads will be added the further responsibility of Parliamentary leadership.

No minister is more affected by this added responsibility than Hon. C. D. Howe, Minister of Munitions and Supply.

Mr. Howe is trying to do the impossible.

He is policymaker and cabinet liaison for the most gigantic industrial programme ever undertaken in Canada—war supply.

And he is trying to be the administrative "boss" of that programme—actively directing and controlling the biggest of all Canadian "big" businesses.

No man living could do both these jobs and do them well. One inevitably must interfere with the other.

Mr. Howe is a political leader and cabinet minister. As such he has a job to do—a job of leadership and inspiration.

But war supply is another job. It is an industrial job. It needs an industrialist at its head.

Herbert C. Hoover has reminded us that every nation in Europe started in the last war to organize industrial production of war materials through boards. After mud- "thousands of men and hundreds of million of dollars," every government fighting in that war finally created a munitions department headed by a single man.

"The profession of our soldiers and sailors is to make war," according to Mr. Hoover. "They are not trained as production and financial executives. And neither are the politicians nor bureaucrats. This is a job for businessmen and labor.

"It is an industrial job—a manufacturing job, a mass-production job for management and labor. It requires that thousands of factories be co-ordinated to do their part."

David Lawrence, this week in "The United States News," tells of how the United States got results in war production in the last war. It drifted along without effectiveness until the President saw that he had to make someone boss.

He gave Bernard M. Baruch more powers than any governmental official has ever had.

"The record is a magnificent one. Mr. Baruch brought to his side the ablest men in the country. There was no thought of party politics or any other kind of politics. And the job was done right. After the war these powers were instantly relinquished......"

Mr. Lawrence declares that again today:

"The decisions must be in the hands of those who understand industrial production."

Today at Washington Mr. Roosevelt aspires to be not only the political head of the nation but its war supply boss as well. As a result the all-out defense effort is being blocked. The country is getting some results but nothing like the results it should be getting.

What is true at Washington is equally true at Ottawa.

To get results in Canada, someone must be named co-ordinator of our industrial war effort. That someone must be a person without the slightest interest in politics as such.

War supply is a big business. It is not a "departmental" job, nor a political job. It requires direction by someone with freedom of action and full power to: appoint his own staff; direct the placing of orders; be responsible for production schedules and delivery.

Mr. Howe has passed direction of parts of the supply programme to some of Canada's ablest business leaders. As heads of wholly-owned government munition and supply companies, as directors-general of production for shells, aircraft, purchasing, explosives, etc., these men are helping to share the responsibility.

What has not yet been done is to follow a simple business principle and appoint one man to co-ordinate the work of all—a "general manager" free from political connections and with power and authority to set up his own system to get results.

Ultimate responsibility will remain where it is now—with the government—represented in this case by Mr. Howe. Immediate administrative responsibility would pass to one man with the competence and authority to get one thing—results.

This change in Canada's supply programme becomes increasingly imperative as munitions and supply passes from the blue-print to the production stages. It is something which Mr. King and Mr. Howe cannot longer ignore—especially since their parliamentary duties have arrived.

This is a fact that must be faced—at home.—The Financial Post.

"Somewhere in England"

Along the winding English road comes a Canadian army convoy... a long line of powerful trucks carrying troops, ammunition and supplies faster and more efficiently than they have ever been carried in the whole of military history.

On those big, drab trucks depend the mobility and striking force of the Canadian army. Whence do these vital vehicles come? Who are the men who build them?

The story begins far from this winding road in Britain's battle zone. It begins in a Canadian motor factory...in Windsor perhaps, or Oshawa.

There the parts are made and crated...engines, frames, wheels, cabs bodies are neatly packed in big wooden boxes so that they will occupy the minimum of precious space in a ship's hold.

The Royal navy helps to stear the ship safely across the Atlantic despite Nazi mines, bombs and torpedoes. In a British port the crates are swung ashore. By train they are rushed to a modern motor assembly plant, operated by Canadian Military Headquarters.

High above the plant float silvery barrage balloons to keep the German bombers at a respectful distance. Outside the gates Canadian soldiers stand guard night and day to make sure there is no sabotage.

But step inside the plant and the war seems far away. You might be back in Canada, watching trucks being assembled in Oshawa or Windsor.

Businesslike Canadians

You meet C. S. Finkle, superintendent of the plant. He wears a grey tweed suit is brisk, businesslike and 40. Queen's graduate in mechanical engineering, was on the staff of Detroit architect Albert Kahn assisting in the design of the Stalingrad tractor plant and other big Russian factories. He served the Ford Motor Co. in Windsor, Montreal, India and Winnipeg before coming to England last March to superintend this assembly plant for Canadian military headquarters.

Mr. Finkle explains that the plant is officially known as the Canadian Mechanization Depot, that the manager is A. S. Ellis, technical advisor on mechanical transport to the Canadian Military Headquarters and that the military authority responsible for the whole organization is Brigadier G. P. Loggie, Deputy Quarter Master General.

Mr. Finkle shows you over the whole plant...160,000 square feet of it. First you see the crates unloaded beside the railway track that runs right into the factory building.

He refers to these crates as S. K. D. It turns out that this means "semi knock-down." For some time the factory was operating on a C. K. D. (complete knock-down) basis but they found that the slight saving in shipping space was not worth the extra time required in assembly. Promptly the plant returned to the more efficient S. K. D. system.

From the point where the crates are unpacked to the end of the production line, the truck takes shape with amazing speed. Nimble hands bolt in engines, wheels, cabs, bodies.

Inexorably the conveyor belt moves forward, carrying the whole assembly line towards completion. This mechanized pageant seems smooth enough now but the present efficiency has not been achieved without great effort on the part of the men who first established the plant just a few months ago.

Mr. Finkle arrived last March with four other Canadian motor experts: H. M. Jeffery of Oshawa, A. G. Wilson of Toronto, G. W. T. Brown of Toronto and R. R. Lane of Cornwall, Ont. All they had to start with was an empty building. It had been a car assembly plant but had closed down when war broke out. Now there were few tools or workmen.

Tools were soon obtained but labor presented more of a problem. With Britain's own war industries going full blast most assembly men had already been absorbed.

Labor Scarce

The Canadian technicians had to take what labour they could get. Most of the men were completely inexperienced when it came to putting trucks together. Some had been ships stewards, others had been bartenders, waiters, clerks. They had to be taught the most elementary things about the use of high cycle tools.

At first when tightening nuts with an electrically driven tool, many of the workmen did not realize that the "chatter" of the tool meant that the nut was tight. They kept on blithely, "chattering" away until one of the Canadian experts grabbed the tool away from them and explained how it worked.

The men learned quickly but there had to be close inspection and supervision to guarantee that everything went smoothly.

On one occasion a Canadian technician noticed that the trucks were coming off the assembly line with this and that out of place.

He checked back and found that one group of men were so eager to learn all they could about motor car assembly that they had swapped jobs to broaden their experience. A rivetter was bolting on wheels; a wheel bolter was handling the rivetting machine. They were getting a liberal education but gumming up the productive work.

Such snags were quickly untangled. Rigid inspection made sure that no faulty vehicle left the factory to be issued to the troops.

Every vehicle is subjected to five distince tests from the inspection of the bare bones of the chassis to the final road test.

Production Begun

Production began last April 15. There was no time or opportunity for preliminary training. The 240 employees of the plant simply had to learn their job by doing it. This placed a severe strain on the Canadian experts who had to work every day from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. not only teaching the men how to handle the work efficiently, but taking care of all the organization detail.

But the Canadian technicians do not begrudge this time for the British workmen proved apt pupils.

"Now that the men are trained," says Mr. Finkle, "Production compares very favorably with commercial production in a similar plant back home."

All trucks produced in this plant are of three types; 15 cwt, 30 cwt, and three tons. On the 15 cwt. model production has achieved a top rate of four and a half vehicles an hour.

All three types are powered with a 90 h.p. engine...either a Ford 8 or a Chevrolet 6 cylinder motor.

To simplify assembly, servicing and repairs the two companies have made as many parts as possible interchangeable. Frames, of course, vary according to whether the engine is a Ford or Chevrolet, but some of the chassis parts, the axles, wheels, tires and truck bodies are interchangeable.

In the matter of personnel, rivalries of the two companies have also been forgotten. Some of the Canadian experts used to be "Ford men". Others were "G.M." But now—though still civilians—they are all working together for the Canadian army.

Since the first group of technicians arrived last spring to open the plant, a second contingent of Canadian experts has come over to direct various branches of the expanding production program. These technical reinforcements include T. R. Caldwell of Oshawa, C. W. Kirkpatrick of Toronto, C. G. Menendez of Oshawa, W. L. Coleman of Oshawa, J. A. Aldwinkle of Oshawa, W. Davidson of Windsor, T. E. Beard of Oshawa, A. D. Rousse of Windsor, G. Gray of Oshawa and W. C. Buchanan also of Oshawa.

Foil Raiders

In addition to the ordinary problems of high-speed production, these men also have to cope with the danger of bombs. They have worked out an ingenious scheme for foiling the German raiders.

Each night every workman locks his tools in a box and puts them in one of several trucks. The high cycle motor generator set, electric tools, arc welders and other major equipment and office records are similarly removed every night. The loaded trucks are driven to widely scattered parts of the district and put under guard. Next morning they are driven back to the plant and the tools are put back to work.

The whole scheme has been worked out so efficiently that it only takes 10 minutes at night to put away the tools and 10 minutes in the morning to get the plant in operation. This is done before the main group of workmen arrive so that there is no loss of actual production time.

Even if the factory were heavily bombed by German planes during the night, production could be resumed almost immediately. The valuable tools would still be intact thanks to the foresight of the Canadian staff of experts.

They also see to it that nothing is wasted. Wood from the crates in which vehicle parts are packed and various other types of packing material are carefully sorted out for use by the Canadian army. Many soldiers this winter will be living in huts partly constructed from this wood.—Director Public Information.

Preventing Constipation

In an effort to show that a movement of the bowels once or twice a day is not absolutely necessary for good health, Dr. Walter C. Alvarez, Mayo Clinic, placed absorbent cotton up into the lower bowel and the patients all had the same heavy, lazy feeling found in constipation. The stretching of the walls of the bowel by the absorbent cotton had the same effect as the stretching of the walls of the bowel by waste matter. It is not, therefore, so much the absorption of wastes from the bowel into the blood in constipated individuals that causes their symptoms, but the stretching by the accumulation of waste matter. Dr. Alvarez reported cases where bowel movement occurred only every 5 or 6 days yet these individuals were quite healthy.

This does not mean that bowel movement should not occur once or twice a day because mankind feels better and is better when there is a daily bowel habit. Dr. Alvarez had in mind only that we should not worry about not having a daily bowel habit and take strong purgatives which cause the bowel to lose some of its nervous and muscular power.

Physicians all advise establishing a daily bowel habit to prevent the absorption, however, small of wastes, and also because of its brightening effect upon the mind. Not only does the constipated individual have a "heavy" feeling physically but the fact that he is constipated is always or often on his mind and becomes a real mental hazard.

Some simple suggestions that, if followed regularly, will usually establish a regular bowel habit are:

1.—When you arise in the morning do a few bending exercises slowly such as trying to touch the toes, knees straight, or simply tighten and relax your abdominal muscles 10 to 20 times.

2.—Drink a glass or half a glass of water as you sit down to breakfast. It can be warm or cold as it is its weight that often starts stomach muscles moving and this movement continues down to small and then to large intestine.

3.—Eat a large breakfast slowly, even if it means getting up a few minutes earlier.

4.—Go to toilet after breakfast every morning and try to establish the habit.

SUIT AFTERMATH OF ACCIDENT IN MADOC VILLAGE

Gordon Munro, Father of Wellington Munro, Sued for $10,000 in Supreme Court

CASE CONTINUES

Three witnesses identified Wellington Munro, youthful Madoc resident as the driver of the car alleged to have inflicted severe injuries to Mrs. Jennie Parks, Madoc, in an accident in the northern village on November 23rd., 1938, at the opening of the $10,000 damage suit brought by the injured woman and her husband Arthur Parks, against Gordon Munro, father of the driver, in Supreme Court yesterday.

The plaintiffs are suing for $7,500 damages for injuries and $2,500 for hospitalization and medical expenses.

W. A. L. Fair, Peterborough, is appearing for the defendant with Charles A. Payne, K.C., representing the plaintiffs. Mr. Justice Keiller MacKay is presiding.

The suit is the aftermath of the accident in which a car owned by Gordon Munro, and driven by his son, Wellington, now in the R.C.A.F., is alleged to have struck Mrs. Parks and pinned her against a parked automobile near the corner of St. Laurence and Davidson Streets, Madoc.

Injuries Outlined to Jury

Dr. George H. Stobie, Belleville surgeon, first witness called testified that the injured woman had suffered a compound comminuted fracture of the left leg. The bone had been crushed to such an extent that a bone-graft had been deemed advisable. The limb is two and one-half inches shorter than the other. Mrs. Parks had had lengthy hospitalization, Dr. Stobie said, and the bone graft had been successfully accomplished after it had been revealed the bone would not knit due to the 2 1-2 inch shortage. He estimated Mrs. Parks disability to be approximately 60 per cent.

Cross-examined by Mr. Fair, Dr. Stobie stated that bone-graft had been the best and only method of treatment. Extension treatment as suggested by council was out of the question in cases, where the bone is crushed and a part of it gone.

Dr. S. R. Beatty, Madoc physician, corroborated Dr. Stobie's evidence as to best method of treatment. The crushing of the bone had been, in his opinion, the result of pinning between one object and another. He had been the family doctor of the Parks for thirteen years and had not "given Mrs. Parks as much as a single bottle of medicine".

Provincial Constable Heard

Police Constable Arthu. Dyment, investigating officer testified that Wellington Munro had told him shortly after the accident occurred that he had seen the Parks standing in front of the parked car. He had used his brakes but they were no good, and he had struck Mrs. Parks.

Questioned by counsel, the officer said, in regard to Munro's condition that night, that he smelled of liquor or beer. Munro admitted to having "a few beers" and seemed very excited. He kept repeating "O my God what have I done?" The officer had taken him to a doctor's office where a blood test had been taken which revealed Munro had not been intoxicated.

"It was more excitement than drunkenness".

The brakes of the car had been tested and were found to be bad, stopping within 44 feet from a speed of 20 miles per hour.

Cross-examined P. C. Dymond stated that it was his opinion Munro had not intended to park on the south side of St. Laurence Street when he turned the Davidson Street corner but had taken the turn "too wide". He had seen the tracks of automobile tires curving in a large arc from the Davidson Street corner to the scene of the accident. A "Stop" sign was erected on Davidson Street 20 feet back from the corner. There were no cars parked between the sign and the corner but vehicles were parked along both sides of St. Laurence Street with the exception of an empty space ahead of the parked car involved in the accident, and which was owned by a man named McCoy. Both cars received damage to bumper and fender on the left front side.

Driver is Identified

Mr. and Mrs. H. Haydon, Madoc farmers, testified to being with the Parks at a Madoc Armouries party on the night of the accident. They had walked with them along St. Laurence Street and left them near where the crash occurred. Both witnesses identified Wellington Munro as the driver of the car, and both stated that a second or so after they left the Parks who had started to cross the street, they heard a funny noise. Both had turned and seen an automobile turn the Davidson Street Corner, veer across the street and strike the McCoy car.

Haydon testified he saw the Munro car strike Mrs. Parks, but did not know where Parks had gone. The driver had backed his car away one or two feet after the impact. He saw Munro get out of the car and heard him say, that his brakes were no good. Again in a doctor's office, witness heard Munro repeat his brakes were no good, and that he did not want to drive the car again.

Stiff Cross-Examination

Under cross-examination Haydon told the jury he had not heard Parks say "if my wife had not turned around she would not have been hit". He admitted to counsel that he saw Mrs. Parks turn east, but was not sure of the distance she was away from the sidewalk at the time of being struck.

Mrs. Haydon testified she thought the car seemed to be out of control. "I thought it was coming on the sidewalk when it turned to the west and struck the parked car. Mrs. Parks was even with the left front of the McCoy car and I heard her say 'O look at that car'."

"She screamed and I ran to her", Mrs. Haydon said. "She was about three feet from the curb". Parks came from around the back of the car so he must have been well in front of Mrs. Parks, the witness admitted to the defendant's counsel. The sitting adjourned at 11.10 last night, and a decision is expected to be reached some time today or this evening.

Rear Admiral Praised For Leadership in Taranto Victory

London, Nov. 15 (CP)—Rear Admiral Arthur Lumley St. George Lyster was given a "special tribute" by First Lord of the Admiralty A. V. Alexander, Thursday, for his leadership of the Mediterranean fleet air arm in its attack on Italian fleet units at Taranto. He has followed the sea for 35 years.

Ironically, his exploits once won him appointment as Cavalier of the Italian Order of the Crown.

Named for England's patron saint, he has spent most of his career afloat or in staff schools. Admiral Lyster's recent record shows only three years of shore duty.

At sea his commands have been important. For service at Gallipoli and with the Grand Fleet in the last war, he won the Distinguished Service Order.

During 1919 he served aboard the H.M.S. Renown during the tour of the Prince of Wales in Canada and Australia. He was A.D.C. to the King in 1939 when he became a Rear-Admiral.

Born in Warwickshire, he went to sea as a midshipman at 17 and on the way up the ladder to Rear Admiral he commanded H.M.S. Nelson, one of Britain's most powerful ships.

An outwardly bluff and hearty fellow, he is addicted to fishing and the landlubber sport of hunting when on leave from his ships. He is the father of three girls.

Thomasburg Hunter Bags 300-Pound Bear

The curiosity of Claude Wagar, Thomasburg hunter, not only got him the fright of his life, but added a three-hundred-pound bear to the party's bag, while hunting near Slate's Falls, near Denbigh, yesterday.

Wagar, with Clayton Fisher, Tweed, and party were trailing deer in this section of the north woods, when a dog accompanying Wagar suddenly gave tongue and dashed in the direction of a huge fallen tree. The dog bristled and backed away from a pile of dead leaves and other forest debris directly below the trunk of the tree.

Wagar left his rifle leaning against a tree about one hundred feet away and approached the spot to investigate. The dog backed still further away, snarling and yelping.

The curious hunter got down on his hands and knees and cautiously felt in the leaves. There came a sudden flurry and a deep-throated growl echoed in the woods as the large bear suddenly reared and advanced toward the frightened hunter with its paws extended. Wagar turned and raced for his gun and a few seconds later a well-timed shot brought the bruin low.

Fisher, a juryman called on the Supreme Court panel here, brought the big bear to the city today where it provided a moment of respite for upwards of forty tired jurymen.

COUNSEL ARRIVE AT SETTLEMENT OUT OF COURT

Damage Suit Concluded Before Case Given to the Jury

AMOUNT NOT GIVEN

Following an all-afternoon consultation between counsel and litigant representatives, culminated with a last-minute conference with Mr. Justice Keiller MacKay, presiding supreme court judge, the $25,000 damage suit brought by the Canadian National Railways against George C. Montgomery, Frankford salesman, came to an abrupt end at six o'clock last night when it was announced that settlement had been made for an undisclosed amount.

R. E. Laidlaw, K.C., plaintiff's counsel and B. M. Balfour, K.C., representing Montgomery, had rested their respective cases shortly after noon, and were prepared to present their addresses to the jury when court was adjourned until the afternoon sitting.

Consultations between counsel, which had begun some time previous, was resumed at this point, and Mr. Justice MacKay ordered the empaneling of a jury to hear the damage suit of Parks versus Munro.

Settled by Parties

At five-thirty the bench was requested in the chambers where settlement consultations were taking place and at a few minutes before six His Lordship dismissed the jury with the statement that the decision had now been taken out of their hands.

Counsel, interviewed following the announcement, refused to reveal amount of settlement.

The suit, which lasted six days, was productive of brilliant argument and a number of verbal "battles" goodnatured albeit between opposing counsel. It was the aftermath of a July, 1939, railroad crossing accident in which an automobile said to have been driven by Montgomery collided with a railway track-car at a crossing near Glen Ross injuring two C.N.R. employees riding on the car.

Montgomery Testifies

Montgomery, chief witness for the defence on Thursday was the last offered by B. M. Balfour, K.C. before he rested his case at twelve o'clock.

He told the jury that he had noticed a danger sign 400 feet from the crossing on the morning of the day of the accident and had driven his three-weeks old Chevrolet car at a reduced speed of 25 miles per hour while descending the hill that leads to the intersection. He could not see the track 400 feet west of the crossing but at 200 feet he could see a train for a space of 15 feet. if it were approaching. He did not see anything on the track on July 5th. There was a high embankment along the railroad on which sweet clover and grass were growing and objects less than 7 feet high could not be seen.

When 60 feet from the crossing he had looked to his left and at 25 to 30 feet he had looked to his right. He could not see or hear anything and approached the crossing at a speed of ten miles per hour. About ten feet from the crossing he had looked to the right and had seen the track-car approaching.

Shot Out in Front Claims Witness

"Suddenly the track-car shot out in front of me," he said. "When I saw it I swerved my car to the right and thought I could miss it. It struck the rear end of the track-car and something caught the grill of my automobile and swung it around to face the north-east." His car had stopped 5 feet on the east side of the tracks, he said.

Montgomery's car was damaged to the extent of $74.00. He had driven it three weeks after the accident before repairs had been effected. He was entering a counter-claim for $200 he told the court.

He had seen track-car run 8 or 10 feet alongside a culvert where it came to rest across a ditch. Todd, one of the injured men was lying unconscious underneath it and the witness had lifted the car and helped him out. He had sent for a doctor.

Montgomery, during a conversation with the injured Risk while awaiting the arrival of the doctor, had been asked by the injured man if "I knew how fast the track-car was going. I told him I had no idea, it came out too fast. He asked me if I thought he was going over 5 miles per hour and I told him I didn't know," Montgomery said.

Later, Risk had told him that if there was any trouble regarding the accident and he was going over 5 miles per hour in the track-car he (Risk) was liable to lose his job.

After the accident Montgomery had been questioned by Provincial Police officers, who had asked him to drive over the route once again while they went down the tracks and took measurements. "No action was taken by the police against me," he told the court.

Admits Car Slid

Under cross-examination by Mr. Laidlaw, Montgomery said he had had his car under control at a speed of 12 miles per hour 12 feet from the crossing and could have stopped had he seen any danger. When he saw the track-car ten to twelve feet away he had put on his brakes. He admitted the car slid around in the loose gravel near the tracks.

"When you were 12 feet from the tracks, you put on brakes, went through that twelve feet, across the right-of-way and stopped five feet east of the tracks, and originally going at 12 miles per hour?"

"Yes."

His car had stopped pointing in a northeasterly direction about five feet east of the tracks, he said. He pointed out to the jury where the track-car had run parallel to a culvert before coming to rest on the bank of a ditch.

The defence closed its case at this point.

Raleigh, N.C., Nov. 15.—(AP)—The food at the Carteret County prison is "not so good", complain the convicts—and even the State Prison Departments agrees. Until Monday night, the camp had four cooks. And the food was pretty good. But all four cooks escaped.

CAN FULL OF WATER

Roanoke, Va., Nov. 15.— (AP)—The elation felt by a negro over his bargain purchase of five gallons of liquor for $10 turned to fright when police halted him. They opened the can, sniffed, then told him he could drive on. Surprised the negro sniffed, too. The can was full of water.

Vitamins, Particularly A

A doctor has only to tell the average mother these days that Vitamin A is extremely important in the development of the young, that it is particularly essential to growth, to get her attention. For everybody has been made vitamin-conscious. If he adds that the same vitamin is essential to good eyesight, that lack of it can produce, for example, night blindness, he has her entire interest and she is almost sure to ask him just what pills or preparations he recommends as the best form in which to give a child plenty of Vitamin A.

A great deal of what has been written about vitamins has confused and misled as well as instructed the public. Too many associate vitamins with capsules or freak foods, when as a matter of fact if either a child or an adult gets a varied and well balanced diet of properly prepared food he will get a sufficient supply of this precious Vitamin A.

For Vitamin A is found in milk, cream, butter, cheese, eggs and green and yellow vegetables. As a rule, the deeper the yellow or green color of the vegetable, the more of Vitamin A it contains.

hood, studies show, persons with large stores of Vitamin A in their bodies, are less susceptible to respiratory diseases.

About vitamins I know that there are some people who say: "Piffle, they're just a fad". I also know that there are other extremists—people who must know all about the vitamins in each bit of food they eat. I think somewhere in between is the proper attitude.

Fish liver oils contain large amounts of this vitamin, which is another reason why cod-liver oil is so valuable a food for us all.

Scientists who have experimented a great deal with this vitamin assure us that if a child gets plenty of it in his diet, when he grows older that he is much less likely to suffer from respiratory infections.

The expectant mother, the mother who is nursing a baby, needs plenty of Vitamin A, and as she may not be able to get all she wants from an ordinary diet without overstuffing herself, she may need to take cod-liver oil.

It is a quality of Vitamin A that it usually isn't destroyed by heating or cooking, and so no special precautions need to be observed in cooking Vitamin A foods. Commercial canning, as it is carried on today, interferes very very little with the stores of the vitamin in the vegetable that is canned.

Another peculiarity of the Vitamin A is that unlike most of the others it can be stored up in the body. If your diet for a while contains an oversupply of it, your system lays some of it by to draw on later on when there may be a scarcity. And throughout adult-

Report is Given For October Work To Red Cross Society

The regular executive meeting of the Belleville Branch of the Red Cross Society was held on Nov. 12 in the Y.M.C.A. with the president Mr. Hefkey, in the chair.

Routine business included the passing of accounts, etc.

Mr. Howard Clarke pointed out that the recent successful campaign for funds had been carried on with as little expense as any such campaign ever held.

A letter from headquarters in Toronto expressed congratulations and thanks for the funds received from the campaign.

Mrs. Lazier reported on the work done in October as follows:

Nov. 11,1940

Mr. President, members of the Executive of the Belleville Branch:

During the month of October this branch has completed a great deal of work both for hospital supplies, knitted comforts and refugee article departments. In hospital supplies 2,014 articles have been finished and shipped to headquarters, in knitted comforts 1,238 articles have been sent and in refugee articles 486 articles have gone to assist the brave English people in bombed areas.

The convener of this committee wishes to thank the many groups who have accomplished this splendid task—special mention should be made of the Nurses' Alumnae who have sent 6 cartons of surgical dressings and bandages through our branch. Again, women's societies in the county have responded to our call for help with the making of clothing for English evacuees and refugees. Forty-eight handsome quilts have been made and donated to our work.

To all these workers the members of the Executive and the Canadian Club Executive the convener again wishes to convey her thanks for their co-operation, to the Bell Shirt Co. for their great service and, among others too numerous to mention, we owe a great deal for our fine monthly reports.

Respectfully Submitted,
Florence D. Lazier,
Convener, Women's War Service Committee.

When Mr. Sandman Evades Miss Beauty

Early to bed is a great beauty aid.

By HELEN FOLLETT

Do you get your beauty sleep, or do you tumble and toss all night, hash over your worries? If you are wakeful you'll throw plenty of money into the cash registers of beauty shops because loss of sleep is the arch enemy of good looks. Staying awake does not chase troubles and anxieties away; it just unfits one for fighting them.

Sandman Date

Mental and physical relaxation invite the arrival of the sandman. Muscles will not relax unless the mind is at rest. Hence the need of mental hygiene. A smart woman can hypnotize herself, affirming that she is at peace with the world and that all is well. It is the only way to cast out fretful thoughts. Put pleasant ones in your mind, and the uneasy ones scamper out.

Going to bed before one is completely played out is a good plan. Over-fatigue creates poisons that upset the central nervous system. Heavy meals are often responsible for restlessness. Family disputes keep the eyes wide open. You will find that the poised woman, the one whose life is organized, seldom complains of wakefulness.

x x x

Flat-chested girls do not qualify for this season's styles that call for pleasing curves. Usually they are flat-chested because of poor posture that sends the shoulders forward, or because they are shallow breathers.

Exercise will help. Upon awakening in the morning sit up in bed, place the hands on the chest, send them forward, then in wide high circles, breathing deeply while this is being done.

Second exercise, place the flattened palms on the chest, throw the upper portion of the body forward and back, lifting the chest high with each backward movement. Lie down, relax, take fifty deep long breaths. Then up and at the business of the day.

Much business of importance was transacted and Mrs. C. Ketcheson, Red Cross Convener, reported on that work. She asked that members might meet one day every two weeks separately from the regular meetings to do Red Cross work, and in that way she thought it would be possible to increase the number of articles that was needed so badly. This resolution was carried.

The topic for November being Home Economics Mrs. B. Bonisteel gave a very helpful paper on the preparation of food and clothing which was greatly appreciated. Mrs. R. Ketcheson, local leader, who attended the meat cooking school at Stirling, gave a report on what they took up at that school and will hold a demonstration on meat cooking at a later date.

Rebekah Members Attend School of Instruction at Stirling

On Tuesday of this week a number of members of Quintena Rebekah Lodge attended a District School of Instruction which was held in Stirling when the Assembly Warden Sis. Nora Bruner, of Ruthven, made her official visit to the district.

The afternoon session was in charge of the District Deputy President Evelyn Bailey, of Belleville District No. 30, each lodge in the district exemplifying some particular portion of the regular lodge proceedings, after which the Assembly Warden addressed the session and spoke in a very helpful and instructive manner.

Delightful Banquet

A delightful banquet was then served after which Sister Effie Bailey P.D.D.P., acted as toastmistress, after the toast to the King the following toasts were given, interspersed by community singing.

"Rebekah Assembly," proposed by Sis. Mabel Megginson P.A.C., and response made by Sis. Nora Bruner A.W.

"Belleville District No. 30," proposed by Sis. Mabel Stockloser, P.D.D.P., response by Sis. Evelyn Bailey, D.D.P.

"Visitors," proposed by Sis. Mildred Morrow, V.G., response by Sis. Blanche Countryman, P.D.D.P.

"Laurel Rebekah Lodge," proposed by Sis. Ethel Sandercock, P.N.G., response by Sis. Mary Vandervoort, N.G.

In the evening the regular meeting of the Laurel Rebekah Lodge No. 211, was opened with the regular officers occupying their respective stations, and presiding in a very capable manner, Sis. Nora Bruner, Warden of the Rebekah Assembly, and Sis. Evelyn Bailey, District Deputy, President of Belleville District No. 30 were officially introduced and welcomed, receiving a corsage of red roses each, and a beautiful bouquet of mums.

Birthday of Lodge

The occasion was the birthday of the Laurel Rebekah Lodge No. 211, which was instituted twenty years ago by Quintena Rebekah Lodge No. 133 of Belleville.

During the evening the draping of the Charter was exemplified by Oakdale Rebekah Lodge No. 134 in a capable manner.

A very inspiring address was given at the close of the lodge by A. W. Nora Bruner, who was presented with a lovely lamp and thanked the lodge in a suitable manner.

D.D.P., Evelyn Bailey was also called upon for an address which was much enjoyed by her many friends in her district and by way of appreciation from her Installation Staff and Guard of Honour was asked to accept a beautiful evening bag to remind her of the esteem they felt for her.

A Social Evening

At the close of the lodge the Birthday Party took the form of a social evening each lodge contributing numbers which were very much enjoyed by all present. Refreshments were bountifully provided by Laurel Lodge after which the proverbial birthday cake, beautifully decorated, and glowing with twenty candles was cut by A.W. Nora Bruner and the candles were blown out by D.D.P., Evelyn Bailey, who thanked Sister Bruner for her birthday message of good wishes and congratulations to Laurel Rebekah Lodge, and added her own good wishes and those of the entire district.

The visitors returned to their homes in the early morning hours feeling that this had proved to be one of the most instructive and enjoyable schools ever held, and that A.W., Nora Bruner had won a special place of friendship and sisterly love in the hearts of all who were in attendance and will look forward with eager anticipation to her next visit to our district.

Foxboro W. M. S. Elects Officers For 1941 Term

Foxboro — The November meeting of the W. M. S. was held in the S. S. rooms on Thursday. Mrs. Priest was in charge and after singing a hymn, prayer in unison was given for "Peace". The roll call was answered by thoughts brought from the Sectional Rally at Cannifton. Some of them were: "No matter what our work, we will be given grace to do it."

"We should not leave all to the different secretaries, as we each one have our personal responsibility," and we should live in God's love that our lives may cast a shadow which will be a benefit to some one else and unconsciously we may be a help to some one by a very simple act."

The offering was taken and a number of thank offering envelopes handed in. The report of the nominating committee was given by Mrs. J. G. Sills and the duty of each officer explained very clearly. Following is the list of officers for 1941:—

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J.A. The Highbrow Must Avoid Disfiguring Frown Lines

Virginia Field has a smooth, lovely forehead

By HELEN FOLLETT

TIME WAS when a high forehead was considered a beauty affliction, so women pulled their hair down almost to their eyes, were all wool and no faces. Now we are all highbrows. That means that foreheads must be satin smooth, without the sign of a crease of a crinkle.

If you have frown lines, or if little irrigation ditches are trekking from temple to temple the massage cream must come out of the cosmetic cabinet and get in its rejuvenating work. Palm it into a clean skin surface and don't be stingy with it. Place the thumb at the lower ends of frown fingers above. Hold the finger there, iron upward with the thumb, the idea being to lift the flesh out of the groove.

Crosslines

Crosslines call for a rotary movement of the first finger, followed by gentle smoothing and a brisk hammering to make blood streams hustle. Finish with an ice friction. The best time for annihilating wrinkles is at night when the cream can remain and soak into the flesh.

Keep the eyebrows in form. They have much to do in the matter of keeping the forehead up to snuff. Groom them after powdering the face, pouring brilliantine on the bristles of the brush. Shining eyebrows make for shining eyes.

A distinguished member of the medical profession tells your beauty reporter that women suffer less from serious skin troubles than men because they are more watchful, won't tolerate even small blemishes. If a blemish appears that doesn't look like anything they have ever seen before they put on their looney hats and trot-trot to a medical man who specializes in diseases of the skin and scalp.

Small warts are eyesores, easily removed by means of the X-ray or electric needle. Moles, if they become inflamed, should have immediate attention, as should a rash of any kind.

GOOD MANNERS

MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

YOU CAN SERVE TEA IN THE SIMPLEST WAY

Quite mistaken is Mrs. Homemaker who thinks that she should not attempt to serve tea to friends or neighbors who drop in during the afternoon. Her plaint is that she has not "the right accessories". Tea should not be considered a formal rite to be indulged in only by those fortunate hostesses who own a silver tea service.

Your china teapot will probably brew more delicious tea than will be served in the silver service. You will have some kind of simple tray, using with it the cream pitcher and sugar bowl you ordinarily use. Small plates (your bread and butter plates) cups and saucers, and napkins make up the remainder of the service.

Then you can "whip up" some dainty sandwiches from your provision shelves, or serve, as the English do, very thin slices of buttered bread. Undoubtedly there will be a cake or some cookies in the larder.

And there you are — it's tea time!

Settings for Table

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Should cocktail forks be placed on the table with the rest of the silver? If so, where should they be placed?

2. How many plates are used in serving fish cocktails or fruit cocktails? Service plate, plate with linen or lace doiley, glass plate matching cocktail glass, and cocktail glass — is this correct?

3. If a demi-tasse is served, are not spoons brought in then?

Reader

1. Yes, the cocktail forks are placed on the table when the other silverpieces are placed. The oyster fork is the only fork that is placed at the right of the plate, farthest from the plate at the right.

2. Your second plate is not necessary. On the service plate is placed the glass plate with the cocktail glass on it. It is not necessary to use a doiley.

3. Yes.

Leave Food Over?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Is it considered correct to leave some portion of food on your plate?

2. Should one eat the lettuce leaf or leaves under one's salad served at dinner?

Wondering

1. It isn't necessary to leave anything on your plate.

2. By all means eat the lettuce, if you wish to.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

One Woman's Courage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

After fourteen years of apparent happiness together, my husband left home over a year ago, saying he "was fed up with it all", leaving me with two fine sons now in high school. Our married life was ideal from every angle—business, social and home life. I idolized him and was as true as steel.

His two sons are disillusioned by their father's actions, and we're all broken in spirit on account of his leaving. I am going to give our sons all the real things in life which they rightfully deserve, and will be a true and loyal mother to them.

My huband while he is apparently prospering in his profession, spending his time and money on other women (the real reason he left home), made no provisions for us at all. It seems that true and honest ideals of living are losing out to the opposite force and type of living. If he'd come back again we'd be willing to forgive and forget. Does wrong doing ever work out?

Trying to Carry On

Your letter should hearten every wife deserted as you have been—and believe me their name is legion. When you say "I am going to give our sons all the real things in life which they rightfully deserve", your determination to carry on should encourage and help to uplift all women who take their troubles less bravely.

You tell me that in spite of leaving you and your sons unprovided for, if he'll come back you're all willing to forgive and forget. His going was probably a case of middle-aged restlessness, from which sooner or later he is apt to recover. Congratulations on your attitude

Bad Temper No Asset to Marriage

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For the past two years I have been keeping company For the most part, we are congenial and get along quite harmoniously. At times, without very much cause, as I see it, she will fly into a high-pitched temper, even striking or slapping me as hard as she can. I don't strike back or even talk back when she has one of these tantrums, which are soon over and apparently forgotten.

After one of these, she will 'phone me without expressing any regret or remorse and ask, as if nothing ever went wrong, when I'm coming over. What is your advice?

Patience.

Even though you're accustomed to the hard knocks and the toughening processes of farm life, marrying a lady who thinks nothing of striking or slapping you is a terrific matrimonial risk.

Please remember that what may seem to you as rather a hearty type of coquetry would be apt to become stern reality, if domesticated under the same roof with you In your case I believe I'd look for someone of better temper.

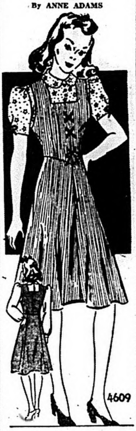
Young Basque-Effect Jumper

By ANNE ADAMS



Pattern 4609

Whether you're a school girl or a hard-working career girl, this vivacious Anne Adams junior style will appeal to you. For Pattern 4609 is disarmingly young, from its pinafore-type back bodice buttoning to its basque-effect front, complete with optional lacings and a pointed waistline. The slim handspan waist is accented by the jaunty flare of the skirt. The pattern includes a fresh little blouse that may have long full sleeves or short puffed sleeves, perhaps trimmed by perky bows to match the fabric or ribbon lacings on the jumper. Stitch up this jumper in wool, in corduroy or in velveteen, and make several blouses—say one in a new patriotic print; another in a soft crepe.

Pattern 4609 is available in junior miss sizes 11, 12, 13, 14, 15, 16 and 17. Size 13, jumper, takes 1 3-4 yards 54-inch fabric; blouse, 1 5-8 yards 35-inch contrast.

Let's Look Into This Gay Home

By Garry Cleveland Myers, Ph.D.

In spite of the home and family tragedies you and I learn about and witness all too often, and the distressing accounts I must read in many letters from those who follow this column daily, I am sure there are many happy homes and families. As time goes on I receive more and more letters telling me specifically of successful parenthood and wholesome family relationships. Furthermore, it has been my pleasure to sit as guest in many happy family circles.

Now I want to tell you of a certain family I have observed over several years. They live on a farm in a strictly rural community, near where my family and I usually spend our summers.

Family Circle

The parents are in their early forties, I should judge. They have fine, wonderful children ranging from about fifteen to two, with a break of several years between the baby and the next child. All the older children are very fond of the baby and vie with one another for the privilege of looking after her and reading to her. All the children are bright and alert and exceedingly well brought up. All the four now in school get on well there; most excel.

The eldest child is the only boy. He is growing to be a helpful and successful farmer, very apt and deeply interested in mechanics.

The older girls have learned to take responsibilities about the home. On any day one can drop in this home and see each one performing some home responsibility like an adult.

Cheerful Mother

The cheerful and attractive mother is so calm, efficient and so skilful in guiding those girls that she seems never to boss at all. She leads them. The father is also a poised, level-headed and good-natured soul. Both parents are well educated and surely possess high native intelligence. Neither parent seems ever to grow ruffled or to nag. The whole family seems to have good times together, though their large farm and dairy mean long days and hard work. Wisely, the father and mother have gradually added modern conveniences, their house being connected with electric current.

Having dropped in on this family often while at leisure or at work, I have never caught them in an atmosphere of strain or irritation. The secret, I think, is in the calm, self-control and poise of those parents.

Super-Grandparents

At one end of the large house the paternal grandparents live, two more grand, calm cheerful souls. They mind their own business and never interfere with the upbringing of those children. The presence of these unusual grandparents contribute security and stability to this growing family. Some grandparents can, you know. While, as a rule, I advise against the presence of grandparents among growing children, this is a notable exception and good evidence of how grandeur of character, wisdom and understanding can win.

Weekly Meeting Of Christ Church A.Y.P.A. is Held

The weekly meeting of the Christ Church A.Y.P.A. was held Wednesday, November 13th, in the Parish Hall, and proved to be a very interesting evening. The meeting was opened with a hymn and prayer, and after the minutes of the last meeting were read and accepted, and the treasurer's report given, the business of the evening was discussed.

A resolution was passed that an effort be put forth to re-organize the Local Council of the A.Y.P.A., and Rev. Geo. G. Wright offered to bring this matter up at a meeting of the ministers of this district at his home Friday, November 15th.

It was decided that the members would co-operate to put out a quarterly A.Y.P.A. newspaper, and Miss Dorothy Croft was elected to be Editor.

Sunday, November 17th., being the third Sunday in the month, the members of the A.Y.P.A. have corporate Communion at 8 a.m. and breakfast afterwards in the Parish Hall.

The membership drive which took place in the last week brought out several new members, and several old ones who had not been attending the meetings lately, and the attendance was very gratifying.

The business having been completed the remainder of the evening took the form of a parliamentary debate. The members divided themselves into two parties, and the leader of the government, Mr. Ted Follwell moved that parliament appropriate the sum of $10,000,000 for the extension of radio, rather than make a similar grant to newspaper extension. The opposition was led by Mr. Arthur Skelcher and vigorously opposed the proposition. Miss Mary Moult ably supported the government resolution and Mr. Willis Jackson was eloquent as supporter of the opposition. Following the speeches of the leaders, a number of the members spoke briefly in support, or opposition.

Rev. Geo. G. Wright acted as Speaker of the House, and experienced considerable difficulty maintaining a proper Parliamentary procedure. After many calls for order and a threat to "name a member" the House voted, by a majority to one, to support the Government Bill.

After the heat of argument the members sat down to coffee and cake.

Leafs Swamp Canadiens 6-2 While Americans Earn Tie With Hawks By a Late Rally

Langelle With Four Points and Goldup With Three Are Chief Scorers

IN SECOND PLACE

Armstrong's Goal Late in Third Period Wipes Out 2-1 Lead of Chicago

By ROBERT CLARKE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Take a number from one to 10, double it and add a hundred, and the total probably will be pretty close to the number of goals that Toronto Maple Leafs will mark up in this new National Hockey League campaign.

If the Leafs break the 100-mark in goals this season it will make the 12th straight year that they have accomplished the feat. Not another club in the league can match this record, for one has only to go back to the 1935-36 season to find that each of the other six clubs has been under that total at some time.

The last time the Leafs failed to break the century mark was in 1928-29, in the days that the N.H.L. schedule was one of 44 games and the rules didn't allow much freedom in scoring. Even then they fired home 85 goals to the 95 compiled by the leading New York Rangers.

Leafs Now Second

With 45 games still to go, the Maple Leafs of 1940-41 have scored 10 goals. That makes them 1-10th of the way home with only 1-16th of their games played and they look like a cinch to have another high-scoring year.

They went on one of their typical splurges last night in Montreal, cooling Canadiens 6-2 before about 7,000 fans. The victory gave them second place in the standing with four points, a point away from the leading Chicago Black Hawks. The Hawks, a game up on Leafs, took over first place by drawing 2-2 in overtime with Americans at New York.

Usually the big gunners of the Leafs are Syl Apps and Gordie Drillon, but when these two are bottled up completely or even partially stopped, some other Leaf generally takes over the sniping. Canadiens found that out when they held Drillon and Apps in check fairly well but gave free rein to Henry (Hank) Goldup and Pete (Snakehips) Langelle.

Langelle, Goldup Star

Langelle emerged as the high point-maker of the night with two goals and two assists while Goldup was just behind with a pair of goals and one assist. The other Toronto goals were scored by Reg Hamilton and Nick Metz, with Apps drawing assists on each and Drillon getting in on the score by Metz.

Canadiens had only one man to match the feats of Goldup and Langelle. Louis Trudel, making his first start of the season and showing no ill effects from a knee injury suffered in training, fired both Canadiens' tallies and twice came close to beating goalie Turk Broda for a third score.

Two majors were among the 13 penalties handed out by referee Mickey Ion. They went to Goldup and rookie Jack Adams for their part in a brief scrap in the third period that drew three players from each side.

Americans Earn Tie

The Hawks, beaten this year only by the Americans, came close to avenging that defeat. They held a 2-1 lead through a goal by Bob Carse late in the third period but Murray Armstrong batted home an even later tally to send the game into scoreless overtime. Armstrong's goal came at 18:05 while defenceman Jack Portland was serving a penalty, leaving Hawks a man short.

The two other goals were scored in the first period, with Mush March sending Chicago into the lead shortly after the start of the game and Lorne Carr evening things near the half-way-mark. Americans outplayed the Hawks in the overtime but could not pierce a strong Chicago defence.

PLAYING-OWNER OF THE INDIANS OUT OF TROUBLE

Eddie Shore Just Watches a Fight in Which Four Are Given Match Penalties

TEAM EARNS DRAW

Springfield Club Undefeated at the End of Six Games

(By The Canadian Press)

No one ever accused Eddie Shore of becoming as gentle as a lamb, but it does seem that the hockey years have had a mellowing influence on the once-famed bad-man of the National Hockey League.

The thing probably responsible for this metamorphosis is that Shore must shoulder now the burdens of a magnate as well as a player, for he is playing-owner of Springfield Indians of the American Hockey League.

The Indians have gone unbeaten through six games so far, playing to a 5-5 overtime draw last night in Springfield with Indianapolis Capitals. But almost as surprising was the fact that there was a hectic fight on the ice, a fight that continued in the penalty box, and Shore wasn't in it.

In fact, although there were four major penalties handed out in the game as well as eight minors, all Shore could show was a puny minor in the first period before things even got warmed up. The old Shore would have been the centre of all the fuss, probably emerging with anything up to a match penalty.

Police Are Called

The majors went to Andy Brannigan, Liscombe, Bush and Whitelaw. Police finally had to be called to separate the battlers after the fight was resumed on the penalty bench.

Shore, himself, scored a goal in the overtime period that raised the hope of the Springfield fans for a victory but Jennings deadlocked things at 5-5 with his second goal of the game a couple of minutes before the extra period was up.

Hunt tallied two of the Springfield goals while the others went to Glen Brydson and Max Kaminsky. Indianapolis goals, besides those scored by Jennings, went to Brown, Behling and McDonald.

In the only other game of the night New Haven Eagles defeated Providence Reds 3-1, with Polly Drouin, Alan Shields and Earl Roche getting goals for the winners and Art Giroux scoring for the Reds. It was the first New Haven triumph over Providence in two seasons.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

Six players tied today for the top spot among National Hockey League pointmakers, with Toronto Maple Leaf men accounting for half the places, two going to Chicago and one to Detroit Red Wings. The Leafs are Gordie Drillon, Syl Apps and Pete Langelle. They are tied with Mush March and George Allen of the Hawks and Syd Howe of the Wings. Five other players are tied with three points.

The Leaders:	G	A	Pts
Allen, Chicago	3	1	4
Drillon, Toronto	2	2	4
March, Chicago	2	2	4
Langelle, Toronto	2	2	4
Apps, Toronto	1	3	4

N.H.L. STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Pete Langelle and Hank Goldup, Toronto, who paced Leafs to a 6-2 victory over Canadiens. Former had two goals and two assists, while Goldup scored twice and helped in one of Langelle's.

Louis Trudel, Canadiens, who played effectively in his first game of the N.H.L. season, scoring both Montreal goals in the second period.

Lorne Carr, Americans, who figured in both his team's goals as Americans played a 2-2 draw with Chicago. Carr scored one and assisted in the other.

Mush March, Chicago, who scored one of the goals against Americans and played his usual good back-checking game.

J. T. GALLAGHER NAMED MANAGER

Baseball Writer Appointed as Chief Executive of Chicago Cubs

Chicago, Nov. 15 (AP)—A "what next" attitude prevailed today in Chicago baseball circles after the series of rapid fire managerial and front office shifts in the Cubs organization.

The Cubs had a general manager, a new wrinkle in President P. K. Wrigley's baseball system, but the identity of the successor to the ousted Gabby Hartnett—if one has been named—still was unknown to Cub fans.

James T. Gallagher, 36-year-old baseball writer of the Chicago-Herald-American who was appointed general manager yesterday, said only that a new cub pilot "definitely" would be named before the winter baseball meetings early in December. It was rumored that the manager already has been selected but that the announcement would be withheld until next week.

Yesterday's other changes involved the appointment of William Veeck, Jr., son of the late Cub president, as treasurer to succeed Charles A. Weber, and Weber's decision to withdraw his resignation as vice-president "for the time being, at least."

Billy Meyer, Kansas City manager, and Jimmy Wilson, Cincinnati coach, remained the top men among rumored managerial choices. A third prospect was Kiki Cuyler, former Cub outfielder now managing Chattanooga of the Southern Association.

RIDERS, ARGOS OPEN SERIES FOR BIG FOUR TITLE

Each Team Has Won One Game From the Other During Regular Schedule

OTTAWA FAVORED

Balmy Beach and Sarnia Battery Will Play for O.R.F.U. Crown

By SYDNEY GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The traditional rivals of the Eastern Football leagues are matched once more in the opening of the section's playoffs, bringing together Ottawa Rough Riders and Toronto Argonauts in the Interprovincial Union and Toronto Balmy Beach and Sarnia Battery in the Ontario Union.

The two-week show opens tomorrow at Ottawa and Toronto with Riders, present Big Four and Eastern champs, and the smoothies from Balmy Beach as the favorites to win through to the final on Nov. 30. They were the best in their leagues during the regular season and have earned the call to survive.

But there is no inclination anywhere to set these games up as walk-overs. Riders felt the sting of an inspired Argo team once this season after Lew Hayman's club had been beaten 41-6 in the team's first engagement. There never was enough edge in the Beach victories over the Battery to make it conclusive that the Battery couldn't reverse things.

Riders May Have Tailed Off

The question of whether Riders tailed off toward the end of the season or the opposition became stronger probably will be answered in the series against Argos. After three smashing victories in the first half of the schedule, they were beaten by Argos, held to a three-point decision over Montreal and scraped through by one point over Hamilton.

With more than half their backfield out because of injuries, Argos roared back from their beating to lick the Riders 11-9 in Toronto. This is a hot-and-cold Argo club, at least it has been all season, and to beat the Riders they have got to stay hot. If they're cold they rate to lose by three or four touchdowns. They could not make up that many points if they were hot for one game—they lack the power.

The Riders enter the playoff at full strength, their backfield studded with such stars as Tony Golab, Andy Tommy, Orville Burke, Windy O'Neil and Sam Sward, the line jammed with such mammoths as Tiny Herman, Bunny Wadsworth, George Fraser and Dave Sprague. On paper they haven't a weak spot—but paper reckoning doesn't take into account bad ball handling.

That lost Riders the game to Argos and could conceivably lose them this series, even if Argos are without Red Storey, Tuffy Smith and Art West for both games. It's unlikely that they'll see service tomorrow.

Two Good Tackling Clubs

Eleven of the 12 men chosen for the Canadian Press All-Star O.R.F.U. team will be in action in the Beach-Sarnia series. This clash brings together the East's best tackling clubs. Before it is over, it may develop into one of the hardest struggles of the many Sarnia and Beaches have fought through the seasons.

The Battery hasn't the power of the Imperial teams of Hugh (Bummer) Stirling and Alex Hayes, but it is fast, has a fine punter in Hank Galloway and two good plungers in Ralph Perry and Joe Woodcock. Their saddest blow was struck last week when Gus Scheiers, a fine running back, broke a leg.

Beaches have not been defeated in league play. They are rolling on a six-game winning streak and have the most versatile attack ever built by Alex Ponton. The Club has an abundance of good backs, Bob Porter, Art Walker, Frank Seymour and Don Crowe to mention a few, and the line compares with any in the East.

It has shown only one weakness all year, an inability to get points when they are inside the opposition's 20. Ponton thinks he has that fault cured after a week of heavy training.

B. C. I. SEXTETTE DOWNS ST. MIKES TO TIE FOR TOP

Score is 23 to 7 With the Winners Putting on Drive in First Frame

O.S.D. WINS

Squad Defeats Albert College 12 to 8 to Move Into Tie for Third Place

Cliff Yerex's Belleville sextette moved back into a tie for the leadership of the City Junior Interscholastic football group by defeating St. Michael's Academy 23 to 7 on their home campus yesterday while at Albert College Coach Jim Rickaby's O.S.D. kids downed the Albert College six by a score of 12 to 8 in a second league fixture in the local abbreviated rugby loop.

The B.C.I. and St. Mikes are now tied for the top rung of the league ladder with three wins and two losses each, while in victory the O.S.D. sextette moved into a tie for third place along with Pete Beach's Alberts at two wins and three losses per club. The O.S.D. squad scored touchdowns in the first and third frames to take a lead that they never relinquished over the Albert kids, as "Buster" Donnan accounted for the principal scoring of the losers.

Carrying too much weight along the line for Coach Jack Doran's St. Mikes squad the "Collegians" rolled up sixteen points in the second period and were leading 17 to 0 at the halfway mark. Only in the third stanza did the "Irish" stand up, as they scored all of their points in this frame and held the ultimate victors scoreless.

Booted Only Point

Doug Mott booted the only point scored for B.C.I. in the initial frame. Cunningham fired a forward pass into the arms of Rogers for a touchdown early in the next frame, but there was no convert, making the count stand at 6-0 for B.C.I. Mott ran one of McQuaid's punts back 42 yards for a touchdown and converted it and moments later Mott cracked the Irish line for another touchdown that brought about the halfway whistle and saw the score 17 to 0 for the "Collegians."

Coach Jack Doran's "Irish" made their stand at the opening of the third frame as Shepherd, McQuaid and Wilson reeled off gains before Vern Goyer drove through for a touchdown, that was converted when Shepherd fired a forward into McQuaid's arms. Carson flipped a flicker pass to Rogers for a touchdown as the Collegiate machine rolled once again and Rogers converted making the score 23 to 6 before McQuaid punted for a single point as the Irish could not crack the Collegians' line on a last play.

The lineups:

St. Mikes: Centre, B. Callaghan; wings, Shepherd, Pigeon; quarter, Goyer; halves, McQuaid and Wilson; subs, D. Callaghan, Bradshaw and Powers.

Belleville Collegiate: Centre, Rogers; wings, Sills and Thompson; quarter, Carson; halves, Cunningham and Mott; subs, Smith, Bray, Brown and Graham.

Likely to Use Jim Crows for Football Games

By DOUGLAS AMARON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Nov. 15 —(CP)— Jim Crows, those people who sit on rooftops and blow whistles when enemy planes are overhead, have arrived in English soccer.

They're not official yet but judging from the success of a trial at a match between Tottenham Hotspurs and Portsmouth they likely will be adopted for all Football Association league matches.

When play began in September, the Ministry of Home Security gave instructions that matches must stop during air raids. As a result there were long delays, abandoned matches and dissatisfid crowds.

Imagine an Ottawa Rough Riders- Winnipeg Blue Bombers Dominion Football Final being held up for an hour with the score tied and ten minutes to play and you'll know why the "no play during alerts" ruling wasn't popular.

The Football Association recommended to the Ministry that a system of roof spotters, similar to that used by factories and offices, be adoptd. There has been no decision on the recommendation but Tottenham tried out spotters as an experiment and found them a success.

An air raid warning sounded soon after the game began but with four watchers on the job there wasn't a minute's interruption. They way the crowd cheered the decision to "play on" showed how they felt about the new system and other teams are expected to follow suit.

It wasn't the first time Jim Crows have been tried out in sport. They've been used at greyhound races and for boxing bouts and other indoor events.

If there's hockey this winter, and there's bound to be some although league plans are indefinite, watchers probably will be posted on arena roofs to warn players and crowds when to take shelter.

An inventor has combined a piece of sandpaper and a cleaning pad in a device to be worn like a wrist watch to enable artists and draftsmen to keep sharp points on their lead pencils.

Although it is readily agreed that the Belleville Collegiate gridders were gypped in-so-far as the time was concerned in the last quarter of their game versus Bowmanville, when the Rubber Town kids made the best of things and nearly knotted the score, but the lack of condition took its awful toll in the ranks of the "scarlet scourge." Coach Shiels' crowd were leg-weary, tired and exhausted, while the visitors showed the result of a season's extensive and keen training. In Bowmanville the local interscholastic gridders must be prepared to take to the offensive early in an effort to pile-up a reserve margin to protect in the latter part of the game. This boy Bill Brown is in full flight with the first stride and his speed and shift is puzzling, so the local secondary had better be accurate in their tackling or this lad may run amok on the home grid.

On the ground the B.C.I. kids proved to all and sundry they were the superior team, but that Bowmanville aerial attack is deadly. McIlveen and Brown pitch bullet-like passes straight over the opposition line, but with agile secondaries like Gord Theobald, Sharpe or the rangy Pickering on the job, these lads should spear the oval in flight for repeated interceptions. "Stewie" McBride and Clare proved the Bowmanville line is vulnerable with their driving plunges, therefore this angle of the game is well taken care of, but the defence against Brown's broken field spirited attack and a method to stop the Rubber Town's aerial blitzkrieg must be perfected before the locals leave for the second game. With points to count in a two-game series five points isn't too great an advantage to haul into the Rubber Town against Coach Longworth's well-trained kids. However, if the "scarlet scourge" play steady football there's little doubt of the result.

It has been brought to our attention there were a couple of local business men who went to the Y.M.C.A. for Tuesday night's meeting of the Belleville Juvenile Hockey Association but did not join the roundtable discussion simply because they were not invited, it is said. It is rather difficult to understand such allegations simply because the meeting was advertised as an OPEN conclave for the purpose of discussing the sponsorship of minor league hockey in Belleville. Any one knows the general public is welcome to an "open meeting" and no invitation is necessary. However, there was little to discuss last Tuesday night and the matter of juvenile hockey sponsorship doesn't appear any too bright at the present moment. If and when the Arena heads decide the elementary coaching of teen-aged boys at hockey is a necessity and render some share of assistance then perhaps an organized group may lend its assistance.

Last evening we received a private telephone call that went something like this — "I understand the 3-47th Battery boys need some hockey equipment to the value of about $40, and they are depending upon Belleville for this donation, but apparently nothing has been done about it. Well, go ahead and order whatever is necessary and I'll pay the bill," stated one who wishes to be anonymous, but who apparently did not think much of the patriotic efforts of local sportsmen. On behalf of the 3-47th Battery we graciously refused to accept the donation, as the boys who are serving our country from Belleville in the Battery feel such a donation should be general, if at all. No doubt the 3-47th boys will be anxious to know who the person concerned was and we'll gladly acquaint them with his name if requested, but this corner still feels that a donation from the community at large would be much more fitting and proper for such an occasion.

No doubt next summer they'll be calling the Cleveland Indians "Peck's bad boys," now that Roger Peckinpaugh has been engaged to pilot the Tribe. It cannot be said that Peckinpaugh is quick to anger on the contrary Peck is slow to be aroused and borders reticency. A keen observer of baseball, however, Peck knows when a player is playing ball and into the game. As a player he was steady, balanced and used good judgment, something the Indians must absorb before attaining that top rung slot. Incidentally Bucky Harris, Peckinpaugh and Mooney Gibson are perhaps the only three managers who have managed major league clubs, went away and then returned to manage those same clubs.

Do you remember when Ottawa Rough Riders' 15-year quest for the Interprovincial Rugby Union championship ended 15 years ago today with an 8-3 victory over Hamilton Tigers at the capital? Rough Riders won again in 1926, 1936 and 1939.

After referring to the Belleville Reliance team as a patched up squad of late imports who lacked condition, the Kingston paper has this to say relative to Wednesday night's Van Horne game: "Carl Hewitt, the Kingston boy in the Belleville goal, was good despite the eight goals that beat him. Most of the shots were from close in when he had little chance. His defence was not any too strong while the Belleville forwards, on ice for the second time this year, could not keep up in back-checking. Tabby Gow, the popular Kingston athlete, and Bill Hastie of Gananoque, played fair hockey for Belleville and should be much better with a few more games. Speedy St. Louis, also short of condition, played heady hockey. The Quinte team was dressed in a gold and scarlet outfit."

Sport Spice — Joe McCarthy signed a three-year contract to head the Yankees at a reported annual salary of $30,000 per annum, which ain't peanuts even along Broadway ....Kingston Hank Goldup bagged a pair of counters as the Leafs swamped Les Canadiens 6-2 last eve....Phil Brockell, former P.T. instructor at the "Y" here, was named president of the E.O.B.A. for his 25th term of office, congrats, Phil....Picton interests please note ....Jimmie Gallagher, baseball writer for the Chicago Herald-American, was named general manager of the Chicago Cubs of the National League yesterday.... See where Point Edward, the team the Air Force eliminated in 1938, is complaining regarding their team being elevated to the intermediate "A" category.

How To Overcome Piles And Rectal Soreness

If you are annoyed with itching piles or rectal soreness, do not neglect the same or run the risk of an operation. Any itching, soreness or painful passage of stool, is nature's warning and proper treatment should be secured at once. For this purpose get from J. S. McKeown or any druggist, a package of Hemroid and use as directed. This formula which is used internally, quickly relieves the itching and soreness and aids in healing the sore, tender spots. Hemroid is highly recommended, is easy to use and it seems the height of folly for anyone to risk an operation when a simple remedy, which is so pleasant to use may be had at such a reasonable cost.

WAR PRODUCTION ADVISORY BOARD

Prime Minister King Says Hon. Mr. Howe Will Deal With New Committee

Ottawa, Nov. 15 (CP).— Prime Minister Mackenzie King told the House of Commons Thursday that the munitions minister, Hon. C. D. Howe, would deal with a new "war production advisory committee" set up by the government when he speaks in the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne.

Mr. King's announcement was made when he replied to a question from the Conservative House leader, Hon. R. B. Hanson, on an Ottawa Journal editorial.

The editorial claimed Sir Walter Layton, representative of the United Kingdom on munitions production, had visited Ottawa as representative of Prime Minister Winston Churchill and had given certain advice on war production. It also referred to a "war production advisory committee" appointed since Sir Walter's visit.

Will Speak In Debate.

Mr. King replied that Mr. Howe would deal with the committee, but said that it had not been set up because of Sir Walter's visit. Mr. Howe is expected to speak in the debate some time next week.

Last week, it was intimated officially that the government had under consideration the establishment of a priority committee which would supervise Canada's entire industrial war effort, deciding the relative importance of the various war needs and extending assistance to industries, having regard to the urgency of the needs they could supply.

The committee might not only be responsible for the co-ordinating of the industrial effort but might also be entrusted with organizing the nation's manpower to get the greatest results.

Belief Held Decision Reached.

Mr. King's announcement led to belief the government has reached a decision on this matter.

The Journal editorial said it was believed the members of the war production advisory committee would be Graham Towers, governor of the Bank of Canada; H. R. MacMillan, timber controller; R. A. C. Henry of the munitions and supply board; Maj.-Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, chief of staff; and C. P. Chester, master of the ordnance

"Blondie Plays Cupid"
"Girls Under 21"

America's most lovable family, the Bumsteads, are back on the screen again and they're funnier than ever! "Blondie Plays Cupid," latest edition in the popular Columbia series now playing the McCarthy theatre and it's even more hilarious and entertaining than any of its predecessors.

Again featuring Penny Singleton, Arthur Lake and Larry Simms in the leading roles, the film opens with Blondie deciding that the family should go to the country to celebrate a safe and sane Fourth of July. Their stay in the country turns out to be anything but safe when Baby Dumpling lights a stick of dynamite, thinking that it's a firecracker. And the mad whirl of hilarious events centering around Blondie's efforts to arrange a young couple's elopement gayly turn out to be anything but sane. It's grand entertainment, though, and shouldn't be missed.

Splendid Added Feature

The fastest moving drama of the year ...bringing to the screen a true-to-life story of girls who are Public School enemies is enacted to perfection in the companion feature now playing at the McCarthy theatre entitled "Girls Under 21" and presented by a stellar cast of Hollywood favorites including Rochelle Hudson, Bruce Cabot and Paul Kelly. Both "Blondie Plays Cupid" and "Girls Under 21" are outstanding and offer entertainment which is certain to please every patron. On the week end matinee in addition to the above will be shown the biggest thrill picture among the war films to date "London Can Take It," an actual on the scenes story which shall live in your memory for all time.

AT THE CAPITOL

"It's In The Air"

"It's in the Air", which is now showing at the Capitol theatre, brings to you the George Formby mixture of thrills and laughs as you like it—only better and stirred much faster.

He is again the good-hearted simpleton to whom everything happens—and you can imagine how many things can happen in the Air Force—with George the particularly gullible victim of a rival for the affections of the sergeant-major's daughter.

After making a hopeless mess of the land drilling he finds himself alone in the heavens in a plane about which he knows nothing, performing the most marvellous evolutions—in short—doing everything except break his neck, which the sergeant-major secretly hopes will be his end.

In addition to the hair-raising thrills in the air and his career on a motorcycle with the C.O. as passenger on land, George provides you with some new songs to whistle—with his uke accompaniment.

An hilarious 20 minute comedy riot—a very educating Popular Science reel, filmed in technicolor, the 6th chapter of "Tim Tyler's Luck" and the Universal News reel round out a very entertaining program at the Capitol theatre.

AT THE BELLE

"The Westerner"

Against the colorful and adventure-filled background of the old west, in the days when justice was administered at the point of a gun and roistering Judge Roy Bean loomed as the "law west of the Pecos," Samuel Goldwyn's "The Westerner," with Gary Cooper in the title role is announced as the next feature attraction at the Belle Theatre.

Directed by William Wyler from the screen adaptation by Jo Swerling and Niven Busch, "The Westerner" features in the cast which supports Cooper such notable players as Walter Brennan, Fred Stone, Doris Davenport, Lilian Bond, Forrest Tucker and Paul Hurst. The setting of the story is Vinegarroon, Texas, in the roaring days of the 80's when there raged a bitter and long protracted battle between the cattlemen, original settlers of the land, and the homesteaders, who sought to till the land which they homesteaded under the law.

Just when this battle is reaching a peak, the Westerner, a roving cowboy named Cole Harden, drifts into town and finds himself entangled in the vicious "law west of the Pecos." But the Westerner is a wily adventurer, fearless and bold, and when he comes to grips with wily Judge Bean, he proves a shrewd opponent. Discovering that Judge Bean's idol is the fabulous and beauteous Lily Langtry, the stranger tells the judge that he has met the Jersey Lily and knows her well. This news intrigues the judge and he manages to have Cole reprieved until further evidence in the trumped-up case against him is brought in.

Smash Climax

The story reaches a smash climax in the scene where the cattlemen and Bean's henchmen set fire to the hundreds of homesteads and farms throughout the area. Cole realizes that the time has come for a showdown with Judge Roy Bean. He follows the weatherbeaten, grimy old man to Fort Davis where Lily Langtry is to make her long-promised visit. How Cole waylays the judge just as the gorgeous actress is about to step before the footlights and what happens when guns are fired provides the story with a swift, action-filled ending.

H. & P. E. REG'T TO GIVE MASCOT

"Little Chief" Lost in Evacuation of France to be Replaced

Trenton, Nov. 15 —"Little Chief," mascot of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment now a prisoner of war in France, will be replaced in the near future by a new wooden Indian, donated by the Second Battalion of the regiment.

The soldiers of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment who left here a year ago took with them a cast iron statue of an Indian Chief, who had for many years adorned the top of a canning factory, in the town of Picton. The factory was used for some months by the regiment as a barracks.

When the soldiers left, they took down "Little Chief" and carted it overseas with them. Every place the regiment went, Little Chief was carted along and gained a great deal of publicity for the regiment.

The Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment was transferred to France during the Battle of France and was one of the first regiments to come in contact with the enemy. Of course "Little Chief" was there. When the Canadian forces withdrew from France, Little Chief was neglected and was left in France.

With the formation of the non-permanent army militia, a Second Battalion of the H. and Prince Edward Regiment was organized. The recruits decided to have a similar mascot and carved an Indian squaw as their mascot. "The Princess" was taken to Petawawa Camp with the regiment and was quite a curiosity.

Upon the return of the regiment, to this district, the Commanding Officer, Lt. Col. B. C. Donnan and the Company Commanders decided, that it would be an excellent idea to present the First Battalion with a new Indian Chief, as a Christmas present. An experienced wood-carver was employed and the new Chief was made, which now stands in the Trenton armouries awaiting shipment to England.

Trenton Gets Remittance

The Ontario Treasury Department has remitted the sum of $3,541 to the Treasury of the Town of Trenton, which is the equivalent to a one-mill subsidy. The Provincial treasury has distributed approximately three million dollars in this way.

In remitting the money to the Town, Premier Hepburn, Provincial Treasurer stated that "at the same time, the municipalities were relieved of their share of the annual cost of Mothers' Allowance and Old Age Pensions, which represent a further annual saving to the municipalities of upward of $4,000,000. I might recall that in the last war the Provincial Government imposed a municipal war tax of one mill."

SENTENCED ON PERJURY COUNT

Brockville, Ont., Nov. 15 (CP)—Andrew Johnston of Prescott, Ont., Thursday was sentenced by Magistrate G. A. Wright to one month's imprisonment after conviction on a perjury charge laid as a result of evidence given when Johnston was charged with careless driving in Prescott, Oct. 25. Johnston was found guilty of the perjury charge in Prescott last week.

London (CP)—A four-year-old boy and his mother sheltered under a kitchen table during a raid here. The house was almost wrecked but they were unhurt. The next house was completely demolished, but was empty.

SUFFERED FROM SKIN DISORDER

MISS G. EVANS writes: "For the past year or two I suffered from disfiguring blotches, blackheads and acne. I tried many preparations without any noticeable improvement. Then I began applying Zam-Buk. This treatment soon caused the eruptions and blemishes to disappear, and my complexion is clearer now than I can ever remember." The soothing herbal oils of Zam-Buk act quickly on skin eruptions to bring comforting, permanent relief. Order a tin of Zam-Buk from your druggist today.

Doris Davenport and Gary Cooper furnish the heart throbs and romantic thrills in Samuel Goldwyn's, "The Westerner," a spectacular romance of the Old West, featuring Walter Brennan, next at the Belle Theatre.

"THE GORGON'S MASK"

by Van Wyck Mason

CHAPTER FIFTEEN

"Surely you must realise that the old order is tottering—is, en fin, doomed?" Nadia continued.

The tall American's laugh was quite harsh. "No, I don't; but, aside from that, I don't like red Russia. I don't think the way you people tortured poor La Tour before they shot him was very sporting."

"Sporting? Bah!" Nadia Stefan gestured violently with that pistol which looked incongruous in her small hand. "You take all this as a game? Well, it is not. We in Russia are in earnest; our success means life or death; for us there is nothing in the world but the triumph of Communism."

"In other words you believe that the end justifies the means?" North demanded, and, with his handcuffed hands held awkwardly out before him, sank onto the arm of a chair.

"Of course the end justifies the means," Josef put in, fixing the prisoner with baleful, staring eyes. "The death of every third person in the world would justify the ultimate triumph of Marxism."

"I can't agree with you," North observed patiently. "And now, mademoiselle, you can't blame me if I'm a bit curious as to what's next on the program."

While Nadia meditated, North looked about to make a mental photograph of the room. It was well furnished yes—very well furnished in fact, and in excellent taste.

There were, moreover, several very decent Chinese jades scattered about. And yonder was that wide modernistic desk he had noted on entering. That desk—would he ever probe its possibilities?

"If you make any trouble you will be taken upstairs,' Nadia announced, "and locked in a little room, especially prepared for guests like you. If you stay quiet, you will be released in a few days, but if you prove troublesome—"

"Ah, now you become interesting!" North manufactured a tight smile, but at the same time he asked himself why she did not have him shot, and off her hands. She must have known it was the logical, the safest thing for her to do. Why did she look at him so intently?

"If you prove troublesome, it will simply be a case of sayo-nara, you know, good-bye."

Over him burst a great dazzling hope, and he fixed on her a lingering and inscrutable look. Sure enough—the faintest tinge of color crept into her cheeks as she got to her feet and passed the pistol over to her massive companion, before sauntering across the wide gray rug towards him.

"Look at me," she invited, with what seemed like natural simplicity.

"I wish everything in this affair were as edsy as that," he replied and with frank curiosity, studied her visage in detail.

The perfect oval of her face loomed a little nearer, and he became aware of a faint perfume that stirred in him senses he thought he had long since had completely under control. To his dismay, he suddenly found himself wondering just why he had ever opposed this exquisite creature's wishes? The realization was a distinct and a sobering shock.

What! Was he, Hugh North, doubting his own self-control after all these years? He tried to tear his eyes away, but instead found fascination in trying to read the thoughts behind Nadia Stefan's delicate and quite composed features. Her red lips became curved into a slow smile, and he guessed that she was luxuriating in the knowledge of her ascendancy over him!

"You will go upstairs with Josef, no?" she suggested. "I could have you killed at once, mon Capitaine, and I—I should." He seemed to detect a confusion in her thoughts. "But I like your gallantry, I like to talk to you, and there are few men in the world to whom I have said that in earnest — so I will think about your fate a little while."

With a long forefinger, she almost patronizingly brushed her cheek. "You will do as I say?"

Captain North was more himself again. After the contact of her finger he managed to murmur: "After what you've just said, I'd be ungracious to say no."

"Very well, Josef, please show the Captain to his room."

At last North managed to tear his eyes from Nadia Stefan's lovely visage, thus regaining a measure of equilibrium. Rising from the chair into which he had sunk, he cast a swift glance at the desk covered with the litter of papers, which had lured him into the library. Written on them he recognized Chinese ideographs, Japanese symbols, and awkward Russian characters.

Now a sudden cold fury filled him; the fury of a clever man who finds himself hopelessly outwitted when his goal is almost within reach.

Having given her directions, Nadia Stefan seemed to have entirely dismissed the tall handcuffed man from her thoughts. Turning her back, she coiled rather than seated herself in a big emerald-green armchair that set off her superb figure as a jewel case sets off a gem.

"Don't you think, Josef," she observed, through a cloud of cigarette smoke, "that you had better take Captain North away before he tries to read more of what's on my desk?"

Josef made an unpleasant noise at North and fawned in the girl's direction. "Sorry, Comrade Commander. Come—turn about, you!"

North faced the hall door which stood half ajar. It was, he noticed, solidly built of teak.

"Good-night, mademoiselle," he called over his shoulder, and felt his nerves crisping at what he contemplated. "Thank you for one of the most diverting evenings of my sinful career."

Nadia Stefan, already immersed in a sheaf of documents, inclined her coppery head a little. "See you soon, my gallant Captain."

With Josef holding the silencered automatic at the small of his back and only a short step behind, North strode to the exit, brushing the edge of the library door. As his body swung past, his right heel shot back with incredible speed, kicked the edge of the teak door, and flung it violently backwards.

As he had hoped, the door's edge crashed against his guard's hand, effectively deflecting his aim.

"Bogu!" roared the Slav as his pistol bullet tore futilely into a panel of the door. He reeled back, trying to shift the pistol from his benumbed right hand to his left, but North had spun about with a speed that defied the eye, and planted shattering kicks on the Russian's shins. As Josef swayed helplessly forward, North sent both linked hands with knockout force to his captor's jaw. Scarcely had the Russian agent's pistol clattered to the floor than North had retrieved and leveled it at the wide-eyed girl.

"Stop that!" he rasped, for she had pulled back her dress over her right leg, her fingers closing on the butt of a small, nickel-plated automatic tucked in a garter.

"I am yours to command," she spoke, her voice betraying overwhelming emotion.

"Put up your hands," he panted. Deliberately he avoided meeting her eyes; no more of that for him!

The three figures remained motionless—Josef breathing noisily, but otherwise completely insensible, the girl's rigid body erect in the green chair, and North in rumpled white, levelling the "gat" with both handcuffed hands.

"Tablau!" suddenly exclaimed Nadia. "The Hunter Hunted, or America Triumphant.' Shall we call the honors even for tonight?"

North's answering frown meant less than nothing—it was merely a screen for some furious thinking. . . . Was anyone coming?"

That silencer, thank the Lord, had served him well after all. From the back of the apartment came no sound of voice, no trampling of feet.

"I suppose I should kill you," he observed thoughtfully. "You're the most dangerous person I've ever faced—and the stake has never been so great."

"Why don't you?" she challenged coolly. "Bigu, but you're quick!" Involuntarily his eyes sought hers, and he was amazed to read the sadness, the bewilderment in them. "Yes," she went on, "I think you had better shoot me now."

"Why?"

Her voice fell. "It is strange, mon Capitaine, but I fear that where you are concerned I am not fully efficient, and that is very bad for Russia!"

"Not efficient?"

"No. I should have had you killed as you hid in that closet. Alors, mon ami. Why don't you look at me?" she inquired when he shifted his gaze.

"Please take it as a sincere compliment to your charms that I don't. Now, where is that cipher message?"

"Do you think I will tell you?" Chestnut-red lights glimmered briefly in her hair as she flung back her head.

"Yes," North said, "Because, unless I greatly misjudge you, you have made a copy of it."

Another moment of silence ensued, pierced by the cacophonous wailing of a Chinese fiddler in the street outside.

"Come," spoke North sharply. "Where is it?"

He started and realigned the revolver when one of her hands glided to the front of the white evening dress and reappeared with what appeared to be a lipstick container.

"Voila," she laughed and tossed the bright cylinder onto the floor. It rolled a few inches and came to rest beside Josef's pointed head.

Still North avoided her eyes and cast a sidewise glance at the litter of papers spread out on the desk. Bait, that's what it was—probably not one page yonder meant much. Still, there might be something of unsuspected value among them.

So he directed, "Get the key for these handcuffs out of Josef's pocket and lay it on the desk. Also," he added with ominous pleasantness, "be sure, mademoiselle, that it's only a key you produce."

She obeyed. Silence prevailed while he freed himself of the handcuffs and advised, "Always handcuff your prisoner's hands behind him."

Nadia Stefan thanked him. "Merci!" was all she said.

"And now," North directed, "I want you to open that lipstick container and hold that paper up where I can see it. No, don't come close."

Silently Nadia Stefan responded. He saw that it was the original message.

"You're foolish to persist in this affair, mon Capitaine," she remarked suddenly. "Not even you can stop what is to be."

He said: "Since you seem to know what is to be, I'm going to take you with me."

"Ah, another Lochinvar?" she commented; then she grimaced in sudden anger. "Bah! You would not dare!"

"On the contrary," the intelligence captain replied evenly, "I do dare. And now, if you don't mind, I'm going to collect a few things from that desk."

Price of Cheese Sold to England Will be Higher

The return of the Hon. James Gardiner, Minister of National War Services and Agriculture, from England after completing new trade agreements between Britain and Canada for enlarged sales to the former of Canadian bacon, cheese and other food products, and at a rumoured higher price, was instrumental in a resolution asking for higher prices being held up by the Belleville Cheese Board.

At the meeting of the cheese board held one week ago, Mr. Fred Mallory, Secretary of the board, was instructed to draft a resolution asking for higher prices and to forward the same to Ottawa, but with the announcement during the week that the Hon. James Gardiner had returned from England, and owing to the possibility of higher prices already having been obtained by the minister, he decided to hold up the resolution until after the report of Mr. Gardiner's trip to England had been given in parliament. Mr. Gardiner made his report in parliament on Thursday afternoon but as the full content of his announcement was not known at time of last night's cheese board meeting, it was decided to hold the resolution until the report had been made public.

Friday morning's papers carried the full report of the minister's announcement made in parliament on Thursday and it included a new cheese deal calling for an increase in the contract from 90,000,000 lbs. delivered this year, at 14c, F.O.B. Montreal, to 112,000,000 lbs. to be delivered next year at 14.4c a pound at Montreal.

Police Blotter

Anxious parents would like to learn of the whereabouts of 15-year-old Elwyn "Dean" Graham of 35 Charlotte Street in Belleville, who disappeared from his home on Tuesday night and has not been heard of since. He was wearing gray trousers and a black leather coat when he left home.

"Elwyn has never stayed away from home this long before and I'm quite anxious as to his safety," pleaded Mrs. Graham as she inquired through the Ontario Intelligencer for assistance in locating her son.

Constables Taylor and Thomson apprehended two teen-aged lads stealing soft drinks from a parked truck south of the market square last night. The two youths were taken to the police station and delivered a stern lecture by Sergeant Arthur Booth. They will also report to Chief Kidd after school hours today.

Two inebriates shared the police cells along with eleven transients last night, the drunks being arraigned in police court this morning.

fruits and honey, cheese and condensed milk, calling for larger exports that have gone to the United Kingdom this year or last, except in the case of canned apples.

The Minister's speech featured yesterday's debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. He brought applause from the House when he praised the spirit of the British and said the civilian population was standing up to the enemy "like well-trained troops."

Canadians need have no apprehension of the ultimate victory of British arms, Mr. Gardiner said. Britain would take the offensive in 1932, but it would be "criminal" to attempt an offensive until the utmost degree of preparedness had been reached.

Other Speakers in Debate

Other speakers in the day's debate were Gordon Graydon, (Con. Peel); P. E. Wright, (CCF Melfort); Dr. F. W. Gershaw, (Lib. Medicine Hat); FO. James Sinclair, (Lib. Vancouver North); J. A. Ross, (Con. Souris); Rev. D. McIvor, (Lib. Fort William) and H. E. Brunelle, (Lib. Champlain).

Today the House of Commons will hear Defence Minister Ralston make a statement on the progress of Canada's defence measures.

In the Senate yesterday the address debate was concluded, the address adopted without division, and adjournment taken to Dec. 3, subject to possible recall by the Speaker in the meantime.

One of the last speakers in the debate was Senator William Duff, (Lib. Nova Scotia), who suggested Canada should start negotiations with Newfoundland to see if the British colony could not be taken over by Canada.

He suggested that Canada might well relieve Britain of the responsibility of administering her colony in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, in view of the heavy war burdens sustained by the United Kingdom.

Acting Jointly

Canada and the United States already were acting jointly to look after Newfoundland's defences and this was another reason why the colony might be taken into Canada's Confederation, he said.

The Senate also heard a proposal from Senator John Haig (Con. Manitoba) that the Government should bonus wheat farmers to keep their land out of production. His crop-reducing suggestion would call for payment to wheat farmers of a bonus of $5 an acre on uncropped land, up to one third of their normal acreage.

He estimated such a step would decrease production by 240,000,000 bushels a year, and save the Government $75,000,000 to $80,000,000 annually, in view of its present guaranteed minimum price for wheat of 70 cents a bushel, Basis No. 1 Northern at Fort William or Vancouver.

Supplies Outlined

In his speech to the Commons, Agriculture Minister Gardiner reported agreements reached with British officials to take the following supplies in 1941:—

Fish:

Canned salmon to the value of $5,538,000, other canned fish $3,367,000—a total of $12,050,000, almost twice the value of these commodities exported to Great Britain in 1939. (Figures for 1940 are not complete for the year but in most instances are higher.)

Processed Fruits and Honey:

Canned tomatoes, dried apples, canned apples, fruit pulp, fruit pectin and honey to the value of $4,541,000, compared with $3,111,465 in 1939.

Bacon and Pork Products:

Canada's total production of Wiltshire sides estimated at 425,600,000 pounds, and offals, sausage casings and bladders, worth a total of $69,300,000, compared with $32,000,000 in 1939.

Take Plenty of Cheese

Cheese:

112,000,000 pounds, net value at Montreal $16,100,000, and more if Canada can deliver it, compared with $10,802,000 in 1939.

Condensed Milk:

To the value of at least $3,750,000 compared with $1,251,000 in 1939.

Mr. Gardiner made clear he did not go to Britain with authority to make an agreement on wheat, but he said it appeared in recent months that about 70 per cent of Britain's wheat purchasers were of Canadian origin "and I suggested that the United Kingdom might think it desirable to maintain this percentage." This would amount to about 160,000,000 bushels a year.

He assumed Canada might increase domestic consumption to 160,000,000 bushels a year. That would dispose of 64,000,000 bushels in two years at home and in the United Kingdom.

He assumed further that it would be two years before the expected British offensive would make it possible for Canada to sell wheat again to countries now blockaded. In the last three years of the next five, he estimated, Canada would dispose of 480,000,000 bushels to such countries.

The minister thus figured that in the next five years the United Kingdom would take a total of 800,000,000 bushels, domestic consumption 800,000,000 and countries now blockaded 480,000,000 bushels, a total of 2,080,000,000 bushels.

He estimated production in that period would be 1,900,000,000 bushels to which he added the 280,000,000 bushels carry-over from the last crop year, making a total of 2,180,000,000 bushels or 100,000,000 more than the amount for which he predicted there would be a market.

Could Have Paid Debts

"If the people of Europe whom Britain has befriended for ages had been able to hold out against Nazi attacks, every scrap of food Canada prepared against the day of trial would have been required by now and would have been selling at a price which would have partially paid the debts incurred during days of narrow Nationalism," Mr. Gardiner said.

"But the war has brought destruction, pillage, rampant death and slavery to the small food-producing countries of Europe and we, with our food supplies increased to greater surpluses than for years, are able to play a greater part in assisting Britain than we otherwise could have done."

Mr. Gardiner reviewed the measures of assistance which have been granted certain branches of agriculture and observed that although advised more than a year ago not to increase their plantings of wheat farmers had increased them by 2,000,000 acres.

"Farmers of Canada and the enlisted men from all classes in Canada have been required to make greater economic sacrifices than any others," said Mr. Gardiner.

It was because of losses to farmers both before and after the war started that Mr. Gardiner decided to make a trip to England, he said.

Britain Only Trader

He saw at once that under the blockade "the only European authority to which we can direct food supplies is the Government of Britain." There had been suggestions that Canada seek markets elsewhere.

"I would not remain for one hour in a government which would seek markets for farm products anywhere in the world if the marketing of them there would in any way tend to weaken the blockade Britain is enforcing upon certain sections of Europe," he declared.

"What about selling copper to Spain?" Mr. Coldwell queried.

"My friend will find, if he reads this carefully, that the selling of anything to Spain is very well covered by what I have stated," Mr. Gardiner replied.

Appeals for Transportation

"I think it is our duty to place the food supplies available for Empire consumption at the disposal of the Empire through the food and shipping ministries of Britain to be directed to any market they think advisable.

"I think we should receive from the British Government for these supplies sufficient to make it possible for our farmers to go on producing food which is greatly needed and may be even more essential to ultimate victory."

FO James Sinclair, speaking in the Throne speech debate, made the appeal for free transportation for men on active service. Men most anxious to go home on leave were those least able to pay their fares, the Royal Canadian Air Force officer said. He asked only that transportation be provided for non-commissioned officers and men when on long leave.

The money, to pay for free transportation would obviously come from the taxpayer, FO. Sinclair said, and he was sure the great majority of taxpayers would approve the expenditure.

Members Leave Expires

He said he was leaving Ottawa last night to return to duty in Vancouver, his leave having expired. He was speaking not so much as a member of parliament but as one who "has had the good fortune to be accepted for active service."

There was a good deal of reluctance among recruiting and staff officers to having members of parliament in the service.

Referring to the speech made Wednesday night by Capt. G. S. White, Conservative - Hastings - Peterborough, FO. Sinclair said the proper place to air complaints of trifling matter was in the office of the defence minister, particularly when the person complaining was an officer.

The important thing was that the "first line" of defence—the Air Force and Navy—was fully equipped and efficiently administered, he said.

Extension of rental control to small districts adjacent to military training posts and industrial areas was urged by FO. Sinclair, who claimed there was a great deal of profiteering going on among landlords.

City of Tradition

Coventry has been a city of Pageantry since Lady Godiva rode through its streets.

Its Cathedral (St. Michael's), feared destroyed now, was built in the 14th Century and has been considered one of the finest examples of the perpendicular style of architecture in England. The steeple rose 303 feet and with the steeples of Holy Trinity and Christ Church has formed a striking group that has caused Coventry to be called "the City of Three Spires".

The 15th Century glass in two of the five large windows of the Cathedral apse was removed at the start of the war.

Some of its ancient fortifications and half-timbered houses remain, but the city's many industries among them motor manufacture, weaving, dyeing, watch-making and metal works, have robbed it of much picturesqueness.

It owes its existence to a Benedictine monastery established by Earl Leofric and his wife, Lady Godiva, in 1043. The town's love for parade and pageantry has been manifested up to recent years in a triennial processional show in honor of Godiva, who unwittingly tempted "peeping Tom of Coventry" by riding, clad only in her flowing tresses, through the streets on a horse in order to persuade the Earl to remit noxious taxes.

The Godivas of latter-day processions have worn bathing suits, and there have been rousing controversies over even this degree of attire.

Two familiar expressions, "true as Coventry blue" and "to send to Coventry", come from the town. The first grew out of Coventry's reputation for dyeing. The second is believed to have arisen during the 117th Century Civil War, when the citizens of Birmingham sent groups of King's men to imprisonment at Coventry.

Plaintiffs Heard In Damage Suit

Jennie and Arthur Parks, Madoc plaintiffs in a $10,000 damage suit brought against Gordon Munro, Madoc, were principal witnesses produced by their counsel, Charles A. Payne, K.C., in Supreme Court this morning as the hearing drew near its close. Mr. Payne rested his case just before the one o'clock adjournment. W. A. L. Fair, Peterborough, defendant's counsel, will open his case this afternoon and a decision is expected to be reached some time this evening.

The suit arose from an accident in Madoc on Nov. 23, 1938, when a car allegedly driven by Wellington Munro, son of the defendant, is said to have struck Mrs. Parks inflicting severe injuries, while waiting to cross a street in the northern village.

Both witnesses testified they had heard a "thump" just before they stepped off the sidewalk on St. Laurence Street near the Davidson Street intersection. They saw a car come down the latter street and turn in a southwesterly direction directly towards them. Parks jumped clear and heard his wife scream as the oncoming car struck her and pinned her against a parked automobile. He swore the car did not stop at a "Stop" sign twenty feet north on Davidson Street nor at the intersection before it turned the corner.

Mrs. Park told the jury she had stopped in front of the parked car. She had turned in an easterly direction then "everything went blurry and blank until the car hit me." She remembered Wellington Munro saying, "I will never drive the car again; its brakes are not good."

Hospital bills amounting to $553.00 and medical costs of $773.00 had been incurred, Parks testified. He had been paying them at the rate of $25 monthly. Mrs. Parks had not been able to do housework for several months.

George Williams, Belleville hospital radiologist, identified X-ray plates taken of the injury to Mrs. Parks' leg.

Shift Focus of Attacks

Germany's raiders, shifting the focus of their attacks away from London, concentrated a fierce assault on the industrial midlands during the night and the Government expressed fear today their bombs had taken a heavy toll of lives.

Shops and hospitals were damaged in several midlands towns, a communique said, killing and wounding some people.

Two hospitals were struck by bombs in London, which was subjected to only intermittent attacks throughout the night. One was hit by four heavy bombs, which damaged a wing devoted to the chronically ill.

A suburban department store in which hundreds of shoppers were caught late yesterday before they could seek underground shelters also was struck.

The German raiders also dropped bombs in scattered areas in both England and Wales, damaging some houses but causing few casualties.

Eight aged women were reported killed in one of the London hospitals bombed during the night.

In a raid this morning one man was killed and five injured in a London home. Nine persons escaped death, although five suffered injuries when a bomb hit the entrance of an underground shelter.

Two invading planes flying high over the Thames estuary were said to have been driven off by fighters as they approached London this morning.

An Industrial City

Coventry, with a population of 190,000, is one of England's most important industrial cities and is located about 75 miles northwest of London.

It has been one of the Germans' most regular targets in bombing raids on England.

"There will be many stories of heroism to be told when it is possible to collect them," an official report of the Coventry raid stated.

At least 40 planes came over in regular waves from dusk to dawn, it was said, and casualties included members of the Civil Defence Corps and the fire and police services.

Places damaged included the operating room of a hospital, but the hospital was said to be still in use today as a clearing station for the injured.

An isolation hospital also was hit, and casualties were caused there.

Two churches, public baths, two clubs, a school, hotel, four public shelters, moving picture theatres, the police station, post office and two first aid posts were damaged.

Homeless Being Fed

The homeless were being taken to feeding centres.

Bombs fell, too, over a wide area of the West Midlands, outside Coventry, causing many casualties.

A south coast town also had its longest air raid of the war last night. A large number of bombs were dropped and 300 persons were removed from their homes. A four-year-old child was the only fatality.

After these night blows, the German air arm thrust twice at London today, returning in the early afternoon in the wake of a morning attack which was thrown back with losses.

In the first raid British fighters dispersed a squadron of German warplanes which attacked over a south coast town.

EXPULSION ORDER CREATES CRISIS

First Criticism Made by the Vichy Government Against Action of Germany

Vichy, France, Nov. 15 (AP)—French - German "collaboration" reached a critical stage today following a strong French protest to the German Armistice Commission over the expulsion of residents of the Nazi-occupied province of Lorraine.

Although no one officially declared dead the "collaboration for the peace of New Europe," the policy of Vice-Premier Laval developed in talks last month with Hitler received its first public check.

The Vichy Cabinet announced plans to meet today and tomorrow.

Yesterday's communique announcing the protest said French-speaking Lorraine residents had been given the choice of going to Poland or France.

A Vichy spokesman added that from the northern part of the Province, where about one-third are French-speaking, one-third German speaking and the remainder Poles, Italians and other foreigners, about 98 per cent. of those asked to leave chose to come to France.

Pour Into Lyon Area

Lorraine farmers affected by the expulsion order began pouring into the Lyon area. The Government promised them they would be well cared for and given work.

No departing Lorraine resident was permitted to take more than 2,000 francs and a suitcase of personal belongings.

The Government's protest of the Lorraine expulsion marked the first time since the beginning of the "collaboration" negotiations that the Vichy Government publicly has criticized a German action.

(Neutral sources at Berne, Switzerland, interpreted France's protest as a reply to German expressions of discontent with the spread of the Free French movement of Gen. Charles De Gaulle in the Gulf of Guinea and the situation in North Africa.

(They said the Vichy Government was determined to show that complaints were not one-sided.)

By LLOYD LEHRBAS

Washington —(AP)— Germany's expulsion of French-speaking residents from France's province of Lorraine was regarded in informed diplomatic quarters here as one more step in Hitler's plan to absorb that long contested borderland in his "Greater Reich."

If the French are being replaced by Germans from the Ruhr Valley—as reported in informed circles in Vichy—it may also mean that persistent British bombing of Germany's highly industrialized Ruhr Valley has been effective to a degree not hitherto admitted by Berlin.

Before I left Vichy recently it was widely reported that the Royal Air Force had been making it so "hot" for the Ruhr that many Germans were moving across the border and taking over homes of French refugees who had not yet returned to the occupied region. Wholesale expulsion of French from Lorraine would provide more homes for bomb-shy Germans from the Ruhr, and at the same time enable Hitler to "Germanize" Lorraine thoroughly.

Although the expatriation of French from Lorraine apparently has now assumed grand scale proportions, the actual start of this German program dates back to the days immediately following the fall of France. Before I left unoccupied France at the end of the summer between 20,000 and 25,000 French, expelled from Lorraine, had arrived in the vicinity of Lyons.

All reported they first had been notified they could remain in Lorraine if they became German citizens. Within a few days, however, they were informed that since Lorraine was to be "rejoined" to the Reich only people of German blood could remain.

Many of the refugees, carrying only small bundles of clothing and food, said they had been forced to leave all possessions behind because they had only two hours warning before being forced to leave their homes.

Among the refugees were many farmers who said squads of German soldiers had suddenly appeared with orders for their immediate removal, forcing the evacuation of entire villages and farm communities.

injuries and William Brett, 33, Burlington, Ont., fractured leg and body cuts.

Others injured were William Fozard, 36; Arthur Yeager, Mary Fisher, 36; Jane Austin, 26; William Turnbull, 29 and Thomas Newton, 28, all of Hamilton and James Roblin, 21, Burlington.

Cause of Accident Undetermined

None of the injured was able to give police any information as to how the accident happened. It took place on dry road a few hundred feet east of a curve. All three cars were wrecked, one being literally torn to pieces. The right side of this car was torn off, the front end smashed in and the motor driven back.

Another machine believed to have been driven by Turnbull, lay on its side to the south of the highway with its front end stove in. One of the occupants of this car, believed to have been Thomas Newton, was thrown partly through the windshield. Great difficulty was experienced in extricating him without inflicting further lacerations as he was jammed tight with jagged glass about his neck.

Another car, thought by police to have been in charge of Roblin, skidded for 210 feet eastward on highway and then crashed straight head-on into a huge elm tree, striking the tree with such force that the motor was driven back past the front seat.

Occupants of houses on both sides of the highway were awakened by the crash and immediately turned their homes into temporary hospitals. Cecil Ambler and his son Joseph took out blankets and covered some of the more seriously hurt to protect them from the cold wind.

GREEKS TAKE

In the coastal region the Greeks drove the invaders back to the Albanian border, forcing a retreat reported to be assuming the proportions of a riot.

Greek Victory in Mountains

The radio credited the Greeks with taking "thousands" of prisoners after having "beaten and dispersed" an Italian force which outnumbered them three to one.

The fighting in which the two Italian divisions were wiped out took place in the mountains, near the centre of the battlefront.

The Greeks were reported fighting on Albanian soil in this sector as well as on the northern flank, where they previously captured mountain positions dominating the Albanian town of Koritza, important Italian invasion base.

The Greek high command's communique last night told of "intense infantry, artillery and air activity" along the entire front and reported the Greeks had captured 200 more prisoners and "war material of all kinds."

Many Italian Planes Downed By Greeks

Important victories in the air also were announced by the high command, which said 11 Italian planes were shot down yesterday and another 10 "probably damaged beyond repair" against the loss of only one Greek plane.

Heavy bombing attacks were reported on Italian troop columns and on airdromes at Koritza and Argorokastron, Italian base in Albanian territory on the opposite flank of the front.

The Greeks again disclosed the Italians "indiscriminately" bombed non-military objectives behind the Greek lines.

The Ministry of Home Security listed among the places bombed by the Italians yesterday the town of Argostolion on the island of Cephalonia; a village on the island of Crete; Corfu, Ioannina and Larisa.

Bombs dropped on Larisa struck a military hospital, causing some casualties, the communique said. Elsewhere damage and casualties were slight.

BRITAIN TO TAKE ALL THE CHEESE CANADA CAN SHIP

Canada Has Agreed to Provide 112 Million Pounds in the Next Year

MAY SEND MORE

By R. K. CARNEGIE

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Nov. 15 (CP)—Officials seemed agreed today that Dominion and Provincial Agriculture Departments and the Dairy industry must do some solid planning if Canada is to respond satisfactorily to Britain's plea for all the cheese this country can ship.

Yesterday Agriculture Minister Gardiner announced in the House of Commons that Canada has agreed to provide 112,000,000 pounds of cheese—and more if possible.

Cheese is given priority, next to wheat, in the scramble for ocean space because of its concentrated food value. Accordingly, while Canada has agreed to provide about 20,000,000 pounds more cheese than it exported to the United Kingdom this year, efforts will be made to exceed the agreed amount.

But officials pointed to certain difficulties that will have to be met before this can be done. Canadians consume normally about 40,000,000 pounds of cheese. With increased wage returns throughout the Dominion because of greater employment Canada's consumption of butter and raw milk is bound to increase. The Dominion also has undertaken to increase greatly its production of condensed milk to supply the United Kingdom.

No Marked Increase

Dairy cows do not grow in a year and recent inquiries indicated there would be no marked increase in dairy cow population next spring. The only way that milk production can be drastically increased would be by heavy feeding of cows already in production.

Dairymen often have contended that heavier feeding increases production costs and it is expected they will argue the new price of 14.4 cents a pound at Montreal, does not allow for higher costs. While the price is two-fifths of a cent higher than under the present agreement it is considerably below the price last winter in the open market, which reached more than 18 cents and resulted in increased production at that time.

Situation Requires Study

The whole situation will require careful study, officials contended. Care must be taken that no large number of milch cows are slaughtered this fall. Since Canadians have such an abundance of almost all kinds of food they might be called upon to consume less cheese, it was suggested.

Frequently it has been urged that more milk be used to make cheese and less for butter but Canadians now are eating about all the butter being produced in this country and any increased use of milk for cheese production might result in a butter shortage.

Glowing Tribute Paid Petit Jury

A glowing tribute was paid by the Honorable Mr. Justice Keiller MacKay, who has presided at the Supreme Court sessions here for the past three weeks, to members of the petit jury panel prior to their final dismissal yesterday. Only twelve of the original jury empanelled remain and these are sitting on the final case of the docket.

"In all my years of experience," Justice MacKay told the jurymen, "I have never had more kindly, more hearty co-operation from members of the petit jury than I have received from those of Hastings County. I desire to manifest my sincere appreciation and gratitude for their respect to the dignity of the court, which is something apart from judges."

"We shall do well, all of us," Justice MacKay said, "in the course of our judicial professional and industrial lives, as well as those connected with forest, farm and mine, to remember the times when we dignify and honor ourselves, by doing honor to the institutions it took a thousand years to develop, and which we regard as our most precious heritage."

"I came to Hastings County with a feeling of delight and I leave it with feelings of great esteem. I thank you, gentlemen for the marked and close attention you have paid during your tenure here as members of the petit jury," Justice MacKay concluded.

Bombers Flown From Canada to U. K., 'Fortunate Results'

Los Angeles, Nov. 15 (AP).—The British have been flying Lockheed Hudson bombers from Canada to England for several weeks with "very fortunate results".

So says Air Commodore G. C. Pirie, attached to the British Embassy in Washington.

In an interview, he also announced that four American aviation schools—in Glendale, Calif., Tulsa, Okla., Dallas, Tex., and Chicago—will be given contracts under a plan to train volunteers for service with Canadian and British Royal Air Forces.

Canada's Ability to Sustain War Effort Is Bounded Only by Capacity to Produce

H. T. Jaffray, Pres. of C.B.A., Addresses Annual Meeting of the Association

DEPOSITS INCREASE

Toronto, Nov. 15.—The only bounds to Canada's financial ability to carry her war effort without upset to her national economy is the volume that can mechanically be produced, stated H. T. Jaffray, president of the Canadian Bankers' Association, addressing the 49th annual meeting of that body. Mr. Jaffray, who is general manager of the Imperial Bank of Canada, based this conviction on a review of the strength revealed in the position of the chartered banks at the end of he first year of war as well as upon the extent of the country's material natural and financial resources.

As regards the banks, Mr. Jaffray stressed their ability to finance the requirements of their customers in war effort until victory without curtailing the legitimate requirements of their customers for ordinary purposes. He pointed out that during one year of war deposits of all kinds in chartered banks had increased by $46,000,000 and now stood at $3,142,000,000. Current loans to public in the same period had increased $113,000,000 to $939,000,000.

Commenting on suggestions that an adverse balance of trade with United States might operate to restrict Canada's purchases in that country, Mr. Jaffray said he did not share these misgivings and referred to fact adverse balance of imports over exports of $65,000,000 in June, July and August of this year did not include interest payments abroad nor the revenue from tourist traffic nor gold shipments. Gold production for same three months exceeded $51,000,000 available if needed to balance the account. Accumulation of American assets in one form or another controlled by Canadians could also be drawn upon if necessary to support Canada's war effort. However, he thought the figures emphasized to governments the necessity of giving "every encouragement to our mines to increase production."

On the wheat problem, Mr. Jaffray said he refused to regard the West's large crop as a detriment rather than a blessing, and added that in the long run every bushel of grain that we grow will be needed. It is possible, however, that in the next year or two a percentage switching from wheat to feeding grains may be in the best interests of the farmer.

Other highlights of the speech included a sharp condemnation of suggestions for inflation or "funny money," a warning that taxation, if carried too far, could by its impact upon inventories produce all the privations of deflation and high tribute to the work of the Bank of Canada and the Foreign Exchange Control Board.

Jaffray Re-elected

Toronto, Nov. 15.—H. T. Jaffray of Toronto, general manager of the Imperial Bank of Canada, was re-elected president of the Canadian Bankers' Association at the annual meeting.

Vice-presidents elected were: Charles St. Pierre of Montreal, general manager of the Banque Canadienne Nationale; F. H. Marsh of Toronto, general manager of the Bank of Toronto; G. W. Spinney of Montreal, general manager of the Bank of Montreal, and A. E. Arscott of Toronto, general manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.

Stephen C. Foster Has Been Elected To The Hall of Fame

New York, Nov. 15.—(AP)— A song writer who died penniless, obscure and broken in spirit at the age of 38 has just been elected to the Hall of Fame.

A commemorative tablet and bust honoring his memory will be placed among those of 72 other great Americans next spring. The name on it will be "Stephen Collins Foster".

He's the first musician ever named one of the United States' immortals.

He wrote down-to-earth, folksy, easy-to-sing songs. He wrote them to pay the rent, to buy a few meals. And for most of them, he got only a few dollars each.

They were never-to-be-forgotten songs. Such as "Old Black Joe", "Old Folks at Home", "Jeannie with the Light Brown Hair", "My Old Kentucky Home", "O, Susanna", and "Massa's in de Cold, Cold Ground".

At the age of 14, he wrote "Tioga Waltz". From then until his death in New York city, January 13, 1864, he turned out more than 200 songs, a dozen instrumental compositions and several musical arrangements.

He had to drive himself to compose as a rule. Even during 1860, when his career was at its peak with the publication of "Old Black Joe" he was on the verge of quitting several times.

The War Today

By GUY RHOADES

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

The suggestion that an attack on the British stronghold of Gibraltar may be imminent arose today, almost simultaneously with a strong indication that Pierre Laval, Vichy vice-premier, has overstepped himself in his apparent efforts to take France into Germany's camp.

The first hint of French stiffening appeared yesterday when the Vichy government lodged a vigorous protest with the German armistice commission against ousting of the French citizens from the Province of Lorraine. The protest was accompanied by a statement from Vichy that the Germans were lying in telling the Lorrainers that their ousting was provided for in an agreement with the French government.

The Gibraltar suggestion was seen in the fact that Spain's foreign minister, Ramon Serrano Suner, the brother-in-law of Dictator Franco, has gone to Paris to consult with German leaders who appear to have established a headquarters staff in the former French capital.

The suggestion was supported by the now obvious fact that the Italians have been dealt a whacking by the Greeks and their British helpers and that they are urgently in need of direct aid or a diversion of some kind.

For a long time it has been assumed that the "rock" would be assaulted eventually by the axis in an effort to gain control of the entrance to the Mediterranean. It has also been suggested that Spain—non-belligerent axic partner—was the logical agent to conduct the attack, because it is the former possessor of the fortress.

May Use Pressure on Spain

Spain, however, probably will have to be frightened into any military effort at the moment, because the country is still staggering under the consequences of the Civil War started by Franco's friends.

As the Balkan war neared the end of its third week all doubt that the Italians had suffered a severe beating were gone. Greek troops still were on the offensive, advancing into Albania which Italy seized last year from former King Zog's administration. Friends of democracy feared only that the Greeks would advance too fast and place themselves in a position where an Italian counter-offensive—if it could be organized—would nip off their spearhead.

However, for the moment, it appeared as though the Italians might eventually be caught at their invasion ports in much the same manner as the British overseas force was caught in the Dunkirk pocket, but with far less chance of getting out.

An escape across the Ionian Sea would be more difficult for the Italians than was the British evacuation through Dunkirk for two reasons: First, the distance is greater, second the Italians appear not to have citizens whose valor equals that of the Britishers who ferried their countrymen home from France.

SUNER'S VISIT TO PARIS CAUSES NEW SPECULATION

Is it Associated With Possibility of Axis Drive on Gibraltar

FRENCH EMPIRE ISSUE

(By Charles S. Foltz, Jr., Associated Press Staff Writer)

Berne, Switzerland, Nov. 15—(AP)—Spanish Foreign Minister Ramon Serrano Suner's trip to Paris was interpreted here today as raising anew the possibility of an Axis drive against Gibraltar, British guardian of the Mediterranean's western entrance.

(Serrano Suner left Madrid unexpectedly last night for Paris accompanied by Baron De Las Torres, Chief of Protocol, and military aides. There was no explanation as to the purpose of his trip.

(The only comment in the Spanish Press which threw any light on the situation was that in the newspaper A.B.C., which repeated a recurring phrase that the Axis intends to "clean out" the Mediterranean.)

Speculation on a possible Axis attack on Gibraltar, with Spain participating actively or permitting Axis troops to cross Spanish soil, has been heard repeatedly since the fall of France, most recently after Hitler's conference with Gen. Franco.

Full Control of Tangier

Less than two weeks ago, Spain seized full control of Tangier, strategic international zone in Morocco which commands the approach to the Strait of Gibraltar from the Atlantic. Spanish troops had occupied the zone June 14, but it was not until Nov. 4, that the last vestiges of international control were wiped out.

Serrano Suner's trip to the German-occupied former capital of France turned observers' eyes not only toward Gibraltar but toward France's African Empire, which was considered by many informed sources to be the real hitch in Franco-German collaboration negotiations.

Spain and France

Spain's desire to extend her colonial empire at France's expense is no secret and it was reported in diplomatic quarters here that Gen. Charles De Gaulle's free French seizure of Libreville—only a few miles from Spain's fertile little Rio Muni colony—and Gen. Maxime Weygand's activity in North Africa, bounding Spanish Morocco, had much to do with the Spanish Foreign Minister's trip.

Diplomats in Berne expected Serrano Suner to talk with Vice-Premier Laval about the state of France's colonial empire—whether the Vichy government felt North Africa sufficiently under its control and what the Germans thought about it. He also was said to be anxious to learn about De Gaulle's activity in Gabon and whether any Vichy plans to combat it might involve Rio Muni—which is surrounded by French Gabon and the Cam-

STRIKE ORDERED AT PLANE PLANT

Union Demands 15-Cent Increase From Vultee Company in California

Downey, Calif., Nov. 15 (AP)—Congress of Industrial Organizations Members on production lines at Vultee Aircraft, Inc., were ordered out today in the first strike at a plant manufacturing military planes since onset of the present United States defence program.

No hour was set for the walkout, which was decreed as the climax of weeks of negotiations over the minimum wage scale.

The company had on hand orders for $39,000,000 worth of planes for the United States and another $11,000,000 worth for export.

The United Automobile Workers Union claims a membership of "more than 3,000" of the 3,700 production workers in the plant, which has a payroll of some 5,200 employees.

L. H. Michener, Regional Director of the Union, issued the strike order with a declaration that the company had failed to file an answer to the Union's demands with a Federal Conciliator by the hour agreed upon Wednesday afternoon.

Vultee officials later made public a communication to Lyman Sisley, Department of Labor Commissioner of Conciliation here, but Michener declared it had not been filed for nearly 2 1-2 hours after the agreed time.

Instead of the 15-cent increase in minimum pay asked by the Union, from 50 cents an hour to 65 cents, Michener declared the company offered "a slight wage increase" at the end of three months, with another "slight increase" three months later.

TWO INCHES OF SNOW IN THIS DISTRICT

Snow shovels and scrapers were resurrected from basements and garages this morning as Belleville residents received their first real taste of winter weather Early risers were surprised to discover well over one inch of soft sticky snow covering streets and lawns when they proceeded to work this morning and at noon the snow was still falling in intermittent squalls, although rising temperatures had soon turned the snow on roadways into slush. Doubt is expressed as to whether the snow will remain any length of time but at noon approximately two inches remained on the open fields.

Admiralty Communique

London, Nov. 15—(CP)—The Admiralty issued this communique Friday:

"A further reconnaissance of the Italian naval base at Taranto has established with certainty that three battleships were crippled during the attack by the fleet air arm the night of Nov. 11.

"Efforts are being made to salvage the battleship of the Littorio class which was previously seen to have her forecastle under water and a heavy list to starboard.

"Auxiliary and salvage vessels are lying alongside on both sides of the ship and nets have been laid all round for her protection. Pumping is in progress. The bows of the ship have been raised and she now has a list to port.

"The reconnaissance has confirmed that two battleships of the Cavour class are aground. One of these is beached and an auxiliary vessel is lying alongside her. Nets have been laid all around for the protection of the ship.

"The second Cavour class battleship appears to have been abandoned. She is lying heeled over to starboard with only the forward part of her upper works above water.

"The pilot of one of the reconnaissance craft has reported that four shapes can be seen under water at the entrance to the graving dock in the inner harbor".

Power to Investigate Criticism of Conditions At Sask. Gunnery School

Ottawa, Nov. 15 (CP).—Air Minister Power has ordered an investigation of complaints over conditions at the bombing and gunnery school at Dafoe, Sask., it was stated today at the air ministry.

"The minister has not been officially advised of any complaints," a spokesman said. "All he has seen has been statements in the press, but an investigation has been ordered."

The Saskatoon Star Phoenix published today a despatch from Wynyard, Sask., 115 miles east of Saskatoon, which said criticism of conditions at the Dafoe school was being heard; that heating facilities were inadequate; that there was no water supply at the school, no medical men to attend air students and no telephone communication.

Saskatoon, Nov. 15 (CP)—The Saskatoon Star-Phoenix today published the following special dispatch from Wynyard, 115 miles east of here:

More and more criticism of the conditions at the Dafoe Bombing and Gunnery School are being heard in Wynyard as the story of conditions there becomes more generally known. Just prior to the cold weather, a small guard detail of aircraftmen under the command of a Sergeant was stationed at the school. Housed in a hut built to accommodate 120 men, the extreme cold weather of the last 10 days found this group of boys with only two small tin heaters to heat this large building.

The story in Wynyard is that the boys slept fully clothed and with their great coats on during the cold nights and still were not able to keep warm. As there is no water supply at the school they had a couple of barrels in which to keep water. These froze solid and all the water had to be obtained by melting ice on tiny heaters.

Claims No Telephone Communication

In addition, there is no telephone communication to the school and no medical man was appointed to look after the boys, nor were they provided with any means of transportation from the school, which is 14 miles north of Dafoe.

When one of the group fell ill, the boys had to pay $10 from their own pockets to bring him to the nearest doctor at Wynyard.

It is also reported that the boys were charged $25 for the hire of a livery to bring them to Wynyard on another occasion. Two weeks have elapsed since the guard arrived at the school and still nothing has been done to provide them with adequate heating equipment, still there has been no doctor appointed to care for them and still they are without means of communication or transportation.

Fascist Press Resorts To Insinuations

Rome, Nov. 15 (AP)—Italian newspapers insinuated today that Egyptian Premier Hassan Sabry Pasha, who collapsed and died at the opening session of Parliament yesterday, was poisoned by a British agent for refusing to lead Egypt into war against Italy.

Il Tevere, under the headline "Another English political crime," published a dispatch dated from Beirut, Lebanon, saying:—

"It is not excluded that the hand of the Intelligence Service may have struck treacherously at the chief of the Egyptian Government who has succeeded up to now in opposing the British desire to have Egypt enter the war against Italy. Poisoning is more or less openly mentioned."

(Sabry Pasha died while reading a Speech from the Throne saying that Egypt had executed a treaty of alliance and friendship with Britain "with complete sincerity, both in letter and spirit.")

TWO HITS SCORED ON SEA RAIDER BY MERCHANTMAN

Captain of One Vessel in Convoy, Attacked Last Week, Reports Hits

HOW SHIPS ESCAPED

By HAROLD FAIR

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Nov. 15 (CP Cable)—The captain of one merchantman in the convoy which a German raider attacked when the ships were steaming eastward in the Atlantic reported today he scored two hits on the sea rover.

Unofficial sources said there had been no word of the raider—generally believed to have been a pocket battleship since she bore down on the convoy on the evening of Nov. 5 and was held at bay by H.M.S. Jervis Bay, lightly-armed merchant cruiser which went down in flames, flag flying and guns blazing to the last.

Altering of Course

Meanwhile sources who heard reports from several captains credited their swift reaction to orders to alter course and disperse after the raider had been identified as an enemy with helping the bulk of the convoy escape.

It was stressed the incident will not be allowed to have a permanent effect on the British convoy system. H.M.S. Jervis Bay was described as carrying out the role for which she was intended and this was not the first time that convoys had a small escort. Convoys sailing in similar circumstances have previously made safe crossings.

Captains of the merchantmen said the raider was first sighted about 6 p.m. between seven and 10 miles from the port beam. When her hostile nature was seen the Commodore of the convoy, Rear-Admiral H. B. Maltby, signalled his ships to alter their course to the starboard.

Raider's First Salve Misses

Almost simultaneously the raider fired a salvo which fell in the middle of the convoy without hitting a single ship.

Before the Nazi could fire again H.M.S. Jervis Bay went out to meet him.

The Commodore then ordered the convoy to scatter and carry on at best speed. That was when the stokers really went to work, aided by every available man. One master who got his normally nine-knot ship to a speed of 12 1-2 knots said: "I never saw coal shovelled so fast in my life."

Skillfully manoeuvring behind the smokescreen they threw up, the merchantmen sped away, darkness finally aiding their escape.

Preliminary Hearing To Open Monday

Toronto, Nov. 15—(CP) — Hugh A. (Bill) Newall, aircraftman of the Royal Canadian Air Force who is charged with the murder of his wife, was remanded today until next Monday when a preliminary hearing will be held. He has been in custody for several weeks.

The body of Newall's Finnish wife, Aune, was discovered last Oct. 6 in a secluded spot on Centre Island in Toronto Bay. A silk stocking was wound about her neck.

When Newall appeared in court last week and previously he had been dressed in civilian clothes as the police had taken his Air Force uniform. Newall and his counsel objected and today Newall wore a new Air Force uniform delivered to him two days ago.

British Navy Steamed 4,000 Miles Unchallenged in Mediterranean Cruise Ends in Victory at Taranto

London, Nov. 15 (CP). — The Daily Mail's correspondent with the Mediterranean fleet wrote today that the "biggest British fleet to put to sea during the war" took a 4,000-mile "unchallenged" cruise through the Mediterranean, culminating in the naval air attacks on Taranto Monday which resulted in the crippling of half of Italy's battleship strength.

Admiral Sir Andrew Cunningham, commander-in-chief, had hoped he would sting the Italians into retaliation—that they would come out and fight.

"The blitz raid on Taranto was not the only piece of provocation," the correspondent wrote. "A small raiding force dashed straight up into the Adriatic, attacked an Italian convoy between Brindisi and Valona and sank three quarters of it, and got away unscathed.

"In executing this piece of daredevilitry the warships had to brave Italian mines, shore batteries, submarines and surface craft.

"The Italians did not react."

Soviet Press Features Expansion Of American Aviation Industry

Moscow, Nov. 15.—(AP)—Premier Molotoff returned to Russia today from his conversations with German officials in Berlin—his first trip outside the country. A special train brought the Premier across the border into Soviet territory and sped toward Moscow.

The Soviet Press displayed on their front pages the communiques announcing Molotoff's departure from Berlin yesterday.

A lengthy message by Tass, the Soviet News Agency, described the leave-taking ceremonies in Berlin and said, "The send-off for Comrade Molotoff took place in impressive surroundings".

A Tass dispatch from London quoted New York reports that British bombers raided the German capital during Molotoff's banquet for German officialdom, keeping guests at the Soviet Embassy until the early morning when the alarm ended.

Simultaneously, the Press featured a long dispatch from New York describing the rapid expansion of the United States aviation industry.

Encircling Move May Cut Italian Army in 3 Parts

Greek Columns Smashing into Italian Army Westward From Presbya Lake And Down Valley to Albanian Port of Valona

Athens, Nov. 16 (AP).—Some of the heaviest fighting of the Greek-Italian war was reported developing today with Greek attack columns smashing into the Italian army westward from Presba Lake and down the Boitsua river valley toward the Albanian port of Valona.

Reliable sources said the Greeks threatened to cut the Italian forces in Albania into three parts and encircle thousands of Fascists.

So hard-pressed were the Italians that they were reported to have withdrawn their forces along the Yugoslav frontier.

Military experts said this withdrawal, combined with the Greek offensive from the region of Lake Presba and Koritza, in the south-

Why The Weather?

By Major A. H. Thiessen
Science Service Meteorologist

How much water in snow? Freshly fallen snow contains considerable air. Sometimes snow is so light that it takes 35 inches of it to make on inch of water. Old snow, having packed from its own weight and some melting, is heavy; only about one-half of its bulk may be air. It is very difficult for the weather observer to measure snowfall. This is due principally to the wind. The observer frequently is obliged to take samples from several places and average them. Snow surveyors employ a fairly exact method; they use a steel tube which they plunge into the snow and then weigh it. The scales used gives the amount of snow in terms of inches of water. All observations of snowfall give the depth of the snow in inches and also the water equivalent.

40,000-Tons British Shipping Lost in Week Ending on Nov. 15th

Loss due to enemy action of some 40,000 tons of British shipping became known in the week ended Nov. 15. This included four ships, totalling 25,453 tons, from the British convoy attacked on the North Atlantic. One other ship from the convoy was later bombed from the air and sunk, adding another 2,374 to the tonnage known to be lost.

The latest admiralty figures, covering the week ended Nov. 4, showed 72,595 tons of British, allied and neutral shipping sunk in the seven-day period. This brought the weekly average since the war began to 58,575 tons.

TRYING TO SWAY PUBLIC OPINION

Gen. De Gaulle Working Feverishly in French-Mandated Syria

Beirut, Lebanon, Nov. 16 (AP)—Well-informed circles said today that followers of Gen. Charles De Gaulle are working feverishly in French-mandated Syria to sway opinion toward a revolt behind Gen. Maxime Weygand and Gen. Auguste Nogues.

Gen. Weygand is military and political chief in North Africa, sent there by the Vichy regime and Gen. Nogues is resident general and commander in Morocco.

Weygand is reported to have spoken against any surrender of French territory to Italy or Germany.

Rome, Nov. 16 (CP)—Mario Appelius, military correspondent of the newspaper Il Popolo D'Italia, today indicated that Vichy, France, will be asked to take action to restore its authority in French Africa and that if it fails the Axis will take military steps.

The writer hinted that this plan had been arranged in negotiations between German representatives and Vice-Premier Pierre Laval of the Vichy government.

(Sentiment favoring Gen. Charles De Gaulle's Free French movement has been reported rising in French African possessions.)

King Personally Brings Words Of Sympathy, Cheer to Coventry

Coventry, England, Nov. 16—(CP)—The King personally brought words of sympathy, cheer and assurance of an Empire's support today to stricken Coventry—parts of which have been blasted to a smoking, shattered shell by a Nazi air raid.

Taking the townsmen completely by surprise, the khaki clad King pulled up before the town hall in his car which had threaded its way through debris-strewn streets.

Instantly the cry went up, "The King, the King."

A knot of persons gathered around him to cheer. His Majesty smiled.

Saluting again and again, he made his way through the crowd.

The King conferred with local officials and then toured the devastated areas. A look of horror crossed his face as he stepped into the ruins of ancient St. Michael's Cathedral. Standing on a heap of still smoking rubble he spoke gravely with the provost, Very Rev. R. T. Howard.

Tried to Save Cathedral

The provost said he had tried desperately to save the cathedral. His squad extinguished 12 fires started by incendiary bombs before their sand and water supply gave out. A new rain of explosives forced them to flee, he said.

Squads of home guards and police are clearing the streets of wreckage. A heavy pall of smoke still hangs over the scene.

Rescue workers and survivors face the constant threat of falling buildings and delayed action bombs.

With all his pressing concerns Mayor J. A. Moseley, who was bombed out of his own home, still had time to give a brief interview.

"We are hit," he said, "but we never will be licked."

"Back in 1641 Charles the Second besieged Coventry and even our women went out, dug trenches and aided in the defence. Today all our women and men are helping bring us out of this."

DOCKS, OIL PLANTS HIT AT HAMBURG

R.A.F. Also Bombs Airdromes and 'Invasion Ports'

London, Nov. 16 (CP).—Successful raids by the Royal Air Force on enemy owned and occupied objectives in Germany and other parts of Europe were announced today in a brief Air Ministry communique which said merely:

"Last night the docks, oil plants and other objectives in Hamburg were heavily attacked by our bombers. Airdromes in enemy-occupied territory and 'invasion ports' were also bombed."

Subsequently the air ministry declared "it is now evident that last night's attack on Hamburg was a very satisfactory operation. The hit, and all our aircraft returned principal targets of the city were safely."

Kiel and the ports of Ostend and Calais were other objectives, the Air Ministry announced. Many explosions and fires, it said, were caused in docks and railway areas.

Coastal command aircraft co-operating with the fleet air arm also raided airdromes in Norway and Northern France last night with "substantial results", the Air Min-

Italian Campaign May Falter Unless Supply Route Canbe Kept Open

London, Nov. 16.—(CP)—British military sources declared today that, although the Italians probably have ample stocks of food and munitions in Albania, they doubted that the Fascists will be able to continue any major campaign against Greece unless communications with their homeland can be kept open.

These sources estimated Italy's military strength in Albania at between 200,000 and 250,000 troops, but said 80 per cent of the supplies for this army had to be handled through the Port of Durazzo, bombed repeatedly by the Royal Air force.

Government to Hold Enquiry on Wrecks On Great Lakes

Ottawa, Nov. 16 (CP).—A full inquiry will be held by the government into the wrecks early this week of the Great Lakes steamships Anna C. Minch and the Novadoc with loss of thrity lives, Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, minister of transport, told the House of Commons Friday.

The question was raised by T. L. Church, Conservative - Toronto - Broadview who asked if an inquiry would be held and if it would cover aids to navigation, life saving equipment and seaworthiness, as well as recommend compensation for dependents of men lost.

Mr. Cardin said the inquiry would cover all those points but he would not say any compensation would be paid unless responsibility had been established against the government.

"If Canada is a nation it should look after sailors on the Great Lakes," said Mr. Church.

"We are doing so," Mr. Cardin replied.

ASST. FIRE CHIEF KILLED AND SIX INJURED IN FIRE

Crushed by Collapsing Wall as Cafe in Fort William Destroyed

SOLDIERS HURT

Fort William, Ont., Nov. 16 (CP) One man was killed and six injured, two seriously, when fire early today destroyed the Mandarin Cafe in Victoria Avenue.

Assistant Fire Chief J. A. McEwen was killed when crushed by a collapsing wall. The injured are Private Gordon Cyploski of Iroquois Falls; Private Phillips of Haldane, Ont., (initial unavaible); both members of the Algonquin Regiment; Thomas Ross, Rod McKenzie, Gordon Tennant, Harold Lockwood, firemen.

Cyploski was seriously injured when with Chief McEwen and Phillips he was caught beneath the tumbling front of the cafe. The two soldiers had been lending a hand in fighting the flames, believed to have started in the basement of the cafe from an unknown cause.

Battled Three Hours

Ross was seriously hurt when he fell from the rear of the burning building but the others suffered only slight injuries.

Flames were first noticed about 10 o'clock last night. For three hours firemen battled the conflagration, pouring water from the roof of nearby buildings whose walls prevented the fire from spreading.

About one o'clock this morning the whole front of the cafe collapsed crushing the assistant Fire Chief to death and injuring the two soldiers.

The restaurant was owned by the W. J. Ross estate. It was a total loss but no damage estimate was given.

ONE SHIP AFIRE

Ships Obtained Clearance Papers for Canary Islands and Spain

Tampico, Mexico, Nov. 16.—(AP)—A mysterious dash into the Gulf of Mexico of four heavily-laden German freighters ended in apparent disaster and failure today, with one ship reported afire, another having engine trouble and the other two turning back into port.

Rumors ran like wildfire around the waterfront but there was no confirmation of a report that British warships, standing guard in the Gulf, had fired on one of the German.

Biggest of the four ships, the 9,660-ton Orinoco, limped back into port under tow. It had signalled shortly after midnight that one of its engines failed.

Vicente Villasana, Tampico editor, said another German vessel, apparently the 4,137-ton Phrygia, was reported on fire about 15 miles out to sea.

Won't Run Blockade

The two other vessels ,the Rhein of 6,031 tons and the Idarwald of 5,033 tons, were reported heading back to the berths they had occupied in Tampico harbor for

BOMB WRECKS LONDON HOTEL

Missile Pierced Roof and Three Floors Before Exploding

London, Nov. 16 (CP)—A big London hotel was wrecked by a bomb in last night's air raid. The missile pierced the roof and three floors before exploding. Miraculously it caused no fatal casualties.

A Canadian sleeping on an upper floor said "we could not get down to the main hall (which suffered the full force of the explosion). The lighting system had gone completely and it was terrifying in the dark."

The authorities did not permit the use of the Canadian's name.

Two churches, a sanatorium and a large school building in a south coast town were destroyed. Bright moonlight, which undoubtedly aided the Axis bombers in spotting their targets, ironically enough also provided light for rescue workers.

A convent in the outskirts of London received a direct hit. The nuns, sheltered in the basement, escaped death when the residential wing of the building and the refectory were demolished.

'I Never Want to See Another Like it' Says Skipper After Weathering Storm

Owen Sound, Ont., Nov. 16—(CP)—Two boats of the Owen Sound and Dominion Transportation Company, the Caribou and the Manitou arrived here safely after seeking shelter for three days from the fury of gales along the north shore of Georgian Bay.

Capt. A. A. Batten, Owen Sound, veteran Master of the Caribou, tied up at Killarney wharf since Sunday shook his head over the tragic consequence of the November gale.

"The worst since 1913, and I never want to see another like it," he said. He told of docks torn from their moorings in the channel near Killarney. The skipper, with 40 hunters from the Striker and Skull Point clubs, both of Owen Sound, and the St. Ledgers club from Ohio, made a second attempt to clear the north shore channel before finally setting out on the home journey.

Capt. R. Morrison, the Manitou's skipper, said his boat received a "terrific beating."

Lying unsheltered at dock in Providence Bay, Manitoulin Island, the little boat had snapped her anchor and 13 of her 15 cables during the storm, and only her three-inch tow-line was holding when she rode out the storm. For 36 hours, Capt. Morrison said, he had had the ship's engines tuning over to prevent surging. Waves which washed completely over the vessel froze instantly. The Manitou carried no passengers.

A.A. Keeps Planes Too High For Accurate Bombing

Casualties Fewer Than Expected Though Property Damage Considerable

London, Nov. 16—(CP)—German bombers, attacking in formation, smashed at London with sudden fury early today in a "grand scale" raid which the Press Association estimated involved upwards of 500 planes—as many as the Nazis reportedly hurled against industrial Coventry the night before.

The Press Association's air correspondent declared that "the enemy used as many planes as were used in the attack on Coventry," and added: "It was an attack on a grand scale."

Civilian casualties were feared great as expolsives and fire bombs rained down through rifts in the clouded sky and shattered apartment buildings, shops and homes in the suddenly intensified attack.

SPANISH GOV'T RESCINDS ORDER

United States Newsmen Will be Allowed to Remain in Country

Madrid, Nov. 16 — (AP) — The Spanish Government today lifted its order, issued yesterday, which banned the United States Press from operating in Spain.

Correspondents were told that their situation would remain normal.

The announcement followed a visit to the Foreign Office by the United States ambassador, Alexander Weddell.

The ban was announced yesterday, to take effect today, as a reprisal for what Spanish officials said was United States' refusal to permit correspondents of Efe, the official Spanish News Agency, to enter the United States. The State Department in Washington said no such permission had been requested.

DANCERS DRIVEN INTO STREETS

Calgary, Nov. 16—(CP) — Three hundred dancers, many without wraps, were driven into the street early today when fire broke out at the rear of Penley's Dancing Academy in downtown Calgary. Damage to the premises was estimated at $5,000.

Firemen controlled the blaze after a 25-minute fight. Later dancers were able to get their wraps from the checkroom.

Barrie, Ont., Nov. 16 (CP)—Arrested twenty minutes after a jewelry store at nearby Bradford had been robbed early today, Pte. James F. Taylor, 35, Toronto member of the Royal Canadian Army Service Corps, was charged a few hours later with breaking, entering and theft. He was remanded in custody to Nov. 20 when he appeared in court later.

In the robbery, a piece of concrete was hurled through the plate glass window of Fine's jewelry store and rings, watches and other articles valued at $600 stolen.

Marine City, Nov. 16 (AP).—Four young persons plunged to their deaths last night when their automobile careened off a highway three miles north of here and fell into Newport Shores draining canal.

The victims were identified as Ruth Cane, 16, Marine City; Melvin J. Jones, 19, Fair Haven; his sister, Elsie, 15, and Walter A. Fahs, 18, Lenox.

GAYDA AT IT AGAIN

Rome, Nov. 16 (AP). — Virginio Gayda, the Fascist editor, asserted today the United States was not neutral even before the war and some day would see "if its blind evaluations" of the European situation, along with her aid to Britain, had not caused the United States "political and economic damage".

He criticized American newspapers for their comment on Italian naval casualties and said an axis victory is certain.

NURSE'S REPORT GIVEN BOARD

The public school nurse's report, as tendered to the monthly meeting of the Board of Education by Miss E. A. Earshman last night in the board room, disclosed that during the current month Miss Earshman had inspected a total of 580 pupils in the public schools of Belleville.

Some 31 visits were made to the various schools and 32 visits were made by Miss Earshman to private homes, while five parents called at the school nurse's office for advice pertaining to the health of their children.

Six dental clinics were held at King George School at which 18 pupils received treatment. There were 80 permanent teeth treated and 64 given temporary treatment along with six extractions made. Two cases of whooping cough were reported as were several minor cases of measles.

MAIN CITY STREETS QUICKLY SANDED

Highways and streets in Belleville and district were in a slippery condition on Saturday morning as the result of a drop in temperature over the night, following yesterday's snowstorm which traffic wheels had quickly turned into slush on the roadways. City employees were out early this morning with the sander, giving the slopes in various parts of the city a liberal coating of sand or ashes to reduce traffic hazards, while sidewalks received the same application in an effort to keep pedestrians on their feet.

CHIMNEY FIRE ON ANN STREET

Belleville firemen had only one run on Friday, that being in the early afternoon to the residence of Mrs. V. Reid, 259 Ann Street, to extinguish a chimney fire. No damage was reported however.

Charles L. Hyde Definitely in Mayoralty Race

Charles L. Hyde, well-known Belleville business man and veteran civic office-holder, definitely tossed his hat into the mayoralty ring and will contest the office for mayor of the City of Belleville during the forthcoming municipal elections, he announced today.

"My decision in the matter came as a result of continued solicitation of many friends and especially ratepayers and having the interest of the city primarily at heart I decided to offer my services as mayor for 1941," Mr. Hyde told the Ontario Intelligencer today.

"I have carefully examined the needs of Belleville and will announce a strong platform upon which I will make my stand at a later date. The attaining of a greater industrial Belleville and reducation of taxation are primarily my objectives," explained Mr. Hyde as he mentioned the fact he was entering the mayoralty race with 15 years' of public service behind him.

Education Board Empowered To Sell Property Belonging To Board Says Chairman

Suitable Parking Lot Will be Constructed at the Collegiate Institute

APPOINTMENTS MADE

A suitable parking lot for automobiles will be constructed at the south-west corner of the Church St. campus of the Belleville Collegiate Institute and Vocational School and no further parking of motor vehicles will be permitted in the space at the south-east corner of the school property facing John Street, it was recommended at last night's monthly meeting of the Board of Education.

The abolishment of parking automobiles in the area facing John St. came about following a letter of complaint signed by several residents of John St., who registered objection to the annoyance and especially the elimination of horticultural space within that area of the school grounds. Parking will be restricted to the new area as soon as the Public Works Department of the city construct ramps leading off Church St., the Board was assured last night.

All members of the Board were present when Chairman Russell Wotten called for the minutes of the previous meeting, which were adopted. Under general business the Advisory Vocational committee reported that the Night School enrollment totalled 506 at present with an average attendance of 67 per cent. Accounts of $919.67, including salaries, were passed.

Appointed to Board

The School Management Committee recommended that Miss Stewart Masson be named by the board to replace Miss Helen Potter on the Corby Library Board, the recommendation passed unanimously.

The Property Committee recommended that a right-of-way owned by the board on Octavia St., be sold to Miss Handley for the sum of $100.

Under the question of enquiries E. A. Geen asked if the board was empowered to sell such properties owned by the board. Chairman Wotten assured the questioner in the affirmative. "Well, then we can sell building lots from our property on the East Belleville playgrounds, as I take it," replied Mr. Geen in the form of a question.

"No doubt we can, they are serving us to no good purpose now," injected Rev. A. B. Payne.

Teacher Named

Miss Dora Osborne was appointed to fill the vacancy left with the resignation of Miss Helen Potter at Queen Alexandra School, Miss Masson also replacing Miss Potter on the Library Board.

The advisory vocational committee recommended the appointment of Mr. C. G. Heard as machine shop master in both the day and night schools during the absence of Mr. Ferguson, who was granted leave of absence from the vocational school for the duration of the war to head the war emergency classes in Belleville. The recommendation passed as did another for certain changes in the basement of the collegiate to accommodate the war emergency classes. The cost of the remodelling of the basement is not to exceed $4,000, of which the Department of Education agreed to assume 75 per cent of the total cost.

P. C. MacLaurin, principal of the B.C.I.V.S. reported that classes this semester were far in advance to previous years. "The war savings stamp and certificate effort of the school has realized $5,133.48 and I'm glad to say 64 per cent of the enrolled students in the school have purchased war savings stamps," stated Mr. MacLaurin as he added that the pupils were selling them at the rate of $100 per day. Chas. Hyde highly commended the efforts of the students and Mr. MacLaurin's report in the matter.

Truant Officer's Report.

Truant Officer Fred Wiggins' report showed this official had made 180 visits to city homes and 59 visits to schools during the current month. One court case necessary as the result of continued truancy, the case having been enlarged for one month, however.

An application from the Navy League of Canada resulted in considerable discussion. During the first week in December "Navy Week" will be observed in Canada and the Navy League sought permission to circulate literature and radio talks throughout the schools, to be followed with envelopes to be taken into the homes for voluntary donations to the league. After lengthy discussion the board voted to endorse the project, with the exception of the envelopes. John Deacon moved that the board vote $25 to the league and seek education for the schools along the lines of whatever program is being planned for "navy week". The motion carried.

When speaking on the matter Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne said: "I am opposed to the use of our schools as a channel to canvass, as we are only setting a precedent," he warned.

Under the heading of enquiries Chairman Wotten pointed out that the city council was to have met the Board regarding the matter of an addition to Queen Mary School and also regarding the night school situation. "However, the council has not seen fit to meet with us nor discuss these matters," revealed the chairman.

Defendants Heard In Damage Suit

The Supreme Court jury hearing the $10,000 damage suit brought by Arthur and Jenny Parks, Madoc, against Gordon Munro, of the same village as a result of a Nov. 1938 motor accident in which Mrs. Parks was severely injured, left the jury room today and a verdict is expected some time this afternoon.

Charles A. Payne K.C., counsel for the plaintiffs and W. A. L. Fair, defendant's representative addressed the jury last night while the charge from presiding Justice Keiller MacKay was delivered this morning.

The case reached its closing phases yesterday afternoon and evening when the principal witnesses for the defence gave evidence.

Mrs. Fanny Munro, mother of Wellington Munro, told the court that Parks told her that if his wife had gone with him she would not have been hit, during a conversation in a hospital. Her son had a driver's licence and had driven their car on several occasions.

She admitted under cross-examination that her son and a companion named Reeves had a pint of beer with her in the house before leaving for a function at the armouries. She had left them at the house, and gone to the armouries. The two young men had arrived shortly afterwards. Witness denied saying to Parks, she was sorry she had let Wellington have the car that night.

Defendant Heard

Wellington Munro left his home with a friend Reeves at 11 p.m., Nov. 23rd. and went to the armouries. He had parked the car on the south side of St. Laurence Street. Later, deciding to repark the car they had driven around the block until they came down Davidson to St. Laurence.

"We turned westerly, and swung wide to get around cars parked on the north side of St. Laurence Street."

Munro told the bench he had swung to the south side of the road, because he saw a parking place there. Mr. and Mrs. Parks had started to cross the road, and were in front of the left front wheel of the McCoy car which was parked along the curb. One was ahead of the other about 4 feet north of the car, the other one foot north of the car. It was dark about this point of the street.

"I was fifteen feet away, and instantly applied the brakes."

Visibility Poor

One continued across the road, and the other turned to go back. I swerved to miss the one going north, the other one went south.

Munro remembered hitting Mrs. Parks after he applied the brakes. He believed the blow had thrown her to one side and had not pinned her against the McCoy car bumper.

Visibility was poor, he said, at this particular point, but admitted the lights were good on his car, when questioned by the bench.

Cross examined, Munro said he came down Davidson Street, prior to the accident, at from 10-15 miles per hour. He slowed to 5-6 miles per hour near the intersection.

He admitted he did not stop at the stop sign nor at the intersection.

Teachers at B. C. I. Night School Offer Month's Services Without Pay as School Board Lacks Funds

With the year's estimates practically exhausted, the Belleville Board of Education was faced with the possible closing of their Night School classes conducted at the Belleville Collegiate and had gone as far as to recommend that such classes, as conducted after the end of this month, would have to be carried on at no cost to the board. However, through the generosity of the teachers and officials of the Night School it was announced at Friday night's board meeting that the classes will be continued for the remainder of the semester, with the teachers signifying their willingness to carry on without remuneration during the month of December.

The decision of the teachers was highly commended upon at the board meeting after Principal P. C. MacLaurin assured the board that the teachers and tutors were quite willing to continue the classes throughout the month of December, realising the position the Board of Education was placed through their estimates having been reduced last spring by the City Council.

"I have been authorized to report that the teachers are quite willing to continue the classes without remuneration during the month of December, providing, however, that the attendance warrants the continuance and the classes remain suitable to encourage the work," assured Principal MacLaurin.

"Splendid Gesture," Says Chairman

"If the teachers carry on it is a splendid gesture on their part. Unfortunately the board is lacking funds to continue the classes after the end of the month, but this fine gesture assures the continuance of the classes until the end of the year," pointed out Chairman Russell Wotten.

"This is a fine gesture, but I'm wondering what happens after the first of the year. Will these teachers expect remuneration for their work during this period?" asked Rev. A. B. Payne.

"I imagine they will resume their classes at the usual salary next year, but with no back pay for December," replied Chairman Wotten.

"As I remember it the Chairman of Finance of the City Council said we could come back to the council if we were short, of course that was when we were asked to lower our estimates for the Night School by $1,000," said E. A. Geen.

"That's quite true, but that chairman is not sitting in the council now," pointed out the chairman.

"I think the teachers should be complimented and no doubt the students will appreciate the fact they are receiving their additional month's training, that would not be available had the teachers and the principal not made this fine gesture. The attendance will doubtless vouch for the gesture," stated Chas. Hyde.

"Under these circumstances I think the board is indebted to all concerned for the assurance that our Night School program will be completed at no additional cost to the public," concluded Rev. Payne as the board as a whole commended the Night School staff upon their generous proposal through Principal MacLaurin.

5-Cent Decrease In Egg Prices On City Market

Icy roads resulting in treacherous driving conditions were responsible in a considerable decrease in attendance on Saturday's market, which was featured by a five-cent drop in the price of eggs from last week's quotations.

Grade "A" large sold at 45c per dozen with other grades being quoted at 42c and 36c for pullet eggs. Butter remained stationary selling at 65c per two-lb. roll. The offering of chickens seemed not quite as large as usual, although prices remained at approximately 20c per lb. for the better grade fowl. Large birds weighing six pounds were quoted at $1.50 with smaller fowl ranging down to 80c each.

Apples, as usual, were featured on the outside market, with slight decrease in price noted for first grade apples from last week's quotations. Number 1 Spys were quoted at $1.75 per hamper, McIntosh at $1.50 and $1.75 per hamper according to size with Snows being quoted at the same figure. Talman Sweets were $1.50 per hamper with other cooking varieties selling at $1.00 per bushel.

Prices remained practically stationary on the vegetable market with beets, carrots, turnips and parsnips selling at the usual price of 30c per peck. Onions were 40c per peck, beans 20c per quart, cauliflowers ranged from 20c to 5c each. Pop corn was 10c per dozen ears. Sauerkraut sold at 10c per quart. Potatoes sold at $1.00 per 75 lb. bag or at 25c per peck.

Butchers were noted on the market for the first time this season, selling headcheese at 15c and sausage at 20c per lb.

Winter bouquets were 30c per bunch, painted pots and flowers 35c and bittersweet 25c per bunch.

The fish offering was quite complete with lake trout being sold at 25c or at 30c sliced, whitefish at 20c, herring at two fish for 25c, pike at 10c per lb and mudcats at 2 lbs. for 25c.

Young porkers were quoted at prices ranging from $3.75 to $4.50 each for seven to eight week's old "Squealers." Stove wood sold at $10.00 per cord for hardwood and $7.50 to $8.00 for mixed lots.

'London Can Take It' Is Being Shown At 3 Local Theatres

A picture of tremendous importance, "London Can Take It," comes to the Belle, McCarthy theatres commencing today in addition to the regular programs. This picture will also be shown at the Capitol starting Sunday midnight after 12.05 a.m.

Last week a print of the picture was flown across the Atlantic by the Clipper to Harry M. Warner of Warner Brothers who had been requested by the British Ministry of Information to try to arrange distribution. So impressive was the picture that Mr. Warner volunteered to have hundreds of extra prints made and release them immediately throughout the entire United States and Canada. In New York alone, eight downtown theatres are running it at once. All profits above the actual cost of distribution, are being contributed to the British War Relief.

The camera clock span follows the people of the city on the banks of the Thames from early evening hours through the long stretches of the night to the beginning of a new day.

The arrival of the bombing 'Jerries" of the enemy invader is heralded and the ordeal that has been in practice for over five weeks adds another night to the calendar of martial London night life. Another sequence reports on the defense tactics, the wailing warning of siren alarms, the stabbing, pointing fingers of the searchlights, and the din of falling bombs.

The sound track for this section is eloquent in its depiction of the business being portrayed and is recording of actuality, not synthetic studio dubbing. Comes the morning and London crawls out of ruins of the wreckage and from the close but safe underground quarters to inspect and clear up the devastation.

Closeups show London citizens treking into shelters, asleep in cramped and uncomfortable quarters, and calmly and even jokingly adjusting themselves to the new regime. Contrasting with the sound and fury scenes are the sights of the silent, deserted streets of the city awaiting the air terror visitation. Quentin Reynolds, war correspondent for Collier's, speaks the commentary on the proceedings. Audiences, who have been reading daily newspaper accounts of the material screened, will find the stories of heroic London documented.

Police Blotter

Despite the ice-covered slippery roads no serious motor accidents were reported in Belleville or environs during the past 24 hours. All dangerous and hazardous hills and curves along Highway No. 2 were sanded Motorcycle Patrolmen announced early Saturday. The Department of Public Works in Belleville likewise sanded business street intersections and all hills in the city to insure safety in traversing city streets.

Two automobiles collided on Front Street shortly before midnight Friday resulting in considerable fender damage to both vehicles. While backing out from the Front Street east curb an automobile driven by Henry C. Brown, 221 McDonald Avenue was in collision with a south bound motor car driven by Harry Wilkins, 86 Chatham Street. P.C. Evans investigated and the matter of damages was amicably settled upon the officer's arrival.

Police answered a call to the Globe Cafe where a disturbance was reported earlier in the evening. Upon arrival the police apprehended an old offender, who had imbibed too freely and he was placed in custody on a charge of intoxication. The inebriate and eleven transients shared the cell block at the police station for the night.

B.C.I.V.S. Nov. 15, 1940.

C.O.S.S.A.——Semi-Finals.

Belleville C.I.V.S.—26. Bowmanville C. I. —21.

Half Backs— Stew McBride, Ross Clare, Bill McBride, Bruce Cronk.

Quarter Back—Bill Pigden.

Snap—Jack Zufelt.

Insides—Sharpe, Pickering.

Middles—Kerr, Jones.

Outsides—Warren, Campbell.

Alternates — Row, Theobald, O'Connor, Hunter, Mulholland, Gardener, Tripp, Smith.

Play was comparatively slow in the first half with Belleville opening the scoring when Clare's long kick was good for a single. Bowmanville on a beautiful forward pass, McIenn to Fisher, scored a touchdown, which Brown converted. In the second quarter Clare threw a long pass to Cronk who lateralled to Pigden, to take the ball to Bowmanville's 15 yard line. Bill McBride advanced it to the 4 yard line and Clare carried it over for a touchdown which he converted.

Score at end of first half Belleville 7, Bowmanville 6.

From the opening kick off Stew McBride on four successive plunges carried the ball for a major score. Clare converted. Bill McBride from the next kick off on a lateral from Pigden advanced to Bowmanville's 10 yard line and in the next play he scored a major. Clare's try for conversion was blocked. Belleville kicked off and on a Bowmanville fumble Pickering fell on the ball. In the next play, however, McIleen intercepted a forward. A. McIleen to Brown pass was good for twenty yards. Belleville took over on their own 40 yard line and advanced to Bowmanville's 30 before their attack was stalled. Clare's kick to Slemon was good for another Belleville point. A few minutes later Clare scored another single. Just before the end of the third quarter Brown got away a beautiful kick to Belleville's dead line.

Early in the fourth quarter Brown kicked a placement and a few minutes later McIleen intercepted a Belleville forward pass ran for a major score. Brown failed to convert. Brown fumbled a long kick in his own end zone and Theobald fell on it for a major score, which Clare converted. Bowmanville then on a series of powerful line plunges and forward passes scored a major late in the fourth quarter which Brown converted.

Final; score B.C.I.V.S. — 26 Bowmanville 21.

Bowmanville line although outweighing our boys by several pounds never had the better of them. After a shaky first quarter start our boys looked like real C.O.S.S.A. champions. (I hope.)

Brown and McIleen were particularly effective in Bowmanville backfield. Bill McBride run back of kicks was sensational. Pigden showed his old form of running, and "Yank" McBride's plunging was very dangerous for Bowmanville. Clare kicking was excellent and his tackling at secondary defence very deadly. Cronk in intercepting forwards and all round playing showed his best form. Now to beat Bowmanville in their own backyard. Here's wishing you all the luck in the world gang.—J.H.

More Small Talk:

Three cheers for our football team! After a hard struggle at the fair grounds last Wednesday the team defeated Bowmanville Collegiate 26-21 (although we did hear the Bowmanville time-keeper was muddled by the huddles).

The play rushes on and next Thursday will see it enacted for the first time in Belleville —under the auspices of the Red Cross. We need "fullhouse" for two successive nights and everyone just has to go.

The Red Cross Groups in the school are all working at top speed distributing and selling tickets for the play next week.

Thursday morning in Assembly we were favoured by several pieces which were sung by the Senior Glee Club. The rendition of "Bells of St. Mary" was excellent, as well as 'There Always be an England" in which the students joined and the introduction sung by Bernice Saunders.

Mr. MacLaurin congratulated the team on the results of the game on Wednesday and spoke about the "admirable physiques" and urged that they "hang together" (in one ville CC.I.—21

NAZI OUTRAGE ON COVENTRY

Coventry, one of the most famous of English cities, paid the price of freedom in civilian dead and injured as the result of a Nazi air raid on Friday. The ordeal was the worst that has befallen any English centre, even including London.

The dastardly Nazi bomber crews did their nefarious work which is a shame to civilization.

But the people of the old city stood the ordeal like veterans of war. They preserved their courage for they knew that Britain depended upon their holding their morale.

Here is Hitler and Goering strategy as it is meant to be—Nazi German savagery gloating in the destruction of human lives.

The Hun may gloat over this but the Hun that gloats, the Hun that dropped the bombs and the Hun that ordered the bombing of the city of Coventry are marked forever in the minds of every race but the perpetrators. The tribulations these people of Coventry endured, the losses so many families have sustained in dear ones mean retribution to the foul foe. The Hun does not and seemingly cannot understand that instead of breaking their morale, he is firing the determination of the British people to crush this lowest type of civilization which has ever called itself by the name of civilization. He bombs the British civilian folk because he thinks the British people would do exactly as German civilians would do under air bombing. But the Germans are not like the British—that is where the German has all along made the mistake. The Hun has never understood the British character.

At Coventry was done another crime of murder which will be expiated. London and Coventry will never be forgotten .This means just that much more determination to crush Hitlerism and Fascism forever.

The Nazi Germans who have been willing to defile themselves by murder to make them feared on earth are the worst example of modern humanity of men run mad. So dulled by their crimes are they that they cannot see that justice cries out for the punishment of such murderous actions, that retribution comes that much more certainly to them. The world spirit, the soul of the human race, stands against Hitler, Goering and all their ilk and will not let them win for a Nazi win would be a carnival of death of all that is noble and pure and would give the reign to crime and licence the like of which the world has never seen.

Coventry's slain will sound the death-knell of Hitlerism. Their ghosts must surely haunt the dulled and deadened consciences of the Huns.

JERVIS BAY'S SACRIFICE SAVED MEN, SHIPS

The Jervis Bay, the armed merchant cruiser which threw herself against an armed German raider in the Atlantic last week and sacrificed herself for the sake of a convoy did not sink in vain. Of thirty-eight ships in the British convoy thirty-two are now reported safe, four are known to have been sunk by the raider and one sunk three days afterwards in a bomb attack. There is yet one to be accounted for. If it had not been for the Jervis Bay there is no doubt among those who served on the other ships, the raider could have sunk the entire convoy.

The men who went down with this ship have written an undying story of devotion to their country and their praise will be told with that of the other ships and heroic crews who have fought against terrible odds. By their sacrifice they saved all the others. The Jervis Bay has saved at least thirty-two convoy ships and possibly thirty-three if the missing one comes to port, and their crews from likely death.

The survivors of the Jervis Bay also wrote their deeds in the page of history.

Perhaps the Hun raider itself did not entirely escape damage as a captain of a merchant ship in the convoy says that his ship made two hits on the Nazi sea raider.

There can be no greater story than that of the sacrifice of the Jervis Bay which fought to the last.

Her commander was an Irishman from County Tipperary who loved the sea. Capt. Fogarty Fegen fought with his arm shattered and went down with his ship. He has won a name which will endure forever. A great captain he was and will be to future generations.

It was his glory that the great majority of the ships were saved from the Hun and made their way with their precious cargoes to fill the needs of Britain.

He was the master of his fate in that great hour when he and his men gave themselves for the honor and name of Britain. Annals of the sea can hold no more glorious record than this of the dauntless courage of the commander and crew who upheld British freedom.

Such heroes died with honor, which makes life more worth while for others. In a day when the destroying Nazi's hand is out to wreck and destroy the works of mankind and would destroy the soul as well as the body if he could and who is the negation of eveything that is noble in principle, it is a salutary influence to know that there are men whose code of honor is so high that it will allow them to do nothing wrong or mean and which will not hold them back from making the greatest sacrifice of all by giving their lives for their country's honor.

They were the sons of British liberty, and, noble sons of noble sires, they followed the way of duty, honor and sacrifice.

Belleville was visited by a disastrous fire which broke out shortly after one o'clock this afternoon in the Palace Theatre situated on Front Street. The fire spread rapidly and shortly after it was discovered, flames burst from the main entrance of the theatre and it was evident that the building was doomed as the flames were spreading to the upper flats. The fire department under the direction of Chief Brown arrived promptly and did heroic work, but the building was beyond saving. The apartments on the second floor were occupied by several tenants and some of the women jumped from the windows upon the portico in front of the main entrance to the theatre and were assisted to the ground. The tenants lost their effects, but were fortunate to escape with their lives. The firemen succeeded in confining the fire to the theatre building, but the Bank of Commerce to the north of the burned building and the Perfect Cafe to the south of the same building were flooded to some extent with water and considerable smoke entered these buildings. The fire was discovered by Police Officer Thompson. The burned building was owned by Mayor W. B. Riggs, who also owns the Perfect Cafe, which adjoins the theatre building to the south. Mr. George J. Forhan, the manager of the theatre, was unable to state what the loss will be to the company operating the theatre, buit it will be high as the operating room was provided with up-to-date machines.

Ottawa, Nov. 16 -(CP)—Senator William Duff's suggestion that negotiations be started with Newfoundland with a view to possible inclusion of the British colony in Canada's Confederation comes at a time which may be more opportune for such a move than any other in the past 70-odd years.

The Liberal member from Nova Scotia—popularly known as "Admiral" Duff around Parliament Hill—is a native of Newfoundland who has lived in Canada for 45 years. He made his proposal in the Senate Thursday.

The British North America Act of July 1, 1867, includes provision for Newfoundland's admittance to Confederation, but through the years the colony's government leaders have opposed coming into Canada and its heavy debts have made many Canadians wary of anything along that line.

A royal commission headed by Lord Amulree investigated conditions in Newfoundland seven years ago. It considered political union with Canada would not be acceptable to Newfoundland public opinion at that time.

Now the situation has changed because of the war. A confederation of defence already been reached between Canada and the colony, which controls the mineral-rich expanse of Labrador on the mainland. Canadian troops are stationed in Newfoundland and opinion there seems to be in complete accord with the defence arrangement.

Senator Duff is not alone here in his belief that now may be an appropriate time to launch discussions leading to a political, as well as military, accord.

The Commons gets an occasional chuckle even in the longest speeches.... Prime Minister King provided one this week when he mentioned the Throne Speech read at Parliament's opening.... "Had I made a long speech——" he began, and the House laughed...... Mr. King started again...... "Rather, had I advised His Excellency to make a long speech——" (P.S.: The Governor-General merely reads the Throne Speech; it's prepared by the Prime Minister).

Conservative House Leader Hanson provided a couple.... He said a month's compulsory military training would do him good, then accidentally proceeded to demonstrate by saying: "The recruits learn to march and form fours."... ....The army forms threes nowadays.

The House laughed again when he indulged in a bit of doubletalk: "I say to my honorable friends that those associated with me on this side of the House are as good Canadians as are to be found anywhere in the House—I speak for myself."

Odds and Ends—

Prime Minister Mackenzie King celebrated this week the 31st anniversary of his first taking a seat in the House—as Minister of Labor Nov. 17, 1909.

At least five Commons members are attending sessions in uniform: A. J. Brooks (Con. Royal), Alan Chambers (Lib. Nanaimo), Hughes Lapointe (Lib. Lotbiniere), James Sinclair (Lib. Vancouver North) and G. S. White (Con. Hastings-Peterborough).

Conference Cuffnotes—

Prime Minister King has an easy, conversational manner at formal press conferences.... It's different when the press gallery asks for one unexpectedly when Mr. King isn't ready to make a definite statement ......Correspondents shoot their questions and the "P.M." backs away, his principal comment "No."

Navy Minister Macdonald sits beside an oaken ship's wheel....Often he sips milk between his slow, careful answers.

Air Minister Power's conferences are the most informal of the lot.... He smokes and jokes with the newsmen.
